ZONING ORDINANCE HAYES TOWNSHIP CHARLEVOIX COUNTY, MICHIGAN

Introductory Statement

An Ordinance to establish zoning districts in the unincorporated portion of Hayes Township, Charlevoix County, Michigan, and to provide for the regulation, government, and administration thereof, in accordance with the provisions of Act 184 of the Public Acts of 1943, as amended through 1978 and hereinafter referred to as, "the Township Rural Zoning Act".

BE IT ORDAINED by the Board of Hayes Township of Charlevoix County, State of Michigan, as follows:

ARTICLE I
PURPOSE AND AUTHORITY

Section 1.01 - Title

This Ordmance shall be known as the "Hayes Township Zoning Ordinance", and will be referred to herein as "this Ordinance".

Section 1.02 - Purpose

The purpose of this ordinance is to promote the public health, safety, morals and general welfare, to encourage the use of lands in accordance with their character and adaptability and to limit the improper use of land, to avoid the overcrowding of population, to provide adequate light and air, to lessen congestion on the public roads and streets, to reduce hazards to life and property, to facilitate adequate provision for a system of transportation, sewage disposal, safe and adequate water supply, education, recreation and other public requirements and to conserve the expenditure of funds for public improvements and services to conform with the most advantageous uses of land, resources and properties; and shall be made with reasonable consideration, among other things, to the character of each district, its suitability for particular uses, the conservation of property values and natural resources, and the general and appropriate trend and character of land, building and population development.

Section 1.03 - Authority

This Ordinance is ordained and enacted into law pursuant to the provisions and in accordance with the State of Michigan, Township Rural Zoning Act, Act 184 of the Public Acts of 1943, through 1978 as amended.

ARTICLE II
RULES APPLYING TO TEXT AND DEFINITIONS

Section 2.01 - Rules Applying to Text

The following rules of construction apply to the text of this Ordinance:

a) The particular shall control the general.

b) In case of any difference of meaning or implication between the text of this Ordinance and any caption, the text shall control.

c) The word "shall" is always mandatory and not discretionary. The word "may" is permissive.

a) are operated in their entirety within the dwelling and not within any garage, attached or unattached, or accessory building located upon the premises, except for incidental storage in or use of a residential-type garage upon the premises, unless a separate structure is permitted by the tlayes Township Planning Commission for a "cottage industry" as hereinafter described, no outside storage shall be permitted,

b) are only conducted by the person or persons occupying the permises as their principal residence a major portion of each month; provided, however, the Planning Commission shall have the authority to permit additional subordinate assistants who do not so reside within said dwelling where the same would not materially impair the residential character of the neighborhood or cause traffic congestion or parking problems. In no event, however, shall such additional assistants exceed three in number,

c) the dwelling has no exterior evidence, other than an unlimited sign, not to exceed six (6) square feet in size, to indicate that the same is being utilized for any purpose other than that of a dwelling.

d) the occupation conducted therein is clearly incidental and subordinate to the principal use of the premises for residential purposes,

e) that no goods are sold from the premises which are not strictly incidental to the principal home occupation conducted therein,

f) no occupation shall be conducted upon or from the premises which would constitute a nuisance or annoyance to adjoining residents by reason of noise, smoke, odor, electrical disturbance, night lighting, or the creation of unreasonable traffic to the premises. Noise, smoke, odor, electrical disturbance or the source of lighting shall not be discernible beyond the boundaries of the property from which the occupation is conducted,

g) any such home occupation shall be subject to inspection by the zoning administrator of the township and may be terminated by order of such administrator whenever the same fails to comply with the zoning ordinance.

h) the Planning Commission shall have authority to determine whether or not a proposed use and structure complies with the zoning ordinance and is within the spirit of the same to ensure the compatibility of any use with the character of the zoning classification in which the same is located and that the health, safety and general welfare of the neighborhood will not thereby be impaired,

i) the Planning Commission may, upon written application, permit in the A-1 zone district only construction and use of a separate structure compatible in appearance to the principal residential structure for use as a necessary adjunct to the home occupation such as a kiln or pottery shop and display area for products made on the premises as a part of a "cottage industry", provided that the Planning Commission shall have authority to determine whether or not a proposed use and structure complies with the zoning ordinance and is within the spirit of the same to ensure the compatibility of any use with the character of the zoning classification in which the same is located and that the health, safety and general welfare of the neighborhood will not thereby be impaired.

j) Home occupations shall be permitted in all zoning districts except home occupations shall not be permitted in multiple family dwellings located in any district.

ARTICLE V
GENERAL PROVISIONS

Section 5.01 - Purpose

General regulations apply to all districts except as noted herein. Where requirements of a general regulation and a district regulation differ, the more restrictive requirement shall prevail.

Section 5.02 - Application of Regulations

Zoning affects every structure and use and extends vertically Except as hereinafter provided:

A. No building or structure shall hereafter be erected, altered or moved, nor shall any building or premises hereafter be used for any purpose other than is permitted in the district in which said building or premises are located.

B. No building shall hereafter be erected or altered to exceed the height limitations, or occupy a greater percentage of lot area, or intrude upon the required front yard, rear yard, side yards or inner or outer courts, or accommodate or house a greater number of families, or provide less space per dwelling unit than is specified for the district in which such building is located.

C. No lot area and no yard, court, parking areas or other required space shall be divided, altered, reduced or diminished to create an area or dimension less than the minimum required under this Ordinance, except where such reduction has been brought about by the expansion or acquisition of public right-of-ways for a street, road or highway. If a required area is already less than the minimum required under this Ordinance, said area or dimension shall not be further divided or reduced.

Section 5.03 - Lot-Building Relationship

Hereafter, every building erected, altered or moved shall be located on a lot of record as defined herein, and except in the case of an approved multiple dwelling development, there shall be no more than one (1) principal building and its permitted accessory structures located on each lot in any residential or agricultural district.

In the Agricultural District (A-1), two (2) single family dwellings may be located on any parcel of land under single ownership, provided there are ten (10) acres of property, and further, provided that the dwelling units shall be separated by a minimum of one hundred (100) feet.

Section 5.04 - Accessory Buildings as Dwellings - In the A-1 District.

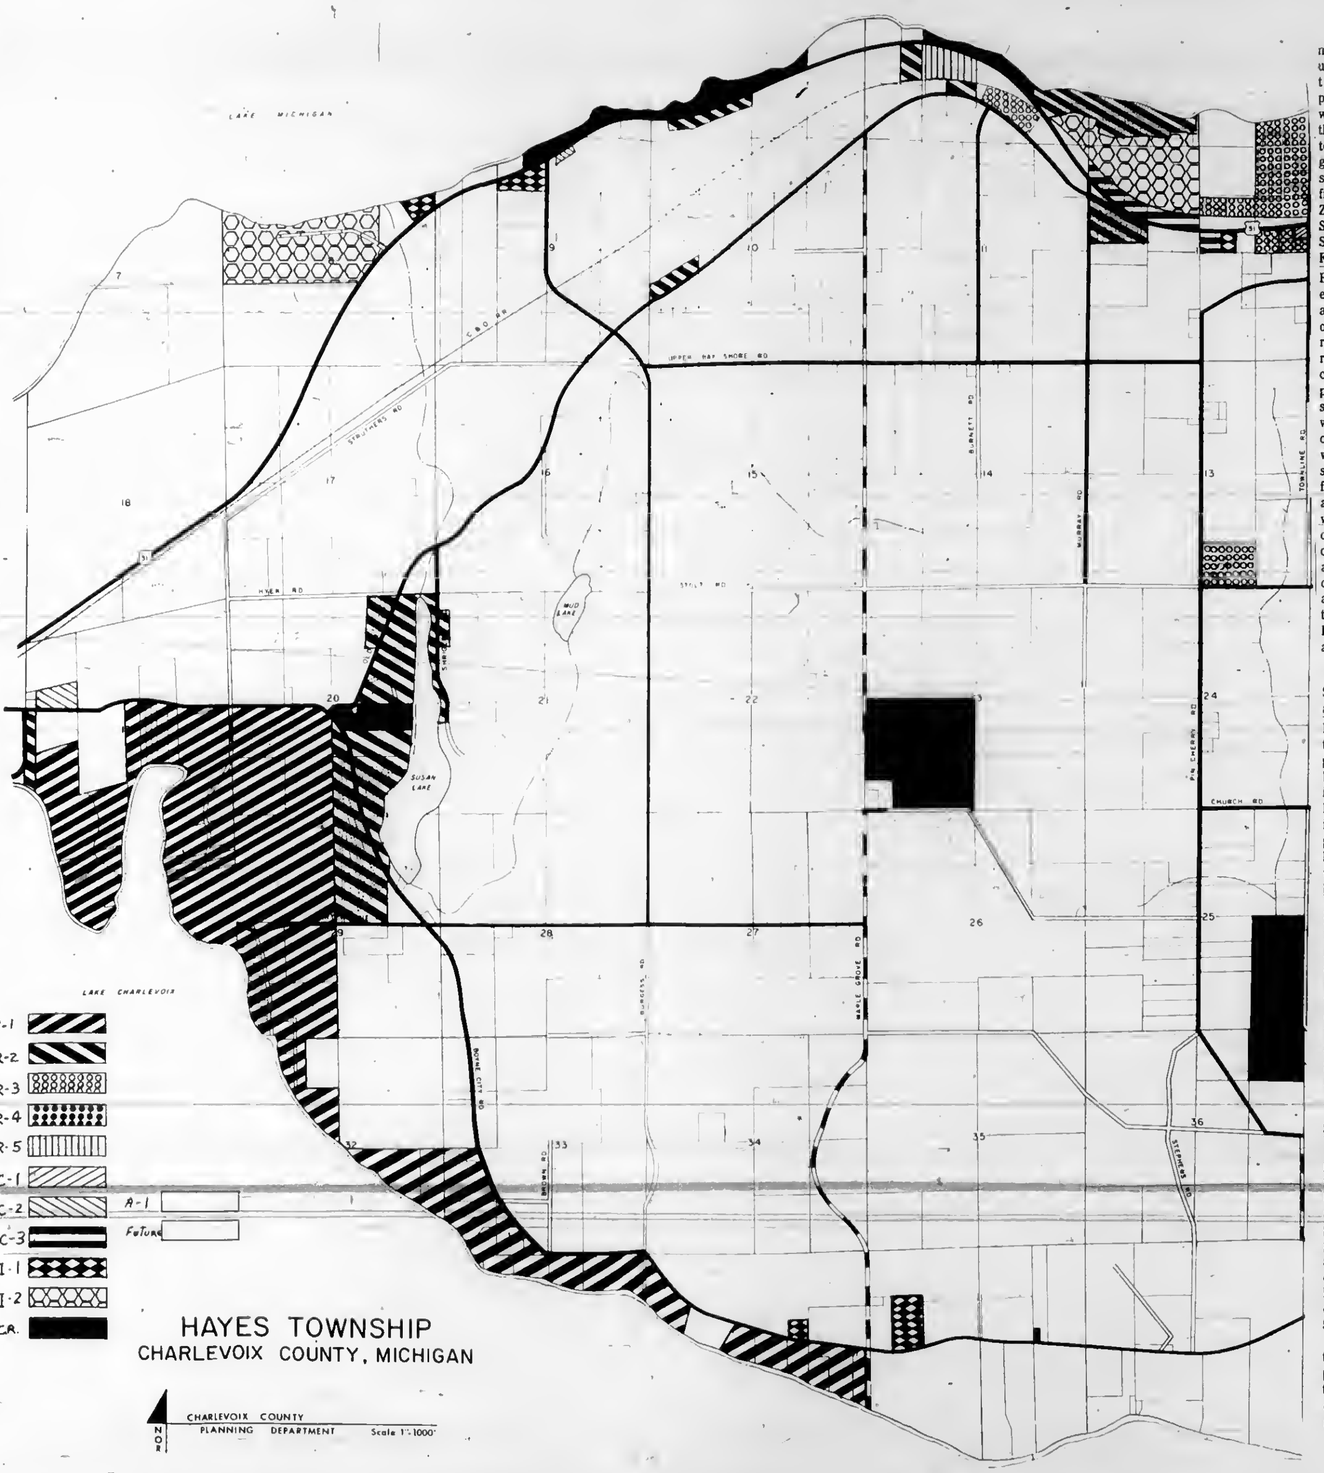
No building on the same lot as a principal building shall be used for dwelling purposes except for watchmen, caretakers or other domestic employees whose employment functions are directly related to the function of the principal building; providing that all other applicable requirements of this Ordinance are satisfied.

Section 5.05 - Temporary Buildings

Temporary buildings for use incidental to construction work, and all debris, shall be removed within thirty (30) days after the completion or abandonment of the work. No structure shall be used for temporary dwelling purposes that does not comply with the requirements of this Ordinance or any applicable building codes, provided the Zoning Board of Appeals may allow variances on the size of temporary dwelling units.

Section 5.06 - Essential Services

A. The erection, construction, alteration or maintenance by public utilities or municipal departments or commissions, of overhead, surface or underground gas, electrical, steam, or water, distribution or transmission systems collection, communication, supply or disposal systems, including mains, drains, sewers, pipes, conduits, tunnels, wires, cables, fire alarm boxes, police call boxes, traffic signals, hydrants, towers, poles, electrical substations, gas regulator stations and other similar equipment and accessories in connection therewith, reasonably necessary for the furnishing of adequate service by such public utility or municipal department or commission or for the public health or safety or general welfare, shall be permitted as authorized or regulated by law and other ordinances of the Township of Hayes in any use district, it being the intention hereof to except such erection, construction, alteration, and maintenance from the application of this Ordinance.



B) Public utilities and municipal departments may use trailer coaches for temporary housing on properties owned by them where necessary to discharge their duties to provide service to the public, including the generation of electricity, and such use shall be exempted from the provisions of this Zoning Ordinance.

Section 5.07 - Required Water Supply and Sewage Disposal Facilities

Every building hereafter erected, altered or moved upon any premises and used in whole or part for dwellings (year-round or seasonal), recreational, business, commercial or industrial purposes, including churches, schools and other buildings in which persons customarily congregate, shall be provided with a safe and sanitary water supply system and with means for collecting and disposing of all human excreta and of all water-carried domestic, commercial, industrial and other wastes that may adversely affect health conditions. The written approval of such facilities by the District Department of Health shall be filed with an application for a zoning permit.

Section 5.08 - Dumping Rubbish and Waste Matter

It shall be unlawful throughout the township to store, collect or place discarded material, building materials, junk, or inoperable motor vehicles upon land owned or occupied by any individual, or company, or public place unless such land has been designated as a solid waste disposal site by the District Department of Health.

Section 5.09 - Grades

No premises shall be filled or graded so as to discharge surface runoff on abutting premises in such a manner that will cause inconvenience or damage to adjacent properties. When property is developed adjacent to existing properties previously developed, existing grades shall have priority.

Section 5.10 - Mobile Homes

A) It shall be unlawful for any person to park, or cause to be parked, any mobile home or house trailer on any street, alley, highway or other public place in the unincorporated portion of the township for storage, use as a dwelling or for overnight stops outside of a licensed mobile home park, except as provided in Section 5.10C)3) hereof.

B) All mobile homes or house trailers used for dwelling purposes shall be provided with two (2) exits spaced a sufficient distance apart to ensure a means of escape in case of fire.

C) A zoning permit, as required by Article VIII, Section 8.02 of this Ordinance, shall not be required in the following circumstances:

1) Dead storage of one (1) mobile home on a lot-of-record in a residential zone district.

2) Dead storage of mobile homes on lands outside of residential zone districts.

3) Mobile homes, or travel trailers, used by guests or visitors in Residential 1, 2, and 3 and Agricultural Zone Districts for a time not to exceed thirty (30) days, per calendar year.

Section 5.11 - Development Plan Requirements

No building shall be erected or structurally altered nor shall any grading take place on any lot or parcel in zoning districts where a development plan is required, unless a development plan is submitted to the Township Planning Commission and the Zoning Administrator and approved by the Township Planning Commission. Three (3) copies of the development plan drawn to scale shall be filed with a Zoning Administrator and shall contain the following information:

A) Total area in the development project.

B) Location, shape, area and dimension of the lot, lots or acreage to be used.

C) Present zoning of the subject property and adjacent property,

D) All public and private right-of-ways and easement lines located on the adjacent to the subject property which are proposed to be continued, created, relocated or abandoned.

E) Location and total number of curb cuts, driveways, off-street parking spaces and loading spaces.

G) Location and dimensions of all existing and proposed structures, walks, malls, open areas, walls, fences, screen plantings and/or other landscaping.

H) Existing and proposed sewer, water and other utility lines plus location and type of sewage treatment facility and water source.

I) Required setbacks of the zoning districts.

J) Area of subject property to be covered by buildings.

K) Location, size, height and orientation of all signs.

L) All major environmental features, such as major stands of vegetation, swamplands, rock outcroppings, slopes of 20% gradient or greater and/or other features.

M) Development plans for residential projects (multiple family developments and mobile home parks) shall include the following additional information:

1) Minimum floor area of dwelling units.

2) Total number of units proposed.

3) Number of bedrooms per unit in multiple family developments.

4) Areas to be used for open space and recreation.

N) Such other information regarding the development area that may be required to determine conformance with this Ordinance.

Information provided as part of the development plan requirements shall be used to evaluate the compatibility of the proposed project to the surrounding land uses, potential future uses in the area, and the township as a whole.

Following the submittal of the development plan, the Township Planning Commission shall have sixty (60) days in which to act. This time may be extended if additional time is agreed upon with the developer of the land and the Township Planning Commission.

Section 5.12 Greenbelts

A greenbelt, as defined herein, shall be required for any commercial or industrial use that abuts a residential or agricultural use on either the side yard or the rear yard. In all instances, this shall be provided as part of the side or rear yard requirements. If waived in writing by adjacent residential or agricultural property owners, the greenbelt may be omitted or a fence substituted for the greenbelt if, after public hearing and notice, the Planning Commission finds that there would be no adverse effects upon the neighboring property resulting from the waiver or omission.

Section 5.13 - Shoreland Protection Strip

No building or structure, except docks or launch ramps, shall be erected closer than fifty (50) feet from the shoreline at normal high water level of any lake, stream or creek within the township. In addition, a strip of land thirty-five (35) feet wide from the normal high water mark bordering the body of water shall be maintained in trees and shrubs in their natural state. Trees and shrubs may be pruned, however, to afford a view of the water.

A) Limitation of Boat Dockage

Not more than one (1) mooring, slip or dock space for each fifty (50) feet of lake frontage may be provided for mooring or dockage of boats in any zoning district in the Township.

B) Limitation of "Funnel Development"

Any development in any zoning district which shares a common lakefront or stream area may not permit more than one (1) single family home, cottage, condominium or apartment to the use of each fifty (50) feet of lake or stream frontage in such common lakefront or stream area as measured along at the water's edge of normal high water mark of the lake or stream. This restriction is intended to limit the number of users of the lake or stream frontage to preserve the quality of the waters, and to preserve the quality of recreational use of all waters within the Township. This restriction shall apply to any parcel regardless of whether access to the water shall be gained by easement, common fee ownership, single fee ownership or lease.

The Zoning Board of Appeals may, upon petition and after notice and hearing as provided in Article VII, vary or modify the strict application of this provision if it shall determine that undue hardship will wotherwise result and the spirit and intent of this Ordinance will be preserved by such variance or modification. The Board of Appeals may, as a condition of such variance or modification, impose such conditions upon the use of the lands and lakefront or streamfront as it shall deem necessary to preserve the spirit and intent of this Ordinance.

C) Marine Sewage Pump-Out Facility

Any dock facility providing dockage for four (4) or more boats with marine sewage holding tanks on board shall provide a marine sewage pump-out facility which shall be capable of providing pump-out service to a Health Department approved sewage disposal facility.

Section 5.14 - Restoration of Unsafe Buildings

Nothing in this Ordinance shall prevent the strengthening or restoring to a safe condition of any part of any building or structure defined unsafe by the Building Inspector, except as limited by Section 5.19 hereof.

Section 5.15 - Continued Conformance with Regulations

The maintenance of yards, open spaces, lot areas, height and bulk limitations, fences, walls, clear vision areas, parking and loading spaces, and all other requirements, including the proper maintenance and repair of screening arrangements, for a building or use specified within this Ordinance shall be a continuing obligation of the owner of such building or property on which such building or property or use is located.

Section 5.16 - Signs

A) The regulations set forth herein shall apply and govern signs in all zoning districts. No sign may hereafter be erected, moved or structurally altered unless it is in conformity with the following provisions and unless a permit is obtained for such use.

B) Notwithstanding any part of this Ordinance to the contrary, the following regulations shall apply to the erection of all signs.

1) No sign shall project over the right-of-way except in cases where signs are affixed to a structure that is built on the property line of a lot. Said sign shall not project more than six (6) inches beyond the face of the wall to which it is attached.

2) Signs not exceeding four (4) square feet in area may be utilized for traffic regulation or direction.

3) No sign shall be erected upon the inside of a curve of a street which may cause any interference to sight distance.

4) No sign shall be so placed as to interfere with visibility or effectiveness of any official traffic sign or signal, or with driver vision at any access point or intersection.

5) No sign shall contain, include or be illuminated by a flashing light.

6) All illumination, unless otherwise approved by the Board of Appeals, shall not have the source of light visible beyond the property lines of the parcel upon which the sign is located.

7) If any provisions of any other ordinance, statute or law of the State of Michigan impose greater restrictions than herein set forth, then the provisions of such ordinance or statute shall control.

C) The following signs are permitted in the following zoning districts.

Where requirements of a specific zone district and a general regulation differ, the specific shall prevail.

1) District: R-1, R-2, R-3, C-1, C-3, A-1, CR

*Sign Type:

On-premise sign advertising a public or quasi-public use. Such sign shall not exceed twelve (12) square feet in area. There shall be no more than one (1) sign for each street upon which the property faces.

2) District: R-1, R-2, R-3, R-4, R-5, A-1

*Sign Type:

A freestanding sign advertising a recorded subdivision or development. Such sign shall not exceed thirty-two (32) square feet in area and, if illuminated, the light source shall not be visible from adjacent properties. Signs shall be placed no closer than ten (10) feet from a street right-of-way.

3) District: R-3, C-2

*Sign Type:

On-premise sign advertising the permitted professional or office use. Such sign shall not exceed six (6) square feet, and, if illuminated, the light source shall not be visible from adjacent properties. There shall be no more than one (1) such sign for each permitted use.

4) District: C-1, C-2, C-3, I-1, I-2, I-3, A-1

*Sign Type:

Freestanding directory signs advertising businesses or activities conducted, an area of interest, or a service available on the premises. Such signs shall not exceed thirty two (32) square feet, and there shall be no more than one (1) sign for each street upon which the property faces.

5. District: C-1, C-2, C-3, I-1, I-2, I-3

*Sign Type:

Directory signs affixed to, or painted on a building advertising businesses or activities conducted, an area of interest, or a service available on the premises. The total area of such signs shall not exceed ten (10) percent of the area of the building face upon which it is mounted. In addition, the signs shall not exceed the maximum height limitations permitted in the zoning district. Where a sign projects more than three (3) inches from the face of the building, it shall be at least ten (10) feet above the ground at its lowest level.

6) District: I-3, A-1

*Sign Type:

Signs advertising a general grand or product, an area of interest, a business conducted, or a service available, generally referred to as billboards. Such signs shall not exceed two hundred and fifty (250) square feet in area, and they shall conform to the height, yard and setback requirments of the zone in which they are located. All such signs shall be three (3) feet or more above the ground. Further, such signs shall be spaced not closer than one thousand (1,000) feet to any other billboard on one (1) side of a street or road, or on opposite sides shall be no closer than five hundred (500) feet laterally distant along the right-of-way from any other billboard and shall not be closer than five hundred (500) feet from any major arterial intersection.

All signs in this category must receive approval from the Planning Commission prior to construction.

D) The following signs shall be permitted without obtaining a permit in any zone; however, this exemption shall not relieve the owner or agent from complying with the applicable provisions and regulations set forth in this section.

1) One (1) non-illuminated sign advertising the sale or lease of the lot or building on which the sign is placed. Such sign shall not exceed eight (8) square feet in area, and no more than one (1) such sign per lot or building is permitted.

2) Signs not over twenty (20) square feet in area with a maximum height of eight (8) feet which denotes the person-firm, architect, engineer, contractor, or agency where construction work is being performed. Such sign shall be removed by the owner or agent within ten (10) calendar days after completion of the project.

3) Non-illuminated sign advertising a customary home occupation or professional service not to exceed six (6) square feet and attached flat against a building wall. No more than one (1) such sign for each business or service is permitted.

4) Signs inside a building.

5) Temporary non-illuminated signs advertising sales, bazaars and other events provided such signs shall not exceed eight (8) square feet and shall be removed after a period not to exceed sixty (60) days.

6) Nameplates not to exceed two (2) square feet, each identifying owners of property.

E) Application for a sign permit shall be made and submitted to the Zoning Administrator on appropriate forms furnished by the Administrator. A fee shall accompany the application, based on the following table:

1. Freestanding or pole sign:
15¢ per square foot with a minimum of two (2) dollars.
2. Flat signs affixed to a structure:
10¢ per square foot with a minimum of two (2) dollars.

Section 5.17 - Vehicular Parking Space and Access Thereto

A) For each dwelling, business, commercial, industrial, or similar building hereafter erected or altered, and located on a public highway in the township, and including buildings or structures used principally as a place of public assembly, there shall be provided and maintained suitable off-street parking in ccordance with the following schedule:

USES REQUIREMENTS

Residential:
two (2) spaces per dwelling unit.
Commercial, Service and Office Use:
three (3) square feet of parking per square foot of gross floor area.
Industrial Uses:
three (3) square foot of parking per square foot of gross floor area, excluding warehouse.
Drive-tnn Business:
five (5) square ft.

in case of a use not specifically mentioned, the requirements of off-street parking facilities shall be the same as for the most similar use listed.

B) Exits and entrances may be combined or provided separately. Approval of the location of such exit and entrance shall be obtained in writing from the County Road Commission which approval shall include the design and construction thereof in the interest of safety, adequate drainage and other public requirements.

Section 5.18 - Loading Space Requirements

For every building, or addition to an existing building, hereafter erected to be occupied by a use allowed in any commercial or industrial zone district or other similar use requiring the receipt or distribution, in vehicles, of materials or merchandises with such building or addition off-street loading spaces in relation to floor area as follows:

A) Up to twenty thousand (20,000) square feet - one (1) space.

B) Twenty thousand (20,000) to fifty thousand (50,000) square feet - two (2) spaces.

C) Fifty thousand (50,000) to one hundred thousand (100,000) square feet - three (3) spaces.

D) One (1) additional space for each additional one hundred thousand (100,000) square feet or fraction thereof.

Each such loading space shall be at least ten (10) feet in width, twenty-five (25) feet in length, and fourteen (14) feet in height. No such space shall be located closer than fifty (50) feet to any lot in any residential or agricultural district unless wholly within a completely enclosed building or enclosed on all sides by a wall.

Section 5.19 - Non-Conforming Buildings and Uses

A) Any lawful non-conforming building or use existing at the time of the enactment of this Ordinance may be continued at the discretion of the owner.

B) A non-conforming building may be maintained, repaired, altered or improved throughout its normal life provided there is no extension or enlargement of the building. Upon the removal or destruction of ninety (90) percent or more of such a building any replacement building shall be conforming.

C) After any involuntary destruction of buildings or improvements and interruption or cessation of active use, repairs shall be completed and operations resumed within twelve (12) months if a non-conforming use is to be continued.

D) Any non-conforming use which has been discontinued for a continuous period of twelve (12) months shall not be resumed. Any residence, maintained ready for occupying, shall be considered a continued use.

E) There shall be no change from one non-conforming use to another non-conforming use, no enlargement of a non-conforming use nor shall any use be reverted to a former non-conforming use.

F) Nothing in this Ordinance shall require any change in the construction or intended use of a building or structure under construction at the time of the enactment of this Ordinance, provided the construction is completed within twelve (12) months of such enactment.

G) Any national emergency that imposes limitations on construction and repairs shall automatically extend any time limitations from the time of the termination of the emergency.

H) Nothing contained in this Ordinance shall be construed to approve, to authorize, or to condone, any use that is otherwise uniawful, or constitutes a hazard or a nuisance.

ARTICLE VI
Special Use Permits and Planned Unit Developments

Section 6.01 - Permit Required for "Special Use" Permits

A) Purpose - Certain land use activities entitled "Special Uses" may be authorized in various zoning districts but only if adequate safeguards are provided to ensure the protection of the public health, safety and general welfare. The "Special Uses" which may be authorized are listed in the "Use Regulation" section of each zoning district.

(1) "Special Uses" may be authorized by the Township Planning Board, acting as the zoning board, by the issuance of a "Special Use" permit provided:

(a) The proposed use is one listed as a "Special Use" for the zoning district in which said use is located.

(b) The provisions of this article are complied with.

(c) The Planning Board shall, after hearing as hereinafter provided, determine that the use, if developed and thereafter used in accordance with plans of development and any conditions imposed thereon by the Planning Board, shall not be injurious to the surrounding neighborhood or contrary to the spirit and purpose of this ordinance.

(2) (a) "Special Uses" for which a permit has been issued by the Planning Board shall permit the use authorized provided that the plans of development presented to and approved by the Planning Board shall at all times thereafter be adhered to and completed within the time limits for completion prescribed by the Planning Board at the time of issuance of the permit.

(b) A "Special Use" permit may be granted which permits development of the project in stages by which one or more portions of the project may not be commenced until the earlier portions of the project are completed. Time limits of completion for each individual stage of development may be imposed by the Planning Board.

(c) Failure by the owner or occupant of the land to comply with the approved proposal and all conditions of the "Special Use" permit, the time limits for completion, including completion of landscaping, buffer strips, drives and parking, or enlargement or change of the use, shall result in immediate termination of the "Special Use" permit. Thereafter, the owner or occupant shall discontinue all and any portion of such use permitted by the "Special Use" permit whether or not the continued portion of the use complies with the permit or not.

The Planning Board may, upon application of the owner or occupant, grant extensions of time for compliance with the conditions of the "Special Use" permit without special notice as hereafter described for an original "Special Use" permit upon showing of just cause by the owner or occupant.

Revisions or alterations from the original approved "Special Use" permit and conditions thereof, other than extensions of time for compliance, shall require a new public hearing and Public Notice thereof as hereinafter provided for an original permit.

(d) A change of use, enlargement of use, or failure to comply with the conditions imposed by the "Special Use" permit, shall result in immediate termination of the "Special Use" permit and, in addition, the owner or occupant of the land shall not be entitled to use the land or any part thereof for any of the uses allowed in the zoning district in which the land is situate if the land was re-zoned to that zoning district at the same time (or approximately the same time) that the "Special Use" permit was initially sought.

In other words, if the land was re-zoned from a previous more restrictive zoning category for the purpose of authorizing the issuance of a "Special Use" permit permitted under the new zoning district, a failure by the landowner or occupant to use the land as specified by the "Special Use" permit and conditions imposed thereon, resulting in termination of the "Special Use" permit, shall not then entitle the owner or occupant to commence using the land for any of the uses permitted in that new zoning district unless a new re-zoning application shall then be submitted, public hearing held as required for any re-zoning and such re-zoning granted by the Township Board a second time without reference to the "Special Use" permit. The land for which such re-zoning and "Special Use" permit has been granted (and the authorized special use then discontinued, enlarged or conditions failed to be complies with, with resultant termination of the "Special Use" permit) may, however, be used for such uses allowed in the zoning district in which the property was classified prior to original application for re-zoning and "Special Use" permit. For the purpose of this restriction, a "Special Use" permit with accompanying re-zoning necessary to allow such "Special Use" permit, which is later terminated by reason of enlargement or failure to comply with the conditions, shall be deemed to have been obtained by fraud and misrepresentation on the part of the applieant and accordingly, any re-zoning accompanying the issuance of the "Special Use" permit shall be invalid and the property shall be deemed to remain in the zoning district in which it was classified prior to the application for "Special Use" permit.

The Planning Board may specifically provide in a "Special Use" permit accompanying a re-zoning, that the restrictions of this provision shall not apply if the re-zoning is granted without regard to the issuance of the "Special Use" permit, but failure to so specifically provide shall be deemed to automatically include this provision as a condition of any "Special Use" permit which is issued in conjunction with a re-zoning of the land at or about the same time as the "Special Use" permit. A "Special Use" permit which is issued on land previously zoned or re-zoned at least six (6) months prior to the application for "Special Use" permit which zoning or re-zoning is unrelated to the "Special Use" permit, shall not be affected by this restriction.

Section 6.02 - Procedure

A) Applications for "Special Use" permits authorized in this ordinance shall be submitted to the Zoning Administrator on a form supplied for such purposes. Applications shall be accompanied by the payment of the fee specified in Section 8.06. When the application is for public sanitary landfills, or natural resources extraction operations the application shall also include a topographic map showing contour lines at an interval not greater than five (5) feet and proposed contour lines at the same interval. Applications shall be accompanied by such supporting materials as will adequately inform the Planning Commission of all matters necessary or pertinent to a decision of suitability of the land for the purpose and compatability of the use to the surrounding neighborhood. Such materials shall include diagrams of the site plan and structures proposed, parking and access, adjoining land uses and structures, topography and soil tests. The Planning Board may request additional supporting materials if it shall deem such to be necessary or pertinent to aid in its determination.

B) An application for a "Special Use" permit shall be processed in the following manner:

1) The Zoning Administrator shall forward the application and supporting data to the Township Planning Board.

(a) Upon receipt of such application accompanied by payment of the fee and sufficient supporting materials as determined by the Zoning Administrator, the matter shall be set for hearing before the Planning Board and notice thereof given as required by MCL 125.286 b.

(2) The Township Planning Commission shall review the proposed development as presented in the application and in terms of the specifications established in the ordinance and MCL 125.286 b.

(3) The Township Planning Commission, after public hearing procedures, may issue a "Special Use" permit. A copy of the decision, with any conditions, and reasons for approval or rejection shall be sent promptly to the Zoning Administrator, to the applicant, and retained in the files of the Planning Commission.

Section 6.03 - Basis of Determination

The Township Planning

Commission shall review the proposed special use in terms of the standards stated within this ordinance and shall find adequate evidence that such use in the proposed location:

A) Will be designed, constructed, operated and maintained so as to be harmonious with the existing or intended character of the general vicinity and that such a use will not unreasonably change the essential character of the area in which it is proposed to be located.

B) Will not be hazardous or disturbing to existing or future nearby uses.

C) Will be equal or an improvement in relation to the property in the immediate vicinity and to the Township as a whole.

D) Will be served adequately by essential public services and facilities or that the persons responsible for the establishment of the proposed use will provide adequately any such service or facility.

E) Will not create excessive additional public costs and will not be detrimental to the economic welfare of the Township.

F) Will be consistent with the intent and purpose of this ordinance and will not be injurious to the surrounding neighborhood.

Section 6.04 - Conditions and Safeguards

The Township Planning Board acting as Zoning Board may, as a part of the "Special Use" permit, impose such additional conditions and safeguards deemed necessary for the protection of the health, safety and general welfare, for the protection of individual property rights on nearby parcels, and for insuring that the purposes of this ordinance and the general spirit and purpose of the district in which the special use is proposed will be observed. "Special Use" permits may be issued for specific time periods as determined by the Township Planning Commission.

The Township, acting through the Township Planning Commission, may require a cash deposit, certified check, irrevocable bank letter of credit, or surety bond acceptable to the Township covering the estimated cost of improvements associated with a "Special Use" project for which site plan approval is sought. Such deposit, check, letter of credit or bond shall be deposited at the time of permit is issued and the Township Planning Commission shall establish procedures whereby a rebate of any cash deposits in reasonable proportion to the rate of work completed on the required improvements will be made as work progresses.

Section 6.05 - Reopplication

No application for a "Special Use" permit which has been denied wholly or in part shall be re-submitted until the expiration of one (1) year or more for the date of such denial, except on grounds of newly discovered evidence or proof of changed conditions found to be suffielcnt to justlfy reconsideration by the Township Planning Commission.

Section 6.06 - Permit Required for "Planning Unit Development"

A) Purpose

(1) As used in these following sections. The term "Planned Unit Development" includes such terms as cluster zoning, planned development, community unit plan, planned residential development, and other terminology denoting Zoning Requirements designed to accomplish to objectives of the Zoning Ordinance through a land development project review process based on the application of site planning criteria to achieve integration of the proposed land development project with the characteristics of the project area. The term "Planned Unit Development" shall be abbreviated as: P.U.D.

(2) The objectives of requirements established in this ordinance for P.U.D. shall be to permit flexibility in the regulation of land development; encourage innovation in land use and variety in design, layout, and type of structures constructed; achieve economy and efficiency in the use of land, natural resources, energy, and the provision of public services and utilities; eneourage useful open space; and provide better housing, employment, and shopping opportunitles particularly suited to the needs of the residents of this state and to this Township.

(3) The review and approval of P.U.D. shall be by the Township Planning Board acting as the Township Zoning Board.

(4) A P.U.D. may be permitted in any zoning district in the Township upon any area of not less than ten (10) acres of contiguous land provided that those portions of the P.U.D. which are contiguous to other lands not part of the P.U.D. shall be developed and arranged in a manner compatible with the zoning of such other contiguous lands.

(5) The applicants for a P.U.D. shall be the owners of the land and any person, firm or corporation with any interest therein at the time of application shall endorse their consent thereto, however only the owners or their successors or assigns shall have any obligation in connection with the conditions of development. The owners, or owners' agents, shall be participants in the review process.

B) Acceptable "Planned Unit Development" Projects

(1) The objective of an acceptable P.U.D. project shall be to provide a method of permitting one (1) developer to develop one large parcel of lond into a compatible combination of uses ranging from residential – to commerelal – to industrial. A further objective is to encourage innovative combinations of use and design maximizing use of land, useful open spaces, accessibility, privacy, preservation of energy, costs of services and esthetic values both within and without the project.

Any potential project which is not aimed at subverting the intent of the zoning ordinance but is aimed at furthering the legitimate purposes of zoning shall be worthwhile subjects of a P.U.D. project. The Planning Board may, after appropriate public hearings, approve any P.U.D. project and may permit modifications of set-back, size limitations, use or other restrictions within any zoning district provided that the approved project shall be consistent with, and promote the intent and purpose of the zoning ordinance as a whole, even though permission is given authorizing variations from the use and development restrictions of the particular zoning distriets in which the P.U.D. is situate.

(2) All permitted P.U.D. projects shall insure that the land use or activity authorized shall be compatible witb adjacent use of land, the natural environment, and the capacities of public services and facilities affected by the land use.

(3) All permitted P.U.D. projects shall meet standards insuring that the land use or activity is consistent with the public health, safety and welfare of the Township. A permitted P.U.D. use shall also comply with all conditions imposed by the Township Planning Board acting as the Zoning Board, other applicable ordinances of the Township or County, and State and Federal Statutes.

C) Conditions for Approval of "Planned Unit Development" Projects

(I) The Township Planning Board, aeting as Zoning Board, may impose such conditions for approval of a P.U.D. project as are reasonable. The conditions may include conditions necessary to insure that pubbc services and facilities affected by a proposed land use or aetivity will be capable of aecommodating increased service and facility loads eaused by the land use or activity, to protect the natural environment and conserve natural resources and energy, to insure compatibility with adjacent uses of land, and to promote the use of the land in a socially and economically desirable manner.

(2) Conditions imposed shall meet all of the following requirements:

(a) Be designed to protect natural resources, the health, safety, and welfare and the social and economic well being of those who will use the land use or aetivity under consideration, residents and landowners immediately adjaeent to the proposed land use or activity, and the community as a whole.

(b) Be related to the valid exercise of the police power, and purposes which are affected by the proposed use or activity.

(c) Be necessary to meet the intent and purpose of the zoning ordinance, be related to the standards established in the ordinance for the land use or activity under consideration, and be necessary to insure compliance with those standards.

(3) The conditions imposed with respect to the approval of a land use or activity shall be recorded in the record of the approval action, and shall remain unchanged except upon the mutual consent of the approving authority shall maintain a record of conditions which are changed.

Section 6.07 - Record of Approval or Disapproval - Alterations

(1) The Planning Board shall maintain a record of the actions taken on P.U.D. applications and of all conditions imposed with respect to the approval of a land use or activity. Such conditions shall remain unchanged except upon mutual consent of the Planning Board and the landowner. The Planning Board shall maintain a record of conditions which are changed.

(2) Extensions of time for completion of the project or minor alterations within a P.U.D. project which do not affect adjoining landowners nor materially alter the impact of the project upon the Township or the area in which the project is located may be made with mutual consent of the landowner and Township Planning Board at an open meeting of the Planning Board without special notice. Major alterations within a P.U.D. project or alterations which affect adjoining landowners or materially alter the impact of the project upon the Township shall not be granted by the Planning Board, except after public hearing and notice required for an original P.U.D. project application.

Section 6.08 - Procedure

A) The procedure for handling P.U.D. applications, hearings, notice of hearings and approval or disapproval, shall be handled in the same manner as set forth in this ordinance in Section 6.02 for "Special Use" permits. All applications for a P.U.D. project shall be accompanied by a "site plan" including documents, drawings, structures, topography, soil tests and such additional supporting materials as the Planning Board shall deem necessary or pertinent to aid in its determination.

B) In addition to such conditions as the Planning Board shall impose upon the issuance of a P.U.D. permit, the Planning Board may require certaln improvements, including those features and actions associated with a project which are considered necessary by the Planning Board to protect natural resources, or the health, safety or welfare of the residents of the Township and future users or inhabitants of the proposed project or project area, including roadways, lighting, utilities, sidewalks, screening and drainage. The Planning Board may require deposits, bonds, letters of credit or certified checks to be deposited by the developer to insure completion and compliance. The Planning Commission may establish procedures whereby a rebate of any cash deposits in reasonable proportion to the ratio of work completed on the required improvements will be made as work progressea.

C) The provisions of preceding Section 6.01 (2) (a) through (d) applicable to "Special Use" permits, are hereby incorporated for P.U.D. projects and said provisions shall be applicable to permits issued for P.U.D. projects.

ARTICLE VII ZONING BOARD OF APPEALS

Section 7.01 - Purpose

fn order that the objectives of this Ordinance may be fully and equitably achieved, that a means shall be provided for competent interpretation of this Ordinance, that adequate but controlled flexibility be provided in the application of this Ordinance, that the health, safety and welfare of the public be secured, and that justice be done, there is hereby established a Township Zoning Board of Appeals.

Seetlon 7.02 - Creatlon, Membership

The Hayes Township Board shall appoint a Townsbip Zoning Board of Appeals to consist of three (3) members. The first member of such board of appeals shall be the chairman of the township planning commission, the second member shall be a member of the township board; and the third member shall be selected and appointed by the township board. No elected officer of the township nor any emplayee of the township board may serve simultaneously as the third member of or as an employee of the township zoning board of appeals. The township board may provide that the township board of appeals shall have five (5) members. The additional members shall be selected and appointed by the township board from among the electors residing in the unincorporated area of the township. An additional member shall not be an employee of the township board. The member who is a member of the township board appointed by the township board shall not serve as chairman of the township board of appeals.

Members of the board of appeals shall be removable by the townshlp board for nonperformance of duty or misconduct in offlce upon written charges and after public hearing.

Section 7.03 - Rules of Procedure

A) The Board shall adopt rules and regulations to ensure proper conduct of its meetings. Copies of such regulations shall be made available to the public at the office of the township elerk.

B) Meetings of the Board shall be open to the public and shall be held at the call of the chairman and at such times as the Board may determine.

C) The Board shall act by resolution. The concurring vote of a majority of the members of said Board shall be necessary to reverse any order, requirement, decision or determination of the Zoning Administrator or to decide in favor of the applicant any matter upon which the Board is required to pass under this Ordinance or to grant variances from the requirements of this Ordinance.

D) Records – Minutes shall be recorded of all proceedings which shall contain evidence and data relevant to every case considered together with the votes of the members and the final disposition of each case. The grounds of every determination shall be stated. Such minutes shall accompany and be attached to the standard forms required of persons appealing as part of the Zoning Board of Appeals' permanent records. Such minutes shall become a public record and as such be filed in the offlce of the township elerk. A copy of the decision shall be sent promptly to the applieant and to the Zoning Administration.

E) Secretary and Counsel – The township clerk shall be responsible for acting as the seeretary, or of providing secretarial services for the zoning board of appeals, and all records of the Board's action shall be taken and recorded under his direction. The township attorney may be requested to attend any meeting of the zoning board of appeals.

Section 7.04 - Appeals

A) Appeals to the zoning board of appeals may be taken by any person aggrieved, or by an officer or board of the township.

B) Any appeal from a ruling of the Zoning Administrator shall be made within thirty (30) days after receipt of the ruling. The persons making the appeal must file with the Zoning Administrator a signed notice of appeal specifying the grounds for the appeal. The Zoning Administrator shall immediately transmit to the zoning board of appeals all the papers constituting the record upon which the action appealed from was taken.

C) Hearings – When a notice of appeal has been filed in proper form with the zoning board of appeals, the secretary shall immediately place the said request for appeal upon the calendar for hearing and shall cause notices stating the time, place and object of the hearing to be served personally or by mail addressed to the parties making the request for appeal, at least five (5) days prior to the date of the scheduled hearing. The zoning board of appeals may recess such hearings from time to time; and, if the time and place of the continued hearing be publicly announced at the adjournment, no further notice shall be required.

D) Decisions – The zoning board of appeals shall return a decision upon each case within sixty (60) days after a request or appeal has been filed with the Board unless additional time is agreed upon with the parties concerned. Decisions made by the zoning board of appeals will be forwarded, in writing, to the appealing party and to the Zoning Administrator.

E) Representation – Any party may appear in person or by agent or by attorney at a hearing considering his request or appeal.

Section 7.05 - Duties and Powers of the Zoning Board of Appeals

The township zoning board of appeals shall have the following specified duties and powers:

A) Review – Shall hear and decide appeals from any review, any order, requirement, decision or determination made by the Zoning Administrator in the administration of this Ordinanee.

B) Interpretation – Shall have the power to:

1. Hear and decide upon appeals for the interpretation of the provisions of thls Ordinance;

2. Determine the precise location of the boundary lines between zoning districts when there is dissatisfaction with a decision on sueh subject made by the Zoning Administrator.

3. Determine the off-street parking and loading space requirements of any use which is not mentioned in Article V, Section 5.17 or 5.18, either by classifying it with one of the groups listed in that section or by analysis of the specific need.

C) Variances – The zoning board of appeals shall have the power to authorize, upon appeal, specific variances from such dimensional requirements as lot area and width regulations, building height and square foot regulations, yard width and depth regulations, and such requirements as off-street parking and loading space as specified in this Ordinance when all the basic conditions listed below are specified.

ft shall be found by the zoning board of appeals that any variance granted:

t. Will not be contrary to the public interest or to the spirit and intent of this Ordinance;

2. Shall not permit the establishment within a zoning district of any use which is not permitted by right within that district.

3. Will not cause any adverse effect to property in the vicinity or in the zoning district or the township.

4. Relates only to property that is under control of the applicant;

5. Affects only property subject to exceptional or extraordinary circumstances or conditions that do not generally apply to other property or uses in the vicinity, and have not resulted from any act of the applicant.

D) In addition to the foregoing conditions, the following rules shall be applied in the granting of variances:

1. fn granting a variance, the zoning board of appeals may specify, in writing to the applicant such conditions in connection with the granting that will, in its judgement, secure substantially, the objectives of the regulations or provisions to which such variance applies. The breach of any such condition shall automatically invalidate the permit granted.

2. No application for a variance which has been denied wholly or in part by the zoning board of appeals shall be submitted for a period of one (1) year from the date of the last denial, except on grounds of newly discovered evidence or proof of changed conditions found upon inspection by the board of appeals to be valid.

3. Each variance granted shall become null and void unless the provisions of the variance have been utilized by the applicant within six (6) months after the granting of the variance.

Section 7.06 - Stay of Proceedings

An appeal stays all proceedings in furtherance of the action appealed from unless the Zoning Administrator certifies to the Zoning Board of Appeals after the notice of the appeal shall have been filed with him thot, for reasons of facts stated in the certificate, a stay would, in his opinion, cause imminent peril to life or property, in which case proceedings shall not be stayed otherwise than by a restraining order, which may be granted by the Zoning Board of Appeals or, on application, by the Circuit Court on notice to the officer from whom the appeal is taken and on due cause shown.

Section 7.07 - Special Land Uses and Planned Unit Developments - Zoning Appeals

A) The Township Zoning Board of Appeals shall have no jurisdiction over special land use or planned unit development decisions of the Planning Board and no appeal from such planning board decisions in regard thereto shall be taken to the Board of Appeals.

B) The Board of Appeals shall have no jurisdiction to hear appeals from a zoning decision of the Township Board.

Section 7.08 - Statement of Grounds of Determination

The Board of Appeals shall prepare a written statement of the grounds for any decision it may make.

ARTICLE VIII
ZONING ADMINISTRATION AND ENFORCEMENT

Section 8.01 - Administration

The provisions of this Ordinance shall be administered by the Board of Hayes Township in accordanee with the State of Michigan, Township Rural Zoning Act, Act t84, of the Public Acts of 1943, as amended.

The Hayes Township Board shall emplóy a Zoning Administrator to act as its officer and except as otherwise provided in this Ordinance, the Zoning Administrator shall administer and enforce this Ordinance including the receiving and processing of applications for zoning permits, special use permits, sign permit, appeals for variances or other matters the Zoning Board of Appeals or Township Planning Commission is required to decide. The Administrator shall also be responsible for the inspection of premises, the issuance of zoning permits and institution of proceedings for the enforcement of the provisions of this Zoning Ordinance.

Section 8.02 - Zoning Permits

It shall be unlawful for any person to commence excavation for any building or structure or to commence the erection, addition, alteration or repair of any building, structure or parking area or repair or move any building or structure; and no land use shall be commenced until a zoning permit has been secured from the Zoning Administrator. Except upon a written order of the Township Zoning Board of Appeals, no such zoning permit or certificate of approval shall be issued for any building where the construction, addition, alteration or use thereof would be in violation of any of the provision of this Ordinance.

Exempted from the requirements of Section 4.13 and Section 8.02 are pens, fences and corrals. Also exempted from the permit requirements are interior alterations and ordinary maintenance repairs made on all dwellings and their related outbuildings. fnterior alterations shall not change the use thereof. Exterior changes which create additional floor areas shall require a permit.

Further exempted from the requirements of obtaining a permit are accessory buildings or structures less than one hundred (100) square feet of floor area, but all such structures shall conform to the use restrictions of this Ordinance. Zoning permits shall be valid for one (1) year from date of issuance. If work is not completed at the conclusion of that time, but is being diligently pursued, a new permit may be issued for one-half (½) of the permit fee, if applied for within forty-five (45) days following expiration of the original permit. A permit for ordinary farm buildings used in Agricultural pursuit is required but the permit fees are waived.

Section 8.03 - Zoning Permit Application

Application for a zoning permit shall be filed in writing with the Zoning Administrator, signed by the person, firm, co-partnership or corporation. There shall be submitted with all applications for zoning permits one (1) copy of a plot plan, giving accurate dimensions on either a scale drawing or a rough sketch. Drawings shall be required on all structures and shall contain the following information.

A) Existing and intended use of the structure.

B) Lines and dimensions of the lots to be used.

C) Location upon the lot of all existing and proposed structures and any streets bordering the property.

D) Application for zoning permits under the provision of this Ordinance shall be accompanied by evidence of ownership of all property affected by the coverage of the permit.

E. Evidence that all required federal, state and county licenses or permits have been acquired or that applications have been filed for same.

F. Other information with respect to the proposed structure, use, lot and adjoining property as may be required by the Zoning Administrator.

The written approval of the water supply and sewage disposal facilities, as obtained from the District Health Department, and as required by Article V, Section 5.07 of this Ordinance, shall be accompanied by one copy of both plans and specificiations, which shall be filed and retained by the office of the zoning administrator.

In cases of minor alterations, the Zoning Administrator may waive portions of the foregoing requirements obviously not necessary for determination of compliance with this Ordinance.

Any permit required by this Zoning Ordinance shall be displayed face out, within twenty-four (24) hours of its issuance by placing the same in a conspicuous place on the premises facing the nearest street and shall be continuously so displayed until all work is completed.

Section 8.04 - Certificate of Approval

It shall be lawful to use or permit the use of any structure or premises hereafter altered, extended or erected, until the Zoning Administrator shall have made an inspection of the premises and shall have approved the same for occupancy in writing.

Section 8.05 - Amendments

Amendments or supplements to this Zoning Ordinance may be made from time to time in the manner provided by law.

A) The regulations and provisions stated in the text of this Ordinance and the boundaries of zoning districts shown on the zoning map may be amended, supplemented or changed by Ordinance of the Hayes Township Board.

B) Proposals for amendments, supplements or changes may be initiated by the Hayes Township Board on its own motion, by the Township Planning Commission or by petition of one (1) or more owners of property to be affected by the proposed amendment.

C) The procedure to be followed for initiating and processing an amendment shall be as follows:

1. Each petition by one (1) or more persons for an amendment shall be submitted by application to the Zoning Administrator on a standard form provided and shall be accompanied by the fee prescribed in Section 8.06 to cover administrative and publication costs.

2) The Township Planning Commission shall consider each proposal for amendment in terms of its own judgment on particular factors related to the individual proposal and in terms of the most likely effect on the community's physical development. The Township Planning Commission may recommend any additions or modifications to the original amendment proposal.

3) The hearings, notices and amendments of this ordinance shall be conducted in such manner as provided by the Township Rural Zoning Act.

4. Following such hearing, the Township Planning Commission shall consider the testimony taken at the public hearing and its own findings, and shall make a determination as to its recommendation no more than thirty (30) days following such time as the hearing record is closed. This may be extended if additional time is agreed to by the party requesting the amendment. This recommendation shall then be submitted to the Charlevoix County Planning Commission. The approval of the Planning Commission shall be conclusively presumed unless the Commission shall, within thirty (30) days of its receipt, have notified the Township Clerk of its disapproval.

5) The Township Planning Commission shall also transmit the proposed amendment to the Township Board; and, if the Township Board shall deem any amendments, changes, additions, or departures, it shall refer the amendment to the Township Planning Commission for a report. After receiving the report, the Township Board shall grant a hearing on any proposed amendment to any property owner who by certified mail addressed to the Clerk of the Board request to be so heard and shall request the Planning Commission to attend any such hearings. Thereafter at any regular meeting or at any special meeting called therefor, the Township Board may obtain and enact into law the proposed amendment to the Hayes Township Zoning Ordinance.

6) If an individual property is proposed for rezoning, the property shall be conspicuously posted. The Township Planning Commission shall also give a notice thereof to the owner of the property in question, to all persons to whom any real property within three hundred (300) feet of the premises in question is assessed and to the occupants of all single and two family dwellings within three hundred (300) feet. The notice shall be delivered personally or by mail to the respective owners and tenants at the address given in the last assessment roll. If the tenant's name is not known, the term occupant may be used. If the notice is delivered by mail, an affidavit of mailing shall be filed with the zoning board prior to the hearing. The notice shall be made at least eight (8) days prior to the hearing stating the time, place, date and purpose of the hearing.

7) No application for a rezoning which has been denied by the township board shall be resubmitted for a period of one (1) year from the date of the last denial, except on grounds of newly discovered evidence or proof of changed conditions found upon inspection by the township board to be valid.

D) the township board shall have the power to revoke or cancel any change of zone affected for any failure or neglect to comply with any provisions of this Ordinance, or in case any false statement or misrepresentation is made in any petition, application, specification, plan or sketch submitted or filed pertaining to rezoning proceedings, or for failure to carry out any provisions of such application, petition, specification, plan or sketch or conditions or provisions on which such amendment was granted.

Section 8.06 - Filing Fees

Applications and petitions filed pursuant to the provisions of this Ordinance shall be accompanied by the filing fees herein-after specified except where otherwise noted.

A) For each zoning permit, a fee as established by the township board shall accompany the application.

B) For each petition for an appeal from a decision of the zoning Administrator to the board of appeals or petition or application to the board of appeals for a variance, a fee as established by the township board shall accompany the petition or application.

C) For each petition for an amendment to this Ordinance, a fee as established by the township board shall accompany the petition or application. The petitioner, or petitioners, shall also be required to bear all costs created by Article VIII, Section 8.05 c) of this Ordinance.

D) For each petition for a special use permit, a fee as established by the township board shall accompany the petition or application.

Section 8.07 - Enforcement

A) Buildings erected, altered, moved, razed or converted or any use of land or premises carried on in violation of any provision of this Ordinance are declared to be a nuisance per se.

B) The Zoning Administrator shall inspect each alleged violation and shall order correction in writing to the violator of all conditions found to be in violation of this Ordinance. A violation not corrected within a time period of not less than thirty (30) days nor more than six (6) months as determined by the Zoning Administrator shall be reported to the Township Board who shall initiate prosecution procedures.

C) Any person, firm or corporation who violates, disobeys, omits, neglects or refused to comply with or who resists enforcement of any of the provisions of this Ordinance upon conviction thereof before any Court of the County shall be fined not more than Five Hundred (500) dollars, and/or imprisonment of up to ninety (90) days at the diseretion of the Court, with the cost of prosecution for each offense. Every day that violation is permitted to exist shall constitute a separate offense. The imposition of any sentence shall not exempt the offender from compliance with the provisions of this Ordinance.

Section 8.08 - Interpretation and Conflict

In interpreting and applying the provisions of this Ordinance, the provisions shall be held to be the minimum requirements adopted for the promotion of the public safety, health, convenience, comfort, prosperity and general welfare. It is not intended by this Ordinance to interfere with or abrogate or annul any easements, covenants or other agreements between parties provided, however, that where this Ordinance imposes a greater restriction upon the use of a building or land than existing easements, covenants or other agreements, the provisions of this Ordinance shall govern or control. Whenever the requirements of this Ordinance differ from the requirement of other lawfully adopted rules, regulations, or ordinances, the most restrictive, or that imposing the higher standards, shall govern.

Section 8.09 - Validity

Should any section, clause, or provision of this Ordinance be declared by the Court to be invalid, the same shall not affect the validity of the Ordinance as a whole or any part thereof, other than the part so declared to be invalid.

Section 8.10 - Repeal of Prior Ordinances

The existing zoning regulations of this township of Hayes, being of the County of Charlevoix, as amended, are hereby repealed.

Adoption of this Ordinance, however, shall not affect nor prevent any pending or future prosecution of, or action to abate, any existing violation of said Ordinance, as amended, if the violation is also a violation of the provisions of this Ordinance.

Section 8.11 - Effective Date

This Ordinance shall become effective immediately.

Robert Muma named comptroller; road repairs discussed

The Charlevoix City Council Monday named Robert Muma city treasurer/comptroller.

Muma was one of seven applicants for the position. He succeeds Jim Brinker, who became city manager one month ago. Of the seven who applied, Brinker interviewed four before recommending Muma for the job. The starting salary is $15,000. The appointment is effective immediately.

"Of all the candidates, I think he can help me the most," said Brinker. "He has a background in accounting and business."

After retiring from the U.S. Navy, Muma attended Lake Superior State College in Sault Ste. Marie and received a bachelor of science degree in business.

His brother, Earl, is a member of council. Earl abstained on the vote to hire Robert.

Muma and his wife, Marie, have two sons: Frank and Ralph.

In other action council:

•Tabled bids for the resurfacing of a handful of city streets. Council would like to resurface Dixon (from Meech to Mercer), Meadowlane (from May to Garfield), Upright (from Grant to Lake), Hurlbut (from Grant to Lake), Upright (from May to Alice) and Cherry (from Central to Mercer). Hodgkiss & Douma, Inc. submitted the low bid of slightly over $31,000. Council has budgeted $28,000 for the work. Council will make a decision on the street repairs Monday night at its workshop session.

•Denied a rear yard setback variance for Roy Hayes on Dixon Avenue. Hayes was seeking the variance in order to construct a garage. Council - acting as the board of appeals - was deadlocked on the issue 3-3.

•Agreed to outline the bathing area at Michigan Beach with buoys. Ron Moore of the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department told council the city was not in compliance with the Marine Safety Act because the beach lacked buoys. He said absence of buoys caused safety problems and also could lead to a liability suit if an accident occurred in the swimming area. Moore said the buoys cost about $90 each. He said four would be needed for the beach.

•Agreed to have Soil & Structures, Inc. of Muskegon conduct soil borings by the docks in Round Lake. The project will cost $3,850, however, the city has received a 50 percent grant and thus will pay $1,925.

Meet this year's six Venetian Queen candidates

Six candidates will vie for Venetian Queen 1979.

The queen will be selected Thursday, July 26 at the Venetian Queen's Pageant. The pageant is at 8 p.m. in the high school gymnasium.

The candidates are Margaret (Peggy) Hosmer, Brenda Boss, Pam Sutherland, Nancy Lugibihl, Deborah Kay Shores and Stacy Ann Watson Kazyaka. The reigning queen, Pam Boss, will be present to crown her successor.

In addition to personal interviews with the judges, the candidates will be judged on talent, will answer a question asked by the emcee and will model garments.

To qualify for the pageant, the candidates had to be 1) between 17 and 21 years of age 2) single (never having been married) and 3) a permanent resident of the Charlevoix School District.

Following is a brief sketch on each candidate.

Margaret (Peggy) Hosmer

Peggy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Hosmer. She enjoys drawing, painting, jogging, skiing, swimming, tennis and dancing. Peggy was president of the senior class at Charlevoix High School, she was the 1977 Homecoming Queen and was captain of the Flag Corps. She is 19 years old and is studying interior design at Michigan State University. She will do a modern dance routine at the talent show.

Brenda Boss

Brenda is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Boss. She enjoys cooking, skiing, reading, playing the piano and singing. Brenda is 18 years old. A graduate of Charlevoix High School, she was president of her junior and senior class. She was also the Golden Girl twirler for the band for three years and was a cheerleader for three years. She plans on majoring in elementary music education in college. She will play the piano at the talent show.

Nancy Lugibihl

Nancy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Lugibihl. She enjoys writing, poem collecting, jogging, bike riding, swimming and "working and meeting people." Nancy is 17 years old. She plans to sing at the talent show.

Pam Sutherland

Pam is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Sutherland. She enjoys drawing, singing, acting and broadcasting. Pam was a member of the debate and forensic teams in high school. She is 17 years old. She plans on doing a humorous reading at the talent show.

Stacy Ann Watson Kazyaka

Stacy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Watson. She enjoys camping, traveling, cutting hair, cars and "going out, having fun and meeting people." Stacy is 18 years old. She is a graduate of Charlevoix High School and cosmetology school. She plans to sing at the talent show.

Deborah Kay Shores

Deborah is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tim Shores. She enjoys singing, baseball, swimming, horseback riding, volleyball and bike riding. Deborah was a member of the rifle corps, girls softball team and girls track team at Charlevoix High School. She is 18 years old and plans to sing at the talent show.

Band director hired

The Charlevoix Board of Education Monday hired a band director.

After numerous interviews, Michael W. Filkins, a recent graduate of the University of Michigan, was hired as band director to succeed Gary Stutzman who resigned to enter the business world. Filkins, who comes highly recommended, did his student teaching at Chelsea. He is spending his fourth summer at the National Music Camp at Interlochen where he has been involved in various phases of music. He has a major in instrumental music. He is single. His family presently lives in Virginia where his father, a Naval officer, is stationed with the U.S. Navy.

The bid submitted by the Charlevoix County State Bank for interest at a rate of 6.06 percent for $890,000 tax anticipation note was accepted. Two bids were received. The note will be due April 1. The money will be borrowed against anticipated revenue until such time when taxes are paid.

The board accepted, with regret, the resignation of Donald A. Brown as a trustee on the Board of Education, a position he has held for the past six years. Clement J. Wagner, a former member of the board, was named to fill the vacancy until the next election.

Supt. Gordon W. VanWieren said that plans for the $700,000 addition to the Charlevoix High School were proceeding on schedule. The sale of the bonds to underwrite the cost of the addition will be sold at a meeting scheduled for 2:30 p.m. Monday at the Charlevoix High School study hall.

Courier publisher dies

Funeral services for W. Albert Schaller, 68, publisher of the Charlevoix Courier and Petoskey News-Review, were held Friday afternoon at the Stone Funeral Home in Petoskey. Mr. Schaller, who suffered a heart attack Tuesday while in Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., was buried in Greenwood Cemetery.

A former president of the Michigan League of Home Dailies, Mr. Schaller was in the newspaper and publishing business for 56 years – starting in the print shop of his late father, William F. Schaller. He was director and treasurer of Northern Michigan Review, Inc., which owns the Courier, News-Review, Super Shopper and Graphic Resorter. He was treasurer and director of the Otsego County Herald-Times at Gaylord. He purchased the Courier in 1963.

Mr. Schaller started working with his father when he was 12 years old. He worked after school and on weekends. In 1929 he joined the firm full-time. He and his father started the Northern Michigan Shopping Guide in 1934 and two years later converted it to a paid subscription weekly, The Northern Michigan Review. Mr. Schaller helped set up the first newspaper photo engraving plant north of Grand Rapids that year and billed the weekly as 'the picture newspaper.'

In 1947, the father and son purchased the weekly Otsego County Herald Times at Gaylord which they sold in 1953. That same year Albert Schaller became sole owner of the Review and purchased the Petoskey Evening News from the late Arthur M. Hinkley and merged the two into the present News-Review. He formed the corporation Northern Michigan Review.

On Nov. 30, 1956 he purchased the weekly newspaper and commercial printing plant of the Emmet County Graphic at Harbor Springs and on Jan. 1, 1960, merged it with the News-Review. In 1956 he opened the Northern Office Suppliers and a year later purchased the C.E. Garvin office supply company and merged it with the Northern Office Suppliers. This firm was incorporated on Jan. 1, 1961, with Albert Schaller and Allen E. Crosby, manager, as equal stockbroker. Crosby purchased the business five years ago.

For several years Mr. Schaller owned a marina at Oden which he sold and is now known as the Windjammer. The Charlevoix Courier was purchased in 1963 and the Herald-Times was repurchased in 1968. The News-Review's central printing plant was built in 1964 and his was the second daily newspaper in Michigan to be printed by the then revolutionary and much improved offset printing process. Just last winter he installed a complete computer typesetting system, one of the first of its kind in Michigan.

Mr. Schaller was a charter member and first secretary-treasurer of the Petoskey Lions Club organized in 1944 and was still active. He headed and directed the Lions Old Newsboy sale in 1958 and this annual event raises funds for sight conservation. In 1965 he received the Lions "Distinguished Service Plaque" in recognition of his many years of service.

He was a member of B.P.O.E. Elks for 43 years; the Knights of Columbus; past director and officer of Emmet County Community Chest; a county officer of the Easter Seal Committee; was an organizer, charter president and sponsor of the Petoskey Little League; he was a former president and secretary of the Petoskey City Band; a member of Emmet Sportsmen's Club and a sponsor-member of Michigan United Conservation Clubs. He was a member of the Petoskey-Bay View Country Club and a charter member of the Little Traverse Bay Regional Historical Society.

For many years Mr. Schaller was a director of the Michigan Press Association; he was a director of Michigan Blue Cross; a member of the Inland Daily Press Association and in 1964 was president of the Michigan League of Home Dailies.

Last month he was co-chairman of the 50th reunion of the Petoskey High School graduating class of 1929 of which he was a member. He also attended Davenport-McLaehlan Business Institute in Grand Rapids.

Mr. Schaller was born in Petoskey June 29, 1911. He was married to Doris G. Frederickson in Petoskey on Oct. 18, 1938. Surviving, in addition to his wife are two sons, W. Kirk who is general manager of the News-Review and Brent H., associated in the firm, a daughter, Karen Lewicki of Alanson; his mother, Martha of Petoskey; his sister, Mrs. Harold (Mary Jeanette) Noirot of Gaylord and six grandchildren.

The family has suggested that those who wish to honor Mr. Schaller's memory may contribute to the W. Albert Schaller Memorial Fund at North Central Michigan College for use at the discretion of the board of trustees.

Correction

In some editions of last week's paper, a story about the Medusa Cement Company said the company received rezoning approval on 230,000 acres. That figure was incorrect. Medusa actually received rezoning approval on 230 acres.

The error was noticed during the press run. But some editions had already been sent out before the error could be corrected.

Also, a story that was headlined "Tax Dollars at Work" made reference to the construction work at Bells Bay Road. That project is being financed almost entirely by Medusa.

Wampum will lead Venetian parade

By Tom Dammann

Standing at the water's edge, a dark blue beret carefully fitted on his head, his right hand holding a stubby briar pipe to his mouth, short, 87 year old Geoffrey A. "Skip" Patria resembles more a Parisian contemplating the barge traffic on the River Seine than the retired owner-operator of the marina he founded here 25 years ago.

His eyes seem to be focused on a small tug – The Wampum – tied up at the dock, but an observer sensed that they see more than the 38 foot vessel and the passing yachts and small boats.

Maybe this man of few words was contentedly thinking of the parade of boats that he and Wampum will lead around Round Lake Harbor on the night of July 28th, just prior to the fireworks celebrating Charlevoix's 49th Venetian Festival.

The French Connection has a firmer foundation than a beret. Skip, as he is called, is a native of Madeau, a small community near Escanaba, settled by French Canadians, where French was the principle language during his youth.

He became a telegraph operator for the Chicago Northwestern Railroad in Sheboygan, Wis., where he lived until "I took my pension in 1956," he stated recently.

He developed an interest in boats and "restored three in Sheboygan," he recalled. "I named them each Sinbad. They were old fishing boats. One was a 30 footer, one was 26 feet and the other was 32 feet."

After his retirement "Skip" and his wife moved to Charlevoix

"Dad looked around at all the ports on the lakes and Charlevoix was the nicest," explained his son David, who now operates Fairport Marine Electronics, one of three Michigan marinas which specialize in marine electronics, for its new owner, Donald H. Perrey of Fort Wayne, Ind.

Skip, incidentally, prefers to have his son present during interviews, and, in fact, lets him do most of the talking except on a few such salient points as "it was nothing but a dilapidated boat house when we bought it."

"We fixed it up and had boats and scuba gear for rent and sold bait," he continued.

He took in a partner, Phil Lawrence, who had a TV service in Sheboygan and was a ham radio operator. It was only natural that they began to emphasize electronics, which was then in its early childhood on the lakes.

David, who was already in electronics in Milwaukee, moved to Charlevoix in 1962 and Fairport eventually became engaged exclusively in the sale and repair of electronic marine equipment.

In the sixties, Skip found a boat which had been built as a fish tug in 1936 in Benton Harbor. It had been converted into an all-purpose tug to serve as the first vessel of the Welsh Line (now part of the Arnold Line) which carried mail, freight and passengers between Mackinaw City and Mackinac Island.

Named the Buddy L. the boat was known affectionately as the "Bloody L. because she would sail when nobody else would," David said.

"When I found her," the father interjected, "they were going to haul her out of the water and convert her into a fish camp house."

It was obvious Skip took a very dim view of such a turn of events. He bought her and brought her to Charlevoix.

"I tore everything off her Iron stem to stern and put a good floor on her hull, so I'd have a walk around deck," he recalled. "We have a 150 horsepower gasoline motor and comfortable accommodations for four people."

On Monday, October 7, 1968, Patire frere et fils left Charlevoix on a trip they still love to talk about.

They headed out into Lake Michigan and down to Chicago, then to the Mississippi River via the Illinois River arriving in New Orleans on October 30.

"We averaged 100 to 140 miles a day at a speed of eight knots," David recalled. "As soon as we passed St. Louis," (the confluence of the Missouri and Mississippi) "we were aided by the Missouri with its current of four knots an hour which made us average 12 knots."

Mostly we tied up at anchored barges, rickety dneks, pilings, whatever we could find," David said. "Occasionally we anchored for the night.

"There were very few facilities along the river and you could not see most of the communities where we stopped because they were hidden behind revetments, which were pretty high, because you know the river rises as much as 40 feet in flood time."

There were a few memorable nights," one way back up a tributary at Greenville, Miss. – "the nicest stop" – and another in Vicksburg, Miss., behind a stern wheeler. "The Sprague" which is now a museum.

"As we approached New Orleans the river on the Mississippi side became more and more commercial," David recalled. "Then we took the canal into Lake Pontchartrain where it was all yachts and sailboats, blue water as far as you could see, and our wake became foamy from churning up the brackish water.

Skip spent his winters aboard the tug in various Florida hamlets and his summers in Charlevoix. In the winter of 1969 they sailed from Carrabelle to Clearwater, 190 miles across the northeast corner of the Gulf known as the "hump", with much of the course 100 miles offshore.

The Hump is infamous for its ruthless pirates who pretend to be in trouble and lure unsuspecting yachtsmen to come to their rescue only to be murdered and have their yachts sunk after being plundered.

The Patries had waited four days at Carrabelle with 40 other boats for the weather to clear and then on December 1, they started out alone.

For the next few years, Skip spent the winters with Wampum in Florida and summers in Charlevoix.

Early in April, 1972, they started the long trip back home, up the Atlantic Intracoastal Waterway, through the canals and sounds of Georgia and the Carolinas to Cape Hatteras, revelling all the while in the new sights and beauties they passed. Then through the Dismal Swamp Canal to Delaware City on the Delaware Bay.

Geoffrey "Skip" Patria

A violent thunderstorm forced them to turn back from the Bay to Delaware City where a man clad in heavy yellow oilskins invited them into his home for a clambake.

"The claims were steamed by a lady called 'Mad Mable'," David paused chuckling, "It was a high point of the trip."

At Manasquau, N.J., they left the waterway to chug across the open Atlantic experiencing for the first time the awesome strength of the giant Atlantic swells.

"It was 35 miles to the Statue of Liberty and seeing her from the decks of Wampum was something I'll never forget," David said.

"We stopped long enough in New York to water the dog at the 48th Street Marina," Skip broke in, taking the omnipresent pipe from his mouth long enough to laugh.

Throughout most of the interview he had been studying the ship's log, making sure that his son kept his dates and other facts straight.

Because the Erie Canal was still closed by ice, when they reached Catskill on the Hudson, they left Wampum there for the summer.

They picked up the journey again September 19, with one of David's sons, Clay, then 9 years old, aboard.

Their course took them to Lake Ontario which they then crossed from Oswego, NY to Trenton, Ontario, taking the Trent Waterway through Canada, involving 43 locks, to Port Severin at the extreme eastern shores of Georgian Bay.

"We suffered the one and only near disaster of the entire trip then when we ran into an unknown submerged object which stove in the planking amid ships." David said

He was able to repair it, however, and they took off for home via Little Current, Meldrum Bay, Detour and Mackinaw City.

Don Seelye met them at Waugoshance Bay Point in his seaplane and Clay decided to fly the rest of the way home with him.

On October 7, 1972 as the Wampum was heading toward Charlevoix, David spotted the Beaver Islander also heading for Charlevoix. He called Lawrence McDonough on the radio and reminded him that it was exactly four years before that they had exchanged farewell chatter by radio as Wampum was beginning its odessy.

Now, Wampum sits at the dock, occasionally taking its skipper and family for a small cruise or race down Lake Charlevoix with Cliff Biddiek's tug Resolute.

As for Skip, he's looking forward to watching the fireworks on Venetian Night from his vantage point as leader of the boat parade.

Charlevoix Historical Society step closer to museum

The Charlevoix Historical Society is one step nearer to having a museum.

Last week, the Society announced the gift of the property at 103 State Street from the estate of Anne M. Harsha.

A life member of the Society, Miss Harsha was interested in efforts of the Society to establish an historical museum in Charlevoix.

The State Street property includes the home built by Miss Harsha's grandfather, Horace Harsha, in 1891.

According to W. W. Price, president of the Society, they hope to use the house for a work area and storage space and eventually for the "long-awaited" museum.

"All members are urged to get involved in this museum project, and help assemble and organize the many artifacts now stored about town," Price said last week.

Originally organized in 1879, the Charlevoix Historical Society was re-organized in 1972 after being inactive for many years. A principal objective was to preserve something of the past, and to this end, the establishment of an historical museum.

In 1978, a building fund project sponsored by a Committee of Seven was initiated with the publication of the pictorial book, "Bob Miles' Charlevoix - a Cent ury in Pictures" Sales of the book have netted over $20,000 to date.

The Society presently has 92 regular, ineinbers and 78 life members, who have contributed $100 or more to the building fund.

Past President E. L. Beutner recently extended an invitation to all residents and others interested in the history of the Charlevoix area, to join the Society. Meetings are held the first Tuesday of each month at 8 p.m. in the Community Room of the First State Bank of Charlevoix.

A test for the sport fishermen

Sport fishermen will be put to the test in the next few weeks.

The Bay Mills Reservation Indians have lifted their self imposed fishing ban. From now on, only Grand Traverse and Little Traverse Bays will be closed to Indian fishing.

Up until July 16, the Indian tribe had agreed not to fish south of Good Hart. This ban was imposed after tribal leaders and Gov. William Milliken met and discussed the possible violent confrontations that could erupt.

The tribe, for the most part, has obeyed the ban.

"We have some fishermen in our courts now accused of violating the Lake Michigan ban," Tribal Chairman Art LeBlanc told the Sault Ste. Marie Evening News. "The DNR cited them back to us, as we had asked. Yes, I suppose there will be some violators again (in Traverse bays) although we hope not."

LeBlanc added that "some problems" could arise.

"I suppose it can't be totally trouble free," he said. "There are some sport fishermen who don't want any Indian fishing at all, despite what the law says, and will cause trouble."

A federal judge has ruled that the Indians have unlimited fishing rights in Great Lakes waters adjoining lands they ceded to the United States in 1800s. The state is appealing the decision. The state says Indian fishing is - by use of the gill net - depleting the fisheries resource in the Great Lakes.

Until that appeal is acted upon, the law must be obeyed. We hope LeBlanc is wrong and that no violent confrontations occur.

Committee drops recall attempts

Editor:

The concerned members of the Top O'Michigan rural electric, formerly recall petition, committee, has decided to conclude their attempts to recall the Top O'Michigan board directors. As has been recently pointed out in local news articles, it is virtually impossible to assemble ⅓ of the membership, or roughly 14,000 members in any building in Northern Michigan.

We choose not to respond item by item to the May 1979 Company newsletter. The letter was obviously prepared by a professional public relations man, and narrow and biased. It is very difficult for a minority group to fight the power of the Company and compete with the sizeable expenditures of coop (owner-members') monies. We were disappointed that it did not disclose any of the costs of the strike, or how they will impact on our rates. When Ed May and Bruce Sanderson went before the board on June 23, 1979, and questioned board members about the costs of the strike, they were told that "Current bookkeeping system could not give us any breakdown of the strike costs." We were refused an answer of how much was spent on the labor attorney, Michael Word, of Kalamazoo. We do know that another Michigan Coop, Cloverland Electric in the Upper Peninsula, spent approximately $40,000-$60,000 for fees to Ward for about three weeks service, and the same lawyer was on our payroll from October to March here, approximately 24 weeks.

We are working to make changes in what we consider to be poor management of our cooperative, both in its resources and its services. We feel we can most constructively improve the management, service, and communications by getting elected to board of directors in August, at the annual meeting.

Our platform consists of 5 points. 1) COMMUNICATIONS: We believe that elected directors have an implied responsibility to regularly report to and meet with member-owners. We think board meetings should be open to any interested coop member wishing to listen or be heard. We feel employees having many years of service with the cooperative are real assets and every attempt should be made to keep them and their skills. 2) BY-LAWS: We feel the by-laws should be remodeled or better replaced. They are currently based on the original 1937 version. They should be written in understandable language and published in readable form. They should detail director responsibility to the membership. 3) ELECTION OF DIRECTORS: We recommend that the delegate system be considered for adoption by Top O'Michigan. Cloverland Electric uses this system very effectively. This system encourages more widespread participation. 4) ENERGY CONSERVATION: Our coop should help its member-owners conserve electrical energy. This can be accomplished by: making available energy-saving ideas, offering energy audits and consultation services to interested homeowners, by adopting rate structures that create pocket book incentives to conserve energy, (not paying at a higher rate for using less electricity), by making low or no interest loans available to member-owners wishing to purchase energy efficient home appliances, insulation, solar hot water systems, solar space heating systems, and wind generators we know to be cost effective. 5) STIMULATE LOCAL ECONOMY: We want the cooperative to thoroughly explore every means to reduce power consumption so we can avoid having to buy into expensive, centralized generating plants. We are opposed to being responsible for burying or storing radioactive wastes in Northern Michigan. We feel conservation efforts, coupled with solar systems for space heating and water heating, and wind electric systems will keep more money in Northern Michigan, and provide more jobs for our local tradespeople.

We think our present board has spent their time and our money white-washing and buying the problems instead of managing the best interests of the member-owners and employees. We offer an opportunity for you to make a good start towards changing the unproductive policies the present management insists on continuing, by attending and voting at the annual meeting on August 15, 1979, 8 P.M., at The Boyne City High School.

Signed
Ed May, III, Chairman
Tom Webster, Treasurer

Youth need more summer programs

Editor:

I am writing this as a grandmother of Little League players. Their season (except for the All-Star games) is over but there are several weeks of summer left. I am wondering if the Recreation Department could provide some sport for them for the remainder of the summer. Theirs is not a good age to be faced with nothing to do.

Turn sign needed

To the Editor:

Summer is here and I'm going to try again. Several years ago I suggested to our city manager that a sign reading "Right Lane Must Turn Right" be placed somewhere north of the bridge. All the thru traffic would thus take the left lane and the right lane would turn on to park, eliminating that frustrating bottle-neck. He thought it a good idea but, it being a state highway, it would have to go through the state regulator. He would suggest it.

A few years later I made the same suggestion to a new city manager who pooh-poohed the idea.

I do think it's worth a try.

Of course, the obvious solution to the south-north problem is to eliminate parking on the east side between Mason and Park South. The city parking lot should help that, especially if the rates were reasonable.

But at least let us see if we can get a "Right Turn Must Turn Right" sign up on the north side.

Sincerely,
Joanna D. Gunn

Nuclear arms reduction

To the Editor:

Most politicians agree that nuclear disarmament is necessary to prevent an eventual disaster. They also agree that SALT II is a treaty for the controlled increase of nuclear arms, not a reduction. As a result the doves believe that we should reject the treaty, start arms reduction unilaterally, and challenge the Soviet Union to do the same.

The administrations position is that SALT II is a necessary step toward nuclear disarmament in the future.

The hawks believe we should reject the treaty, increase the nuclear armament race, and then negotiate with the Soviet Union from strength.

The hawks now claim that the huge Soviet SS18 missiles could launch a first strike against our Minuteman missiles and destroy them in their silos. That was a criticism that opponents of the Minuteman system made before it was built and it was ignored by the hawks. Now that the Minuteman system is completed the hawks claim that it is obsolete and we need a new MX mobile missile system. Details of the land based MX system have not been established, but will not do anything that missile launching submarines can not do better. Our Secretary of Defense says that our radar could detect a SS 18 attack immediately, and we would launch a Minuteman missile counterattack before they could be destroyed in their silos.

Radar detection systems are one of the areas where human and mechanical errors are possible.

It is not the SS 18 missile that possesses first strike capability. It is the American Cruise missile that is designed to be launched from anywhere, fly below radar detection, and have pinpoint accuracy.

The neutron bomb is supposed to be a defenseive antitank weapon for Europe, but it would be more effective against guerrilla fighters in cities, and even more effective against surface naval fleets and naval convoys.

The neutron bomb would be more effective against us than against the Soviet Union.

Military technology has made national military establishments as obsolete as race horses in the Indianapolis 500.

If national military establishments have a hand in writing any SALT treaties there will never be nuclear arms reduction, and the political prospects are not promising. Senator Wayne Morse was the only politician of stature that had the knowledge and courage to oppose the Pentagon from the beginning of the decade of misadventure in Vietnam.

On the upswing

It seems odd that while everyone from President Carter on down is talking about a recession, Charlevoix's economic complexion has seldom looked rosier.

For the second weekend hand-running, Bridge Street bos been alive with tourists and travelers, supermarket parking lots are jammed as vacationers wheel tons of foodstuffs through check-out lanes and there appear to be more boats docked and moored in Round Lake than ever before.

If there is a sobering note, it is the fact that a good many of the visitors appear to be extremely young — which could mean that they don't have a great deal of money to spend on luxury items.

However, appearances are deceiving. That young fellow in faded cut-offs with his shirt open to his belly-button could well be the president of a multi-million dollar corporation.

Another situation that is a little scary is the fact that many gas stations are shutting up shop when the owners figure they have sold their quota of gasoline for the day. But travelers seem to be taking the situation in stride by filling up early and eliminating unnecessary travel around town.

At this point, it appears that Charlevoix is in for a fairly prosperous summer season. Maybe not as good as it could be, but certainly better than a lot of people expected.

I, FOR ONE, INTEND to send a thank-you note to the weatherman for holding off the rain during the annual Hobbycraft Show Saturday. Although the skies were threating from time to time, only a few drops fell — not enough to chase any of the exhibitors away for long.

A downpour could have raised havoc in East Park, where exhibitors had their wares displayed on the lawn. But after one brief squall just before noon, the skies cleared and the hobbycrafters had a perfect summer day for their show.

A half century ago, many school districts frowned upon married teachers. If they were married, they wouldn't hire them; or if they got married they lost their jobs.

That is why Albert Lehman and Estella Everts decided on low-key nuptials when they tied the knot 50 years ago July 3 in Kentucky. Stella, you see, was a school teacher.

But they decided at the time that they would do things up right on their 50th anniversary. And that's just what they did — despite the fact that Stella suffered a stroke last New Years Day in California and is now a patient at Grandvue Medical Care Facility.

Bert invited family members to attend a re-enactment of the wedding ceremony in the facility's day room, the Rev. Dan Minor of East Jordan officiating.

Of course, the "bridegroom" forgot the ring, but a substitute was offered by one of the well-wishers. And when the minister told Bert he could kiss his bride, he did it with such gusto that he dislodged Stella's glasses.

In these days of short-term marriages, the Lehmans — who live on Lewis Street in Charlevoix — are both an inspiration and an example for the rest of us.

Fifty years. Six hundred months. Twenty-six hundred weeks. Eighteen thousand, two hundred and fifty days.

What an enviable record!

Bob Davis

District concerns

What are the people in Northern Michigan most worried about?

That's a question that I constantly must face. Are the folks back home riled about inflation or energy or something else? To be honest, it's not always easy to "keep in touch" when you're working 800 miles from the people you serve.

That's why I return to the district nearly every weekend. And that's why I spent a week back home over the Fourth of July holidays while Congress was in recess. After meeting with hundreds of persons over a seven day period, I feel closely in tune with the concerns of the 11th District. Three of the biggest worries are problems of transportation, agriculture and health.

One important part of the transportation picture is the trucking industry. President Carter recently announced his trucking deregulation proposal, a plan which could spell trouble for rural areas like ours. Trucking firms would probably cater to metropolitan areas and avoid less profitable areas like ours.

Some parts of the Carter plan make good sense. For example, it would allow truckers to haul goods to and from a site. Now they are often forced to return from a long trip with an empty carrier. Still I cannot support the total package at this time, but I do support some revisions.

There's some good news on the agriculture front. The Cooperative Extension Service, a program originally earmarked for a $5.9 million budget cut, has instead been granted a $25 million increase. The House of Representatives disagree with the President's priorities and made the Cooperative Extension Service one of the few programs to come out ahead in a year marked by skin-tight budgets.

Part of the reason for the increase in the Extension funds was a large grass roots lobbying effort on behalf of the program. My office alone received dozens of letters. Without the letter writing campaign, the Extension program probably wouldn't have fared so well.

While I'm pleased with the Extension increase, I'm disappointed in some trimming to part of the Public Health Service Act. Health is a major priority to nearly everyone - in fact a survey in the Upper Peninsula recently showed it to be the number one concern. Last year the Comprehensive Health Grants to States program received $90 million. This year the figure has been sliced to about $50 million. Michigan's share also underwent major surgery, going from $2.7 million to $1.8 million. This money is especially important because it is used for developing preventative medicine techniques, which is a wise way of attacking expensive health costs.

Some other parts of the Act will get an increase in money. And an increase in direct federal grants for health services is expected to pick up some of the difference.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration recently announced that it was lowering the allowable level of PCB's in fish, poultry and dairy products. PCB is a toxic chemical used in industry and has been found to be most heavily concentrated in fatty fish such as coho, chinook, and trout.

The FDA found that the chemical is more toxic than they had originally thought, and will lower the allowable tolerance level from 5 parts per million to 2 ppm. Over the past several years the PCB levels in Great Lakes fish have been decreasing considerably. In 1970 fish were found to contain as high as 10-18 ppm. This year levels generally range between 2-3 ppm.

I feel we must protect the health of the public. PCB's are found to be especially harmful to pregnant women, and have been proven a definite health hazard. If we are to err, we should err on the side of human safety.

Why were the sails up?

That's what Courier landlubbers asked - and here are a few of your replies

Editor:

You ask what was going on when sail boats raised their sales while still at the dock. The answer is that they were drying them. The picture was taken around 1950 and shows Robert S. Marx' "Panchara", a 51' Alden designed ketch, pine on oak, built in Maine in 1924. I sailed as o deck hand on her under Allie Moore, Capt., in that yenr, 1950, and as a guest many more summers.

Cotton canvas had to be kept dry to avoid mildew, which discolor and weakens cloth, so whenever any water, either from spray or rain, soaked the sails, they had to be dried. This included dew. A part of the morning duties was to raise the sales part way, not enough to draw, while the sun and breeze dried the. The synthetic materials don't have the mildew problem. In those days the grass of the park was covered with sails spread out to dry each time they were wet and with "Pawchara", "Comet" and "Yawl-Cat" sometimes at the docks all together it could be quite a sight.

I think the gaff headed schooner showing tne number 10 is "Malabar X", winner of the 1932 Bermuda Race & now in Chicago, after many years in charter work down-south. She was in Charlevoix last summer, tying up at Walker's Marina.

The picture, of course, was taken at Hamilton's Boat yard, now the site of Le Hovre Condominiums.

Cordially,
J.M. Ewing

Editor:

They were drying their sails – cotton sails then.

I would guess late 1930's by design of boats – probably after Mackinac race – at Hamiltons yard.

Dave Irish

Editor:

The picture appearing on page 2 of your issue of the Charlevoix Courier for June 27th was taken from a postcard taken by Bob Miles in 1940 and was captioned "Drying sails after a storm, Hamilton's Boat Yard"

The man walking by the machine shop was James J. Reis. The original picture wos cropped because in the foreground it showed the gondola that was used in the Venetian Parades.

Respectfully,
Ralph Hamilton
Treasurer

Editor:

You sure have me guessing on the picture of the boats. Is that supposed to be in Charlevoix? It isn't familiar to me. Of course, I have only been coming up here around 60 some years. They are all on 'horses; to have barnicles scraped off or painted. Now, that may be Mr. Bellanger's lot full of boats for the winter. It isn't the corner where Ward is as our old home would show up on the hill, and it isn't there. It is a busy picture, but not familiar. Hope you get the right answer, as I would like to know, also.

Hupefully,
Mildred Eckuger (Mrs. Hugh) Scott

Worker to take home memento

When Mary L. Juday retires from the Charlevoix County Department of Social Services in the near future, she will take a memento of her job with her.

It will be the 24-year-old manual typewriter of which she was the sole user during her career at DSS.

At Mrs. Juday's request, the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners last week agreed to sell old No. 7727972000 to her for the sum of One Dollar.

The typewriter is described as "of very little functional value", but Mrs. Juday apparently feels differently, or perhaps it's the sentimental value that's important to her.

Always Mention...
THE CHARLEVOIX COURIER when making a purchase from a Charlevoix Courier advertiser. He is interested in knowing about your response.

SAFE Boating TIPS

Water skiing is a popular and pleasant sport. To make it a safe sport, you should know that you are required to have a 170" wide angle, rear-view mirror and a competent observer. You must stay at least 100 feet from any docks, rafts, moored boats, and designated or occupied swim areas unless moving at a slow, no wake speed or dropping off your skier.

Do Business Where Business Is Being Done

Northwood Symphonette here August 17

The Northwood Symphonette, a 36 member chamber orchestra featuring instrumentalists from throughout the United States and Europe, will perform in Charlevoix Friday, Aug. 17 at 8:30 p.m. at the Community Reformed Church.

Tickets are on sale at the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

Under the leadership of Don Th. Jaeger, the Northwood Symphonette will present three weeks of concerts from Aug. 2 - Aug. 19 in central and northern Michigan communities. A wide spectrum of musical literature representing three centuries and many countries will be presented, providing audiences a wide and stimulating listening experience. Distinguished members of the orchestra and outstanding artists will appear as soloists.

Two of the featured soloists will be William Preucil on violin and Dennis Horton on trumpet.

The program will consist of "Overture to 'Preziosa'"(Weber), "Concerto in A Minor for Violin" (Bach), "Octet for Wind Instruments" (Stravinsky), "Prayer of St. Gregory" (Ilovhaness), and "Variations Concertantes" (Ginastera).

Jaeger has been conductor of the Midland Symphony for 10 years. In May, the symphony performed as part of the Inter-American Music Festival in the Kennedy Center in Washington D.C.

Of that concert, the Washington Post stated: "If the Midland Symphony, which is conducted by Don Jaeger, is symptomatic of the nation's musical health, then the country is doing splendidly well...it was a highly creditable performance under Jaeger's sure direction."

Jaeger has also conducted the State Orchestra of Thessoloniki (Greece), the Antwerp Philharmonic (Belgium), the Philharmonic Orchestra of Lisbon (Portugal), as well as the Chattanooga Symphony, the Detroit Symphony, the Colorado Springs Symphony and the Aspen Festival Orchestra. He appears regularly as conductor of the Iowa Bach Festival and will be the music director of the first annual Village Bach Festival to be held in Cass City. He also begins his fourth season as conductor of the Northwestern Michigan Symphony in Traverse City.

The Northwood Symphonette, representing Northwood Institute, is presenting the concerts in cooperation with the Crooked Tree Arts Council, The Roscommon Chamber Music Society and Matrix: Midland.

Young Americans perform "Guys and Dolls"

By Anne Kelly

Milton Anderson, founder, producer and director of The Young Americans was in the lobby of the Petoskey High School auditorium when we arrived Sunday night for the show. If anyone could be said to look as peremnially young and radiant as the kids he trains, it is Mr. Anderson. The Andersons have a small home on a lake in Northern Michigan where they enjoy summering. But Milton Anderson's main enjoyment has got to be working with the outstanding young performers, chosen out of 1000 auditionees, who this summer represent 33 states. The Young Americans were founded in 1962 by Mr. Anderson and have performed around the country and on National television. In 1975, he brought the kids and the American Music Theater to summer-Petoskey. We're glad he did.

"Guys and Dolls" with music and lyrics by Frank Loessan, story by Danion Runyan, appeared July 10-15 and will return again July 31, Aug. 1 and 2. I guess I'm partial to the variety show performances, mainly because I think that the Young American's forte is their energetic and imaginative singing and dancing. I would recommend that you take the kids to "An Evening With the Young Americans" and do up the plays, at least "Guys and Dolls," with the adults. This recommendation is based on the fact that this play is a little slow-moving between numbers (not because the material is x-rated!).

The outstanding performers are the ladies - - Anne Mousseau who brings a clear as a bell soprano to the part of Sarah Brown, Broadway Mission Macher, Veronica Sizemore, who chews her gum and wiggles her way unfailingly through the escapades of Adelaide with all the nonsophistication of a Broadway "Hat Box" girl. One other minor character in the cast who does an outstanding job with her part is Julie Mclees as spoofy Mission General Cartwright.

Choreography is excellent as usual with favorite numbers performed by the Hat Box Girls (Bushel and a Peck), Havana Dancers, and Crapshooters (Luck be a Lady).

For tickets and further information regarding future performances call the American Music Theater Box Office, 347-1333.

Gasoline available

The tourist business has returned to normal in northwestern Michigan, according to the Traverse City Area, Charlevoix, and Petoskey Regional Chambers of Commerce, with plentiful gasoline supplies.

In a survey of almost 100 gas stations, all reported near-normal weekday hours with 80 percent planning to remain open throughout the weekend.

HANDSOME TRADITIONAL

Old stone walls, a covered arch entry, white birch trees and a panoramic view of Lake Michigan make this older home one of the most charming lakefront homes in the entire area!

And that's not all ... there's a sunken bedroom, an alcove bedroom, sun parlor with a nice patio, fieldstone fireplace, guest house, extra large corner lot — A Personal Tour of this Home is A MUST to Appreciate The Many FANTASTIC Features!

GOOD NEWS
FOR ALL SAVERS FROM FAMILY FEDERAL SAVINGS.

1. REGULAR SAVINGS ACCOUNTS NOW EARN 5-1/2%.

Effective July 1, we will begin paying a new high rate of 5-1/2% per annum—and thanks to continuous compounding, you can enjoy an effective annual rate of 5.73%. It's the highest allowed by law on regular insured savings, and it's higher than any bank can offer.

2. NEW HIGH INTEREST 4-YEAR MONEY MARKET CERTIFICATES.

Effective July 1, our new 4-year Savings Certificate will pay interest at a rate which is tied to the average four-year Treasury securities rate as determined by the U. S. Treasury.

The rate of these 4-year certificates will change on the first calendar day of each month, and the minimum deposit is $1,000 or more. You are guaranteed the rate at which you open your account for the full four-year term.

3. MORE GOOD NEWS— PENALTIES FOR EARLY WITHDRAWALS REDUCED.

For certificate accounts issued or renewed beginning July 1, 1979, funds withdrawn prior to maturity from certificates with a term of one year or less will lose 90 days' interest, or all interest if the funds have been on deposit for less than 90 days. For certificates with a term of more than one year, the funds withdrawn will lose 180 days' interest, or all interest if the funds have been on deposit for less than 180 days.

Other Savings Plans Available at Family Federal Savings.

Type of Account	Minimum Amount	Annual Rate	Effective Annual Rate

MICHIGAN BELL CONSUMER TIPS

Here's how to get that Long Distance number (and a free Personal Directory to keep it in) so you can dial it yourself and save.

If you've ever forgotten how to get a needed phone number for a distant city — outside your own area code — you may want to clip this ad and keep it near your phone as a reminder. Here's all you do. First, dial "0" and ask the operator for the area code, if you don't already know. Then, for Long Distance directory assistance, dial "1" plus the area code for that city, then 555-1212. You will reach a Long Distance directory assistance operator who will give you the number. Once you have the number, write it down so the next time you need it, you can dial it direct and save. If you don't have a good place to write it down, we have a place for you . . . your Personal Telephone Directory — a handy book for keeping your personal list of local and out-of-town phone numbers. It's free. Just call your Michigan Bell business office and ask for a copy.

King James Court wins invitational

Foremost Realty knocked King James Court out of the winner's bracket during the annual Charlevoix Women's Slo-pitch Invitational tournament here Sunday by a score of 4-2 only to have them return via the loser's bracket to defeat them by scores of 3-2 and 3-0 for the tournament title.

With Linda Wikle un the mound for the Court, the King James nine shut out the contenders 3-0 for the title. Winkle allowed five hits but strong defense play held the Realtors scoreless while the winners scored three runs on seven hits. Lori Cossens was the losing pitcher.

In the win that sent the tournament into its 19th game, Wikle was the winning pitcher as her team scored three runs on five hits to keep the team's title hopes alive. Foremost Realty had two runs on six hits with Cossens at the mound.

In the finals of the loser's bracket, King James Court, stinging from a 4-2 loss to Foremost Realty, defeated a strong Alpena team, Tiny's Bubbles, 4-1 to get another crack at the title. Wikle was the winning pitcher, allowing six hits. Sue McQuire, the losing pitcher, allowed five hits.

Tiny's Bubbles, behind the pitching of McQuire, defeated Kal-Ho of Kalkaska 8-7 with each game connecting for 12 hits. Shelby Worchock was the losing pitcher in this game.

The team, a Charlevoix team, stayed in the running until Sunday morning when they lot to Kal-Ho by a score of 3-2 in a hard-fought game. Pam Parsel was the losing pitcher allowing nine hits. Charlevoix had five.

In other games, Tiny's Bubbles, Becky Droust on the mound, defeated Northern Service Bureau 7-3. Each team had nine hits. Evy Gibbard was the losing pitcher. The Team won over Heath's IGA by a score of 12-8 on eight hits for the Charlevoix team with Parsel as pitcher. The Gaylord team also had eight hits. Nadia Kidder was the losing pitcher.

Northern Service Bureau, Ruth Volkning, pitcher, had 14 runs on 14 hits to defeat Topside who had two runs on five hits. Teri Wilson was the losing pitcher. In game nine King James Court scored five runs on nine hits to tumble Kal-Ho who had four runs on nine hits from the winner's bracket.

Other scores follow: The Team 22 Northern Sanitation 7 with Jodi Block the winning pitcher and Marilyn Sova the loser; Topside 9 Townhouse 5 with Teri Wilson the winning pitcher and Cheryl Archey the loser; Tiny's Bubbles 8 Heath's IGA 5 with Doust the winner and Kidder the luser. Sue Cisweski scored one of the few homeruns in the tournament in this game; King James Court 9 Northern Service Bureau 8; Heath's IGA 30 Northern Sanitation 1 with Cisweski scoring a home run for the Gaylord nine; Kal-Ho 14 Topside 1 with Tammy Osborn scoring a home run for the Kalkaska team; Foremost Realty 4 The Team 1; Northern Service Bureau 9 Townhouse 3.

Linda Wikle who pitched six games for the tournament champions, King James Court, was named the Most Valuable Player in the tournament. Carol Ankerson of Foremost Realty, runner-up for the title, was the batting champion with an average of .571.

Custer qualifies

Mike Custer, 17, recent graduate of Charlevoix High School where he was a member of the golf team, qualified for the U.S. Junior Golf Championship in a strong field of 66 players at the Saskatoon Golf Club in Grand Rapids recently.

He qualified with a one over par 74 to tie for third place behind two Muskegon players.

Custer was one of five boys who qualified at the sectional tournament at Grand Rapids to represent the area at the national junior championships at Moss Creek Country Club at Hilton Head Island, S.C., July 31-Aug. 4.

Mike, son of Dr. and Mrs. Harry Custer, will attend Auburn College on a golf scholarship this fall.

Physicals scheduled for athletes, cheerleaders

Attention students, both boys and girls attending Charlevoix Public Schools in grades 7-12.

Physical examinations for all athletic interscholastic competitive sports and high school cheerleading for the 1979-1980 school year will be held according to the following schedule at Charlevoix High School on East Garfield Avenue.

Boys – Monday, July 30 in the study hall. Note: Grades 10-11-12 at 7:30 p.m. (oldest students first), Grades 7-8-9 at 8:30 p.m.

Girls – Tuesday, July 31 in the study hall. Note: Grades 10-11-12 at 7:30 p.m. (oldest students first) Grades 7-8-9 at 8:30 p.m.

Doctors from the medical staff of the Charlevoix Area Hospital will be conducting these examinations.

Students are encouraged to take advantage of these free physical examination clinics if they plan to participate in any part of the high school, or middle school athletic programs. Students who do not receive their physicals at this time must make their own arrangements as physical examinations are required by the Michigan High School Athletic Association for participation in any or all sports.

The coaching staff will be on hand to assist students in registration.

40 ACRES ON MAPLE GROVE ROAD

Unfinished 30' x 30', 2 story barn home comes with a 1965 2 BR Marlett. Both sit on an 11 acre meadow fronted by 29 acres of hardwood. The new well needs a pump and there's no septic system, but this live-in, do-it yourself project is just waiting for the right party. Has a full quarter mile of Maple Grove Road frontage in the Charlevoix School District. Owner is anxious to sell and will carry a short term Land Contract.

NORVA GRAY and his PIANO

Norva Gray truly plays music for the discriminative listener with elegant taste. He performs the music associated with Roger Williams, Frankie Carle, Liberace and Floyd Cramer. His repertoire is selected from many requests that he has received from the people he entertains all over the country. Everything from the Big Band Sounds of yesterday to the best of the contemporary sounds that are heard today.

In the latter part of the evening, Norva involves singing in his programs. He sings everything from Light Country Pop, to the Las Vegas production of "My Way," "Red Roses for a Blue Lady," and yes, even "I Left My Heart in San Francisco."

New Business & Professional Women's Club chartered here

The newest club of the Michigan Federation of Business & Professional Women's Clubs, Inc. was chartered at the Grey Gables Inn at Charlevoix recently with 27 charter members.

Myra Crawford, charter president of the East Jordan Business & Professional Women's Club, who are the sponsors of the new club, served as mistress of ceremonies.

Margaret Kreiner, immediate past state president of the Michigan Federation, gave the invocation prior to the dinner.

During the charter night ceremonies, Joyce Mallory, past state president of the Michigan Federation, led the group in the Collect and the Pledge of Allegiance. Lorraine Washburne, state expansion chairman, then introduced the many guests in attendance from the community and from throughout the state.

Jim Brinker, city manager of Charlevoix, gave the welcome to the new club to the community on behalf of the City of Charlevoix.

The charter members were then introduced by Lorraine Washburne, and presented to Ethel Rosten, state membership chairman, who conducted an unpressive candlelight induction ceremony.

Olive Merlin, state president of the Michigan Federation, then installed the charter officers, using a flower theme ceremony. The new officers are: Sally Taber, president; Carol Willnite, president elect; Bonnie Staffel, vice president; Laurie Meilleur, recording secretary; Laura Shaberg, corresponding secretary; and Rebecca Myers, treasurer.

The charter was then presented to the new president by Olive Merlin. Other presentations included the president's pin by Carol Tighe of the East Jordan Club, the Niki by Myra Crawford on behalf of the East Jordan club; the gavel by Vivien Wisner, director of District 3 on behalf of the district; the memory book by Joyce Mallory on behalf of the Michigan Federation; and the guest book by Lorraine Washburne.

The new president, Sally Taber, then spoke to the group expressing her appreciation for all who had worked so hard to make the club a reality, and pledging the efforts and interest of both the officers and members in making it one of the most effective in the future.

The emblem benediction concluded the charter night ceremonies, after which a dinner theatre production of the stage play, "I do, I do" was presented.

Mark Morgan of Charlevoix is thrown out at the plate during district tournament contest of Senior Division Little League against Rogers City Sunday. Charlevoix won, 4-3, and advanced to play Cheboygan Monday. Mike Loper was the winning pitcher

Energy meeting tonight

An energy awareness meeting will be held tonight (Wednesday) at 8 p.m. in the community room of the First State Bank.

The meeting will feature speakers on wind power.

Anyone interested in discussing or learning about alternate sources of energy is welcome.

"Hey, how d'you keep that terrific shine?"

It's Preserv-A-Shine, and it keeps itself!
Unlike wax, the Preserv-A-Shine exclusive formula is actually buffed into the surface of the car to give a protective glass like shine that seals out the harmful effects of oxidation, salt, snow and sun.
The Preserv-A-Shine process includes initial treatment and an annual cleaning and resealant job. And it means you'll never have to wax your car again.
Because Tidy Car operators are mobile, Preserv-A-Shine costs less than you'd expect. We bring our equipment to you wherever you are, and just about whenever you want.
Call and find out how soon we can get to your car, van, boat or plane. Ask about our interior and vinyl roof services too

Windmill Farms has campsites and lots of recreational facilities

By Peg Ohle

Stewart Boal has been a part-time resident of the Charlevoix area since he was born in 1906. This summer, as in the past several summers, he and his wife Susie are living at the Windmill Farms Campground, which they own and operate. This week he tells the Courier about the campground and the philosophy behind it.

COURIER: How do you describe Windmill Farms?

BOAL: It is a rural campground although it's modern to the extent that we have electrical and water hookups. We offer recreation.

COURIER: What recreational faelbties do you have?

BOAL: A swimming pool, a game room with ping pong and billiard tables, indoor and outdoor shuffleboard, indusr basketball, a tennis court, a nine-hole golf course, and 15 miles of old lumbering trails through the woods and meadows.

COURIER: How can you have an indoor basketball court?

BOAL: There's plenty of room in the barn. It's a good strong structure, built in 1895.

COURIER: The golf course is new, isn't it?

BOAL: Yes, it's what we call "farm golf". The fairways are cut with the tractor and the greens with a lawn mower. The holes are buckets twelve inches in diameter topped with a flag. The balls are chipped in rather than putted. We use red balls. It's a par three, nine-hole course. We even have an official score card.

COURIER: And you furnish golf balls and clubs?

BOAL: Oh yes, they're free, part of the deal. We also furnish tennis racquets free. I forgot to mention that we have free movies, too.

COURIER: You had cross country skiing this winter, didn't you?

BOAL: Yes, Nelly Hichle was in charge of it. We had 15 miles of groomed trails. Last February we had a big event sponsored by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce and the Lions Club in which about 150 people participated. We plan another such event next winter.

COURIER: How many camp sites do you have?

BOAL: Fifty. Two-thirds of them have electrical and water hookups.

COURIER: Do you have more recreational vehicle campers or tent campers?

Meet Charlevoix

Stewart Boal

BOAL: About half and half.

COURIER: How many acres are there on Windmill Farms?

BOAL: Five hundred. As you can see, we're keeping the grounds in their natural state so the land could revert to farming any time.

COURIER: Oo you have plans for adding anything in the near future?

BOAL: We want to start a farm museum, using the many old tools and other pieces of equipment we have. Right now we're trying to get our neighbors interested in the swimming pool and tennis court. We have a nominal fee for them.

COURIER: Where do your campers come from?

BOAL: All over, but we get quite a few from the surrounding area – Boyne City, East Jordan, and Charlevoix. One group likes to come over the Labor Day weekend and have square dancing parties in the barn.

COURIER: How is business so far this year?

BOAL: It's down, probably because people downstate think there is a gasoline shortage up here, and because the weather was so bad the early part of the summer.

COURIER: How long are the camp grounds open?

BOAL: We open up when the mushroom season starts and stay open to Labor Day. We have a lot of mushrooms on the place. Memorial Day weekend is always good for us. People are glad to get out after being cooped up all winter.

COURIER: This used to be a working farm, didn't it?

BOAL: Yes, it was when my father bought the original 130 acres and the Lake Charlevoix property with John Wilson in 1908, and fnr many years afterward. We used to have a tenant farmer, Ralph Klooster. Through the years I bought up the surrounding land to add to the original farm acreage.

COURIER: Where did you live when your father bought the lake property in 1908?

BOAL: In Winnetka, Illinois, and we still do. In the early days, we used to take the Steamer Manitou out of Chicago to Charlevoix. Later on, we drove up, and still later, when my own family stayed here all sunmer, I rode the Resort Special every weekend.

COURIER: How did you spend your time up here when you were a child?

BOAL: I remember that we had a big yacht and used to cruise to Georgian Bay, and we took canoe trips, but mostly we did the same things kids do today.

COURIER: Are there other members of the Boal family still in the area?

BOAL: Oh, yes. My sister, Henrietta Moore, and her family, my brother, Ayres, and his family, and my brother Tom's family all share the original property my father bought. The fourth generation of the Boal family are spending time here now.

COURIER: What is the biggest change in the area from the time you first remember it?

BOAL: There are fewer farmers, and those who du farm have to have other jobs to keep going.

COURIER: You're so good about building and repairing things around the farm – how did you learn how?

BOAL: I guess I just have mechanical aptitude. I ran a small metal working shop for some years.

COURIER: How many children do you have?

BOAL: We have two sons and a daughter. Stewart, Jr. and his wife, Susan, have two children, Scott and Chris. They live in Peoria, Illinuis. Sun Ellis is being married here at the farm August 11. He's a lawyer in Detroit. Daughter Nina is in the electronics field in Chicago.

COURIER: Have you ever been up here in the winter?

BOAL: Yes, when our children were small we used to come up fur Christmas. Now we've bought a house in the Bahamas and will probably sell our Winnetka lause and spend nine months a year here and three months in the Bahamas.

Will Charlevoix County become tart cherry producer?

Grand Traverse is known as the Cherry Capital of the United States. But "dependable red tart cherry sites are in demand for other uses. Generally high lying, they are choice locations for home building."

Thus, because there is a need for additional sites, a red tart cherry site inventory was undertaken in Charlevuix and Emmet counties by the U.S. Department of Agriculture Soil Conservation Service in East Lansing.

The purpose of the inventory, according to the report, was "to evaluate a parcel of land in a given location according to its capability to consistently produce cherry crops.

The Charlevoix and Emmet counties' inventory was based on the site requirements of the Montmorency red tart cherry.

"The most desireable soil is a well drained sandy loam that is well aerated and has a medium to high natural fertility," the report says. "The soil must have a moderate available water capacity, a moderate to moderately rapid permeability and at least 48 inches of depth to permit unrestricted root penetration for good growth and anchorage."

In addition, the spring temperature should remain cool to retard fruit bud development and minimize danger of damage due to spring freezes, the report adds, while the low winter temperatures seldom, if ever, should get as low as 15 to 20 below.

Finding the right soil and climate conditions was difficult in Enmet County. Only in Resort and Bear Creek townships could red tart cherries be produced, the report indicates. Both townships are in the southern part of the county.

In Charlevoix County, Hayes, Bay, Norwood, Marlon, Eveline and South Arm townships have suitable sites for red tart cherries.

The above mentioned townships have both both "desirable" and "good" sites.

50 years later - Class of '29 plans get together

The Class of 1929 of the Charlevoix High School will meet at the V.F.W. post home Saturday, July 28, for its 50th reunion.

A committee composed of Max Novak, Richard Farmer, Mrs. Sims Baker, Mrs Andrew Fulton, Mrs. Clarence Murray and Mrs. Elmer Gibson have made the arrangements for the event which will feature a "renew old acquaintances" time from 2 until 4 p.m.; a sing-a-long at 5 p.m. followed by a dinner at 7 p.m.

Approximately 29 of the 35 members of the class that graduated half a century ago are expected to attend the reunion. Six members of the class are deceased. Three members are ill and will be unable to attend; four others did not respond to the invitation and others were not interested.

Several others who were members of the class at one time or another will be attending. This number includes Sister John Marie Brondersky, the former Theresa Brundersky, who is observing her fiftieth year as a Dominican nun and who will be honored at a special Mass and reception at St. Mary's Church on Sunday, July 29.

"A people without reliable news is sooner or later a people without the basis of freedom."
—Harold J. Laski

Class of '59 reunion planned

The 1959 graduating class of Charlevoix High School will celebrate their 20 year reunion at a dinner party Saturday evening, July 21 at the Grey Gables Inn.

Cocktails will be served beginning at 7:30 p.m. and the dinner theater will start at 8 p.m.

Members of other classes are invited to join the group after the dinner theater is over - at approximately 11:30 p.m.

Interested persons may contact John Haggard at 547-4046 or 547-6600 for further information.

Family celebrates reunion

The families of two daughters of the late Robert and Emma Struthers, early residents of Hayes township, gathered recently for a reunion.

Those gathering at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Pearsall for the reunion were the children of Mrs. Pearsall, the former Dorris Struthers, and those of the late Mrs. Arthur (Evelyn Struthers) Geer.

Attending were the sons and daughters-in-law of Mrs. Pearsall, Mr. and Mrs. Charles (Judy) Pierce and two daughters of Petoskey, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford (Charla) Pierce and four children of Woodstock, Ill., Barry Pierce and his guest, Karen Hines, both of Charlevoix and her sons-in-law and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Jack (Karen) Vincent and two sons of East Jordan and Dr. and Mrs. James (Joy Ann) Price of Kent, Ohio.

Others were Arthur Geer and his son and daughters-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert (Sally) Geer and two sons of Charlevoix and Mrs. Terry (Phyllis) Geer and two children of Bellaire and his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John (Artis) Galmares and three children of Traverse City.

Weddings

Lickfelt-Hosmer

Doris M. Lickfelt and Mark E. Hosmer were married Saturday afternoon, June 30, in Christ Episcopal Church in Charlevoix.

Both bride and groom make their home in Lansing. Mrs. Robert Lickfelt, Sr., is also a resident of Lansing, as was her late husband. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Max Hosmer of Charlevoix.

Large baskets of daisies and small clusters of daisies on each pew decorated the church as the Reverend Roger Ames performed the double-ring rites.

Given in marriage by her brother, Robert Lickfelt, Jr., the bride wore a gown of ivory organza with long fitted sleeves, empire waistline, and a high neckline edged with antique lace above the netted yoke. Venice lace, sequins and pearls decorated the bodice and sleeves. A chapel-length train and matching picture hat completed the costume.

Robin J. Lickfelt, niece of the bride, served as maid of honor, and Laurel Lickfelt and Peggy Hosmer were bridesmaids. The attendants wore floor-length jade green gowns fashioned in polyester knit. An ivory yoke constructed of Brussels lace was also repeated in the gowns' short sleeves. A blouson bodice met the yoke and flowed into a slightly gathered skirt. They carried small baskets of yellow and white daisies.

John M. Cinnamon served the bridegroom as best man, Ronald Winchester and Scott Boss were groomsmen, and Eric Slone and Calvin Lickfelt were ushers.

Mrs. Robert Gill provided traditional wedding music for the ceremony, and Thomas Carey sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "The Sweetest Story Ever Told".

A reception following the ceremony was held at the Weathervane Inn. The rehearsal dinner was also held at the Weathervane.

Following a short wedding trip, the couple is at home at 6156 West Michigan Ave., Apt. K-13, Lansing. Both young people are employed in Lansing, he with Oldsmobile, and she with Lansing General Hospital.

Skrzeczkoski-Borths

Doris Skrzeczkoski became the bride of Charles A. Borths Saturday afternoon, June 30, at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Endries of Spencer, Wisconsin, and her bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Angeline Borths of Charlevoix.

The bride was given in marriage by her father before an altar decorated with yellow daisies and white carnations. Approximately 100 guests witnesses the double-ring ceremony performed by Father R. Dale Magoon.

For her wedding, the bride chose a long gown of off-white voile, with which she wore an arm-length veil decorated with white daisies. She carried a bouquet of yellow daisies and yellow roses.

Mrs. Robert Borths served as matron of honor, and Mrs. Darrell Van Loo as bridesmaid. They wore long gowns of light blue voile, trimmed in white. Their bouquets were of yellow daisies and roses tied with brown ribbons.

Barbara Skrzeczkoski's flower girl costume was similar to those of the attendants, and she carried a basket of flowers.

David Lavake, nephew of the bridegroom, served as ringbearer.

Robert Borths, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man, and James Borths, another brother, was groomsman. Herb Endries, brother of the bride, and Richard Borths, another brother of the bridegroom, seated the guests.

Organ and vocal music for the ceremony was provided by Marina La Blance.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Borths hosted the wedding receptiou at the American Legion Hall. Assisting them were Mrs. Madlyn Renaud, who cut the cake, and Mrs. Robert Borths, who attended the guest book. The bridegroom's mother hosted the rehearsal dinner Friday evening at the Weathervane Inn.

The newly-weds have delayed a wedding trip and are now at home on Stover Road in Charlevoix. The bridegroom is a truck driver for Coca-Cola, and the bride is a waitress at Leutheuser's Restaurant.

Wieland-Johnson

Tamara Wieland and Scott Johnson were married June 30 at the Faith Reformed Church in Traverse City.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wieland of Charlevoix. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Johnson of Williamston.

The Rev. Warren Burgess performed the double ring ceremony before 200 guests.

The couple went on a windjammer cruise through the Lesser Antilles of the Carribean following the wedding. They will make their home in Traverse City.

A complete account of the wedding appeared in the July 4 edition of the Courier (without the picture).

Lectures to be aired on CMU public radio

MT. PLEASANT – Does the Federal Government exercise too much control over higher education in the U.S.? Sociologist Edward Shils deals with this question in a series of lectures to be aired on Central Michigan University's public radio stations, WCMU-FM and WCML-FM.

The lectures will be broadcast on three consecutive Wednesdays, July 18, July 25 and Aug. 1, at 12:30 p.m. Each lecture will be followed by a locally produced discussion featuring central and northern Michigan authorities on education and the humanities.

In his controversial lectures, Shils maintains that the U.S. Government ignores the universities' traditional function of searching for truth, pushing them instead into programs designed to train high-level experts in defense technology and economics. According to Shils, the Government is fostering its own interests and using universities as an instrument for solving its problems.

A soap opera

Some day, just for fun, when you're not particularly concerned about your public image, walk into your local book store and pick up a copy of the racy paperback novel which sports an enticing set of legs on its cover. Compromising Positions by Susan Isaacs is the kind of book you take along with you to the beach and read between applications of coconut oil. Then again, you might bear a copy to the beauty shop and pass the time waiting for your shampoo with it instead of Movie Star Monthly.

Like Bloodline it's just for fun, and appeals more to the literary appetite of the crisis-starved suburban set than anyone else. But what the heck, Tolstoy is heavy in the summer, and literary taste can be acquired by sampling it all. Sometimes you just want to be entertained. And that's exactly why Compromising Positions is a best seller. It entertains.

Also like Bloodline, Compromising Positions is a murder mystery. This time the heroine is a "typical" upper-middle class suburban housewife with a M.A. in history, an insatiable curiosity that cannot seem to be satiated by wondering "what's for dinner?" and tune on her hands despite the fact that she has two young children. The victim is a local periodontist who has acquired a questionable, if not shaky, reputation over the years as an irresistable cad, guilty of more than gum desecration. He had recently been under investigation for his part in a pornography ring, an implication which adds Mafia intrigue to his otherwise mundane misdealings. Oh yes, and to add just a bit of spice, post mortem investigations reveal that Dr. Bruce Fleckstein not only loved 'em and left 'em, but photographed them as well, with the Polaroid probably given to him one Hanukkah by his wife and kids.

You can guess the rest. Heroine involves herself in case, heroine involves herself with case detective, heroine and case detective crack case and respective marriages. Well, now Ms. Suburbia will have to size up her boring life and make some decisions. Will she be truly happy making pork chops and tossed salad and driving in the nursery school car pool for the next however-many-it's-too-many years? Or having had a test of the glamour of bullet-proof vests and bullet-proof detectives, will she opt to become one of Charlie's Angels with a Ph.D. in criminology?

Since my most exciting decision of the week was whether to buy Spartan Peanut Butter or splurge on Jif, I found the whole experience of housewife and mother Judith Singer to be rather scintillating. I understand that Bloodline isn't making it as a movie even with Audrey Hepburn in the leading role. If that's true, I don't know why there's talk of trying this one on the screen. A soap opera perhaps.

Couple survives 24 hour ordeal on Hog Island

Two Indiana residents who were stranded Thursday on a remote Island in Lake Michigan are back home today.

William and Betty Fadus arrived in Fort Wayne Sunday "thankful" their bizarre vacation had a happy ending.

The Fadus' had embarked on a boat trip from Northport to Mackinaw City. After spending Wednesday night in the marina at Beaver Island, they left Thursday morning to go fishing off Hog Island.

While fishing in the shallows the Fadus' decided to "explore" the snake infested island, which is northeast of Beaver Island. Bill anchored the boat in "about three feet of water" and the couple waded to shore, leaving all their supplies on board the boat.

Upon their return, they realized the boat had not been properly anchored and that it had drifted away from shore. Bill waded out as far as he could and then tried to swim the remaining distance using a trash bag as a flotation device. However, the trash bag soon sprung a leak and "not being a very good long distance swimmer" Bill became exhausted and opted to turn around and go back to shore.

"I was really exhausted," Bill explained. "I questioned whether or not I could even make it back to shore.

"But somewhere I got a second wind."

The situation still looked bleak when Bill made it to shore.

"I knew we were in a lot of trouble. There's not much boat traffic around Hog Island. And everything was on the boat. And no one knew we were going to Hog Island. So, if someone did find the boat they would probably presume we had drowned."

The Fadus' spent most of the evening looking for a sandy site to set-up a makeshift camp.

"Boy, it got cold that night," Bill recalled. "I think the temperature was in the high 40's.

"And all my wife had on was a bikini and all I had was a pair of cut-offs and a shirt. And the mosquitoes were bad. I mean it was miserable. We covered our legs with sand to keep the mosquitoes away. We both had a sleepless night. We did a lot of praying."

The morning brought the Fadus' first flicker of hope. An Air Force bomber was passing over the island. But, evidently, the pilot did not see the couple or the SOS message scrawled in the sand.

It was later in the morning - when Bill had taken a walk to the other side of the island - that the Fadus' got a break.

"I could hear a boat out in the water. It must have been four to five miles out. I just kept watching and watching to see if it would come in to where I could try to signal."

The boat - operated by Ed Dalton of Charlevoix - got closer to the island. Close enough so he could spot Fadus.

"I had just told my grandson (Jim Hammond) that no one lived on the island," Dalton said afterwards. "Then he sees this guy waving to us from the island and he says 'I thought you said no one lived on the island'."

Dalton and eight others on board his 44 foot "Bellaire" were planning on doing some bass fishing near Hog Island. When they spotted Fadus, they took their smaller fishing boat and went into the shallows and picked up the couple and then promptly gave them some clothing and food.

Dalton radioed the Coast Guard. The Coast Guard in St. Ignace sent a boat to Hat Island - about 10 miles away - to pick-up the couple.

But then there was the problem of finding the Fadus' boat. After searching with no luck in the Waugoshance Point area the Coast Guard was about to give up when a commercial fisherman announced over the radio that he had found a boat drifting in the lake near White Shoal - over 20 miles from Hog Island. Fadus identified the boat and was taken to it.

"I've always read about these type of things, but I never could believe it would happen to me. I'm internally grateful to everyone for the help. They saved our lives. I feel indebted to these people."

Assistant principal named

The Charlevoix Board of Education Monday afternoon approved the hiring of David J. Smith as assistant high school principal. He will replace Roy M. Fortin who resigned to accept the principalship at Merrill.

Smith comes to Charlevoix from Ida, a consolidated school in southeastern Michigan with a high school enrollment of 680. While there he was head basketball coach as well as a teacher.

A 1965 graduate of the Charlevoix High School, he holds a Bachelor's degree in English and physical education from Central Michigan University, and a Master's degree in educational administration from the same university.

Girls finish second

Charlevoix finished second in the state in the girls youth softball state finals in Petoskey over the weekend.

Chelsea won the double elimination tournament by going unbeaten in the eight team field.

Chelsea beat Charlevoix 7-5 in the championship game after Charlevoix had fought back in the losers bracket.

In the championship game Sunday - Charlevoix's third game of the day - Chelsea jumped out to a 3-0 lead in the first inning and increased it to 7-1 after three frames. Charlevoix came up with two runs in the fifth inning and two in the seventh to close the gap.

Holly Taber, Rhonda Buchanan and Sue Smith pitched for Charlevoix. Taber led the hitting attack by collecting two hits. Kim Bolduc, Lori Hoflauer and Teresa Noirot had one hit apiece. Amy Uterbrink struck out 14 to record the win for Chelsea.

Charlevoix opened the tournament by whipping Saginaw Township 23-6. Buchanan received credit for the win. Mary Ellen Ciuk had three hits and Noirot added a home run to pace the attack.

Charlevoix then lost to Chelsea 11-1, in that contest, Charlevoix collected only one hit - that by Margo Smith.

Moving to the losers bracket, Charlevoix bounced back to eliminate Saginaw Township 11-1 as Taber got the win. Taber helped her own cause by getting three hits. Ciuk added a home run.

Next, Charlevoix beat North American Rental of Alpena 12-2. Again it was Taber picking up the win as Ciuk, Taber, Bridget Noirot, Bolduc and Smith had two hits. Hofbauer and Ciuk hit home runs.

To reach the finals Charlevoix ousted Midland 12-7. Buchanan was the winning pitcher.

Fire destroys Frank's

An explosion and fire last Wednesday morning completely destroyed the shop and greenhouse of Frank's Florist and Greenhouse on US-31 north of the Charlevoix City Limits.

Charlevoix Township firefighters fought the blaze for two and a half hours after receiving the alarm at shortly after eight o'clock.

According to Fire Chief Jim Keller, the fire was one of the worst in the Township in some time. The cause has not definitely been established, but it is believed there was a gas explosion in the boiler room furnace, or perhaps in the cooler compressor.

The business was started in 1963 by Frank Novotny and was bought in 1975 by Roger Peacock and Ron Taepke. They also have a shop in Petoskey.

Peacock told the Courier last week that they were waiting for a salvage company to take inventory before the amount of loss could be determined. "We are hoping it is covered by insurance," he said.

The question of rebuilding the structure is still being considered, according to Peacock. In the meantime, customers may be serviced by calling the Charlevoix number, 547-2232, or through the Petoskey shop located at the corner of Michigan and Howard Streets, phone 347-7770.

Rezoning recommended for apartment building

The Charlevoix Planning Commission will recommend to the Charlevoix City Council that 5.5 acres of land on Garfield Avenue between State and Grant streets be rezoned from R-2 (single family) to R-4 (multiple family).

The rezoning would allow for the construction of a 62 unit senior citizen-handicapped apartment building.

The commission unanimously approved rezoning of the property at its Monday meeting. The recommendation will be sent to council before its next meeting on Aug. 6.

According to Planning Commission member Barb Fels, the commission recommended the rezoning with the stipulation that if the senior citizen-handicapped apartment building is not constructed on the site that it revert back to H-2.

The Charlevoix Housing Commission recently learned that HUD had approved $3,045,263 for the project. The commission is trying to wrap up all preliminary work so ground can be broken for the development.

Gasohol available here

Gasohol will soon be available in northern Michigan.

On Wednesday, Aug. 1, the Ellsworth Farmers Exchange will become the first outlet north of Saginaw County to sell gasohol.

Gasohol is a mixture of 90 percent gas and 10 percent of alcohol.

Station Manager Harold Jansen has already received a 15,000 gallon supply of gasohol. Jansen said that for every 10 gallon purchase Wednesday he'll give one gallon away free of charge.

"There has been quite a lot of interest in gasohol throughout the country," Jansen said. "Those who have used it seem to be real enthused with it. I think considering our oil situation this is a step in the right direction towards conserving our fuel."

According to a spokeman for Farmers Petroleum, the company supplying the fuel, adding alcohol to gasoline raises the octane which in turn enables the engine to run smoother and with less "knock." It also reduces engine dirt and deposits and produces fewer exhaust emissions.

However, since gasohol cleans deposits from the engine, as well as storage tanks, it's possible that the fuel filter could get plugged from particles suspended in the fuel.

Gasohol will cost more than regular unleaded gasoline because it costs more to produce the added ethanol. Ethanol is a denatured alcohol distilled from a wide variety of agricultural products like corn, wheat and potatoes.

Farmers Petroleum is making no mileage claims for cars using gasohol.

Rep. Ralph Ostling is expected to be at the Ellsworth Farmers Exchange Wednesday. The station is open from 8 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. Monday-Friday and 8 a.m. until noon on Saturday.

On your mark, get set...

Registrations are still being accepted for the second annual Venetian Festival Foot Race to be run on three courses of varying lengths Saturday.

All three distances - 1 mile, 3.1 miles and 6.2 miles - will have divisions of various age groups. The entry fee is $3 and entry blanks can be picked up at the Balinhof Shop, LeCycliste and the Charlevoix and Petoskey Chamber of Commerce.

Runners can also help out the Northern Michigan March of Dimes while they compete. Runners will be asked to raise money - in the form of pledges - for each mile they complete. The money from the races will be used to continue the chapter's activities in the community.

Prizes will be awarded to the runners with the most sponsors and most pledges. Also, prizes will be awarded to runners who have pledges for $30 or more.

Also on Saturday, all Charlevoix Girl Scouts and Brownies who would like to be in the Venetian Festival Parade are to meet at 11 a.m. at Charlevoix High School by the Girl Scout float.

Parents are to pick-up their girls in East Park by the Beaver Islander Boat Company immediately following the parade.

Region awarded grant for 10 county jail study

The Northwest Michigan Regional Planning and Development Commission has just received from the Michigan Office of Criminal Justice an award covering 90 percent of the cost of a $56,000 study of county jail facilities in the 10 county Northwest Michigan Region. A recent federal court decision, the impleunenting revision of the Michigan Rules for Jails and Lockups, and the citing of shortcomings of county jails by the Michigan Department of Corrections made such a study necessary.

The commission immediately invited consultant firms interested in performing the study to submit their proposals, establishing a deadline of August 15.

A Jail Study Steering Comunittee, composed of one county commissioner from each county in the region, urged submittal of the grant and will select the consultant and supervise the study. Sam Eberly, chairman of the Benzie County Board of Commissioner's was elected to head the Steering Committee. The other members of the committee are Everett Ash, Antrim; Don Bosscher, Missaukee; Ira Davis, Charlevoix; Ivan Egeler, Leelanau; LeRoy Gregory, Emmet; Harry Hall, Kalkaska; Roy Howes, Manistee; Bud Largent, Grand Traverse; and Lorenzo Wolgast, Wexford.

According to Robert C. Morris, the planning commission's executive director, "It is the commission's intention and expectation that this study will give each of our counties the information it needs to decide the most economical and advantageous way to bring its jail facilities into full compbance with all applicable rules".

The commission is the region's official comprehensive planning agency, created 10 years ago as a joint effort of the 10 counties of Antrim, Benzie, Charlevoix, Emmet, Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Leelanau, Manistee, Missaukee, and Wexford. Chaired by Roy Howes, county commissioner of Manistee, it is composed of representatives from the 10 county governing bodies, the ten county planning commissions, and the urban areas of the Region.

Dr. Carey

Dr. Mitchell Carey joins staff at Charlevoix Area Hospital

Dr. Mitchell J. Carey of the East Jordan Family Health Center has joined the medical staff of the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Dr. Carey, a specialist in Family Practice, opened his offices at the East Jordan Family Health Center July 1st.

As a member of the medical staff of the Charlevoix Area Hospital he will be able to admit and treat patients requiring hospitalization, perform emergency room surgery, practice pediatrics and deliver babies at the hospital, and will have virtually the same staff privileges as any member of the staff. He will also cover the hospital emergency room on a rotating basis with other staff members.

Dr. Carey, a native of Grand Rapids, received his B.S. in pre-med from Grand Valley State College and his medical degree from Wayne State University in 1976.

A member of the American Academy of Family Practice, Dr. Carey took his residency at Saginaw Cooperative Hospitals from 1976 to 1978, and was a staff member of Saginaw General Hospital and St. Mary's Hospital in Saginaw.

Dr. Carey has signed a three-year contract with the East Jordan Family Health Center, but already says he likes East Jordan and plans to stay on.

He moved to the area with his wife Nancy and 10 year old son Michael.

The Carey's chose this area because they like northern Michigan and because Dr. Carey felt it was a good place to practice Family Medicine.

"In Family Medicine we get a lot closer to our patients," Dr. Carey said. "We try to be aware of the psychology and sociology of our patients. We have better follow-up and we can spot things in the whole family.

"I think it is a more humane way to practice medicine," Dr. Carey stated.

Bellamy Brothers in concert Friday at Charlevoix High School

Bellamy Brothers

If you attended the Loggins and Messina concert a couple years back at Castle Farms you might recall the Bellamy Brothers. They opened the show that day.

Now they're back. And this time they're getting top billing. And deservedly so. After first hitting the charts with "Let Your Love Flow," the Bellamy Brothers have hit success again with the single "If I Said You Had A Beautiful Body Would You Hold It Against Me" from their latest Warner/Curb album The Two And Only, the brothers have debvered the sort of country/pop magic that spells a bright and successful career. If recognition was long in coming, it's nonetheless proof that you can't keep two good musicians down.

The Bellamy Bros.' first Warner-Curb album The Bellamy Brothers was released in the spring of '76, on the heels of their chart-topping single, "Let Your Love Flow." Also featuring as the Brothers' previous regional hit "Nothin' Heavy," the album was representative of all the work, inspiration and energy that have gone into a decade of Bellamy Bros. music-making.

While their first album had been tailored to fit the style of their Number One hit, the Bellamy's second effort, Plain and Fancy, had the momentum of a year's worth of roadwork going for it. The Bros. were well in sync with their fine touring band by this time, and so the accent on the album was more on harder-edged group workouts.

Beautiful Friends, their third album struck an elusive medium between the group's increasing studio expertise and their hard-won road chops. Produced by Michael Lloyd, known for his work with Lou Rawls and Shaun Cassidy, Beautiful Friends contained tunes like "Slippin' Away" and "Let's Give Love A Go."

The Two And Only, the latest Bellamy Brothers album for Warner/Curb is once again produced by Michael Lloyd. Featuring eight new Bellamy originals, the album marks a high point in the duo's ever-upward career, brings the full range of their country writing and performing skills into play. Aside from "If I Said You Had A Beautiful Body Would You Hold It Against Me," The Two And Only features such Bellamy originals as "Miss Misunderstood," "Ole Faithful," "Why Did We Die So Young" and the provocative "Wet T-Shirt."

With an ever full schedule of personal appearances both here and abroad, a smash new single and a sparkling new album, the future looks bright indeed for Howard and David Bellamy.

Wes McCoy and North Country will open the concert Friday, Patty Muma's Showease Productions is handling the concert.

Sheriff George Lasater inspects sign

Nuke signs taken down

By Sara Gay Dammann

For a short time Thursday Morning people arriving in Charlevoix from north and south on US Highway 31 were greeted with signs welcoming them to the "home of the most dangerous nuke in the United States."

The homemade signs, protesting Consumers Power Company's Big Rock Point Nuclear Power Plant were removed early the same morning by sheriff's deputies acting on a citizen's complaint.

Sheriff George Lasater conceded that he was not sure what laws, if any had been broken, and planned no further investigation.

The signs carried the initials J.A.M.S. but neither the sheriff nor any local anti-nuclear power organizations seemed to know what they meant. A survey of known anti-nuclear power groups and individuals in Charlevoix and Emmet counties produced no clues as to who erected the signs.

A third sign found near Elzinga Park on Lake Michigan, facing Big Rock, bore the message "Danger" in big red letters, followed by "Radioactivity – this area contaminated by the Big Rock Nuclear Plant." At the bottom left of the sign was a Civil Defense emblem followed by "Experiment brought from your friends at" followed by a Consumers Power Company emblem.

That sign was taken down and turned over to the sheriff by Consumers Power employees.

Recital scheduled for July 30

Summer Song Recital is being planned for Monday, July 30 at 8 p.m. in the Fellowship Hall of the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix.

The program will be sung by Fran Tollas of Charlevoix & Paul Huybrechts of Petoskey. They will be accompanied by Bill Klimas & Prof. August Huybrechts. The recital has been planned so that it is easy to listen to and will include some familiar music that can be enjoyed by the entire family.

Opinion

Your Opinion

Why do so many people come here in the summer?

"Why do so many people come to Charlevoix in the summertime?"

Ten-year-old Allison Clock asked her father that two weeks ago. Bob Clock responded by writing a column trying to answer his daughter's question.

Well, last week the Courier received a letter from a reader who thought she might be able to answer Allison's question.

Dear Allison,

I am writing to you because I was intrigued by your question to your father last week. The question was, "Why do so many people come to Charlevoix in the summertime?"

I'm going to try to answer your question. My family and I come to Charlevoix in the summer because we love the water, the beaches, the clean air, the lovely scenery, and the friendly people. Charlevoix is our "oasis" in the desert of everyday living with all its problems and necessary "sameness." We look to our vacation in Charlevoix much as you probably look forward to Christmas each year. It is a very special time for us - something we plan and save for for many months.

You are a very fortunate young lady, Allison, to be able to live in Charlevoix all year 'round. To me, it would be like having Christmas all year long.

So, Allison, maybe you will look a little differently at your beautiful town from now on. When you look out over your lovely lakes and watch the waves rolling into your beaches, remember that the only water some people see is in a neighborhood swimming pool - the only waves, the waving fields of grain. When you walk down your lonely streets, think about the summer visitors who have only hot, smog-filled air to breathe and sterile, ugly buildings lining their streets instead of beautiful trees like Charlevoix.

Many of us would love to live in Charlevoix all year as you do, but we must settle for only a glorious, if short, vacation. Even so, we can look at a place like Charlevoix and see once again the beauty of God's touch on the land.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Barbara A. McKee

Thanks for the help

Editor:

While traveling from our home to visit our daughter and son-in-law in Crystal, we stopped in a roadside park eight miles north of Houghton Lake on June 8th. Our car would not start again, and two beautiful people from your city came over to try to help. They had their dog with them, but unfortunately, we did not get their names. They, and about ten other people, tried to help us for over an hour with no success, but they were the first ones there. Most of the others had left after an hour or so, and we told them they should too. They started, but stopped again, with this nice lady saying they shouldn't leave us. We told them we had called the State Police emergency number, and to please go, they had already been inconvenienced enough. I hope they read this, I want to tell them the starter was defective, we got to our daughter's six hours late, but we did get there. Thank you so very, very much, wish the world had more like you. We will try to pay you back by helping the next people we see in trouble. Thanks again from all our hearts, you don't know that what your compassion meant to us.

Capitalistic monkey wrenchers

The National Tax limitation Committee, a non-profit organization, organized by the influentual. The would be savlors of money powered economy by free enterprise for pcofit and ownership. They claim that Government spending is the cause of inflation and we should assume that their manipulative use of money to generate more profits would solve the countries economic needs. They would first reduce the power of Government to cope with economic problems by tax limitations. They ignore the lact that Government is involved in subsidizing the economy because the the failure by the capitalistic system to fulfill the needs of a majority of the people and that credit values are supported by Government power of taxation and that a double credit supports capital in the Federal Reserve System by public debt in tax exempt bonds and loan guarantees. They have their own brand of ethics for themselves when there is no classification of free-enterprise which includes all kinds of organized speculation on land and many other non-creative manipulated investments for profit, high interest rates and gambling are made for individual independence by investment to accumulate more money which is not creative but rather an adulterative use of values. This robs the working consumers and people on fixed incomes of income value by devaluation of money. Balancing the National Budget is meaningless without a stabilized exchange value. The Government subsidized economy as a tool for creative needs lacks monetary control of values and classified taxation on speculation and excessive income profiteering could balance earned income values. How can the cause of freedom and independence based on self styled ownership and accumulation of money in a free for all uncontrolled conflict by a dictum of capitalistic greed be justified in the face of human rights and needs? When it creates an artificial shortage by several levels of exchange and a market to prnfit on monetary debts.

Campers no longer rough it

There was a time when summer camp was a rustic, frontier-type experience for the youth of America.

A week or twu away from the parental eye was eagerly awaited by most youngsters because it gave them a ehance to rough it with their peers far from such civilized amenities as hot showers.

When I was a kid, I spent a session or two at Camp Jeffrey on Thumb Lake in eastern Charlevoix County. The camp was owned and operated by Scovel Memorial Presbyterian Church in Detroit. It consisted of three log bunkhouses and a large log dining room, all situated in a semi-circle on the shore of the lake.

Sanitary facilities consisted of outdoor johns somewhere on the premises, also presumably of log construction. I don't really remember.

But I do remember that high on a hill behind the camp stood a log church with a dirt floor where campers were supposed to go once a day to give thanks for the fact Camp Jeffrey didn't have any showers. At Camp Jeffrey, spiritual eleanliness was more important than clean feet.

Actually, hot showers would have been superfluous, since most of us didn't have such niceties at home in the city. Bathtubs, perhaps. But never showers.

Furthermore, showers were unnecessary. All of beautiful, crystal clear Thumb Lake lay at our doorstep and anyone who felt an urge to bathe could easily trot down to the shore with a cake of soap and a wash rag.

I don't recall that any of us actually did this, since it carried with it the risk of ostracism by our campmates.

A generation ago, the fetish of daily bathing hadn't taken root in America, particularly among boys aged 10 to 15. And it certainly had no place at a wilderness camp in Northern Michigan where water was still pumped by hand and the cooks started breakfast by the light of kerosene lamps because there was no electricity.

But you'll be happy to hear all that has changed.

Jennifer and Allison returned fcom the 4-H camp near Oqueoc last Thursday night as fresh as if they had just stepped out of a bond box. Their bus arrived at the 4-H building at the Emmet County fairgrounds and they were full of camp talk as we loaded the station wagon for the last leg of the trip to Charlevoix.

"Well," Jennifer said as I pulled the car onto U.S. 31, "I had eight showers while I was at camp. Or maybe nine. It was either eight or nine. I can't remember."

"You can't remember because your brain is wet," I told her. "How in the world did you manage to take eight or nine showers? You were only gone four days and the fourth one isn't over yet. Why did you take so many showers?"

"To get the clown makeup out of my hair," Jennifer explained.

"The what?"

"The clown makeup," she repeated. "Allison and I both studied how to make ourselves up as clowns and the only way I could get the makeup out of my hair was to take showers."

"Why didn't you wash it off when you went swimming?" I asked. "You could have taken a cake of soap and washed your hair in the lake."

"They wouldn't let us go swimming because they've got swimmers itch," Jennifer explained. "So we just took showers instead."

It wasn't until we got home that I discovered that Jennifer saw something besides the inside of a shower stall during her four days at Oqueoc. She undid her duffle bag and produced a cigar box, inside of which were neat rows of insects all impaled on straight pins. One of them – a grasshopper – was still making slow movements with his hind legs.

"Didn't you chloroform them before you mounted them?" I asked.

"Yes," Jennifer answered, "But it didn't work on him."

"How long has he been like this?" I asked.

"This is the second day," Jennifer answered. "How long do you think he will live."

"At this point, I'd say he's immortal," I said. "Why didn't you drown him in the shower?"

Smarty-pants fathers don't deserve answers to such questions and I didn't get one. Instead Jennifer accompanied her mother out to the back porch when they sprayed the entire collection with Bug-Ded.

It's nice to know some things about summer camp never change.

Recessions aren't all bad

The recession warning bell is being sounded with increasing frequency these days. What it portends is an eeonomic slowdown the exact dimensions of which are as yet undefined.

An oncoming recession is not good news to investors or anyone else. Most Americans, beginning inherently bullish, expect everything to be bigger and better all of the time. Typical recessions – if there is such a thing – usually mean declining employment and lower personal income, curtailed business activity, reduced corporate profits and threatened divided payouts. Add to this the twin devils of a fast-paced inflation and a surprising energy shortfall and you have the makings of some traumatic economic headaches.

But as evil as this budding recession might sound, the dark clouds just might be concealing a ray of sunshine or two. For openers, recession don't mean the end of the world. We've had them before in all dimensions and durations, and we've survived them. Some good things can happen in a recession, too. First, the economic slowdowns that characterize all recessions cool off the fires of inflation.

Among other things, demand for consumer goods dries up so prices not only don't get marked up, they often get marked down. Rebates, clearance sales and special deals become the order of the day. Unemployment rolls also grow during a recession. That obviously isn't good news, but wage and salary increases are more restrained as a result and that lessens another inflationary pressure (costs). Recessions produce cheaper money, too. Interest rate declines are a by-product of slower business conditions.

How about investors? Does anything good happen to them during a recession?

Well, there's some gloom, of course, but more rays of sunshine than you might expect. For example, investors who own fixed income portfolios can expect to see investment price appreciation as their high-yielding bonds go up to reflect the lower interest rate market. Investors who favor common stocks don't fare all that badly either. Many stock prices decline during recessions, mirroring the near-term prospects for lower earnings and dividend payments.

But such declines are often surprisingly brief and alert investors go bargain hunting during such periods. They shop for stocks of quality companies selling at historically low prices, and they find them.

So, recessions are serious business and should not be regarded lightly by anyone. Keep a cool head. The downward ride in the economy is not as perilous as it might sound. The steady investor keeps his eye on the horizon, avoids emotionol binges, takes advantage of the opportunities, and always remembers that in a free economy recessions, like periods of expansion, carry the seed of their own correction. It's called the business cycle.

Chappaquiddick will never go away

WASHINGTON — The relentless polls bring the bitter and the sweet to Sen. Edward Kennedy. Now comes McCall's magazine with one (done by Dr. Gallup) showing that nearly half the adults in the republic still look poorly on Kennedy's behavior at Chappaquiddick, but would vote for him anyway if he's nominated in 1980.

So his old sin is not forgotten but, after 10 years, is pretty much forgiven. Thus the public attitude toward Kennedy is close to what any of us would feel about a person we knew in the same circumstances. We tend to forgive, but remember when prompted.

Still, as the editors point out in this August issue of McCall's, more than half of those objecting to Kennedy's conduct at Chappaquiddick see a serious flaw in his character. This view could be a latent virus which could flare up and attack Kennedy in the heat of a presidential campaign.

There are always arguments in this town over whether Chappaquiddick would be an authentic issue in a Kennedy presidential race. Those who don't want Kennedy to become President naturally insist that once that tragic episode is fully revived, Kennedy could never stand the heat, indeed, would perish in the political flames.

His defenders argue that Kennedy has already been through the whole Chappaquiddick test, that he has been re-elected twice since that fateful year, 1969, and remained so high in polls of Democrats and the general public that the issue is clearly behind him.

I lean toward a middle position in this argument. I believe that as long as Kennedy handles himself well in day-to-day political combat, whether in the Senate or as a candidate, people won't think Chappaquiddick.

But if Kennedy gets rattled, becomes snappish or displays erratic or markedly indecisive behavior, Chappaquiddick will break through and stand as a formidable and nagging issue. Kennedy's stability as well as his character will be seriously questioned.

After all, the elements of that tragedy are potent indeed. As Kennedy's biographer and friend James MacGregor Burns has written, Chappaquiddick "has been a story of profound dimensions that combined all the ingredients of high drama – a glamorous married man, a single woman, death at night on a lonely road – rumors of scandal."

As Burns also points out, the possibility of "coverup," intrigue and the unsolved mystery always make Chappaquiddick a constant lure to the press.

Though Chappaquiddick was never investigated with the intensity or scope that Watergate was, it has hardly been ignored by the press. Countless newspapers and the wire services spent many months probing through records, recollections and the topography of Martha's Vineyard. There have been a number of first-rate magazine articles. A half-dozen books focusing on Chappaquiddick were published. The better ones, I believe, are Jack Olsen's "Bridge at Chappaquiddick"; Robert Sherrill's "The Last Kennedy" (quite critical), and the transcript of the inquest on Mary Jo Kopechne, edited by Henry Zeiter.

With the question of a Kennedy candidacy in 1980 swelling, and also becoming imprinted on the national psyche, political reporters and writers will dip into all the published material, like squirrels putting nuts away for winter.

Sen. Kennedy has, on several occasions, submitted himself to long, searching interviews about Chappaquiddick. However much he held back when that damnable event occurred, he has stuck his neck out in those subsequent interviews.

This is one tragedy which will not go away. Already, even before the McCall's article is on the stands, we columnists write, reporters pursue the senator's press secretary, and broadcasting newsmen and talk-show hosts revive the old questions.

Burns' book, "Edward Kenney and the Camelot Legacy," has a reasoned and uncompromising section on Chappaquiddick. Burns concludes that: "In behaving differently from the way his brothers would have done, he had betrayed the Camelot legacy of honor. And for him and for the country, the tragedy of Chappaquiddick would never end."

Charlevoix: 100 years ago

When members of the Charlevoix Village Council met 100 years ago, on July 26, 1879, they elected the Village's second clerk.

George W. Crouter was elected to full the vacancy left by the resignation of W. J. Stockman, who had served for two months.

It was definitely stipulated that Crouter was to serve without salary.

Nancy Porter of Charlevoix was re-elected first vice president of the Crooked Tree Arts Council at the Council's eighth annual meeting, held recently at Birchwood Farm Country Club.

Suzi Reis of Charlevoix, immediate past president of the group, was elected secretary, Jack Perry of Petoskey was elected president, Lynn Herman of Petoskey was elected second vice president, and Carolyn Rader, also of Petoskey, was elected treasurer.

Edith Gilbert of Charlevoix was named an advisor to the Council, as were Louise Herlocher, Sally Clark, Marilyn Hume, and Joe Zendell, all of Petoskey.

Local people serving on the Board of Directors are Mrs. Porter, Mrs. Reis, Mrs. Gilbert, Irene Richardson, and Fran Tollas.

Mrs. Gilbert was in charge of dinner arrangements for the meeting. The main topic of business was a discussion concerning the possibility of the Crooked Tree Arts Council buying the building of the United Methodist Church in Petoskey for use as a theater, art gallery, classrooms, and offices for the organization. It now has space in a building at North Central Michigan College.

Inflation is making housing purchases more attractive, realtor says

Current projections of double-digit inflation for 1979 are stirring increased interest in home ownership as consumers attempt to stretch earnings and find safe investments, according to Eugene S. Steele, President of Charlevoix Properties, Inc.

Consumers, particularly the young first-time buyers, are coming to view real estate as their most practical hedge against inflation as well as an important tax shelter, Steele explained.

"The latest projections show inflation surpassing the 10 percent rate this year. As a result, the investment opportunities open to most people simply do not yield sufficiently high interest to keep pace with inflation," Steele said.

"Home ownership is an exception. In fact, a survey recently completed by RELO/Inter-City Relocation Service shows single family homes rising in value at an annual rate 12 to 15 percent in most areas of the nation."

"In addition to the investment aspect, people want immediate benefits. They see their home as a tax shelter because they can deduct from federal income taxes their home mortgage interest payments and real estate taxes and receive a tax credit for the cost of certain home improvements designed to cut energy consumption," Steele said.

"This shelter is of particular importance at a time when incomes are rising to keep pace with inflation, but are also pushing people into higher tax brackets. The combination of increased taxes and inflated living costs can wipe out the benefits of a raise.

"There has also been a dramatic increase in the number of working wives as families attempt to stay one jump ahead of rising living costs. Without a tax shelter, much of their additional income can be lost to taxes."

The result, according to Steele, has been an increased interest in home ownership by younger people as well as a growing number of single buyers.

RELO statistics show 61 percent of the buyers across the nation are between the ages of 25 and 36 while 15 percent of the market is composed of single adults, according to Steele.

"The influence of inflation is not only encouraging first-time home buyers, but is causing others to consider a more expensive home and long-time owners to borrow against their equity," said Steele.

"And we are seeing increased interest in investment property as people buy homes, apartments and condominiums as rental units. They not only deduct interest and property taxes, but maintenance and other expenses from the federal income taxes.

"Thus, the outlook for real estate remains bullish for the balance of this year despite inflation," Steele said.

Health Center meet Aug. 1

The annual meeting of the East Jurdan Family Health Center will be held at the East Jordan Elementary School cafeteria at 7 p.m. on August 1, 1979. The purpose of the meeting is to elect board members and receive the annual report. Memberships may be obtained at the meeting. The public is encouraged to attend.

GEM WISE
JEWELRY FASHIONS FACTS FICTION
JEWELRY LORE
John Reusch

Welcome to GEM WISE. Over the years it has been possible for me to learn many interesting things about precious gems and fine jewelry both from an historical and a technical or gemological standpoint. There are also certain points that are helpful to anyone buying fine merchandise- basic guides to intelligent selection as well as information on the wear and care of gems. In this column I will try to bring you something each month about our wonderful world of gems.

For example, did you know that ruby and sapphire are both the same gem mineral called corundum? Only when the sapphire attains a certain shade of red can it be called a ruby, otherwise it is pink sapphire. Other "sister" gems are emerald and aquamarine both members of the beryl family. A light emerald is aquamarine. Again, color is the only difference.

If you are interested in history, the story of Anges Sorel and Charles VII of France is a charming tale. She was the first woman to use diamonds as a means of attracting the king's attention. She also started the feminine vogue of wearing diamonds. Previously they were worn only by men.

In buying fine jewelry, one of the most important things to know is your jeweler. His knowledge and business ethics should be above reproach. Through GEM WISE I hope you will come to know me and our firm a little better.

Glider rides offered

"I've always been interested in flying, but soaring is the ultimate."

Skip Heimbecker of Charlevoix has been "soaring" for 10 years. He's a member of the Northwest Soaring Club, one of the few glider clubs in the state.

The Frankfort based club owns two two-seat gliders. And one of the gliders will be in Charlevoix this weekend for the Venetian Festival.

Heimbecker said there are, primarily, two reasons for bringing the glider to Charlevoix.

First, there was - at one time - a glider club in Charlevoix. "I know there is still interest in gliding here in town," Heimbecker said, "and we hope to rekindle that interest and possibly get those who are interested into our club."

The second reason is to, simply introduce non-flyers to the sport.

"The whole purpose, of course, is to have people come out and see the glider and, hopefully, take a ride."

Rides will be given Friday afternoon and evening and all day Saturday and Sunday.

The cost of the first ride is $20. That includes $12 for a day membership into the club, $7 for having the glider towed to 2,000 feet and $1 for rental un the glider. Any subsequent ride - for that same person that day - will cost $8.

Heimbecker said the rides will last about 20 minutes. The glider will be towed by a 150 horsepower Citahira. At 2,000 feet the tow rupe will be released and the glider will be on its own riding the wind current as it circles the Charlevoix area.

The glider, incidentally, is an ASK 13. It was hand built in Germnay and weighs about 640 pounds. It has a steel tube fuselage and wooden wings.

THE TOWNSHIP OF MARION ORDAINS:

Section 1. Subject to all the terms and conditions mentioned in this ordinance, consent is hereby given to Michigan Consolidated Gas Company, a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Michigan, and to its successors and assigns, to lay, maintain, operate and use gas pipes, mains, conductors, service pipes and other necessary equipment in the highways, streets, alleys and other public places in the Township of Marion, Charlevoix County, Michigan, and a franchise is hereby granted to Michigan Consolidated Gas Company, its successors and assigns, to transact a local busines in said Township of Marion, for the purpose of conveying gas into and through, and supplying and selling gas in said Township and all other matters incidental thereto.

Section 2. This franchise is conditioned on the commencement, on or before October 1, 1979, of construction by Michigan Consolidated Gas Company of a gas main within the boundaries of the Township of Marion as shown on a map filed with the Township Clerk. If such construction does not commence on or before such date, this franchise shall terminate as more specifically provided in Section 8 hereof. Upon commencement of the installation of a gas main within the time specified, the Company shall proceed to complete the same as soon thereafter as reasonably practicable; provided, however, that the Company shall not be held responsible for delays due to weather or labor conditions, inability to procure necessary materials, or other causes beyond its control; and provided further, that such initial installation and all extensions shall be subject to the Main Extension provisions contained in the Company's Rules and Regulations for Gas Service as approved by the Michigan Public Service Commission.

Section 3. Michigan Consolidated Gas Company, its successors and assigns, shall not unnecessarily obstruct the passage of any of the highways, streets, alleys or other public places within said Township and shall within a reasonable time after making an opening or excavation, repair the same and leave it in as good condition as before the opening or excavation was made. The Company, its successors and assigns, shall use due care in exercising the privileges herein contained and shall be liable to said Township for all damages and costs which may be recovered against said Township arising from the default, carelessness or negligence of the Company or its officers, agents and servants.

No road, street, alley or highway shall be opened for the laying of trunk lines or lateral mains except upon application to the Highway Commissioner or the Township Board, or other authority having jurisdiction in the premises, stating the nature of the proposed work and the route. Upon receipt of such application, it shall be the duty of the Highway Commissioner or the Township Board, or such other authority as may have jurisdiction, to issue a permit to the Company to do the work proposed.

Section 4. The Company is now under the jurisdiction of the Michigan Public Service Commission to the extent provided by statute, and the rates to be charged for gas, and the standards and conditions of service and operation hereunder, shall be the same as now set forth in the Company's Schedule of Rules, Regulations and and Rates as applicable in the City of Charlevoix, or that shall hereafter be validly prescribed for the Township nf Marion under the orders, rules and regulations of the Michigan Public Service Commission or other authority having jurisdiction in the premises.

Section 5. The words "Michigan Consolidated Gas Company" and "the Company," wherever used herein, are intended and shall be held and construed to mean and include both Michigan Consolidated Gas Company and its successors and assigns, whether so expressed or not.

Section 6. This ordinance shall take effect immediately after the date of publication thereof, which shall be within thirty (30) days after the date of its adoption, and shall continue in effect for a period of thirty (30) years thereafter, subject to revocation at the will of the Township at any time during said thirty (30) year period and subject to the condition that if the Company shall fail to commence the installation of a gas main in the Township within the time provided in Section 2 hereof, then this ordinance and the franchise hereby granted shall, without further action on the part of the Township, become null and void and of no further force or effect; provided, however, that when this ordinance shall become effective the Township Clerk shall deliver to the Company a certified copy of the ordinance accompanied by written evidence of publication and recording thereof as required by law and that Michigan Consolidated Gas Company shall, within sixty (60) days after the date of the adoption of this ordinance, file with the Township Clerk its written acceptance of the conditions and provisions hereof, and further provided, that if the Company shall for any reason cease to supply gas in the City of Charlevoix, it shall be under no obligation to thereafter supply gas in the Township of Marion.

I, Tracy Curtis, Clerk of Marion Township, hereby certify that this Ordinance, was adopted by the Marion Township Board at a Regular Meeting held July 17, 1979

After 19 years as city treasurer, Annabelle Cunningham retires

Annabelle Cunningham recently retired as treasurer of the City of Charlevoix. This week the Courier talks with her about her business career, and about herself.

COURIER: How long were you city treasurer?

CUNNINGHAM: For 19 years. I was elected every year from 1960 to 1978. The only time I had competition was the first year. I never had to eampaign. I was backed by the Republican Party in the beginning, and that was that. I guess I was just lucky.

COURIER: Why did you leave the treasurer's job?

CUNNINGHAM: I had to resign beeause under the new City Charter it's an appointed treasurer-comptroller job.

COURIER: What did you do before you were city treasurer?

CUNNINGHAM: I worked for Lillis Flanders in the county treasurer's office for 26 years.

COURIER: You must have seen a lot of changes in record-keeping equipment and methods during the years.

CUNNINGHAM: Yes, we used to do most of it by hand. I remember that we had to copy property descriptions by hand when people came in to pay their taxes. Before we got an Addressograph we typed all return rolls for taxes. That was a big job. And when we got a Frieden calculator, that was something. Not everyone liked machines, though. There was one East Jordan assessor who wouldn't put names on plates. He copied them all by hand.

COURIER: Do you remember anything special about collecting taxes?

CUNNINGHAM: I remember the 10 year moratorium after the depression. People were allowed to pay 10 percent of their taxes a year over a 10 year period. This saved the homes of muny people.

COURIER: Where were your offices when you worked for the county?

CUNNINGHAM: I started in the old courthouse. They built the new one while I was working there. The basement of the old building was really something. It's a wonder it didn't burn down.

COURIER: You've spent most of your life working with figures.

CUNNINGHAM: Yes, and I've enjoyed it. I especially enjoyed working at City Hall.

Meet Charlevoix

Annabelle Cunningham

COURIER: Where did you go to school?

CUNNINGHAM: To the Nowland School, which was over near Nowland Lake. It was a one-room school and there were about 25 students in all eight grades. I feel I got a good education there beeause the teachers seemed to have time to help us. Then I went to Charlevoix High School and graduated with the class of 1951. There were 58 or 60 students in our class. Many of them are still around town.

COURIER: Where was the Cunningham family farm?

CUNNINGHAM: I grew up on the east side of Marion Township, about a mile and a half east of Ironton on what is now Ferry Road.

COURIER: Then you're well acquainted with the ferry.

CUNNINGHAM: Yes, I remember when it was free.

COURIER: How many were in your family?

CUNNINGHAM: There were nine children. Two of my brothers and a sister are gone now, but the rest of us still live right around here – "Hap" and Clyde and Ray and sisters Luella Bartlett in Ironton and Edna Nielsen in East Jordan.

COURIER: Where did your Cunningham ancestors come from?

CUNNINGHAM: Unfortunately, we don't know too much about them, but great grandfather Cunningham came from Canada, and our grandfather on our mother's side came from Scotland. Cunningham Lake south of town is named for our grandfather.

COURIER: What do you remember about your days on the farm

CUNNINGHAM: I remember that we all worked hard, but our parents worked hardest. I remember harvesting sugar beets. We pulled them out of the ground by hand, put them in piles, then took the tops off.

COURIER: There used to be a sugar beet factory in town, didn't there?

CUNNINGHAM: Yes, we had an uncle who worked there. He moved with them to Holland, then to Findlay, Ohio.

COURIER: Did you get to Charlevoix often

CUNNINGHAM: We used to come to town once a week by horse and buggy. My mother brought in butter which she sold to regular customers. I remember her going to the grocery store and giving her long order for groceries to the store keeper. She never had a shopping list but never seemed to forget anything.

COURIER: Do the Cunninghams have family reunions?

CUNNINGHAM: Yes, but not on a regular basis. We get together for special occasions, like when some out-of-town cousins stopped by and when our 86-year-old uncle called to tell us he had just been married.

COURIER: What do you do now that you're retired?

CUNNINGHAM: Well, I went to Florida for a month right after I left City Hall. Now I'm keeping busy sewing and cooking and knitting and being treasurer of the Church of God. I'm not an outdoors person.

COURIER: Do you have any travel plans for the near future?

CUNNINGHAM: No. My niece and nephew think I should spend the winters in Florida, but I know I won't do that every year. There's no place like just being home. I like to watch travelogues but traveling is not a priority in my life. At home here I'm near everything. In the winter sometimes I don't drive my car for days.

Township wants to hire consultant firm

Norwood Township has applied for assistance to hire a private consultant firm to work with the township in preparing a site analysis and feasibility study of the township park.

This is just one of several project proposals that has been submitted to the Michigan Coastal Zone Grant Program by local units of government in the northwest region.

Other project proposals include:

- The Beaver Head Lighthouse Project on Beaver Island is applying for assistance to continue restoration of the lighthouse.
- The City of East Jordan is applying for assistance, to improve its waterfront on the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix.
- The Village of Elk Rapids is hoping to obtain money for preliminary engineering designs for the proposed expansion of its public marina.
- The City of Petoskey has submitted two projects, one is construction of stairwells and landscaping of specific areas on the waterfront, the other is an application for financial assistance in developing a long range waterfront plan for the city's waterfront.
- Emmet County has applied for funding assistance to prepare an engineering feasibility study for a bicycle path around Little Traverse Bay.

According to the Northwest Michigan Regional Planning and Development Commission, local units of government should know by October if they will get assistance.

Four directors elected to hospital board

Four directors were elected to the Charlevoix Area Hospital Board of Directors and numerous reports given at the annual meeting of the hospital association held Tuesday at the Community Room of the City Hall.

At the election which concluded the meeting Roy Bruneel of Boyne City, Max Novak and Thomas Carey of Charlevoix, veteran members of the board, were re-elected to succeed themselves for terms of three years and Mrs. Donald Trimper was named to fill an un-expired term left vacant by the resignation of Elbert Kaiser who will be leaving the community after being promoted by Medusa Cement Co.

In other business, Richard Krueger spoke on the condition of the hospital and its operation and then discussed briefly the proposed renovation and expansion plan now underway.

It will be remembered that a fund campaign to raise $750,000 to help underwrite the proposed program was held last summer. Krueger brought the results of the campaign up to date stating that the fund campaign had gone over the top with a total of $813,250 being pledged to date and $320,230 contributed toward the pledges at this time leaving another $493,112 to be paid. He said the pledges were coming in well and that more and more funds were being received from persons who had not pledged earlier.

He went on to explain that the problem at the moment is to obtain additional funds through grants or loan to complete payment for the proposed project.

He went on to say that the hospital board has applied to the Farmer's Home Administration for a loan at a low interest rate and that the board was waiting on that. Meanwhile, applications sent to the State Health Department weeks ago are not receiving attention and many things depend on them.

Krueger said the board had hoped to accept bids by August 1 but the many stumbling blocks created by various state agencies are making it difficult to make any firm plans for the project. If the loan can be approved by early October and other agency approvals received, Krueger said the board was hopeful of starting some type of construction this year.

The proposed program calls for the re-location of patients' rooms over a new office wing to the north of the present building and the expansion of such much needed facilities as emergency, x-ray and laboratory facilities constructed. Other areas within the hospital would be re-located but no new rooms added.

It was explained that one of the major changes in the by-laws during the past year was the change in the fiscal year, setting the fiscal year back three months so it would end March 31 instead of June 30 as in the past.

Thus this year's report is based on nine months instead of the 12 month period.

During the nine months ending March 31, 1340 patients were admitted; 7359 patients days of care given; an average occupancy of 61 percent for all departments enjoyed, up from the year before; 515 operations performed; 238 births recorded; 8504 emergency and outpatients admitted; 28,998 lab tests recorded; 7,961 x-rays taken; 4,504 physical therapy treatments given and 41,221 meals served.

A lengthy financial report was given by E.D. Hawley. A condensed version shows $1,841,434 in revenue received and $1,792,721 in operating expenses leaving a credit of $48,713.

The hospital has a staff of 135 full and part-time employees; 13 active staff physicians; three courtesy staff physicians and six consulting staff physicians.

Boy Scout members stay at Camp Greilick

Five members of Boy Scout Troop 11 joined members of the 26th Niagara Falls Troop recently for a week at Camp Greilick of the Scenic Trails Council for a week of camping.

During the week both troops worked on Scout crafts and earned various awards for work accomplished.

Troop 11 members who attended were Gerry Chase, Jim Smith, Paul Stangis, Mike Paul and Dan Tinsley. Their Scoutmaster, Louis Edwards, spent time with them at Camp Greilick during the week.

Scoutmaster Don Mullan of Niagara Falls accompanied his own troop as well as the Charlevoix troop. His troop members were Todd Reid, William Reid, David Newman, Roger Frost, Robert Martin and Daryl McLellan.

Ground control

John Kinitz, president of the Charlevoix Area Buffs, is pictured with one of the planes that will be flown at the second annual Fly-in to be held at the club's Sequanota field beginning at 1 p.m. Sunday.

More than 100 radio-controlled planes ranging in size from wing spans of two feet to nine will be participating in both static and flying displays. In addition they will demonstrate three different types of aerial dog fights, limbo contests, balloon bursts with time limits and water balloon contests. There will be prizes for the last three events.

The 46-member club headed by Kinits also has as officers George Krchak, vice president; Roger Pischner, secretary and Krchak, Sr., treasurer.

A variety of prizes valued at $450 will be awarded at the fly-in.

Venetian tourney starts Friday

The fourth annual Venetian Festival Invitational Fastpitch tournament will open at the Carpenter Avenue field Friday with 10 outstanding teams from throughout the state participating.

The defending champions, Ferguson's Surveyors, the former Charlevoix County State Bank nine, will be the only local team in the double elimination tournament, Dwight Boss, City Recreation director and tournament director, said.

The tournament will open at 6:30 p.m. Friday when the Eagles of Petoskey take on the Knights of Columbus of Cheboygan at 6:30 p.m; the defending champions, Ferguson's Surveyors will meet The Office of Traverse City at 8 p.m. on opening night and Reef Petroleum, an old-timer in the tournament, will play the Spare-time Lanes of Cheboygan in the night-cap at 9:30 p.m. Friday.

Two other teams in the tournament, Kaden's of Petoskey and the Travelers of Pontiac will open the action in the tournament at 8 a.m. Saturday. Gino's of Lansing will meet the winner of the Eagles-KC game when it makes its first appearance in the tournament at 9:30 a.m. Saturday.

Heck's Bar of Saginaw, the last of the 10 teams to enter the tournament, will see action at 1:30 p.m. Saturday when the burmen play the winner of the Kaden's-Travelers game.

The first game in the loser's bracket will be played at 11 a.m. Saturday. Others games in the loser's bracket will be played at 3, 4:30 and 6 p.m., before Games 11 and 12 in the winner's bracket are played at 7:30 and 9 p.m.

Sunday's action will begin 9 a.m. followed by a second game at 10:30 p.m. 60th in the losers bracket before the two teams remaining in the winner's bracket clash at 12 noon. The next two games will be in the loser's bracket with games scheduled for 1:30 and 3 p.m.

The finals between the team that has made its way through the winner's bracket and the team that will emerge from the loser's bracket will play at 4:30 p.m. Sunday. If a 19th game is needed to determine the winner, it will be played at 6 p.m. Sunday.

Umpire-in-Chief District 14 will be Len Purolt; official scorer, Dan Boss; Commissioner-at-large, District 14, Bob Keck; Charlevoix County Commissioner, Jim Willis; City Commissioner, Bill Joy.

All games will be played at the Carpenter Avenue field.

Little League All-Stars lose

EAST JORDAN - Boyne City won Area III Major Little League honors, Saturday, defeating Charlevoix 10-4 in seven innings.

The win moves Boyne City into a 7:30 p.m. district contest Thursday at Gaylord against tonight's Tri-Rivers and Petoskey winner.

Charlevoix's Tony Towsley socked a key triple in the sixth inning Saturday to send the game into extra innings tied 2-2. Boyne City then came up with eight big runs including three on a triple by Scott Jepsen.

Winning hurler was Merle Carson while John Pearl and Doug Milligan worked for Charlevoix.

16 teams to play in tourney

The 7th annual Ellsworth Open Slo-Pitch Tournament will be held August 10-11 and August 17-18. The double elimination tournament will be open to the first 16 teams that pay a $75 entry fee. The money raised by the tournament will go to the athletic fund at Ellsworth High School.

Any person interested in entering the tournament should contact Tim Elenbaas at (616) 547-6177.

SAFE Boating TIPS

MARINE SAFETY - EQUIPMENT

The Marine Safety law requires boats to carry certain equipment depending on the size (length) of the boat.

However, there is some basic safety equipment you should always have with you.

1. P.F.D.'S! Armust, especially non-swimmers.
2. Sound producing device (horn, whistle) - give signals or if lost/heavy fog.
3. Fire extinguisher - if gas/fuel vapors can be trapped in a closed compartment.
4. Also, carry your registration or "certificate of numbers"/prmnt of ownership when operating your boat.

COUNCIL MINUTES

JULY 16, 1979
8:00 p.m.

The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date and time with Mayor Supernaw presiding.

Councilmen present: Portet, Timms, Roloff, Wood, Muma, and Whitley. Absent: None.

The Minutes of the July 2, 1979 regular meeting were approved as presented in writing and as recorded in the Council Minutes Book.

The following bids for bituminous aggregate paving were opened and read by the City Clerk.

Bidder: Tri City Asphalt, Inc. Amount of Bid: 21.44 per ton.

Bidder: Hodgkiss & Douma, Inc. Amount of Bid: 20.93 per ton.

Moved by Councilmen Timms and supported by Councilman Wood that the bids for bituminous aggregate paving be submitted to the Committee of the Whole with the power to act.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Councilmen Porter, Timms, Roloff, Wood, Muma, and Whitley. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Council adjourned to the Board of Appeals.

Following the Board of Appeals Meeting, roll call of the Council was again taken with all members being present.

Moved by Councilman Wood and supported by Councilman Timms to accept and file the Charlevoix Planning Commission Minutes dated July 9, 1979.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Councilmen Porter, Timms, Roloff, Wood, Muma, and Whitley. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Moved by Councilman Whitley and supported by Councilman Roloff to accept and file the City Compensation Minutes dated June 5, 1979.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Councilmen Porter, Timms, Roloff, Wood, Muma, and Whitley. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Moved by Councilman Porter and supported by Councilman Roloff to approve the contract as proposed by Soils and Structures, Inc. for five soil borings at the City harbor at an estimated cost of $3,850.00, 50% of which will qualify for grant reimbursement.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Councilmen Porter, Timms, Roloff, Wood, Muma, and Whitley. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Ronald Moore, an officer with the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department, appeared before Council to advise them that the City is in violation of the Marine Safety Act by failing to have a designated swimming area at Michigan Beach. He stated the four buoys would be required to cordon off a section that would keep boats away from the swimming area. The City Manager stated that buoys had been placed in Lake Michigan in previous years, but that they would not hold due to the wave action. Mr. Moore indicated that the Sheriff's Department would reposition the buoys if this problem should occur. Council generally agreed to comply with Mr. Moore's request and authorized the City Manager to see that the buoys are placed.

Moved by Councilman Roloff and supported by Councilman Wood that Robert Muma be appointed as City Treasurer, at a salary of $15,000.00 per year.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Councilmen Porter, Timms, Roloff, Wood, Muma, and Whitley. Nays: None. Absent: None

The following Resolution was offered and moved for its adoption by Councilmen Wood and supported by Councilmen Timms.

RESOLUTION 79-7-2

WHEREAS, the City of Charlevoix is charged with reducing costs to its taxpayers, and

WHEREAS, it is in the best interest of its citizens to waive certain fees and charges,

NOW, THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, that the City of Charlevoix shall waive all filing fees and building permit fees for the construction or reconstruction of all municipal buildings in the City of Charlevoix, and,

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to the Charlevoix County Building Inspection Department.

Resolution was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Councilmen Porter, Timms, Roloff, Wood, Muma, and Whitley. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Council discussed a Resolution, proposed by the Michigan Public Power Agency, that would require the City to pay their proportionate share of any costs involved in the MPPA's proposed project for it's members to buy into a power facility, if the proposed project should be abandoned. The matter was tabled until after Council attends a meeting on the proposed project scheduled for August 1, 1979.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Councilmen Porter, Timms, Roloff, Wood, Muma, and Whitley. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Moved by Councilman Porter and supported by Councilman Muma to approve construction of a water line on Stover Road to be connected to the Charlevoix Township water line for use in emergency situations, with the City Manager to submit his recommendation regarding the fee to be charged to residents receiving City Water from the new line.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Councilmen Porter, Timms, Roloff, Wood, Muma, and Whitley. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Council adjourned.

Reid said the office will be open for business as usual on July 26.

Lt. Wilcenski replacing Lt. Bell

Lt. Bell and Lt. Wilcenski.

Lt. Charles Bell, executive officer of three ships, the U.S. C.G.C. Sundew, Mesquite and Woodrush during the two years he was stationed here, has been relieved by his successor, Lt. F.M. Wilcenski who joins the ship from the Second Coast Guard District at St. Louis, Mo.

Bell, enjoying a few days as a northern Michigan tourist before departing for his new assignment, came to the Sundew two years ago and became involved in the ship swap of the cutters Sundew, Mesquite and Woodrush and their subsequent shipyard renovations at Baltimore and Refresher Training at Norfolk.

Bell, a native of New Hampshire, enlisted in the U.S. Coast Guard in 1964 and was accepted in Officers Candidate School in 1971. Upon receiving his commission in June of 1971, he served aboard the Cutter Spar out of Boston and assumed his duties as Commanding Officer of U.S.C.G LORAN Station Gesashi Okinawa. Upon completion of this duty, he was Search and Rescue Controller for the Boston Rescue Center before coming to Charlevoix as Executive Officer aboard the Sundew.

Bell was recently "deep selected" for the grade of Lieutenant Commander and given orders fur Chief of Operations Center at the Ninth Coast Guard District in Cleveland.

He, his wife Mary and their four children will be departing next month for his new assignment.

Lt. F.M. Welcinski, a native of Leslie, Michigan, is a 1975 graduate of the U.S. Coast Guard Academy at New London, Conn. He was stationed aboard the Cutter Laurel out of Ketchikan, Alaska, before being assigned to the Busting Safety Division at the Second Coast Guard District Office in St. Louis, Mo., prior to his present assignment.

Welcenski will be joined here by his wife.

Sundew crew wins award

The U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Sundew, homeported here in command of LCDR Warren E. Miller, was honored recently with the awarding of a plaque for Engineering and Operational Readiness and Damage Control Excellence.

Captain J.P. Mihlbauer, U.S.C.G. Chief of Staff, Ninth Coast Guard District, Cleveland, flew into Charlevoix to personally commend the officers and crew of the cutter and to make the presentation in the presence of the men, their dependence and invited guests.

The presentation was made in recognition of the Sundew's outstanding achievement of obtaining the highest score of any Coast Guard vessel last year during Refresher Training at Norfolk, Va.

This marks the second time the same crew had rated this honor. The year before they had attained the highest score ever at the Flight Training Unit.

Refresher Training is conducted by U.S. Coast Guard vessels immediately after an extended yard period. Last year the Sundew was involved with a major renovation prugram and overhocked at the Coast Guard yards in Baltimore, from June 1977 until Oct. 1978. During the interim, the U.S.C.G. Mesquite was stationed in Charlevoix.

The goal of Refresher Training is tu insure the vessel can fulfill its operational commitments and prepare itself in readiness state for a wartime emergency. Scores arc attained through drills by the crew and monitored by Coast Guard and Navy personnel from the Fleet Training Unit at Norfolk.

The drills include seamanship, navigation damage control, and engineering procedures. The overall grade attained by the Sundew was a 95.6. The letters "E" and "DC" displayed from the Sundew's bridgewings signify the outstanding scores achieved in Operational Readiness and Engineering and Damage Control, respectively.

An informal refreshment tine honoring Capt. Mihlbauer and his guests, the crew and their guests followed on the fantail of the ship.

Among those honored was Lt. Charles Bell who has been relieved as Executive Officer after two years and his replacement, Lt. F.M. Wilcenski who has come here from the Second District Office in St. Louis, Mo., to join the ship as Executive officer.

Charlevoix County targeted for adult foster care recruitment

Charlevoix County Department of Social Services Director Richard Tillen has announced that the county has been selected as one of four "priority counties" for Adult Foster Care (AFC) recruitment in the northwestern lower peninsula.

Tillen points out that an AFC needs assessment recently conducted in the area, indicates that up to 36 new beds may have to be developed to satisfy the anticipated demand for AFC placement in the county.

"Even with the potential impact of our new supervised residential care unit at Grandview Medical Care Facility, I think we're going to have some serious problems unless we see some new AFC development in certain parts of the county," say Tillen.

To help with the county's recruitment effort, Michael Spry, adult foster care homefinder from the department's Grand Traverse County office, has been assigned to work with local staff and community leaders.

"We hope that in the coming months, we can assemble a broad base of community support for the department's recruitment efforts here," says Spry.

Spry says that he hopes to meet with the city councils of East Jordan, Boyne City and Charlevoix to discuss the program and its impact on the community.

"I feel that it's important that community leaders understand what we are trying to do and support us in our efforts," adds Spry.

In addition to his recruitment responsibilities, Spry will also be interviewing those people in his four "priority counties" who inquire about becoming licensed.

"Mike will have more time to devote to explaining the AFC program than our other adult community placement staff," says Tillen.

The department's AFC homefinding program has been in existence for approximately 1½ years. Under the program, needs assessments are conducted periodically to determine which counties are most in need of new AFC resources. Those counties with the most serious needs are then targeted for active recruitment activities.

Other counties in the northwestern lower peninsula receiving homefinding services include Clare, Emmet, and Wexford Counties.

HAYES TOWNSHIP

The Hayes Township Zoning Board of Appeals will hold a meeting on Wednesday, August 1, 1979 at 8:00 P.M. at the Township Hall.

The Board will meet to hear a Variance Request from Mr. Stewart Boal, Boyne City Rd., R No. 3, Charlevoix. He requests a variance concerning the minimum width for a small portion of his property from 200 feet to 135.88 feet, as otherwise this portion is not saleable. In other respects the portion conforms, i.e. 200 feet shoreline, 220 feet backline, and about ½ acre over the required 2 acre size.

Marriage is not dead institution, CHIP Counselors say

Marriage is not a dead institution.

That is the firm belief of the counselors at CHIP Center in Charlevoix, where a majority of people come for marital and family related counseling.

The fact that a great number of people are seeking help with marital problems or are participating in such marriage enrichment programs as communication workshops, is a positive sign, in the eyes of CHIP therapists Oren Schroeder and Terry Smith.

Reflecting on the numbers of people who are seeking help for marital problems, Smith observed that couples who work out their difficulties together often have a stronger relationship as a result.

The counselors said the marital problems they are seeing reflect the problems of society in general. A major source of marital tensions is the changing nature of our lives.

Changes -- moving to a new community, job changes, changing roles, death -- can cause painful tensions in a family. But, as Schroeder cautioned, "There are no miracle drugs to prevent pain and stress in marriage.

"But pain is often a growth producer," he added.

Thus, while CHIP Center receives many requests for counseling from people with marital problems, the therapists do not think this means marriage is a dieing institution.

This discussion was part of a wide ranging conversation between the therapists, analyzing the CHIP Center's work in marriage counseling.

Schroeder and Smith termed one of the major problems in marriage today a "crisis of intimacy."

Schroeder defined this as when "people fight rather than closeness or intimacy. Self-revelation, self-disclosure makes one vulnerable, but intimacy is vital to most of us."

Explaining further Schroeder said, "A couple can go along on a parallel track for a long time, then begin moving apart. They will speak of boredom with their marriage. That is because there was no substance to their relationship -- no real intimacy."

But, he added, "not all marriages require that deep intimacy. In a lot of troubled marriages intimacy, the lack of it, is a problem, but it is not the ideal with all marriages."

Schroeder said the high divorce rate today reflects the same problem. "People marry early and become preoccupied with the business of surviving and neglect to develop their relationships.

"People come to have unrealistic expectations. They see their spouse as an extension of their self. They ask, 'what can I get,' not 'what can I give into this relationship.'"

Smith added, "If we expect another person to heal us of our past hurts and injustices, we create a dependence upon that person. It is unrealistic."

Smith said part of the unrealistic expectations people bring to marriage is "IF only I can get the perfect fit I will have the perfect marriage."

"The search for the perfect fit is a false expectation," Schroeder agreed.

However, the two counselors also agreed that some fits are less likely to be troublesome. "The healthy thing to do is to be aware of ones self first, then look for the best fit -- the best partner," they said.

Differing advice to couples on how to foster intimacy in their relationship, Smith said, "Couples should plan time together. An escape with the family can strengthen relationships."

"It is a way of saying we are important, you are important," Schroeder added.

Quoting the poet-philosopher Khalil Gibran, Smith said, "Let there be space in your togetherness."

"A marriage needs a closeness and a letting go. Couples should do things together and they should encourage each others' separate interests," Smith advised.

"And be silly together, Schroeder put in. "Couples should goof-off together, be absolutely ridiculous and still be cherished."

"Sex, too, needs foolishness and spontaniety," Smith added. "Sex can be too terribly serious."

Returning to the subject of marital tensions, the counselors observed that marriages work like muscles. If a relationship is well exercised, coping with tensions will add to its strength.

They also advised that good relationships with ones larger family -- parents, brothers, sisters -- can enhance a marriage.

"We need to mend fences of past relationships in order to deal with present relationships. The present will be enhanced by the past," Schroeder said.

Reflecting on CHIP's three and a half years of helping people in the area, both counselors agreed that while many people are seeking marriage counseling, many are successfully resolving their problems.

"After all the debunking of marriage, people are taking marriage very seriously," they concluded.

Harsha family has roots in Charlevoix since 1878

The announcement last week by the Charlevoix Historical Society that they had been willed the home of the late Anne M. Harsha at 103 State Street was accompanied by some biographical information about the Harsha family.

The Horace Harshas (Anne's grandparents) lived on Clinton Street before the family home on State Street was built. Horace and Margaret Harsha had five children: John (Anne's father), Amy, Irene (who married Earl Young), Paul, and Katherine. Mrs. Carl Kohler remembers as a young girl playing with Katherine in the State Street home.

John Harsha left Charlevoix after high school to pursue his career in Detroit, where Anne was born in 1913. However, he maintained his interest in the family home, and after the death of his mother in 1936, he became owner of the property. At that time, the house was converted into four apartments.

He had previously built a summer home in Boulder Park which was used by his family, and most recently by Anne until her death last October.

Horace Harsha came to northern Michigan from Ohio with his brother in the early 1870's, settling in the Traverse area before coming to Charlevoix in 1878. On July 23, 1884, he married Margaret Carnes in Wooster, Ohio, and brought his bride to Charlevoix to live. Horace Harsha had an insurance and real estate business, and in 1885 was elected clerk of the Village of Charlevoix. Both he and his wife were active in community affairs.

Rosa Nettleton's collection of excerpts from the Charlevoix Sentinel of the period contains many mentions of the Harshas.

New Year's, 1884: Ladies called upon gentlemen who held "open house". Among those were Horace Harsha at his residence.

January, 24, 1884: The Shakespeare Club met Monday evening at the home of H. S. Harsha. The study of "Julius Caesar" was commenced.

August 25, 1884: Horace B. Harsha of Charlevoix and Miss Maggie Carnes of Wooster, Ohio, were married in the latter city on July 23. Horace is well known here and his host of friends will wish him and his bride a long life of prosperity.

March 14, 1885: The caucus in the Village Hall on Friday evening was attended by over 100 voters. Among officers elected was Horace S. Harsha, Clerk.

May 9, 1885: Mrs. H. S. Harsha, the lady who prepared the excellent paper at the final Historical Society meeting, has been and is a contributor to the "Atlantic" and "Century" magazines.

Three grandchildren of Horace and Margaret Harsha live in Charlevoix at the present time. They are Marguerite Currie, Louise Gill, and Drew Young.

Wedding

Loper-Nettles

The Grace Community Church of Central Lake was the setting for the June 30th evening candlelight wedding of Melody Gail Loper and Arnold D. Nettles.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Wynsma of East Jordan are parents of the bride, and gave their daughter in marriage. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Shepard, Jr. of Woodbridge, Virginia.

The Reverend Estel Clark officiated at the double-ring ceremony. Mrs. Thelma Thompson provided organ music.

For her wedding, the bride wore a gown of white polyester organza over taffeta, featuring a stand-up collar, Empire bodice, and front and back ruffle-trimmed yoke in Venice lace. The gown also featured long illusion sleeves with lace cuffs and a full skirt which curved to a sweeping chapel-length train.

The matching headpiece was also of polyester organza with nylon veiling, cotton Venice lace, and simulated seed pearls. The bride carried a colonial bouquet of white daisies, pink miniature carnations, and baby's breath.

Brenda Chanda, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Her gown was pink organza, and she carried two long-stemmed pink carnations, baby's breath, and a white streamer.

Mary Patton and Rita Bennett, also sisters of the bride, were bridesmaids. Their gowns were blue organza, and they carried two blue carnations, baby's breath, and white streamers. All attendants wore white picture hats.

The mother of the bride was attired in an aqua gown, and the groom's mother wore a pink knit gown. Both wore corsages of white daisies and pink carnations.

Barry Loper, brother of the bride, was best man. Another brother, Rod Loper, was groomsman. Gary Loper and Brian Bennett, Jr. served as ushers.

Dana K. Patton attended the guest book.

A reception, hosted by the bride's parents, was held following the ceremony at the Peninsula Grange Hall for 200 relatives and friends. Music at the reception was provided by the Six Lopers, brothers of the bride.

The newly-weds have delayed a wedding trip until later in the summer and are now at home in Charlevoix.

The bride is employed by Courter's in Boyne City, and the bridegroom by Lexalite in Charlevoix.

Engagement

Madden-Donaldson

Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Madden of Onaway announce the engagement of their daughter, Diana Lynn, to Edward Lyle Donaldson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Donaldson of Charlevoix and Tucson, Arizona.

The bride-to-be is a graduate of Armada High School and attended Central Michigan University. She is presently employed by Bobby McGee's Conglomeration in Tucson.

The intended bridegroom is a graduate of Charlevoix High School. He also attended Central Michigan University, as well as Florida Technological University and the University of Arizona. He is presently at home in Tucson after spending 23 days in a Tucson hospital. He will soon join his brother, Bob, in the operation of Sid's Appliance Center.

The wedding is being planned for September 6 in Charlevoix.

Charlevoix Church Directory

FAITH MAKES GOOD NEIGHBORS OF GREAT NATIONS

"The boundary line dividing two countries can become a barricade of mutual hostility; but in the case of Canada and the United States it has always served as a bridge of friendship between two peoples with such trust, respect and understanding as to make the celebration of Canada-U.S. Goodwill Week quite unnecessary. Nowhere along the three thousand-mile borderline that spans our continent have security measures ever been needed, and the citizens on both sides may enter and leave each other's land whenever they wish. This is a fine example of the spirit of brotherhood that has been taught by every religious faith, in every land. Wherever you live, you will learn this by attending the Church of your choice.

"Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself. Love worketh no ill to his neighbor: therefore love is the fulfilling of the law."
-Romans 13:9, 10

A living proof to all the world of faith in brotherhood.
-Guy Willis Bilsland

MARSHALL NANEGOS

Graveside services for Morshall J. Nanegos, 58, who died Thursday at a V.A. Hospital in Milwaukee where he had been a patient for 10 days, were held Tuesday at Brookside cemetery. The Rev. R. Dale Magoon of St. Mary's Church officiated.

Born in Petoskey May 19, 1921, Mr. Nanegos was a veteran of World War II. In recent years he had lived in Milwaukee where he was employed as a bartender.

He is survived by a brother, Leonard of Coopersville.

The Rosary was recited at the Winchester Funeral Home Monday evening.

Tourist business good, says chamber

Tourist business in the Traverse City, Charlevoix, and Petoskey areas continues at or above 1978 levels, according to the Chambers of Commerce in those cities. Chamber officials blamed cool weather, along with concerns over fuel availability as reasons for the slight decline in tourist activity in June. Since the 4th of July, tourist operators report vastly improved conditions.

In a survey of almost 100 gas stations, all reported near-normal weekday hours with 80 percent planning to remain open throughout the weekend.

Names In The News

State Police Tpr. LARRY L. McROBERTS, 47, of the Petoskey post, has been granted a duty disability retirement effective July 11, Col. Gerald L. Hough, department director, has reported.

McRoberts, who was born in Charlevoix, who served with the state police for more than 23 years, has been under treatment in recent years for a cardiac condition.

He joined the State Police in April, 1956, serving first at the Battle Creek post before assignments in 1959 to Ypsilanti and in 1964 to Petoskey where he had been stationed since.

His department credits include awards for meritorious service, honorable mention and professional excellence.

The merit award was for his part in the arrest of an armed subject in 1963 at Ypsilanti who had been threatening his wife, children and the police.

The honor citation involved his part in the arrest of three subjects in 1975 for armed robbery at Waters. The professional excellence was for his part in the 1977 arrest of an armed man in Emmet county who had threatened police and others.

MATTHEW DOAN of Charlevoix and DONALD RUIS of Ellsworth have been named to the Dean's List at Lake Superior State College for the term recently concluded.

NFIB is a non-profit, non-partisan organization representing the needs of small businesses across the country. Founded in 1943, it was designed to promote the concept of free enterprise and to give independent business a greater voice in shaping the laws which govern business and government.

AIMEE ELZINGA, DARLA BARTZ AND SUE COOPER of Charlevoix entered the world of politics recently as over 200 Michigan high school juniors and seniors participated in the 1979 Michigan Farm Bureau Young People's Citizenship Seminar at Albion College.

The five day seminar, jointly sponsored by the Michigan Farm Bureau and county Farm Bureau organizations, emphasized the importance of an informed, involved electorate in the democratic process of self-government.

Students were encouraged to take part in political activities of the Federalist, Populist and Independent parties to express their concerns on individual issues through political party conventions and to run for "political" office. Students were also introduced to the social, economic and political viewpoints expressed by guest speakers: Mary Stallings Coleman, Chief Justice, Michigan Supreme Court; Lieutenant Governor James Brickley; Dr. Clifton Ganus, president of Harding College, Searcy, Ark.; internationally known lecturer and author Dr. John Furbay; Dr. Paul Kindinger, commodity activities and research director, Michigan Farm Bureau; Maria Schultz, Ukranian refugee and now naturalized U.S. citizen; Al Almy, public affairs director, Michigan Farm Bureau; and Joseph McNamara, manager of The Free Enterprise Institute, Amway Corporation.

TODD WARNER of Charlevoix is participating in the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair which started today (Wednesday) and will continue through Saturday.

Now entering its 20th year, this nationally-known outdoor show began with 99 artists displaying their work on ropes strung between parking meters. The fair was such a success that it grew by leaps and bounds, so much so that a decision was made in 1963 to limit the number of spaces available to around 300.

Logical solution not always best

Did you ever think back on all the instances in which you were advised, or worse still admonished to be logical and practical instead of following your instincts?

Chances are, that the decisions made or paths taken under those circumstances are ones you regret today. Discounting childhood admonishments which might range anywhere from wearing your yellow slicker on rainy days to "Do not talk to strangers on the way to school," which are generally founded in legitimate parental concern, there are those that later deprive a person of his right to autonomy. Sometimes, an adult employing the directive approach towards either child-rearing or selling the public on some idea, doesn't know when to stop and submit to the natural course of events.

For some reason, wedding time is a perfect example of the directive versus the non-directive approach. Given the fact that the choice of a mate has met with everyone's approval, a miracle in itself, the couple now embarks on the details like, whether to get an upright sweeper or a tank model, whether to purchase plastic or china dinnerware.

It's amazing how opinionated everyone gets over the slightest decision. As if, by making the wrong choice of electric can opener, a young couple is doomed to failure and disappointment. A reassuring note to all prospective brides: our electric can-opener died a few years ago, and instead of feeling guilty about making a faulty selection, we went out to the dimestore and chose a manual type which is still servicing us nicely, is washable, and the motor won't quit. I will never forgive myself for being propelled into the "Practical Wedding Band" decision.

Gold, I was instructed, discolors the finger over the years. To this day I am still green with envy when I catch sight of a wide gold band, and have yet to discover anyone with a moldy finger underneath. I would also love to meet up with the lady who sold me the expensive blue negligee for our honeymoon, and inform her as to the facts of life.

But there are the victories as well. "Roses? For an August wedding, my dear? They'll never hold up," the florist confided. More than the summer heat was on as she tried to force a waxy Hawaiian number at me with a long yellow tongue. I simply stuck out my tongue and ordered Eternal Sun. The roses were lovely for as long as they needed to be.

Then there was the matter of a post nuptial apartment. We chose a carriage house affair, a three room abode above a barn much to a certain amount of dismay. "Where would company stay " It wasn't practical or logical for that matter. "There isn't even any room for family explosion, for heaven's sake."

That little barn loft and the little red Volkswagen we purchased about the same time, live on in my memory as two of the most meaningful decisions of our new life. They symbolized the cutting of the cord with what everyone else decided was good for us, and what we knew we liked and wanted ourselves.

There is a species of adults, who continue to direct, advise and consent well past time. They forget that maturity is gained through trial and error and learning to make decisions on ones own. Loving support and not saying "I told you so" when the wrong choices are made, are the stuff out of which respect and continuing affection over the years is made.

All of which speaks to me through the theme of "The Logical Song." Sometimes the most logical solution is not necessarily the best. The most practical way is not necessarily also the most personally satisfying. Sometimes the world seems to forget that lack of caution is what has kept it young. And sometimes wa analyze spontaneity to death dull death.

Venetian Festival has long history

The Venetian Festival has a long history in Charlevoix.

This weekend will mark the 49th time that Charlevoixans and summer visitors to the area will celebrate what has become the summer happening in town.

The first boat festival in town was held in 1929. Known as the annual Boat Regatta, the city council authorized an amount of $250 to underwrite the cost. The regatta consisted of power boat racing and was organized and promoted by what was then called the Charlevoix Boat Club.

Later, the Charlevoix Marine Club sponsored the Venetian Boat Parade beginning in 1931. About this time, the Charlevoix Board of Commerce was formed and the parade was sponsored by this organization.

In 1958, the present Chamber of Commerce was formed. It was then that the Chamber of Commerce was formed. It was then that the chamber board realized it would be advisable to build a festive occasion around the boat parade and call it Venetian Festival.

There were some lean years when it was difficult to interest the boat owners to participate in the boat parade. Some of the problems occurred during World War II when it was decided to discontinue the festival. Also, the boat owners became rather disturbed because candles and Japanese lanterns were used for lighting effects. This caused a great deal of work for the boat owners in cleaning the wax off the decks and if any great amount of wind developed during the parade, it also created a safety hazard.

Today most of these problems have been solved by using generators and electric lights.

Down through the years many outstanding designs and themes have been worked out for the boats. Each owner may select a theme, however, political displays are discouraged.

Another important part of the four-day festival is the Venetian Queen pagcant. The queen competition originated in 1935 as a part of the Charlevoix Homecoming and centennial.

That year the first queen, Marge Carey who is now Mrs. S.E. Coleman, was crowned.

A variety of methods have been employed to select the Venetian Queen throughout years. In 1950, when Charlevoix was trying to raise money for a new hospital, the queen was determined by which candidate raised the most money in her name for the project. Cannisters were placed in various businesses in the queen candidate's name around town.

Now after almost half a century, Venetian Festival become more than another summer festivity. For area residents it means homecoming. Venetian nights are the time of year that families whose members have moved downstate or out of state are united. They share their love, their memories and their thoughts during the celebration.

For visitors to the area, Venetian nights are four days of fun and festivities. Many visitors haven't missed a Venetian Festival in years, even though it means making a hotel reservation a whole year in advance.

LAKE CHARLEVOIX

WATER, WATER EVERYWHERE.. DRINK IT IN!

GORGEOUS LAKE CHARLEVOIX VIEW

You really haven't seen Lake Charlevoix if you haven't seen it from Sequonota Heights! Ever changing and beautiful-every day. Especially from the deck of this 3 BR, five year old, custom built ranch home. An immaculate 1264 sq. ft. of living area. Two baths and an attached 2 car garage for added comfort and convenience. Charlevoix County Soil and Water Conservation District

1979 Annual report

Supplement to The Charlevoix County Press and Charlevoix Courier

ANNUAL MEETING
Whiting Park
Wednesday July 25, 1979
7:00 P.M.

Dear Cooperator:

The 30th annual meeting of your Charlevoix Soil and Water Conservation District will be held Wednesday evening, July 25 starting at 7:00 p.m. The meeting will be held at Whiting Park located between Boyne City and Ironton.

Again this year your directors and staff will serve a dinner for you and your family starting promptly at 7:00 p.m. All we ask is that you make your reservation ahead of time.

The business meeting will be held when everyone is through eating. The program is as follows:

Call to order - Charles Kiteley
Minutes of last Annual Meeting
Election of two directors
Treasurers Report - Terry Healey
Annual Report - William Korthase Jr.
Awarding of certificates - Charles Kiteley
Regional and State Meetings - David Parsons
RC&D - Terry Healey
Other Business
Program-Slides - History of Boyne City

Two directors will be elected. The term of David Parsons has expired and Steve Miller has resigned. For the South Charlevoix Area David Parsons and John Frey have been nominated. For the Boyne City and East Jordan area Dave Grutsch and Don Graham have been nominated. Other nominations will be accepted from the floor.

The program will be a showing of slides of the history of Boyne City by Robert Morgridge, Boyne City School teacher.

The meeting is for you and your family and is open to everyone. But please let me know right away how many are coming so we can buy the food and other supplies.

Sincerely yours,

Ed Rebman

Ed Rebman, Secretary

One of Ed Rebman's famous barbecues in progress.

Don't miss Ed's barbecue!

Ed Rebman is at it again!

Rebman's barbequed chicken will again be the featured specialty at the Charlevoix Soil & Water Conservation District Annual Meeting scheduled for July 25, 1979 at 7 p.m. at Whiting Park.

Each year the Soil District Directors and various resource people prepare the meal served at the meeting.

Last year's barbequers were Terry Healey, Treasurer, Charlevoix SCD; Ray Weiss, Soil Conservation Technician, Soil Conservation Service; Ed Rebman, Secretary, Charlevoix SCD & Cooperative Extension Director, Michigan State University; & Philo Sumner, Whiting Park Superintendent.

Meeting is open to the public - those attending the meeting should make their reservations with Cooperative Extension Service Office, 319 N. Lake Street, Boyne City, Michigan. PHONE 582-6232.

Conservation District offers many services

BY CHARLES KITELEY, CHAIRMAN

This progress report has been prepared to show Conservation accomplishments for fiscal year 1978 by United States Soil Conservation Service personnel assisting the Charlevoix Soil & Water Conservation District. Bill Grimm, District Conservationist, Ray Weiss, Soil Conservation Technician and Joan Neumann, Charlevoix & Emmet Soil Conservation District Coordinator, provide the technical assistance necessary to carry out the program of the Soil Conservation District, in cooperation with other agencies, such as, Cooperative Extension Service, Agricultural Stabilization & Conservation Service. These offices are located in the City Hall, Boyne City.

There are 264,960 acres of land in Charlevoix County. Of this acreage, 45,000 is state owned. The remaining land area is under private and or municipal ownership. 434 land owners in the county are Charlevoix Soil & Water Cooperators, representing 59,314 acres of land. The Charlevoix District is continually adjusting and revising its program and developing new priorities to meet the conservation needs of the District.

This year the Charlevoix Soil & Water Conservatinn District approved:

-14 New Cooperators
-18 Conservation Plans
-156 landowners were assisted with 278 service calls
-101 landowners applied Conservation practices
-Inventories & Evaluations for Landuse Treatment Programs were made to 23 individuals or organizations
-15 units of government were assisted with 30 contacts with 2 Inventory & Evaluations and 39 Inventory Resource Studies
-3 Waste Management Systems
-2105 acres Conservation Cropping Systems
-37 acres Critical Area Planting
-12 acres Grassed Waterway or outlet
-7 Irrigation Systems
-891 acres Pasture & Hayland Planting
-93 acres Contour Stripcropping
-43,720 feet Subsurface Drain
-56 acres Tree Planting
-2,130 acres Wildlife Habitat Management
-300 acres Woodland Improvement
-7,156 acres Land Adequately Treated

One-stop service for area farmers

On March 1, the offices of the Soil Conservation Service, Charlevoix County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service & Charlevoix County Cooperative Extension Service, moved to new facilities in the City Hall, 319 N. Lake Street, Boyne City.

It will now be possible for area farmers to see Ed Rebman, Helen Dietze & Bill Grimm all in one easy stop.

All phone numbers remain the same as listed in the area phone book.

Hearings help direct future efforts

The Charlevoix Soil & Water Conservation District took an active role in the Resources Conservation Act (P.L. 95-192) of 1977, which called for a comprehensive look at the nation's basic natural resources and for better programs to protect and improve them. An important part of the law is its emphasis on citizen participation in determining the future direction of conservation programs that affect LOCAL communities.

The Charlevoix Soil & Water Conservation District, in cooperation with the Soil Conservation Service, Agricultural Stabilization & Conservation Service, Michigan Department of Natural Resources, Charlevoix County Cooperative Extension Service and various other citizen groups, resource people, individuals, held open meetings to inform the public and gather their major and minor concerns about the Charlevoix County environment.

Overwhelming major concern by Charlevoix County individuals, groups and units of government, was the loss of prime, good agricultural land, wetlands, forestlands, to irreversible uses. Revision of Act 116, Farmland & Open Space Act, to make it more compatable to landowner and still accomplish its objectives, appears to be one of the possible solutions to remedy this concern.

Development areas where high rate of runoff is not being controlled seemed to be an issue of great concern.

Erosion from county, townships, private roadways; streambanks, lakeshores, agricutural croplands, and other critical erosion areas were mentioned.

Solid waste disposal is another top priority of the county. Eliminate red tape so that grants are easily accessible to install needed facilities. More research is needed in recycling systems of solid and organic wastes.

Public safety in the parks was mentioned along with lack of public access to streams and lakes to meet demands of the public.

Better enforcement is needed to control ATV and other motorized vehicles.

Preserve and protect Lake Michigan Sand Dunes.

Many voiced their opinion about increased density of developments on lakes and streams. The area is becoming saturated with recreational and related developments which eventually cause technical, political, economic stresses and problems to local units of government. Preliminary studies should be made to determine what effects development will have on adjacent land on township and county level.

Forests represent at least 61 percent of total acreage in Charlevoix County. This resource acreage is the largest natural resource that is not being effectively managed. Lack of markets, fragmentation of ownership, high property taxes, red tape, do not encourage proper forest management. More multi-use of the forest resource products should be researched.

Establish a monitoring program to preserve and protect the clean streams and lakes that we now have. Develop lake and stream watershed programs.

Air quality from both agricultural and mining operations appear to be a major concern.

Zoning ordinances should be revised to meet current needs and direct future land use trends.

Local units of government should consult more with SCD and local natural resource personnel prior to development approval, as out of county engineers, planners, etc., do not know local problems that could occur.

There is too much overlapping of programs and duties by state at local level. Revise these programs so that local units of government can function with adequate funding.

Good and effective, variable conservation should be continued. If there is deemphasizing of these good programs and practices, conservation momentum will be lost.

All information gathered through the RCA survey, nationwide, will be categorized and the president of the United States will recommend to Congress in 1980, programs and legislation, governing the natural resources of the nation.

Development is encroaching on farmland.

Big concern: preserve our land

Overwhelming major concern expressed by Charlevoix County citizen groups and units of government during the Resources Conservation Act survey last July, were the loss of prime agricultural, wetlands, forestlands, to irreversible uses.

Rooted deep in the middle of a parking lot in a suburban shopping center, a 50 foot silo in Portage, Wis., is all that is left of some prime agricultural land. Preserved for future use, possibly as a signpost, the silo serves as testimony to the rapid conversion of U.S. farming land to urban uses. In the past 10 years alone, according to the Soil Conservation Service, developers have converted about 29 million acres of rural land (equalling the size of Louisiana) to shopping center, housing developments, roads, airports, and lakes. If the rate continues, SCS estimated the amount of land converted in the next two decades will equal the size of Oregon.

If this is truly a major concern, the Charlevoix Soil & Water Conservation District is ready, willing and able to assist units of government and individuals in any way they can in preserving, protecting and properly treating these natural resources.

The question is: Are the local units of government in Charlevoix county ready to evaluate and provide reasonable solutions?

Silo stores manure

The farmer of today, is managing his farm waste system, has to consider storing, handling, and disposing of farm waste, while at the same time, maintaining an effective pollution abatement program. A 100 cow dairy herd creates enough volume of manure equivalent to a town of 1600 people. Each farm has different problems and conditions to work with. This silo storage system recently installed on an area farm for 125 cows and storage for 180 days, allows the farmer to handle manure as a liquid.

Check your tile system

BY RAY WEISS, TECHNICIAN
SOIL CONSERVATION SERVICE

When you were thinking of next summer's work on the farm did you remind yourself to check the tile outlets? This should be your number one priority when the snow is gone and prior to tillage operations on the farm.

This may locate a trouble spot at an early stage or prevent locating a trouble spot when a crop is being planted in the field. If any maintenance is needed it can be done in time to prevent delay of planting crops.

Periodic checks of your tile drainage system is the best preventative maintenance there is. If a wet area is located near a tile line, it may indicate a partially plugged tile line. If a hole occurs over a tile line, the soil is being washed into the tile line, and if not corrected, it can and may effect the operation of the entire drainage system. The silt and sand may deposit in the tile line or may wash into the main line and into the outlet ditch.

A forgotten tile outlet ditch can cause an otherwise good tile system to fail. The outlet pipe should extend into the outlet ditch, and the water must be able to flow away from the outlet pipe. If the end of the outlet pipe becomes submerged in water, this could be the start of trouble ahead. The ditch should be cleaned before this happens.

Last but not least, don't forget to check the rodent guard that was installed on your outlet pipe. If this disappears or becomes inoperable, it will allow animals to enter the tile system, causing a blockage in the system.

REMEMBER: A check in the spring may prevent trouble in the fall.

Tile drainage still needed in county

Tile drainage is still a much needed conservation practice. Due to limited availability of a tile contractor, a total of 184,247 feet of tile has been installed in Charlevoix County which included 43,720 feet for 1978 fiscal year.

Bill Brandt, Tile Contractor, shown in the adjacent picture, from Hillman, Michigan, did come into the county on a limited basis.

Current costs to tile drain an acre of land is $400.00 per acre. Because of inflation, it appears installation costs are increasing at a rate of $50.00 per acre per year in the last few years.

For information on tile drainage, contact the Soil Conservation Service Field Office, 319 N. Lake Street, Boyne City. PHONE : 582-7341.

Here's one way to install tile drains.

Report lists best cherry growing areas

Copies of the "Red Tart Cherry Site Inventory" now available.

This Inventory is the result of the foresight of the Charlevoix Soil & Water Conservation District with the Emmet Soil Conservation District; Cooperative Extension Service, Michigan State University; Northwest Michigan Resource Development District and the Soil Conservation Service, who in the late 1970's saw the need for a basic inventory of site areas having the best potential combination of soil, water, slope, topography and micro-climate for raising red tart cherries.

This report identifies these UNIQUE FARMLAND areas for the purpose of assisting landowners/users of land, to evaluate the greatest potential for agricultural uses and to provide information to units of government for the preservation, protection of these areas from irreversible uses.

In Charlevoix County, copies can be obtained at: Cooperative Extension Service, Soil Conservation Service Office and the Agricultural Stabilization & Conservation Service Office, all located in the City Hall, 319 N. Lake Street, Boyne City.

Louis Vandamen, of Klooster Implemeot Company of Atwood, uses a power-till seeder to reseed sod on the Kiteley farm.

No-till seeding . . step by step

NO-TILL seeding of hayland and pasture area may well become a popular practice as this method allows little if any erosion to occur due to the mulch cover that is retained until the seed is established. This type of planting allows the farmer to salvage existing alfalfa in old stand while new seeds bring back the stand to the quality desired.

The following are general sod seeding recommendations:

Clip or graze so that about 2" of growth is existing prior to planting.

Broadcast lime and fertilizer according to current soil test recommendations.

If broadleave weeds are a problem, spray stand with one pound of 2-4-D Ester Active ingredient per acre at least 7-10 days prior to seeding.

Three days prior to seeding, apply Paraquat at ½ pound active ingredient, using 40-50 gallons of clean water under 40-50 pounds pressure. Use a surfactant with paraquat, such as X-77, to insure good coverage of foliage.

Seed with adaptable seeding mixtures with a NO-TILL seeder.

In cases where 50 percent stand of alfalfa exists but competitive grasses need to be eliminated or where a sod field is predominately grasses - the following is recommended:

Apply 3 pounds of Kerb per acre for quackgrass control in fall, sometime in late October or early November (October 24-November 15) when temperatures are below 40 degrees F and before ground freezes.

Sod Seed with 12-15 pounds alfalfa (Vernal, Iroquois, Pioneer 520, Weevel Check, WI. 202) and 2 pounds Brome per acre.

NOTE: Be sure to properly innoculate alfalfa prior to seeding.

Broadcast recommended fertilizer before seeding.

Apply lime if needed in summer or fall.

This means a soil test should be taken right away.

Caution: Do not graze Kerb Tranted Areas until 120 days after application.

The above are general recommendations, but each NO-TILL site should be evaluated so that the best recommendations can be made to assure good stand. For more information concerning NO-TILL operations, contact Cooperative Extension Service, or the Soil Conservation Service office, both located in the City Hall in Boyne City.

Young farm families help local conservation effort

This year the Charlevoix Soil and Water Conservation District is honoring some of the young farm families of District Cooperators that are assisting or managing conservation farms in Charlevoix County:

-Dan and Joan Wieland; Lindy Wieland, of the Wieland Farms of Charlevoix and Antrim counties in Norwood and Banka Townships. Dan and Lindy are son and daughter of Richard and Doris Wieland of Ellaworth. Major enterprise is dairy.

-Casey Curtis of Curtis Farms of Charlevoix County in Marion Township. Casey is the son of Bob and Marilyn Curtis, Route #1, Charlevoix. Major enterprise is dairy.

-Jim and Pam Potter of Windy Hill Farm of Charlevoix County in Marion Township. Jim is the son of Archie and Louise Potter, Route #2, Charlevoix. Main enterprise is dairy.

-Mike and Adele Kiteley; Charles and Kay Kiteley of Kiteley Farms, Charlevoix County in Eveline and Marion Townships. Mike and Charles are sons of Charles and Carmen Kiteley, Route #2, Charlevoix. Major enterprise is dairy.

-Kim Korthase of Korthase Ranch, Charlevoix and Antrim counties in Boyne Valley and Warner Townships. Kim is the son of Norval and Alma Korthase, Route #1, Boyne City. Main enterprise is beef.

-Dave and Kathy Grutsch of Grutsch Farms of Charlevoix County in South Arm Township. Dave is the son of Carl and Doris Grutsch, Route #2, East Jordan. Main enterprise is dairy.

-Bill and Rita Dohm of Rus and Us Poultry Farm of Charlevoix County in Marion Township. Bill is the son of Russ and Jean Dohm, Route #2, Charlevoix. Main enterprise is poultry.

A variety of conservation practices have been applied on these farms which include: conservation crop rotations, cover crops, stripcropping systems, tile drainage, grade stabilization structures, waterways, irrigation systems, pond development, pollution abatement practices, tree planting critical area planting, woodland improvement practices.

'Competing harms' defense not allowed in Big Rock 14 case

Fourteen anti-nuclear power protestors – arrested on Consumers Power Co. property in December – cannot use "competing harms" as a defense against trespassing charges.

District Court Judge David Fershee made that ruling early last week.

The 14 – known as the Big Rock 14 – were arrested at the Big Rock Point nuclear power plant Dec. 2 after refusing to leave the premises. Defense attorney James Olson asked Fershee to consider "competing harms" as a defense in the case. Olson argued that the plant's operation was a greater harm than that of his clients trespassing.

Fershee, however, disagreed and sided with Charlevoix County Prosecutor Scott Beatty who argued that the protestors had other means to show their opposition to nuclear power.

He cited the case of State vs. Dorsey:

"To allow nuclear power plants to be considered a danger or harm within the meaning of that defense either at common law or under the statute would require lay jurors to determine in individual cases matters of State and national policy in a very technical field. Competing factions would produce extensive expert testimony on the danger or lack of danger of nuclear power plants, and jurors in each case would then be asked to decide issues already determined by the legislature. The competing harms statute is intended to deal only with harms that are readily apparent and recognizable to the average juror."

"Defendant and others who oppose nuclear power have other lawful means of protesting nuclear power; therefore, they are not justified in breaking the law."

Fershee said in the opinion that "the Court is not favoring or disfavoring nuclear power. The Court has its concerns about the nuclear issue, but ultimately can deal with the law as it relates to the defense relied upon."

On whether or not the defendants' had protection to exercise free speech and assembly under the 14th Amendment, Fershee said "the state is prohibited from giving a broader reading to the state free speech provisions than that given under the body of the First Amendment to the United States Constitution."

Fershee added that the "United States Constitution, cases interpreting it, and the Michigan Constitution do not provide a defense in these cases."

Bernice Wexstaff, Ralph Hamilton and Bunona Koehler ride on the Charlevoix Historical Society float in the 49th Venetian Festival. The three society members received the "Bob Miles Historical Award" Friday for service to the society and devotion to local history. Matilda Ikens, Charlevoix's oldest resident, is sitting in the rocking chair. Mrs. Dale Boss is pictured in the car.

Sensation captures North American 400

Sensation, owned by Steve Perry of the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club, won the 1979 North American 40 sailing championship Sunday.

After placing 10th in the first race, Sensation won the next two races (three race series) to nip Leading Edge, owned by Eugene Mondry of the Bayview Yacht Club.

Leading Edge took two second places and needed just a seventh place finish in the third race to win the championship. However, Sundance, owned by Don McQueen of the Bayview Yacht Club, nosed out Leading Edge by one second to claim seventh place in the third race. Leading Edge lost the points for the place and ended up ½ point behind Sensation.

Twenty-four boats - twice the size of a year ago - participated in the 2nd annual regatta on Lake Michigan.

Mondry did win the Barthel Trophy, which is presented to the champion of the Great Lakes Yacht Racing Union.

Leading Edge won the North American 40 class in the Bayview-Mackinac race two weeks ago, in addition to placing second here over the weekend.

Sundance and Drumbeat, owned by Dave Rodenkirk of the Milwaukee Yacht Club, tied for third. Mike Roth's Miclay of the Great Lakes Yacht Club finish fifth.

In the first race - the only race not won by Sensation - Frangipani, owned by Lyndon Lattie of the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club, took first.

Midwest introduces vacuum loader

A new and unique method of controlling dust during the loading of drums, trucks, rullcurs, barges and ships has recently been announced by Midwest International, Division of Ron Pair Enterprises.

The new Midwest vacuum loader is an integral dust filter and retractable bulk loading spout complete with fan and air reversing mechanism. This unit is designed to be attached directly to a silo hopper bottom, grain feed chute, screw conveyor, airslide or belt conveyor discharge chute.

The Midwest vacuum loader does not collect dust, it places the vehicle, container or vessel being loaded under a negative pressure or vacuum during the loading process, eliminating airborn particulate emissions. Dust particles contained within the unit during the loading are deposited into the container, vehicle or vessel.

Dust piping is not required due to the design of the equipment and where a normal installation would include a separate dust collector, fan, rotary airlock, dust collector valve, screw conveyor or other method of disposing of collecting dust and retractable bulk loading spout can now be replaced by one inexpensive vacuum loader.

The equipment is shipped completely assembled and prewired and is available in the agricultural series, as well as the heavy duty industrial series.

Although the basic Midwest Venturi and Scavenger design is used, the vacuum loader incorporates a new adjustable Venturi designed to handle a wide variety of materials and flow rates.

Society meets Tuesday

—The Charlevoix Historical Society will hold its regular monthly meeting Tuesday, August 7, in the Community Room of the First State Bank of Charlevoix.

Among the matters to be discussed is the recent acquisition by gift of the property at 103 State Street from the estate of Anne M. Harsha. Members who have information on the early history of this property are invited to present it.

The program will consist of a talk by Mrs. Alvin Joslyn, who will tell about her ancestors, Medad and Phoebe Thompson, believed to be the first permanent settlers in the Charlevoix area, in the early 1850's. At that time the Irish and Mormons had already established themselves on Beaver Island and were extending their influence to the mainland.

Everyone interested in the history of this area is invited to attend the meeting.

Watch out!

Motor vehicles which are abandoned in Charlevoix or which are illegally parked and must be towed away will be impounded in an area south of the Charlevoix County Sheriff's building.

The Charlevoix City Council last week approved a proposal worked out by the city and the county to provide the sheriff's area location which will offer "maximum security".

The arrangement was prompted by lack of adequate area elsewhere to park impounded vehicles, as well as the reluctance of wrecker operators to use private areas for this purpose because of the liability.

Charlevoix Police Chief Jack Mol and Sheriff George T. Lasater are working out the details.

Welch: 'Skimming' of tax funds a concern

Money being paid for higher gasoline taxes and license plate fees is not finding its way back to local road commissions the way it should.

That's the word of Earl F. Rogers, engineer-director of the County Road Association of Michigan.

According to Rogers, the costs of collecting the gasoline taxes and license plate fees are continuing to increase faster than the revenues, even when including the increase in taxes last year.

"The public should be made aware of the fact that close to five cents of every dollar of gas and weight tax is now going into state departments for the collection of the monies," Rogers said.

The total collection costs for fiscal year 1979-80 will be in excess of $38 million, up from the $18 million in the 1974-75 fiscal year. This increase amounts to an overall 111.7 percent increase in collection costs over the five-year period.

While gasoline taxes and license plate fees went up 47.8 percent in that length of time, the three state departments responsible for collecting and handling that money took disproportionate shares of it.

The share taken by the Department of Management and Budget went up 194.7 percent; that taken by the Department of State went up 120.8 percent; and that taken by the Department of the Treasury went up 48 percent. Something called "Miscellaneous" took out 115.7 percent more than it did five years ago.

"With the fuel taxes and weight tax promising to level off, and with the state departments continuing to grab a larger share of the taxes, the citizens of Michigan can look forward to less and less of the gas and weight tax dollar being utilized for transportation purposes," Rogers said.

Charlevoix County Road Commission Engineer-Manager Fred Welch added his concern about this "skimming" of tax funds when he appeared before the Board of Commissioners last week. Pointing out that the county must depend on this money for road maintenance, he asked the Commissioners to support the efforts of Senator DeSana of Wyandotte and Representative Mahalak of Romulus, co-chairmen of the legislative transportation subcommittee in requesting a review and analysis "of the justification for these continuing increases."

NRC: No fulltime inspector at Big Rock

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) has just turned down a request from Gov. Milliken for a fulltime inspector at the Big Rock Point Nuclear power plant.

Joseph Hendrie, NRC chairman, said the commission lacked money and reason to employ an inspector at the plant before 1981 when federal plans call for one to be appointed.

In a letter to Milliken, Hendrie said: "I am sympathetic with your request but find that the Nuclear Regulatory Commission will be unable to fulfill it. I regret the NRC cannot fulfill your request...this year.

"In view of Big Rock's relatively low priority we have decided not to change our schedule. Big Rock Point is not a high priority plant, despite its older design, because it has been one of the better operated plants."

Hendrie also said that extra inspectors cannot be added at this time because of the lengthy recruitment and training lead time and the limited availability of qualified personnel."

Until 1981, Hendrie said, inspectors from the NRC regional office in Chicago will continue to inspect the Consumers Power Co. plant. Last week inspectors told the NRC that components at the plant revealed loose nuts, bolts and clamps, missing parts and inadequate welds and cracks in steam pipes. But the inspectors added that all but one of the 19 "indications" of insufficiently installed components discovered during the Feb. 2 to April 13 check had been corrected.

Meanwhile, a Petoskey based anti-nuclear group has said it will try and stop Consumers Power Co. from increasing the waste storage capacity at the plant.

The Energy Resource Group will seek to intervene before the NRC sets hearings on the utility's application to increase the waste storage capacity from 193 to 441 waste fuel rods.

A spokesman for the group, Jim Gillespie, said the group's ultimate goal is the complete shutdown and decommission of the plant.

Dr. Dana Arvilla appointed specialist for 4-H Handicapper Mainstreaming project

EAST LANSING – Dr. Dana E. Arvilla has been appointed Extension specialist for the Michigan 4-H Handicapper Mainstreaming project, effective Aug. 6, 1979, pending approval of the Michigan State University Board of Trustees.

Arvilla will be responsible for providing statewide leadership involving and integrating youths and adults with handicapping conditions in on-going Michigan 4-H educational projects and activities. The program is being made possible by a joint grant from the W. K. Kellogg and Charles Stewart Mott foundation to the Michigan 4-H Foundation.

"The project is designed to go beyond Michigan's mandatory special education law and corresponding federal legislation which require that educational opportunities be made available to all individuals," Arvilla explains.

"We're interested not only in helping handicappers to perform in and adapt to the mainstream of life, but also in increasing the nonhandicapped individual's ability to accept and understand people with unique characteristics," she explains.

Arvilla began her career in the health field in 1977 as director of the Michigan Health Council's Quality of Life program. She has also served as an assistant editor for the Cooperative Extension Service community health program and as a consultant for Psychological Consulting Services, since 1977.

In 1978, Arvilla became program director for a seminar at Lansing Community College dealing with handicappers and their experiences.

She received her bachelor's degree in zoology from Michigan State University in 1972 and her Ph.D. degree from the MSU College of Human Medicine in 1976.

Arvilla resides in East Lansing.

Tax troubles

We received our Charlevoix City Summer tax bills on July 20th and were horrified at the 26% increase over a year ago. The reason for the shock was because for the past year every politician from Governor Milliken on down has praised and pushed the Headlee Amendment as the way to limit tax increases to no more than the Consumer Price Index and to not more than 7.7% for 1979.

We ask that the Charlevoix City assessor and the County Equalization Director independently give the taxpayers a complete and understandable explanation of why the Headlee Tax Limitation Amendment does not work in the City of Charlevoix. So, Mr. P. and Mrs B. we are waiting and listening.

And after that explanation perhaps they should tell us why when the tax bills were 20 days late that the city has not allowed an extra 20 days for payment without penalty?

At the moment we feel that the Charlevoix City officials have gone all out to rape their own taxpayers!

Editor's Note: The Courier contacted the City Manager's office and was informed that the deadline to pay taxes was extended from Sept. 1 to Sept 20.

Weed out the problem?

Editor:

On Friday, July 13, I called the Charlevoix Road Commission and told them the entranee to U.S. 31 from Norwood had weeds so high a small car might not be seen either direction and be involved in an accident. The man I talked with agreed it was a hazard and said they had someone working in the area and would take care of it.

As of this morning nothing had been done so I called again.

The man I talked with is supposed to be in charge of maintenance told me the Road Commission has two tractors to cut weeds and both were broken down. One tractor is a 1969 John Deere and the other an International about the same vintage. I suggested he send someone out with a scythe and he said they didn't have anyone available.

A few years ago taxes were about a quarter what they now are and the weeds were cut and brine put on the edge of the road. Now we don't even get the weeds cut. Maybe a solution would be a new Road Commission.

Sincerely,
Webster S. Francis,

Promote Michigan

Editor:

This letter is written in an effort to evoke some positive press concerning our great state. In particular to emphasis on the wondrous beauty of outstate.

Recently my wife and I had the privilege of touring Michigan from the Renaissance Center to Mackinac Island, from Traverse area to Lake Huron. We were showing off Michigan the Magnificent to her relatives from Finland. Being very proud of our great country, United States, we felt fortunate Michigan was our example. The history of our country and its great men may be relived in Greenfield Village. We walk the dunes of Sleeping Bear Park viewing the unending expanse of Lake Michigan, while aware of the eons of time locked beneath our feet. What a living tribute to one of Michigan's greatest, the late Senator Hart. To ride by horse around Mackinac Island viewing the great veranda of the Inn is indeed a trip in nostalgia. Walking the field and the buildings of the Old Fort, one cannot help but live briefly in history. Traverse the Gem of the West with its peninsulas and bays affording a scenic back-drop for the many cherry-orchards. Who can forget the beauty of the woods, fields and lakes of north Central Michigan truly a nature lover's land. Sir, this is but a part of Michigan, lodestone of the mid-west.

However grand and exhilerating this tour was, there was a very sad note. Tourism is done quite a bit. I asked why? The answer was always the same. The media is its exploitation of the alleged gasoline problem. There is plenty of gasoline outstate, I full realize the great city media is attuned to tragedy, crime and corruption, and those stories do create interest. The outstate tourist industry is a very important segment of our economy. These people are industrious, imaginative tax-Paying business people. They are in area abounding in the natural beauty of Michigan, where beauty and freedom sing sonnets of the Supreme Creator to the viewer.

As a resident of Southeastern Michigan I would like to see all the powerful city media of Michigan iniate a campaign of positive and productive thought for all of Michigan. People are going to Vacation, let us not kid ourselves, Washington retoric or not. Why not vacation in nature's wonderland? You have some of the finest investigative reporters in the country in this state. Why not turn them loose in outstate Michigan. You may be pleasantly surprised to find out how wonderful it is. Talk with some of the rural newspaper editors, the down to earth, positive thinking civic minded people.

Sincerely,
John H. McDermott, Sr.

Whew! What a festival

Whew! It's over! And what a Venetian Festival it was!

Although reports on the number of people in town vary depending on who you talk to, it is pretty generally agreed that attendance at the street parade Saturday afternoon must have set a record.

Saturday afternoon the crowds thinned out, but Bridge Street and East Park were jammed again Saturday night for the boat parade — which everyone is calling the "best ever" — and the outrageously beautiful fireworks that put the cap on a perfect day.

I wonder I how many hands had a part In the festival — the folks who manned the East Park booths, the coordinators in the Chamber of Commerce office, the boaters who decorated their crafts, the marchers in the street parade, the fellows and gals who built the floats. The figure must run into the thousands.

But it was well worth it.

Of course, one of the nicest things about the Venetian Festival is that it has become sort of a community-wide homecoming for the people of Charlevoix. Friends and former residents suddenly show up in town and house parties are the order of the day as the whole community slips Into a holiday mood.

To be sure, it helps when the weatherman cooperates, as he did this year.

The only sad note in the Venetian Festival was the absence uf the high school band from the line-of-march during the street parade. The band, as you know, is between directors and without a director a band is not a band.

The parade was not without music, thanks to the participation of the Epsilon Jass Band, High Country, Al Breeze from Grey Gables and various church combos, but the Charlevoix High School Marching Band would have made a big difference.

We will appreciate these talented young musicians all the more when they take part in next summer's festival.

I suppose the nicest thing about the Venetian Festival this year was the fact that it gave us a breather from the grievous problems facing the nation: An out-of-control inflation rate, skyrocketing gasoline prices, the grim prospect of recession, and the liklihood of fuel oil shortages this winter.

But for one weekend, at least, these problems were forced into the shadows.

Although the Venetian Festival traditionally is considered the highlight of the summer season in Charlevoix, four full weeks of August still lie ahead, with sidewalk days next weekend, followed by the Waterfront Fair for Artists and Craftsmen on Aug. 11.

Does anyone know what happened to July?

HAVE YOU NOTICED that many folks around town already have started working on their woodpiles for next winter? Pickups tool through town carrying stout blocks ul maple and the whirr of chain saws has started to blend with the roar and clatter of power mowers.

All of which conjures up pictures of the towering snowbanks we lived under last January and February, which is certainly a sobering thought at the end of a glorious summer week.

Employers shoulder burden of inflation

When our country suffers a major recession, such as the one in 1974-75, the State of Michigan is hit particularly hard. When our country catches cold, the state gets pneumonia. Because automobiles are often considered expendable major purchases, people will put off buying a new car when money is tight. As a result, the automakers are often forced to lay off thousands of workers, and the state has to make sure these people get their unemployment compensation benefits.

During the recession of 74-75, Michigan was forced to borrow from the federal government to meet these unemployment insurance costs. The U.S. government has said that Michigan, along with the 17 other states that borrowed money at that time, must repay the debts by 1980. Our state owes $624 million.

Michigan is dutifully paying off its debt, and so are the other states. However, it is impossible to meet the 1980 deadline. A .3 percent federal penalty tax will be levied against employers if this debt is not repaid next year. This tax will increase by .3 percent each year until the debt is paid in full.

It is totally unfair to penalize states and their employers for compensating employees during times of recession. I have co-sponsored a bill, IIR 3937, called the Unemployment Compensation Cost Equalization Act, which would require the Secretary of the Treasury to compensate states for a portion of their unemployment benefit costs if the state's insured employment rate for that year was at least 6 percent, and if the benefit payments for that year exceed the unemployment payments received by the state treasury. This legislation will enable Michigan and the other states to repay their debts without penalty, and will prevent similar situations in the future.

Earlier this year the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) requested funding in their 1980 budget to establish five new ocean/marine service centers for the National Weather Service. None of these centers was planned for the Great Lakes.

We have had several near disasters, and some very tragic accidents on the Great Lakes. Our lakes are notorious for having very rapidly-changing weather, and a top-notch marine weather forecasting center would certainly provide a very worthwhile service.

The Merchant Marine Act of 1970 gave full accreditation to the Great Lakes Seacoast, providing equal standing with the East, Gulf and West Coasts, yet the Great Lakes and their ports are still sadly neglected.

Michigan has more miles of shoreline than any other state in the nation. The largest concentration of recreational boating in the United States is from Fairport Harbor, Ohio to Port Huron, Michigan. More tonnage passes through the Soo Locks annually than the Suez and Panama combined. With the tightening on energy supplies nationally, I am confident that water transportation in the Great Lakes will increase.

I understand that such a marine forecasting center could be established for the Great Lakes with a minimum of additional personnel and funding. The benefits received in the form of protection of property and human lives would far outweigh the cost.

I have written to the Administrator of the NOAA, asking them to consider establishing a marine-weather forecasting center on the Great Lakes. They responded by saying that regional forecasting coordination is ensured by the Great Lakes Marine Circuit (weather service forecast offices on the Great Lakes are currently located at Chicago, Cleveland, Ann Arbor and Buffalo). The NOAA conceded, however, that there may be certain advantages to a single Marine Service/Forecast Center for the Great Lakes, and they have asked the National Weather Service to study this option. A NOAA weather radio station will also be operating at Houghton by mid-summer.

I will continue to do what I can to acquire a marine-weather forecasting center for the Great Lakes, and will keep you posted of any progress.

On to the great grasshopper war

WASHINGTON – Put the Camp David Summit, the reborn President, Hamilton Jordan and the shuffled Cabinet aside. The government's newest concern is the republic's worst infestation of grasshoppers since the dust bowl Thirties.

The Department of Agrieulture launched a major offensive against this enemy in recent weeks. Indeed, western skies resembled war on some days because the pesticide attack plane fleet included B-17's, PB-4Y's and Martin 404's, PV-2's, Constellations, C-119's and vintage Dc-2's, -3's and-4's.

These larger planes took precedence over smaller Cessnas and Grumann Ag-Cats because of the sharp escalation in the war. Some 7.2 million acres were sprayed-in 17 states this season to get those multiplying grasshoppers which were chewing away on grangeland, and threatening cropland. Last year the grasshoppers were also a serious menace, but only one million acres were sprayed. The last big anti-grasshopper campaign by the federals was in 1958, when 4.6 million acres were sprayed.

Some accounts of the grasshopper problem liken it to ancient plagues, and of course, this evokes the deep human fear of unstoppable swarms of insects conquering the planet.

But there are grasshoppers, as we call them in the United States, and there are grasshoppers called locusts in Africa and Asia. We're lucky. Our are mostly satisfied to eat everything around them and not look for other regions or continents to conquer. Like the people of France, our grasshoppers migrate only under severe pressure. Ours are not like the locusts which Moses got the Lord to make rise over Egypt, covering, "...the whole face of the earth, wasting all things...the grass of the earth was devoured, and what fruits soever were on the trees...there remained not anything that was green on the trees..."

But ours are voracious enough. When the count is eight per square yard, they cun eat as much forage as a cow. That's when the alert is sounded. In some parts of the great plains, over 100 per square yard have been counted, and that makes farmers reach for the pesticides quick.

In the Thirties, horrible mixes of lead arsenic were used. They gave way to DDT after World War II, but it was outlawed by the Environmental Protection Agency, as were two subsequent grasshopper killers. Other chemicals were developed, among them malathion and carbaryl (known also as Sevin), the USDA's preferred weapons.

But In South Dakota, where grasshopper infestation is most acute, the state department of agriculture wanted to get the least expensive, sure-killer available, and that is toxaphene.

There is evidence that toxaphene works through the food chain and shows up in milk and meat.

The EPA forbids use of toxaphene in mass spraying, but granted South Dakota a "variance" in regulations on an emergency basis. But before grasshopper farmers could cut loose with the stuff, the Audubon Society got an injunction in federal court (June 22) against EPA, stalling toxaphene's use until this week.

In that month of delay, farmers in South Dakota and other hard-hit states, presumably went to alternative pesticides. The upshot is that the National Agricultural Chemicals Assn., which feels toxaphene is safe and should be used, now argues that the fight against insects has been downhill since the banning of DDT. The chemical manufacturers point out that the price of taking every theoretical risk out of our lives is high and becoming higher. To put it in an extreme framework, what good is the land, in terms of environment, if the grasshoppers strip it bare?

Well, the war against grasshoppers hasn't gone all that badly yet, though these words are hardly solace for farmers in western South Dakota and other areas where the problem is very serious.

At stake, of course, is a treasure in alfalfa, wheat, corn, cotton and grazing lands – all in those 17 Western states. Midwestern farmers are also concerned this summer that their indigenous grasshoppers are swarming and showing up in far greater numbers than last year. It is too early to make an assessment of how the farmers vs. grasshoppers battle in the Midwest will go.

Considering all the fretting and fussing in Washington over the way Jimmy Carter has changed directions in recent weeks, I guess this war on grasshoppers doesn't seem so important. But it is because it is one of those eternals and deals with life and death. It is a relief to write about grasshoppers – I must say.

Harder to raise children?

Wherever parents gather, the question comes up whether it is harder to raise children nowadays than it used to be.

The vute is n unanimous, "Yes!"

Everyone, has ther theories and I have mine. I think a lot of it hinges on the passing of laws that worked on us, but are frowned upon by modern-day parents.

For exainple, who among you over age 30 can ever forget the Hit-Now-Ask-Later Disciplinary Act used by your parents. It worked very simply. Whenever your mother "thought" you did something, she'd reach over and give yuu a swat. When it was proven you didn't do it, she reminded you of her bookkeeping system where that rap was for all the times she didn't see you when you did do something. For some reason, I always owed her. She never owed me.

I miss using the Search and Seizure Statute. I cannot, for a minute, inage my mother standing outside of a closed door in respect for my privacy saying, "Do you have a dog in there?"

Yet, the other day when I was missing my tennis racket, I was not pernitted to enter my kids' rooms until they were sure I was only looking for my racket. No one will ever convince me that they did nut flush my racket down the connode.

Our children don't know how lucky they are to be protected by the You-Cannot-Be-Tried-Twice-for-the-Same-Crime Decision. I was tried at least 5,000 times for a lamp I broke while doing a cartwheel in the living room. To this day whenever I make an illegal left turn, or drop an egg on the floor, my mother will remind me of the lamp.

A lot of laws for raising children have gone by the boarders in the past twenty years. Some of them should have gone. I always felt that soap in the mouth was never an effective cure for profanity, and switching legs with branches from a tree was not in the best interest of ecology.

But sometimes when I've listened to a child take three hours to tell about a movie that only lasted an hour and a half, I yearn for the days when you didn't "have a right to remain silent"...you had a duty!

A perfect investment?

Is there such a thing as a perfect investment, one that is all things to all investors? The answer, of course, is no. No single investment could be that good. But just as Detroit keeps trying to build the perfect automobile, Wall Street keeps working on the perfect investment model.

One of the best investment packages to issue forth from the financial center in recent years is a little creation called the unit trust.

What accounts for the popularity of unit trusts are the niany benefits that are built into them.

High on the popularity list of such benefits is the monthly payout feature. Many unit trusts are designed to pay dividends monthly, quarterly or semi-annually. Some also provide an automatic dividend re-investment feature that permits the dividends to be plowed back each time they are paid, at no expense to the investor.

Most investors would agree that a perfect investment is one in which the risk of principal is small. Unit trusts shine in this department too. At least most of them do. The more popular unit trusts are comprised of high quality ones (A rated, or better) and safety is further enhanced by diversification. Most trusts have at least 20 different bonds in their portfolio.

The bonds that are selected for each unit trust are picked by professional bond people. In my opinion this is a very important benefit. Most investors don't know how to analyze bonds. It is easy, therefore, to buy a pig in a poke. Relying on bond specialists is the safest way to travel.

A perfect investment should also pay a high rate of return (commensurate with risk taken, of course), at least as high, or higher than competing investment alternatives (CD's annuities, etc.) Most popular these days aare unit trusts comprised of tax exempt bonds. They're currently yielding in the seven percent ballpark, some a tad higher. Corporate bond unit trusts are also available with returns in the neighborhood of ten percent. One can even buy Ginny Mae trusts (stands for Government National Mortgate Authority – GNMA) which return both income and principal on a monthly basis. Rates of return here are also in the ten percent area.

So, like I said, the perfect investment hasn't yet been designed, but the unit trust is a significant improvement over older investment models.

Bills signed into law

The Governor has signed a bill increasing the amount paid out of the public school employee's retirement system for health insurance premiums. Under the new law, which will go into effect immediately, the system will pay $40 per month rather than $31 to retirees who are members of an authorized group health insurance plan. The increase was designed to meet a hike in the premium for Blue Cross/Blue Shield coverage.

• • • •

The Governor also signed into law a bill that limits an employer's liabilty for employees exposed to PBB. Sponsored by Republican Floor Leader J. Michael Busch of Saginaw, the new act is aimed at helping former employees of the company which once manufactured PBB find new jobs.

An employer's liability would be limited to $12,500 with reimbursement for any additional benefits coming from the Silicosis and Dust Disease Fund, to which all insurance carriers and self-insured employees contribute.

• • • •

Another new act will extend the interim period available for the Governor and the Legislature to approve or disapprove the State Health Plan from the original 30 legislative days to 60 legislative days.

Hot line to cut red tape?

State Senator Mitch Irwin (D-Sault Ste. Marie) today announced the establishment of a toll-free "Hot Line" designed to make state government more accessible and responsive to the people of northern Michigan.

"I have consistently pledged to provide the best public service possible," said Irwin. "This "Hot Line" will help fulfill that commitment. I am pleased that the Michigan Senate has been able to install this toll-free line as a public service to the citizens of Michigan."

Aside from calling Sen. Irwin's regular telephone (517/373-1725), constituents calling the toll-free number - 1-800-292-5893 - can leave a message for Sen. Irwin with the Secretary of the Senate's office. Phone calls received between the hours of 9:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday, will be forwarded to Sen. Irwin's office.

"This new Hot Line will provide the residents of the 37th Senatorial District with a simple and economical method of contacting me about any state governmental issue," said Irwin. "If you have a question about legislation, need help in cutting through bureaucratic 'red tape,' or want to voice an opinion, call the toll-free "Hot Line" at 1-800-292-5893- and your message will receive prompt attention.

SAFE Boating TIPS

INSPECTIONS

Marine officers of the Sheriff's Department are allowed, under state law, to stop your vessel just to inspect your boat's required safety equipment. Items such as life preservers, fire extinguisher, and horn or whistle may be examined. The inspection takes just a few minutes and COULD prevent an injury or loss of personal property. Boats which pass the inspection are given a decal or "sticker" to dtsplay. Boat owners may also request an inspection if they wish.

Mothers of Twins Club plan campout

The Michigan Organization of Mothers of Twins Club will meet at the Open Gate Campground on Wickersham Road for its second annual campout on Aug. 3, 4, and 5, Mrs. Robert Goodenough of Boyne City, campout chairman, has announced.

The Michigan organization is composed of 21 clubs with a membership of 700 whose purpose is to bring together mothers of multiple birth children throughout the state and to provide them with knowledge and help for them and their families. The group stresses the importance of individualizing multiples and participates in yearly service projects, Mrs. Goodenough explained.

The campout is relatively new to the organization, the first one having been held in 1978 at Coldwater. Fun for the entire family is the objective and all area parents and families are invited to attend.

Activities planned for the weekend include such things as volleyball and softball games, scavenger hunt, Dads and Kids fishing derby, lumberman's breakfast, hayride, twin judging and potluck supper.

Saturday night will be a big night with many activities planned including a potluck supper to which all families with multiple births are invited. They are asked to bring their own table service and both a hot and cold dish to pass.

The Open Gate Campground is located near the corner of Wickersham and Ferry Roads off M-66 near Ironton. More information on the campout may be obtained by calling Mrs. Goodenough at 547-7042.

Mrs. Goodenough is a member of the Southwestern Michigan Mother of Twins Club and second vice president of the Michigan organization. She is a summer resident of Boyne City and campout chairman.

Other state officers are Eleanor Jesswein, Macomb County MOTC; president; Thalia Forist, Grand Rapids MOTC, first vice president; Renee' Warrick, Macomb MOTC, treasurer; Helene Czarnopys, Grand Rapids MOTC, corresponding secretary; Margaret Lennon, Saginaw MOTC, recording secretary.

Others in charge of the campout are Pauline Morel, Bay County MOTC, state librarian; Liz Mills, Wayne County MOTC, past state president; Marilyn MacDonald, Greater Kalamazoo MOTC, state editor and Marleen Treglowne, Western Wayne County MOTC, state booklet chairman.

Parents of multiple births in northern Michigan are urged to attend the outing on Saturday or visit the group during their three-day visit to the area.

Redford residents win award

A Redford woman and her 11 year-old son received Citizen Awards Wednesday morning from Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater.

Nancy and John Lengyel received the awards for saving the lives of three Detroit area residents on Sunday, July 22.

According to Sheriff Lasater:

"While camping at Young's State Park with his family, 11 year-old John Lengyel noticed three adults attempting to swim to shore from their moored boat off the shore from the park. John noticed that the subjects had stopped swimming and were calling for 'help'. Realizing that they were in trouble, John took his inflated tire innertube and started swimming towards the adults. When he reached them they were at the point of exhaustion. By this time John's mother, Mrs. Nancy Lengyel, had also gotten an innertube and swam out to assist. With the aid of the mother and son, the three adults were brought into shore. One of the adults had to be revived and taken to Little Traverse Hospital by the Boyne City ambulance."

Lasater said the three survivors -who wished not to be identified- said "we would not be alive today if it had not been for the Lengyel family."

John said the swimmers (two men and a woman) were about 100 yards offshore in "deep" water when he heard their cries for help. According to Lasater, the woman "panicked" after diving off the boat and pushed the two men under as they attempted to keep her afloat.

Live folk music celebration is planned

Central Michigan University's public radio stations, WCMU-FM and WCMU-FM will host and broadcast a live folk music celebration on Saturday, August 4 starting at 8 p.m.

Billed as "Live From Our Front Porch", the celebration will feature area folk music enthusiasts as performers and participants in the studio of WCMU-FM located on the lower level of Anspach Hall on the CMU campus in Mt. Pleasant.

Central and northern Michigan residents are invited to join in the festivities by bringing in their fiddles, banjos, guitars, and other folk instruments, or by coming to the studio to clap their hands, stomp their feet, and take part in an old-fashioned evening of home grown entertainment. Those who are unable to come can enjoy the evening's celebration by tuning to WCMU-FM, 89.5 or WCML-FM, 91.7.

"Port City Bluegrass" will lead off the festivities at 8 p.m. Members of this group hail from the Big Rapids area and include Mare Conley, banjo and drobo; Danny Seaboldt, fiddle; Nate Myers, mandolin and fiddle; David Seaboldt, guitar; and John Colton, bass.

Other expected guests include Cloise Sinclair of Sheridan and his brother Harvey Sinclair of Cedar Springs; Rick Smalley and Robert Louiseil of Mt. Pleasant; and Don Van Duren and friends, also from the Mt. Pleasant area. The Sinclairs are hammer dulcimer speciailists, Smalley and Louiseil make up a guitar – banjo duo, and Van Duren and his friends plan to bring along a variety of popular folk instruments, including fiddles and duleimers.

"Live From Our Front Porch" is a highlight of "Summer Sound 79", the annual fundraising drive for WCMU-FM and WCML-FM. The celebration will start at 8 p.m. and last until everyone is ready to go home. Refreshments will be served to all musicians and those who just come to watch. The evening will take on a folksy air with the relaxed atmosphere of old-time front porch songfests.

The Office

TC squad wins tournament

The Office, a team out of Traverse City, coasted through the winner's bracket of the fourth annual Venetian Festival Invitational Fastpitch tournament held here over the weekend to take the title.

Ten teams from throughout the state participated in the popular event which saw Spare Time Lanes come out of the loser's bracket to challenge The Office for the title before the Traverse City outfit managed a 3-2 win.

In the final game The Office scored three runs on seven hits given up by Matt Skiera of Cheboygan's Spare Time Lanes. Bob Carpenter allowed five hits but Spare Time only managed two runs in a well played game.

To get into the finals Spare Time edged Cheboygan's K of C's 3-2 with Clayton McGovern on the mound and Earl Wright pitching for the Knights. A home run by Matt Skiera helped Spare Time capitalize on their eight hits.

Earlier The Office had shut out Reef Petroleum of Traverse City 5-0 though Bernie Kulik had allowed Reef five runs while his own team collected eight off the losing pitcher Tim Rozich.

Spare Time Lanes then came back to shut out Reef Petroleum in the loser's bracket behind the pitching of Skiera who allowed Reef four hits Bob Loveland gave the winners eight. The final score was 4-0.

In earlier games the KC's allowed 10 runs and 12 hits with Earl Wright on the mound for the Knights while The Petoskey Eagles scored only two runs on six hits. Leo Sobleski was the losing pitcher.

In the opening games, the Petoskey Eagles, with Ed Kulik pitching scored only one run on six hits to lose to the KC's of Cheboygan, Ron Brandeau pitching, after the Knights scored two runs on four hits. Glen Morse had a home run for the losers and Ron Stempkey one for Cheboygan.

The Office started its trek to the finals in the next game, a 3-1 win over Ferguson Surveying, the defending champion, Bill Green pitched for the victors and Jim Potter for the Charlevoix team.

Reef Petroleum came on strong, behind the pitching of Loveland, to shut-out Spare Time Lanes 3-0.

Denny Gunderson scored a home run for Kaden's of Petoskey with Ron Schafer doing the pitching to knock the Travelers of Pontiac into the loser's bracket by a score of 7-1. Tunn Gowreluk was the losing pitcher.

The Knights of Cheboygan got a homer from Marty Stempke's bat to help them edge Gino's of Lansing 7-6. Wright was one the mound for Cheboygan. Steve Pollock did the pitching for Gino's.

Mark Preseau and Joe Darcy with home runs to their credit helped Leo Sobleski shutout the Surveyors who had Dave Siegrist on the mound as the Eagles won 8-0.

Heck's Bar of Saginaw with Jerry Schley doing the pitching managed only one hit as they were defeated by Kaden's 6-0. Jim Burnell was the winning pitcher.

With George Wheelock on the mound, Spare Time dumped the Traveler and Jack McDaniels 4-1.

In the next game the Eagles eliminated Heck's Bar 10-8 os Chuek Wagar and Phill Croff clouted homers for the victors.

Spare Time marched one step closer to the finals in the next game as the keglers up-ended Gino's 9-1 with Wheelock pitching for the winners and Pollock for the losers.

The Office, intent on its forward march, shut out the KC's 2-0 with Rob Carpenter holding the Knights to four hits while his team collected seven.

Reef Petroleum took Kaden's in the next game 4-1.

Later Kaden's fell victim to Spare Time 3-2 before Spare Time downed the Knights by the same score in the 16th game.

Spare Time Lanes played a total of seven games in the tournament to four for the tournament champions.

Spare Time Lanes George Wheelock was named the tournament's most Valuable Player after pitching three games, playing at third base and in the outfield and batting .304 for the tournament. Spare Time's Scott Hancock was named the outstanding In-fielder and Mike Doriot of The Office staff, the most outstanding outfielder.

Military Band at Interlochen 8 p.m. tonight

INTERLOCHEN — Music with a military flair comes to the National Music Camp's Interlochen Arts Festival Wednesday, Aug. 1 with a performance by the U.S. Coast Guard Band.

The band will play a free concert at 8 p.m. in the Interlochen Bowl. Under the direction of Lieutenant Lewis J. Buckley, its 45 members will perform a variety of marches, jazz and popular music.

The band is the official musical representative of the nation's smallest service organization, the United States Coast Guard, as well as the Coast Guard's parent organization, the U.S. Department of Transportation.

Formed in 1925 with the help of John Philip Sousa, it is based at the home of the Coast Guard Academy in New London, Conn.

In addition to playing for official and military ceremonies, the Coast Guard band is on tour almost every month. By the end of 1979, the musical organization will have been on the road fur over 100 days and performed in 65 cities in 22 states and the District of Columbia.

New champs in tennis tourney

New champions were named as a successful Venetian Open Tennis Tournament ended late Sunday according to Dwight Boss, City Recreation Director.

Mark Winnard and Dave Dickinson emerged as winners of the men's doubles, both new names in this category; Eric Lundteigen took the men's singles; Sally Hatch, the women's singles and Gina Lepmon and Elizabeth Swanson, the women's doubles. Some have played in past tournaments; others were new to play here.

With 14 duos entered in the men's doubles, Winnard and Dickinson trimmed Lundteigen and Drew Wachler 6-2, 6-2 to take the title in the men's double after the Lundteigen-Wachler twosome had defeated Mark Lignell and Brian Osterberg in three sets 6-4, 2-6, 6-3 and Winnard and Diekinson had stopped Gale Sheldon and Mike Dickens 7-6, 7-6.

Lundteigen advanced to the finals in the singles after stopping Dick Hendershott 7-5, 6-3 and Tim Elenbaas had won over Mark Lignell 6-3, 6-2 in the lower bracket.

In the finals Lundteigen downed Elenbaas in three sets 2-6, 6-2, 6-2 to top a full compliment of 16 entries.

With 13 of the 16 slots filled Sally Hatch, a new youngster to the tournament, took a tough match from Janet Friedinger in three sets by scores of 2-6, 6-2, 6-4 to meet Shari Fineman, another newcomer in the finals. Fineman had won over Sharon Weinman 6-2, 6-2 to get a chance at Hatch in the finals.

Hatch got off to a strong start and defeated Fineman 6-0, 6-1 for the women's single's title.

There were several new faces in the women's singles this time. Lepman and Swanson, who drew a first round bye, defeated Debbie Feldman and Stacey Shagrin 6-0, 6-1 while in the lower bracket Friedinger, teamed with Shelly Knight, were winning over the Misrachs, Julie and Patty, 6-2, 6-3.

In the finals Lepman and Swanson had no trouble taking the title from Friedinger and Knight by a score of 6-3, 6-2.

Each year this event has been one of the most popular of those planned during the Venetian Festival.

Over 300 compete in footraces

The second annual Venetian Festival attracted more than 300 participants in three different distances of footraces over three different courses which resulted in many new times being set for the one mile, 3.1 mile and 6.2 mile races Pete Spieles, general chairman of the event, has announced.

Housing project for elderly to be reviewed

The Northwest Michigan Region Planning and Development Commission will review the Charlevoix Housing Commission's proposed housing project for the elderly Friday.

The commission is asking for a grant and loan to develop a three story apartment building on a 5.5 acre site in Charlevoix which will provide 62 apartment units for low income elderly households, under the guidelines for the Department of Housing and Urban Development Public Housing Program.

The proposed 5.5 acre site is on Garfield Avenue between State and Grant streets.

The commission recently met in the HUD offices in Grand Rapids for a project planning conference. Present for the meeting were Elmer Veen, multi-family housing director, and several of his staff; George Ross and Bernard Mack, consultants to the commission; and architects representing the Daverman Associates.

The purpose of the meeting was to develop overall strategy and a time schedule for action to be taken during the planning and construction of the project. The commission presented an option on the selected site and requested site approval by HUD officials as soon as possible.

The commission has learned that Daverman Associates will have a schematic design ready by Friday.

Book sale Aug. 10-11

The annual book sale sponsored by the Charlevoix Women's Club will be held Friday and Saturday, August 10 and 11 from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. at the Charlevoix Public Library.

The club is asking that donations of books and magazines be taken to the lower level of the library. All donations will be appreciated and are welcome between now and August 9.

Mrs. Otto Wiesmyer, Mrs. Charles A. Duerr, and Mrs. Eugene Bergmann are in charge of this year's fund-raiser.

During the past year, the Charlevoix Women's Club has contributed funds to the Charlevoix Band Shell project, the Charlevoix Area Hospital fund, the Women's Resources Center, and the Chico Fund for the benefit of local Indian children.

Airport work slated

Bids will be taken Aug. 8 in Lansing for the installation of a beacon, lighting for the runway and a wind cone at the Beaver Island Airport.

Bids will be taken at 10:30 a.m. in the Lansing Civic Center.

The project is expected to cost about $30,000 and is scheduled to be completed by December.

Bids will also be taken for the installation of lighting for the runway and taxiway at the Mackinac Island Airport.

The real challenge in soaring is keeping plane up

Meet Charlevoix

Skip Heimbecker

Charlevoix business man "Skip" Heimbecker has an unusual hobby – soaring. He is a member of the Northwest Soaring Club in Frankfort and last week brought a sail plane to Charlevoix so the general public could learn what the sport is all about.

COURIER: How do you get a sail plane up in the air?

HEIMBECKER: There are three ways: towing by a winch, towing behind a car (which is the same principle as a boy running with a kite), and also towing by an airplane.

COURIER: How long can a sail plane stay up in the air?

HEIMBECK: A modern sail plane can stay up all day with the right weather conditions. The world record for distance is over 1,000 miles, with an average speed of 100 miles an hour.

COURIER: What about wind?

HEIMBECKER: Wind isn't necessarily a factor. You can soar on a calm day as well as a windy day.

COURIER: How high do you soar?

HEIMBECKER: The sail plane record is now in excess of 35,000 feet. In Michigan the average soaring is done at 5,000 to 6,000 feet.

COURIER: How do you land?

HEIMBECKER: You can land any time just like a plane. The real challenge is to keep it up. Soaring a sail plane is comparable to sailing a boat around a race course.

COURIER: How many passengers can a sail plane carry?

HEIMBECKER: There are two-place sail planes.

COURIER: Are sail planes and sail plane pilots under the jurisdiction of the Federal Aviation Agency?

HEIMBECKER: Yes, instructors have to be certified and pilots have to be licensed just the same as other pilots.

COURIER: Are sail planes expensive?

HEIMBECKER: A two-place sail plane used around here costs about $10,000 to $18,000. They last at least 20 years or more because there's nothing to wear out. There's no engine vibration to cause wear, and they're normally stored inside and used in nice weather. Of course, when you belong to a Soaring Club, you can use their sail planes.

COURIER: Have you ever owned a sail plane?

HEIMBECKER: Yes, I just sold it last month. Now I want to buy a motor glider, which is self-launching. When you're up in the air, you just turn the engine off and enjoy soaring.

COURIER: How many members are there in the Frankfort Soaring Club?

HEIMBECKER: About eight, plus some out-of-towners who may come in about once a year. I'd be glad to talk to anyone who thinks he might be interested in joining.

COURIER: What are your business interests in town?

HEIMBECKER: We have two laundromats and a car wash which we bought last September when we moved up here from Troy.

COURIER: What did you do before that?

HEIMBECKER: Sold real estate. I also worked for Michigan Bell for 14 years, did marine towing in Detroit for six years, and was in the saddle-repairing business for a while. I taught leather-working when I was in the Army. My mechanical background and aptitude come in handy at the laundromats and car wash. When we came up here, we were really looking for a resort to buy, but ended up buying the laundromats.

COURIER: Had you ever been in Charlevoix before?

HEIMBECKER: No, but my grandfather and other relatives lived in Cheboygan. My mother was raised there.

COURIER: Is your wife associated with you in business?

HEIMBECKER: Yes, Rose Ann runs the laundromats and supervises the girls working there, and also does the book work. I just do the mechanical work. Rose Ann and I met at Michigan Bell.

COURIER: Your businesses operate long hours, don't they?

HEIMBECKER: Yes, the laundromats are open from seven in the morning to eight at night seven days a week, and the car was is open from six in the morning to midnight seven days a week.

COURIER: Where do you live?

HEIMBECKER: South of town, between Norwood and Atwood, in the woods. We're thoroughly enjoying it and are impressed by the friendly people.

COURIER: Do you have hobbies other than soaring?

HEIMBECKER: A few – model planes, skiing, hunting, fishing, leather-working. I used to have sailboats and would like to get back into sailing.

Barb Fels (left) and Andy Robinson rehearse a scene from "The Hostage," a three act comedy opened Sunday at The Dilworth in Boyne City. The play will be performed Wednesday and Sunday nights – starting at 8 p.m. through Aug. 5. Tickets are $3 with the option of dinner off the Dilworth menu.

Wilhelme to give keynote address

Frank C. Wilhelme, executive director of The Historical Society of Michigan, will keynote this year's annual meeting of the Little Traverse Regional Historical Society to be held Sunday, August 5, at 2 p.m. in the Museum Building.

The historian will talk on the "Value of Local History", and the importance local history organizations can have on their local community.

The executive director earned his B.A. and M.A. degrees in history at Eastern Michigan University and was the youngest persun ever to head the state-wide organization when he took charge in 1970.

In addition to the guest speaker, members will elect four new directors to its board, as well as hear committee reports on membership, treasury and the museum. President Newell Saigeon will also deliver his president's report.

The museum is located on the Petoskey Waterfront and the public is invited.

Blood pressure clinic Saturday

The pressure is on...to detect persons with high blood pressure!

A free blood pressure clinic will be offered at Crown Drug located at Captain's Corner from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 4. The clinic is sponsored by the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging.

The goal is to detect unknown hypertension patients, so they may seek treatment before it is too late, Jack Urben of Crown Drug said in announcing that he was offering the use of his facility for the service. The results of the examination will be reported to the physician of the patient's choice.

International adventure available to area families

If you've ever dreamed of taking part in an international adventure, there's an organization that can help you fulfill those dreams.

Youth for Understanding, the largest high school exchange program in the world, will place some 4,000 teenagers from 26 overseas countries with American families this August. Most students have already been assigned to host families, but some students are still anxiously awaiting the news of their "new" family.

Linda Patton is seeking host families in this area. Mrs. Patton, local area representative for Youth for Understanding, says "I am looking for families who are interested in sharing their lives with a young person from another country. A host family needs to be curious, adventurous, and interested in young people and in other cultures."

The non-profit organization matches teenagers such as Jari Huuskonen and Tor Befring to compatable American families. These students are looking forward to the chance to live as an American for 11 months, and to share their own cultures with their American family.

Jari is from Finland and will be 18 when he arrives. His hobbies are swimming, weight lifting, ice hockey, tennis, volleyball and basketball. He hopes to be placed in a family which has children his own age. He plays the guitar occasionally for his own enjoyment. He says, "I think I'm a well balanced and normal person. I have many good friends and we usually have a lot of fun together."

Tor is Norwegian and will be 16 when he arrives. His hobbies are cross country-skiing, orienteering, swimming, skiing, soccer, and reading. He is a boy scout and hopes to be placed in a host family with children which is closely knit. He would like a family with children. He says, "I easily make contact with other people and have a cheerful disposition. I am usually friendly and easy-going and persistent with my hobbies." Though his grades are good, he says he is indifferent to his homework.

Youth for Understanding students live with their host family as a member of the family, not as a guest. Each student has a medical insurance and is responsible for his own personal expenses and spending money. The host family provides room, board, local transportation and the same care and guidance they would give their own children. The exchange student becomes a real member of the family. Youth for Understanding provides cultural orientations and local and national support through a network of volunteers and staff.

Patton encourages anyone interested in learning more about the opportunity to host an international student or in the opportunities for an American student to go abroad under the Youth for Understanding program to contact her at 307 Third St., East Jordan, Michigan, 49727, or phone her at (616) 536-2504.

Builders busy in June - 102 permits issued

June was a busy month for the Charlevoix County Department of Building Inspection, with the issuance of 102 permits for construction amounting to $2,778,921.

Among the permits issued were 28 for new residences, with construction costs of $1,001,857. Added to these were 41 permits for residential additions, remodeling, garages, and decks and porches.

Five permits were issued for new commercial buildings, with construction costs of $1,479,000. Six permits were issued for additions to and remodeling of commercial buildings, which will cost $104,697.

Eleven permits for residential and commercial outbuildings, costing $47,890, were also issued, as were six permits for mobile homes and mobile home additions, two permits for relocations, and three permits for demolitions.

The City of Charlevoix led the County in number of permits issued, with 16, followed by Eveline Township, 12; Marion Township, eight; Boyne City, eight; St. James Township, seven; Wilson Township, seven; Melrose Township, six; Charlevoix Township, five; Hayes Township, five; South Arm Township, five; East Jordan, five; Bay Township, four; Boyne Valley Township, three; Evangeline Township, three; Hudson Township, three; Norwood Township, two; Peaine Township, two; and Boyne Falls, one.

'Out There' to be shown Sunday

"Out There" a spectacular new sound film produced entirely in Alaska, will be shown at the Community Church of God, 202 W. Hurlbut Street in Charlevoix, Sunday, August 5, at 7 p.m., according to Rev. Walter G. Hastings, pastur.

"Out There" is the true story of Glenn McLain. Willin a few short years of his scheduled retirement, he saw his world cave in around him. His business was destroyed by an earthquake, he suffered a heart attack and then lost his wife in a battle with cancer.

Bitter over the loss of his wife and hating God because of it, Glenn leaves Anchorage to wander through giant valleys searching for peace in the vastness of "the land that listens." On his way to the wilderness he stops in a village to visit a friend who, years before, had saved his life. Seeing Glenn's bitterness and despair, the Eskimo friend persuades him to take his Grandson, Peluk, with him, hoping that Glenn would do nothing rash as long as he had a responsibility to care for the boy.

Lured on by the lonely trail, together they date the unknown as they search the vastness of Alaska. They have close encounters with bears, moose, caribou, mountain sheep and many other forms of wildlife of this far north country. Their experiences together causes Glenn's bitterness to disappear and he repents and returns to God.

"Out There" is a feature length production with wilderness photography that is most spectacular, Rev. Hastings says. "You will grow to love the old man with the heart of a Viking. You will enjoy his little Eskimo friend as they find life's greatest adventure."

"Out There" was produced by MG Productions Alaska and is the latest release of Gospel Films, Inc. of Muskegon.

Addition to cost $261,087 in interest

Taxpayers in the Charlevoix School District will pay $261,087.61 in interest over a 10 year period to the Michigan Municipal Bond Corporation of Lansing for bonds to underwrite the cost of a $700,000 addition to Charlevoix High School.

The corporation which submitted the lowest bid said it would underwrite the cost at 5.38324 percent. In all, 11 bids were submitted to the Charlevoix Board of Education last week. The board approved the bid from the Michigan Municipal Bond Corporation of Lansing after reviewing all 11 bids with consultants Richard Bareh and Thomas Nordberg. The board also agreed to establish a special School Bond Debt Retirement Account at First State Bank to receive the funds when the bonds are said.

The bids ranged from 5.38324 percent to 6 419 percent. The latter bid was submitted by the Community Bank of Bad Axe. Bidders included one Cleveland and two Chicago companies.

The Charlevoix School District had received an A-1 credit rating from Moody and a AA rating from Standard Poors. Barch representing Sauder, Barch Associates said because of the ratings Charlevoix had a desireable bond issue and that is why it attracted so many bidders.

Barch said Charlevoix's interest rate is low in comparison to other school district's in the state that have recently sold bonds. Barch said the Western School District in Jackson County which is comparable in size to Charlevoix received a low bid of 5.6 percent. He added the interest rate Charlevoix accepted saved the school district a minimum of $10,000.

The consultant thanked Superintendent Gordon VanWieren and Business Manager Vince Olsch for their efforts.

"There were no negatives. The school is operated in the black. It offers a fine program for its size. The people who worked on it were enthusiastic. They did their ground work well and had it ready for us when we needed it. Those things mean a lot when working on a thing like this."

Now that the bonds are ready for sale, the firm of Manson, Jackson Kane will submit finalized plans for the addition. When they are approved the board will advertise for bids.

The addition will enlarge the library, cafeteria and drafting room and will include a new science laboratory and other classrooms.

100 years ago

When the Charlevoix Village Council met 100 years ago this week, on August 2, 1879, they took the first steps toward fire protection in town.

It was moved by Trustee Eaton that at the next meeting, Council members elect "an engineer of the fire department." Then, seemingly as an after-thought, Trustee Clark moved that at the next meeting, the Committee on Fires report on the feasibility of organizing a fire department." Both motions carried

JEWELRY FAD-HOES FACTS-FICTION

John Reusch

THE HOW OF IT

The diamond you wear is a masterpiece of man. First, tons of rock must be blasted and put through a lengthy process to separate the diamond material from its host rock. About 3500 tons of rock must be processed to recover just one ounce (142 carats) of diamonds. Of course, out of that ounce the smaller portion of the crystals will be gem quality, the rest will be industrial goods. At this point, the diamonds must be sorted and graded for color and clarity before they are placed on the market.

A diamond in the rough is not very attractive. It's no wonder the stone was overlooked in the many centuries before cutting and polishing were fully understood. The rough diamond has a dull waxy look and comes in strange shapes, usually octahedral. It takes skilled cutting and polishing to bring out the diamond's true beauty.

First the diamond is cleaved or sawed to take best advantage of the rough crystal. Then it is rounded, faceted and polished. The cut and polished stone must be graded to establish its per carat selling price to the next buyer along the chain.

The work performed from the mine to the retail jewelry store is time consuming and expensive but well worth it. Through his advanced knowledge, man has taken nature's raw material and maximized its beauty. You must agree that this is a triumph.

Nominations are being accepted for senior citizen of year awards

The State Office of Services to the Aging (OSA) is conducting a statewide search for two outstanding senior citizens to receive Senior Citizens of the Year Awards. The awards, one for service and one for leadership, will be presented at the Michigan State Fair on Senior Citizens Day, August 27. Applications for the awards have been distributed to senior organizations and agencies throughout the State. The deadline for submitting applications is Friday, August 17.

"What we're looking for," said OSA Director Peter Kok, "are individuals who've never received recognition for the work they're doing. At the same time we are trying to call attention to the fact that older people are a vital and integral part of community life."

Kok said that although the selection committee primarily evaluates contributions made during the past year, they do take special note of senior citizens who've been engaged in community activities a number of years. "We urge local organizations to nominate these senior citizens, because they are responsible for the success of many senior programs."

Anyone 60 or older is eligible for the award. They must be nominated by an organization. Senior citizens may not be nominated for work they receive a stipend for or do as part of their job.

The Senior Citizen of the Year Awards are sponsored by the Michigan Commission and Office of Services to the Aging, and the Michigan State Fair. For more information or an application, contact your local Area Agency on Aging or the Office of Services to the Aging, P.O. Box 30026, Lansing, 48909, (517) 373-9360.

Cooper wins fishing contest

Bob Cooper of Charlevoix won a half day of fishing aboard the Ward Bros. fishing charter boat - in a recent contest sponsored by Ward Bros. Boats & Bait and Crown Drug.

Cooper's name was picked from over 500 entries. The contest was July 8 and Cooper's half day of fishing came a week later - July 15.

The fishing trip proved quite successful as Cooper latched onto some lake trout. Ward Bros. then filleted the fish for Cooper.

The Ward Bros. Boats & Bait shop is operated by Bernie Sr., Bernie Jr. and Don. Crown Drug in the Captain's Corner is operated by Jaek Urben.

Russell DeWitt named vice president of nuclear operations at Consumers

The election of Gordon L. Heins and Russell B. DeWitt as vice presidents of Consumers Power Company has been announced by John D. Selby, president and chief executive officer.

Heins, executive manager of system planning, was made vice president for systems operations, and DeWitt, manager of nuclear production, has been made vice president for nuclear operations. The two new vice presidents will report to R. C. Youngdahl, executive vice president for energy supply, and the changes are effective immediately.

In making the announcement, Selby stated that the changes reflect added management emphasis on nuclear power plan operations as the time approaches when the two Midland units will be completed and added to the company's total nuclear complement. He said higher environmental requirements add to the intricacies of system operation, Selby said that the new operating structure is designed to meet these changing conditions.

Other staff changes in the company's energy supply department were announced today by Youngdahl. Charles R. Bilby, formerly vice president for production and transmission, has been named vice president for fossil operations.

Under a reabignment of responsibilities in the energy supply organization, each of the company's major generating complexes will be headed by a general manager, Youngdahl said. The general manager will report directly to an officer of the company.

Named as general managers were: Robert W. Montross, Midland nuclear plant; James G. Lewis, Palisades nuclear plant; Robert C. Hoffman, Karn-Weadock fossil generating complex; Jerome M. Simpson, Campbell fossil generating plant; and James S. Brunner, the Cobb, Whiting and Morrow fossil generating plants. Montross and Lewis were previously superintendents of their respective facilities. Simpson has been superintendent of the Cobb plant, Hoffman has been superintendent of the Karn plant, and Brunner has been manager of fossil production.

DeWitt, 55, has responsibility for the operation and maintenance of the company's nuclear power plants. A native of Jackson, he holds a degree in mechanical engineering from Tri-State University, Angola, Ind., and has studied at the University of Michigan and Western Michigan University.

DeWitt joined the company in 1949 as a junior engineer. He worked at the utility's Cobb and Morrow generating plants until 1960 when he was assigned to work at the Enrico Fermi breeder nuclear plant operated by the Detroit Edison Company.

In 1966 DeWitt was appointed superintendent at the Big Rock nuclear plant. In 1968 he was named superintendent of the Midland nuclear plant project where he was in charge of identifying operational needs of the plant in the design stages. He was named superintendent of the Palisades nuclear plant in 1973. He was named acting administrator of nuclear production in May 1975 and became manager of nuclear production later that year.

Council approves grant

The Charlevoix City Council has approved a grant of $1,960 from the Michigan Office of Highway Safety Planning and U.S. Department of Transportation to install a radio in the ambulance that will have direct communication with the hospital.

The grant money represents 70 percent of the cost.

Council has also agreed to allow dockage on city property along Round Lake at the end of Burns Street. Those who dock boats at that site must register with the city manager. Boats under 20 feet will be charged $25 and boats over 20 feet will be charged $50.

Wedding

VanWieren-Carey

Laura VanWieren and Randy Carey were married Saturday, July 21 before 325 guests at Elm Point on Lake Charlevoix.

The bride is the daughter of Gordon and Jean VanWieren of Charlevoix and the groom is the son of Charles and Jean Carey of Charlevoix.

Rev. Ray Giffin of the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix performed the double ring ceremony.

An arch decorated with daisies and greens was the focal point for the service. David Dudd of Lansing on the guitar and Thomas Kauffman at the piano, played the wedding march and Elton Johns "Your Day."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a gown of white organdy for her wedding. Fashioned with a fitted bodice and round neckline, it was accented with embroidered ruffles on the circular collar and near the hemline of the full skirt. Her white picture hat was trimmed with the same embroidered ruffles. She carried a bouquet of white daisies, yellow miniature roses, baby's breath and ivy.

Vicki VanWieren of Tulsa, Okla., assisted her sister as maid of honor. Janet Van Wieren, sister of the bride, Patti Shea of Battle Creek and Karla Bennett of Marshall, were bridesmaids. They wore identical sleeveless gowns of peach silk styled with bows at the shoulders, blouson bodices and full skirts worn with gold belts. They wore daisies in their hair and carried bouquets of miniature yellow roses, daisies and baby's breath.

Robert William Edmonds of Sarasota, Fla., served as best man; James Crothers of Sausalito, Cal., Topper Carey, brother of the bridegroom and Robert Foster of Traverse City were groomsmen. Gordon VanWieren of Los Angeles, brother of the bride, and Peter Carey of Grosse Pointe Farms, brother of the bridegroom, seated the guests.

A reception, hosted by the bride's parents, followed at Elm Point. Mrs. Topper Carey, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, assisted.

After a wedding trip to Mackinac Island, the couple will be at home at 109 Michigan Ave., until fall when they plan to re-locate in Sarasota, Fla.

Wedding guests were present from Houston, Tex., Naples, Fla., and South Carolina.

Mr. and Mrs. Carey hosted a rehearsal dinner at their home at 406 Michigan Ave., Friday evening. (Photography by Don Smith).

Engagement

Wells-Matthew

Julie Wells of Charlevoix will become the bride of Mitchell Matthew of Walloon Lake on November 3 at the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix.

The announcement is being made by the bride-to-be's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Wells of Charlevoix. The intended bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Larry Matthew of Walloon Lake.

Miss Wells is a 1979 graduate of Charlevoix High School and is presently employed by the Mole Hole of Petoskey. Her fiance is a 1976 graduate of Petoskey High School and is employed by Wickes Lumber Company of Petoskey.

Velma Falting

Funeral services for Mrs. Ernest (Velma) Falting, 86, former resident who died Tuesday in Los Angeles, Calif., where she had lived for the past four years, were held Friday at the Winchester Funeral Home. The Rev. Walter Hastings officiated. Interment was in Brookside cemetery.

Born in Montcalm County Oct. 24, 1892, the former Velma LaCount was graduated from the Central Lake High School and the Charlevoix County Normal School and taught at rural schools at Torch Lake, Boyne Falls and Phelps. On June 20, 1918, she was married to Mr. Falting at Harbor Springs. They resided on a farm in Marion Township until he retired and they moved to Charlevoix. He preceded her in death in 1975. At that time she went west to make her home with her daughter, Mrs. Marjorie Gardner. She was a member of the Community Church of God and its Missionary Society. She had also been a Sunday School teacher for many years.

Besides her daughter, Mrs. Gardner, she is survived by one son, Floyd of Utica and two grandchildren.

Esther King

Funeral services for Mrs. Floyd (Esther V.) King, 66, who died unexpectedly at her home at 206 E. Hurlbut ave, Friday evening, were held Monday at the Winchester Funeral Home. The Rev. Raymond Giffin of the First Congregational Church officiated. Interment was in the Brookside cemetery.

Mrs. King, the former Esther V. Case, was born in Maneelona Aug. 17, 1912, and moved to Charlevoix with her parents as a child. She was a graduate of the Charlevoix High School. In 1932 she was married to Mr. King. They made their home in Detroit where he died in 1972. A short time later she returned to Charlevoix to make her home.

She is survived by two grandsons, Richard A. of Royal Oak and Floyd Jack of Madison Heights and five grandchildren.

Trina Nelson

Memorial services for Mrs. Trina Nelson, 94, who died Tuesday at the Charlevoix Area Hospital, were held Thursday at the First Congregational Church. The Rev. Raymond Giffin officiated. Interment was in Brookside cemetery. She had been in ill health for several years.

Born in Sogne, Norway, Nov. 20, 1884, the former Trina Handal came to Stoghton, Wis., in 1908. The later lived in Chicago and came to Charlevoix with the late Albert Loeb family in 1911. In 1926 she was married to Oscar Nelson and since then had made her home here. He died in 1954. She was a member of the First Congregational Church and its Margaret Parker Circle and the Charlevoix Garden Club.

She is survived by one daughter, Joan E. Nelson of Charlevoix and Big Rapids.

The family suggests memorials to the First Congregational Church Refuge Program.

SUMMER BRINGS US CLOSER TO GOD'S CREATION

The sun has reached the zenith in the sky. And casts no noonday shadow from up high; But warms with gentle breezes through the air A world of life that's teeming everywhere. The grass and trees attain their deepest green, While lazy streams reflect the summer scene: A season meant for living out of doors; And time to take a holiday from chores, But never from your faith; for on vacation, You'll learn first hand the beauty of Creation. So, in the Church to which your faith has bound you, Give thanks to God, who made this world around you.

-- Gloria Nowak

Names In The News

LISA ANN SUOMELA, 16, of Flint, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Suomela, former local residents, was named Miss Michigan Teen U.S.A. at the state contest held recently at Kalamazoo. She was among 96 candidates from throughout the state seeking the title.

An all-A student at Southwestern High School in Flint, she will compete for the Miss Teen title at Albuquerque, N.M., Dec. 1.

At the state contest she was among five finalists in the speech competition. She gave a two minute speech on Susan B. Anthony, the 19th century women's suffrage leader. She also won the volunteer service award.

Lisa, who will be a high school junior when she returns to classes this fall, is the grand-daughter of Mrs. Uno Suomela and Mr. and Mrs. A.D. Cunningham of Charlevoix. Her mother is the former Judy Cunningham.

Lisa, who did not have an application of her own, entered the competition with a friend's application when the friend decided not to enter.

She won a $500 scholarship to a school of her choice and scholarships for modeling and speech courses.

She is a member of the Ten O'Clock Players, a group of high school students who tour Flint schools to interest children in theatre. She said she hopes to become a television news broadcaster.

She is a lifeguard at the Flint and Racquet Club, helps regularly with the community school program at Zimmerman Junior high school and works at a local restaurant. Her volunteer activities that won her the volunteer service award include fund-raising for the American Cancer Society and the American Diabetes Association and assiting at St. Paul Lutheran Church and for the Flint Environmental Action Team.

This book will haunt you

Few of us are programmed for pain, either physical or mental. And when it occurs for a child, it is the bystanders who perhaps suffer the most through their feelings of inadequacy to provide relief.

We watch from behind helpless hands, cringing, hoping it will be over soon. So who of us, the lovers of children, can accept unnecessary and deliberate or even inadvertent child abuse, be it physical or psychological? It is frightening. It is repulsive. It is beyond comprehension. Unfortunately, it also exists.

Beth Holmes in an attempt at bringing the problem to the attention of slow-moving legislators and an uniformed or unaware public in general, has written a horror story about a 12 year old boy that you will never forget. You will only read it because it is significant, because it is about real atrocities that occur and oughtn't occur at all. The Whipping Boy is the story of fictional Timmy Lowell who is possessed by the demons of his parents neuroses. Timmy is an adopted child into an affluent family, has a screaming mother who is unsure of her persona self-worth and ability to cope, and an over-indulgent, undisciplining father who is determined that his son will become the genius and the man he never was.

It is an emotionally charged account of one boy who demonstrates the fact that environment is at least as important, if not more so, an ingredient in decent child rearing as heredity. Perhaps the most frightening aspect of all in the story, is the lack of immediate solutions for those truly concerned about a very evidently severe problem of mental distress. Psychologists repeatedly advise Timmy's mother "Act quickly...no time to lose if he is to be saved." Yet when she finally accepts the responsibilty for her son's recovery, Mrs. Lowell discovers the sad reality of endless waiting lists, inadequate facilities, exhorbitant prices and actual mistreatment of students at almost every of the almost non-existant therapeutic schools scattered around the country. And these are the sole means of dealing with emotionally, psychologicaly impaired youth. The reader comes to sense the desperation and exasperation involved in attempting to place a child where there is some semblance of hope. The alternative of a mental institution becomes as depressing a solution to us as to Evie Lowell, because we too know what it means to live a child and not want to abandon him.

The Whipping Boy is a book that will haunt you for a long time. It will make you heartsick for the children of parents who either just don't care, or for some sick, self-destructive reason, are unable to care. It will make you aware and fearing for the psychological fiber of these children and their parents who themselves live in a distorted version of the world we know. And that's exactly what Beth Holmes intended.

Council wants to buy power from three plants

How does the City of Charlevoix expect to meet its future energy needs?

For the most part, that question was answered Monday night as the Charlevoix City Council passed a resolution indicating its desire to buy into two coal-fired plants and one nuclear power plant.

Consumers Power Co. owns one of the coal-fired plants (Campbell No. 3) while the Detroit Edison Electric Co. owns the other two plants (Belle River No. 1 and No. 2 coal-fired and Fermi No. 2 nuclear). The city would like to purchase three megawatts of capacity in both the Fermi No. 2 nuclear plant and the Belle River No. 1 and No. 2 coal-fired plant and two megawatts of capacity in the Campbell No. 3 coal-fired plant.

Daverman Associates of Grand Rapids, who did a power needs assessment for the city, recommended Charlevoix purchase a total of eight megawatts of capacity. However, Daverman recommended the city purchase two megawatts in each of the three plants mentioned above in addition to purchasing two megawatts in the Midland No. 1 and No. 2 nuclear plant owned by Consumers Power.

Daverman's report to council said that by distributing capacity equally over four plants the city would not be placing "all of one's eggs in one basket" and that it would "tend to reduce financial risk for the city in the event any one of the available units, for reasons ranging from design to environmental, becomes less available than planned."

Council concurred with the report on the number of megawatts needed, but shied away from purchasing into the Midland nuclear plant because of problems encountered with construction. Instead, council decided to increase its capacity in Detroit Edison's two plants.

Charlevoix is one of 16 cities who belong to the Michigan Public Power Agency, (MPPA). The cities are presently trying to decide how they can most economically provide power in the future to their residents.

Presently, Charlevoix purchases its power wholesale from Consumer's Power. Daverman indicated in the report that "the city maintain its present wholesale contract rate with Consumers Power and use that source in conjunction with participation in the plant(s) to round out its power and energy needs.

Representatives from Consumer's Power were at Monday night's meeting, but for an entirely different reason.

The Energy Resources Group (ERG) from Petoskey asked council to seek a public hearing on Consumer's request to increase its spent fuel storage capability at Big Rock. The request would have to be made to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) before Aug. 21. Consumer's Power has filed an application with the NRC to increase the number of spent fuel rods that can be kept at the plant from 193 to 441.

The ERG claims the additional spent fuel rods would "pose an additional threat to the surrounding community."

Roger Sinderman, Consumer's Power physicist, said that Consumer's would not be "building" an additional pool to hold the racks, but would be storing more racks within the existing storage pool. He said this would allow Big Rock to operate for a longer period of time. A Consumer's spokesman said without the increase Big Rock could operate until 1981. With the increase, he said, the plant could operate until 1990. Consumer's officials are hoping the government will eventually allow utilities to re-process their fuel.

John Leithauser of the ERG asked Consumer's officials if they would withdraw their request before the NRC until a public hearing could be held. Consumer's, however, declined. But the company did agree to have representatives present at an informational meeting next Wednesday at 8 p.m. in City Hall.

In other action, council approved the rezoning of 5.5 acres of land on Garfield Avenue between State and Grant streets from R-2 (single family) to R-4 (multiple family). The site is proposed for a 62 unit senior citizen complex.

Charlevoix Township Supervisor Oscar Stroud gets ready to cut the ribbon in recognition of the completion and opening of Bells Bay Road as Medusa Plant Manager Charles Broneck, Charlevoix County Road Commission Engineer Fred Welch and Medusa President Dean Sandbrook look on.

$240,000 Bells Bay Road dedicated by local officials

Charlevoix Township Supervisor Oscar Stroud who steadfastly advocated the paving of Bells Bay Road for the past decade, teamed up with Medusa Cement Company President Dean E. Sandbrook and Charlevoix Plant Manager, Charles J. Broneek, in ribbon-cutting ceremonies held Sunday, Aug. 5.

Medusa's contribution of $230,000 combined with the Charlevoix Road Commission share of $10,000 enabled the county to begin clearing the roadway last November for completion in late June. Medusa also donated $15,000 worth of TYPE I Cement used for stabilizing the roadbed. Hodgkiss and Douma, Petoskey, constructed the 1.28-mile roadway with the soil-cement treated base and all-weather cap, seven days ahead of schedule.

Fred N. Welch, project engineer, Charlevoix County Road Commission, said that as far as he knew Medusa's contribution of $230,000 was the single largest community donation received from a private corporation in the history of Charlevoix County. He added, "For that matter, I have never heard of any road commission in Michigan receiving a gift of this size from an individual enterprise."

Charles J. Broneek, Medusa-Charlevoix plant manager, pointed to the smooth clean roadbed during his introductory remarks prior to ribbon-cutting, and remarked, "The fugitive dust generated by any gravel road is a total community problem which, in this case, Medusa has solved for all residents, state park users and plant traffic." He also viewed the widened access to U.S. 31 as "an important safety contribution" for Bells Bay Road users.

During the Family Picnic that followed the brief dedication ceremony, Broneck and former plant manager Elbert W. Kaiser (now Medusa's Vice President-Operations), individually introduced Dean E. Sandbrook to community officials and Medusa employee families.

Industrial arts teacher hired

The Charlevoix Board of Education Monday night hired Brian Certa, a 1979 graduate of Central Michigan University, as the industrial education instructor.

He has a major in industrial education and a minor in manufacturing and construction. He is also qualified to coach football and baseball. He is a native of South Haven and is single.

The City National Bank of Detroit was named as the paying agent for the 1979 Debt Retirement Fund, the $700,000 bond issue to underwrite the addition to the Charlevoix High School. The bank is already the paying agent for two other debt retirement funds, the existing high school and the K-5 building.

The First State Bank of Charlevoix was designated as the depository bank for the tax collection for the 1979 debt retirement fund. In voting on the issue, Mrs. Elaine Martin, an employee of the bank, abstained from voting.

Robert Smith, a para-professional at the auto repair department for the high school, was granted a year's leave of absence with the understanding that he will be re-employed at the end of the year if there is a vacant position for which he is qualified.

Waterfront Art Fair Saturday

One hundred and sixty-seven artists from the United States and Canada will display their crafts in East Park Saturday at the 21st Annual Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair.

The fair will start at approximately 9 a.m. and conclude at dusk. But, if you are serious about buying any art, plan to get there early.

"The majority of the buying takes place between 9 a.m. and noon," said Suzi Reis of the Waterfront Art Fair Committee. "You wouldn't believe how busy it gets in the morning."

Nearly 600 artists applied to the committee for admittance into the show. Applications were accepted in May. The art was juried and then the artists were notified if they had qualified or not.

"Although there are several artists not in the fair, I want to stress that it has nothing to do with their ability," Mrs. Reis said. "We try to limit it to 150 artists. This town is too small to support anything bigger."

Mrs. Reis said the response was "heavier" this year. And she cited two reasons for that. First, an art show in Chicago normally held on the same weekend as the Waterfront Art Fair was moved to a different weekend. And secondly, there are buyers in Charlevoix.

"It amazes me that artists will travel so far to be in a good show," Mrs. Reis said. We'll have artists here Saturday who come from all over the U.S. And we'll even have a few from Canada.

"But it's a two way street. Not only must you have good artists, you must have people who will buy, too."

The Charlevoix area will be well represented Saturday. Local artists in the show are: Todd Warner, Bonnie and Bill Staffel, Norm and Judy Brumm, Joe Moffit, Russell and Sue Bolt, Barb Godwin, Laurie and Bill Murray, Terry Salmonson, Elaine Rutherford, Joan Frans Meyer, Walter Ewald, Versa Cole, Ray Bier, Linda Aydlott, Stewart Ashlee, Luciano and Cynthia Aips Tschudy.

A brochure listing all the artists in alphabetical order will be available Saturday in the committee's information desk in the park.

Serving on the Waterfront Art Fair Committee are: Mrs. Thomas Pointner, Mrs. Peter Pace, Mrs. Vince Chew, Mrs. Barbara Bump, Mrs. Ed McNamara, Mrs. Jeff Porter, Mrs. Julius Gilbert, Mrs. Jack Rader, Mrs. Richard Martin, Mrs. Joe Hayes and Mrs. Reis.

Residents request referendum vote on rezoning

Petitions requesting a referendum vote on Charlevoix Township's approval of Medusa Cement Company's request to rezone approximately 230 acres of land from agricultural scenic to industrial, were filed with the Charlevoix Township Clerk Friday.

The petitions were signed by 125 residents of the township, more than twice the 8 percent of the total vote in the last gubernatorial election, required by law, a spokesman said.

The land which is adjacent to the new Fisherman's Island State Park south of town will be used for mining limestone for the cement plant, Medusa officials have indicated.

Medusa's request to rezone it has been hotly opposed by residents and summer residents who object to the blasting, dust, noise, and other nuisances they assert the quarry operations will cause.

The Charlevoix Township Board approved the request by a 3 to 2 vote July 9, at which time township Supervisor Oscar Stroud flatly refused to bring the matter before the electorate.

Medusa has been under public fire for the past three years for alleged failures to abide by pollution standards, especially in view of its current construction program which will convert its process from wet to dry and double its size and production.

Aerobic dance classes offered

By Anne Kelly

Break combo...jazz walk to the right...boogie on down...train push ups....country jug forward...hopsktoteh...diseo swing...snap two slow...run, run, turn around...take heart rates.

Sound like an evening of Saturday Night Live at your local disco? No, it's just Dixie Ashton, aerobic dance instructor, running through a routine with cues to a popular tune. And amazingly enough, by the end of the four week, eight session summer course, there is a more relaxed synchronization of arms and legs than any of the huffing and puffing novices, now energetic participants, would have thought possible.

Aerobic dancing is a medically approved dance-exercise program originated and developed by Californian Jackie Sorensen. She chnreographs and tests all aerobic dances and trains aerobic dancing clinicians and instructors. Participants are strongly advised to comply with the recommended physical examination before participating in classes and refrain from enrolling if they should be more than 35 pounds over the maximum recommended weight for their height.

Aerobic dancing combines slimnastics, gymnastics, dance, jogging, and just plain old boring exercise into a planned program of several enjoyable 45 minute sessions. The key objective of aerobic dancing is to make healthful exercise FUN. What better way to slim down, tone up and have fun with your friends all at the same time.

Charlevoix summer classes have been held in the ballroom of the Loeb Farm Estate. A simultaneous program was offered at the East Jordan High School gym. A tentative schedule for fall classes: twice a week for 12 weeks, September-December. Announcement as to registration will be forthcoming when a Charlevoix location has been approved.

Klimas to present recital

Organist Bill Klimas will present a recital on Monday, Aug. 13 at 8 p.m. at St. Francis Xavier Church in Petoskey.

Bill is from Grand Rapids and is a graduate of the Grand Valley State College Department of Music in organ and piano. He was the assistant organist-choirmaster at the First Congregational Church in Grand Rapids for three years and organist-choirmaster at Holy Redeemer Parish this past year. He has been the summer organist at the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix the past two years and a guest organist there this summer.

He was the winner of the West Michigan Chapter of the American Guild of Organists student level competition this spring and last year he received the Harold E. Kohn award in recognition of his plans to enter a fulltime church related profession.

He is a well known recitalist in the Grand Rapids and Charlevoix area.

This fall Bill will be attending Westminster Choir College, where he will be working for a master's degree in organ and scared music.

The program on Monday will consist of works by Bach, Hindemith, Franck, Vierne, Tournemure and Prof. August Huybrechts of Petoskey.

Ohle elected to Historical Society

Little Traverse Hegional Historical Society members honored Merton Carter of Conway Sunday at their annual meeting for his many years of service as both the group's museum curator and president.

In a special ceremony at the society's Petoskey museum, President Newell Saigeon announced that a special slide p.ojector screen had been purchased and dedicated to Carter.

Besides the screen, Saigeon showed the some 50 members a special wall plaque that will be mounted in the museum honoring Carter.

Saigeon told members that Carter was instrumental in developing the museum located at Petoskey's waterfront first as one of the society's first board members in 1955 and then as its president and curator beginning in 1973.

Carter served as president from 1973 to 1975, and then continued as the museum curator until he retired this spring.

Members elected Gwenn Malloy, Helmuth Schultz, both from Petoskey; William Ohle of Horton Bay; and Lillian Shurleff of Cross Village to serve as directors of the society for two-year terms. They join Edith Fuhl, Raymond Kalbfleisch; both from Petoskey, Mary Helen Truesdell of Oden and Ken Winter of Bay Shore as directors.

Addressing the group was Frank C. Wilhelme, executive director of the Historical Society of Michigan, who spoke on the importance of local historical society.

Wilhelm said there are over 270 local historical society's in Michigan involving more than 40,000 people. He said there are also 163 local historical museums.

After detailing activities being done by local groups, Wilhelme explained why he thought local historical society's were important.

Besides being active in historical preservation, he said the local society can help develop a sense of time and place for a mobile society that often loses touch with the past.

He said local societies can also help a community develop local pride by preserving local traditions and showing the public its unique characteristics such as architecture and obstacles they have overcome in the past to get where they are now.

New assistant principal 'finds it a pleasure to be around kids'

By Peg Ohle

David J. "Dave" Smith is the new assistant principal of Charlevoix High School. A native of Charlevoix, he tells the Courier about his activities since he went away to college.

COURIER: When did you graduate from Charlevoix High School?

SMITH: In 1965, then I went to Central Michigan, where I majored in physical education and health and minored in English.

COURIER: What did you do after graduation?

SMITH: I taught at Saginaw Douglas MacArthur High School. Since I lived in Mt. Pleasant, I was able to take courses toward a master's degree. I finished in 1976 with a master of science degree in high school administration. From 1974 through this past year I lived in Petersburg and taught in Ida. I was basketball coach and taught English and health.

COURIER: How did you hear about the job here?

SMITH: I guess I heard from my mother that Roy Fortin had accepted another job and this one was open. For about the last three years I've been interested in coming back, but my basketball teams were doing so well I hated to move.

COURIER: What about your basketball teams?

SMITH: We lost only 16 games in the last three years. We were in the top 15 in the state in Class C. Ida is about the size of Charlevoix.

COURIER: Have you ever coached any other sport?

SMITH: Yes, wrestling, track, and freshman football. I've helped out and filled in where necessary. In fact, my first coaching job was the summer after I graduated from high school, when I coached a girls softball team, the Dairy Queens. Later on, they were sponsored by the Charlevoix State Bank, and in 1971 became state champs.

COURIER: What were your sports in high school?

Meet Charlevoix

Dave Smith

SMITH: Football, basketball, and track, for four years. I remember that in 1965 our basketball team had a 19 and three record and were district and regional champs. We lost to Wakefield in the state quarterfinals. We were regional champs three out of the four years I was in high school. Our track team had two league championships in the three years I was on it.

COURIER: What track events did you run?

SMITH: Half mile and intermediate hurdles. I was captain of the team my senior year at Central.

COURIER: When did you become interested in coaching?

SMITH: Early in high school I knew I wanted to go into athletics or become a doctor. I finally decided on coaching.

COURIER: Aren't you going to miss coaching?

SMITH: Yes, but if the opportunity arises here, I'll take advantage of it.

COURIER: Have you had any jobs other than teaching and coaching?

SMITH: I worked for my dad (C. H. Smith) in his heavy construction business while I was in high school. He was my only employer until I went to work in Saginaw.

COURIER: What will your duties be as assistant principal?

SMITH: I'll be in charge of attendance, help with discipline, work with the student council, and handle adult education. I'll also probably have some curriculum work.

COURIER: Do you think today's kids are more mischievous than your group was in high school?

SMITH: They're probably more blatant than we were. They don't have the same fear of discipline. They seem to have everything figured out beforehand, but I don't think there's really much difference. They have access to more money, which makes things different. But I like kids – I like working with them and find it a pleasure to be around them.

COURIER: What are your hobbies?

SMITH: Besides athletics, I enjoy woodworking, carpentry, and children.

COURIER: What about your family?

SMITH: My wife was Candy Hallday from Mt. Clemens. We have two boys, Matthew, who is four and a half, and Scott, who had his first birthday on August 6.

COURIER: Where are you living?

SMITH: We're looking for a house, but right now we're staying with my parents.

COURIER: Do you have other relatives in town?

SMITH: My brother Steve is an engineer and works with my dad. Our sister Barb lives in Kalamazoo and teaches at the Loy-Norrix Junior High School.

COURIER: Good Luck.

SMITH: I'm happy to be back at Charlevoix High School. When I got away from Charlevoix I realized how good it was here. I want to try and help the kids.

Opinion

Interview with Bob Davis

'President Carter's in over his head... We are much worse off now than when he took office.'

What is your opinion - and that of Congress - on the changes in President Carter's Cabinet?

Congress as a group I think was pretty much upset with the whole procedure. We recognize, of course, that the president has the right to name new people. The people who were replaced were qualified people. I think they were replaced for the wrong reason. Apparently, they were replaced because they weren't loyal to the president. They were doing what they felt was right. And just because a person isn't loyal doesn't necessarily mean they should be let go. There has been a lot of controversy, of course, about Mr. Califano. I didn't like a lot of things he instituted while he was head of HEW...but, at any rate, that's the president's prerogative. I thought the manner in which he did it was kind of odd. It looked to me like the whole scenario was designed more to improve the president's chances of re-election than to deal with the energy situation.

Polls indicate the public has lost confidence in President Carter. Have you?

I think he's in over his head. The man is well intentioned. I would certainly give him a gold star for honesty and integrity. But he doesn't have the ability, for example, to work with Congress. He keeps saying how isolated Washington D.C. is. Well, you know, he used that theme in 1976 when he ran for president. He ran against the establishment. He ran against the incumbent and against Washington. Now he is Washington. He is the incumbent. And he is still trying to use that theme on the American people. He has been in office long enough so that he should have been able to turn things around. And he hasn't turned things around. As a matter of fact, we are much worse off now than when he took office. The inflation rate is much higher ... everything he said he was going to do has turned sour.

Several Republicans have announced their candidacy for president in 1980. Is there one particular candidate you like?

I'm glad to see so many candidates. I think we have a number of good qualified candidates. I cannot say that I have made my decision as to which one I will support, yet. I would guess – at this time – that Mr. Reagan has the edge. I think Mr. Connelly is coming on strong. Mr. Baker is coming on strong. The other candidates are good candidates. I guess I would put it between the top three. But I have not made a personal decision. I am having breakfast tomorrow (Thursday) with Sen. Baker.

Concerning his campaign?

Yes, that is what I am meeting with him about. The Connelly people and the Reagan people have met with me. I have met with Baker's manager to set-up breakfast with Baker to discuss his philosophy and to feel him out to see where he stands and to see what I think of him.

Not only has the president been criticized for not finding answers to the nation's problems, but Congress has been rapped for this too. Do you think the criticism is just?

It is hard for me to judge because I haven't been here before as to whether or not we are achieving as much as we should. The old-timers tell me we are behind and that we are not accomplishing as much as we should. However, it has always been my philosophy that Congress or a legislative body simply does not exist to see how many bills they can pass. Sometimes I think the American public is better off if we don't pass an awful lot of bills. I would say we have been slow in dealing with the energy problems, but I think we are starting to move in those areas. To me there are things that should have been done some time ago, long before I came to Congress. We should have anticipated problems when we depend so much on foreign nations whose governments are so unstable. It's inconceivable that we have waited this long to try and turn things around. Now we are moving fairly fast. There are some measures the president has proposed that I do support, but I do not support gasoline rationing. That's been one of the reasons Congress has moved so slow on energy - because some of the things the president wants we don't agree with.

What is Congress doing about the energy problem?

It's kind of a short term thing and a long term thing. Although the problem I'm concerned about - and I always have been - is more with fuel oil than gasoline. One problem with gasline is that people believe that it is not available in our area when in fact it always has been. We think we have gotten over that problem now. What we need to do for the short term is to develop the quick things that we already have and can do. I noticed that a station in Ellsworth is going to be using gasohol. That's a short term answer. If we can do that we should be pumping everything we can into doing that right away. Coal, that dirty old stuff we all dislike, is going to be the salvation of this country because we have 600 years supply of coal and we can take coal and convert it into a number of useable products. We are going to have to somewhat - although not greatly - relax our environmental standards in order to speed up production of synthetic fuels. I don't think we'll have to do anything that will cause us any harm. But we have to speed things up and that's why the president has been setting up this mobilization board and I concur with that.

What is your opinion on Judge Noel Fox's decision regarding Indian fishing rights?

I had always felt he was going to rule the way he did. I don't think it was the proper decision. Until the appeal is heard, we will have to live with it. I do not have a great deal of confidence in the Appellate Court overturning that ruling. I think that if you look back at the time the treaty was granted, we were talking about giving the right to Indians at that time to hunt and fish to sustain the family. Gillnetting and commercialization for sale of fish was unheard of at that time. I think if the people who negotiated the treaty were around today to see what has happened they would have specifically written into that treaty that it only pertain to sustaining one's family. That's the whole basis for my bills that I have introduced and my philosophy and rationale for saying that portion of the treaty should be changed. But I do not think it is going to be resolved in court. I think the only way it's going to be resolved is by Congressional aetion.

Since Three Mile Island, the safety of nuclear power has been a topic of interest. What is your opinion of nuclear power?

First of all I am in favor of developing nuclear power. We have already taken - and I was a supporter of this proposal - precautions in the future that hopefully will stop the kind of things that happened at Three Mile Island. One of the measures hasn't gone all the way through Congress yet, but we did adopt an amendment in the house - and I was a supporter of that amendment and a pusher of it - that says the NRC shall have an on site inspector all the time at all nuclear plants that are built and operating in the country and in future ones. That hasn't worked its way all the way through. It hasn't passed the Senate yet. The state has asked that that be done in Charlevoix. We should have full time inspectors at all our nuclear plants. We should re-evaluate – and I think we are in the process of doing that now – the safety measures that are being taken at all our nuclear plants. I am still in favor of developing nuclear power. At the same time, I did not mention solar energy which is something I should have mentioned. I am very strong on solar. I am a member of the Science and Technology Committee and it is our responsibility to allocate funds for research. We have concentrated on solar energy, on gasohol, and all those kind of things ... with a lot of emphasis on solar. The president has said that he wants solar energy in the reasonably near future to take care of about 20 percent of our total use of energy and I think that's a little unrealistic.

But is solar energy practical in northern Michigan?

Well, it's not as practical in northern Michigan, of course, as it is in some other areas. But I do not think it is unreasonable. We do have some homes - that I've been in - where people are utilizing solar to help heat their homes and it is cutting down considerably on cost. I would guess that wood stoves are more practical for us but I wouldn't rule solar out. We are talking about getting to the point someday where we could set-up some kind of solar system, for example, that could furnish all the electricity for Charlevoix. I say that from a long way off. But I think the point is that we have to pursue every single means of energy and that's kind of what we are doing.

Are you in favor of extending the winter shipping season?

I have not said if I am going to vote for or against it. The bill that came out of the subcommittee and the full committee (public works) is a compromise that is not year round winter navigation but an extended season which gives the Corps the authority to extend the season. It's a compromise but I'm still not totally convinced to the point where I'm going to say that I will support it. But I will say that I don't think it matters if I support it or not because I think it 's going to pass Congress. So my vote won't make any difference.

You have now been in Washington for about six months. Do you like it?

I love it. I very much enjoy it. I have been home every weekend except two. I totally enjoy it. It's very interesting and exciting. It's where all the world and national action is.

Tomorrow arrives today

There was always something eerie about the Medusa's Co.'s original long-range reclamation plans for South Point, since few us us living today would be alive to appreciate the deep-water harbor and pleasant homesites planned in the area of the present quarry — sometime around the middle of the next century.

But now Medusa reports that its reclamation program actually has been in progress for seven years and evidence of its success already is on hand in the form of blankets of rye, crownveteh, clover and wildflowers covering mounds of overburden.

Furthermore, hardy maples, birches, ashes and arborvitae are taking root on the top of the north overburden plateau.

Similar reclamation work is underway at Medusa's shale mines at Ellsworth.

According to a brochure distributed Sunday to well-wishers at the dedication of the new Bells Bay Road, area residents already are receiving benefits from the reclamation projects.

"Erosion has been halted; dust eliminated; birds and animals are attracted to the thickening foliage. The areas will be more attractive than before mining began because of the carefully selected new grasses and improved tree species that have been introduced," the brochure claims.

"Beyond these short term advantages," it continues, "there are important long range benefits for the people of Charlevoix County."

An accompanying drawing shows revegetated slopes and plateaus, around Lake Medusa, the focal point of a 1,500-acre resort-recreation area neighboring the 3,311-acre Fishermans Island State Park.

The brochure includes before and after photographs of a similar reclamation project undertaken by American Aggregate at Oxford, Mich., where a 400-acre lakefront residential community is now served with parks, picnic areas, pavilions, tennis courts, sandy beaches and wide boulevards.

As I say, few of us living today will see the completion of Medusa's reclamation work. But it is comforting to know that it is off to such a good start.

THE NEW Bells Bay Road, built in part with a $230,000 donation from Medusa and dedicated Sunday, should go a long way toward eliminating much of the dust problem often blamed on Medusa's operations. The new road appears to be as much as five feet higher in places than the old road and has been built to withstand the heavy pounding of shale trucks in-bound from Ellsworth.

The dust that used to be a part and parcel oi a trip down Bells Bay Road in other years is gone, and with it the potholes and ruts that made a trip to Bells Bay a bone-jarring experience.

I lost a tailpipe on the old road this spring, which perhaps explains why I am so enthusiastic about the new paving...

SIDEWALK DAYS: They're over, but I'm sure everyone in town came home with what he considers a once-in-a-lifetime bargain. The sidewalk crowds have never been bigger. At times shoppers were so thick they forced ordinary pedestrians into Bridge Street. But that was OK, because traffic moved at a snail's pace most of Friday and Saturday as cars filled with shoppers filed into town.

Rain squalls interrupted the sale from time to time, but no one seemed to mind. Shop keepers simply moved their merchandise insideor under awnings until the sun returned.

The next big event occurs Saturday when artists from throughout Michigan and adjoining states will set up shop in East Park for the Waterfront Fair for Artists and Craftsmen. All signs point toward another busy day for Charlevoixans and their summer guests.

Parade was the best

The 1979 Venetian Yacht Parade was a tremendous success! People are saying this parade was the best ever. Spectators in East Park, on yachts, and in every vacant space around Round Lake surely created the largest audience ever for a Venetian Yacht Parade.

This success was only attained because you yacht owners participated. Thank you all for taking time to enter your craft and for spending hours to plan and to decorate your craft. It was appreciated by thousands & thousands of people.

Behind the scene there were many, many people working like mad also. So a special thanks goes out to the following people:

Gene Bridge: Chairman, for his time in organizing and planning the parace.

Frank Cook: For his time in locating, picking-up and stringing lights.

Ed Crook: For being stake boat at the railroad bridge and running a very orderly parade line-up.

Bev Eby, Lynn Cook, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cook, Barb Patrie: For spending all day Friday stringing these lights and bringing these lights to the Chamber office.

Pat Carland, Judy Edger, Bev Eby, Pat Miller, Marcia Trimper, Linda Scherer: For spending hours calling people to participate in the Yacht Parade.

Joe Morris: For helping plan, call for participants and located light bulbs.

Don Mol: For lining-up yachts and taking parade applications to the Sundew.

Ivan Misrach: For his outstanding generosity in providing material needed, at a reduced cost.

Dean Eby, Richard Hodgson: For their help in planning but more importantly their support when it was definitely needed.

Lt. Cmdr. Warren Miller, Queen Peggy Hosmer & Court: For judging both Yacht Parades (Classic & Best Decorated)

U.S. Coast Guard, Charlevoix Sheriff Dept.: For a clean, unobstructed Parade Route.

Jim Ance and City of Charlevoix: For making sure that slips were vacated so that spectators in East Park could view the parade.

And last; but definitely the most exciting news, are the winners listed below.

Venetian "Classic" Yacht Parade
1st - Boss - Robert Brandt
2nd - Sea Duce - Robert Linton
Venetian Yacht Parade (Best Decorated)
1st - Red-Keg - Richard Donaldson
2nd - La Rue Too - Glenn L. Kenney

Converting waste into energy

To the Editor:

One gas industry solution to the demand for natural gas is to build expensive insulated tanker ships to haul liquified natural gas from foreign gas fields. one environmentalist solution to this problem is to use the activated sludge process of sewage disposal in municipal sewage systems to produce large amounts of methane from a continuous supply of sewage raw material.

The electric utility industry tends to build large steam electric generating plants in remote locations. These electric plants convert about one third of their heat energy to electricity and two thirds of the heat generated is dissipated in the air or in water. Occasionally that waste heat is channeled to large users of heat. One alternative to this wasteful practice is to build more smaller steam electric generation plants and locate them where the waste heat can be utilized by more users.

The electric utility industry harnessed nuclear fission as a heat source in steam generating plants as a replacement for organic fuel heat. High frequency radiation was viewed as an unavoidable harmful byproduct of fission requiring shielding for protection. Three Mile Island demonstrated that short wave radiation can decompose water into hydrogen and oxygen directly.

Although there are some technical problems with fuel cells they are the most efficient devices known for producing electricity from fuel (73%-90%) efficient. Hydrogen is the most efficient fuel for producing fuel cell electricity. Gaseous hyudrogen is difficult to store. Hydrogen concentrated in a compound that is in liquid form at room temperature would be more practical. Atmospheric molecular nitrogen is almost inert, but ionized nitrogen is chemically active. Hydrogen and nitrogen can be combined in the same proportions as hydrogen and oxygen in water to produce a liquid with a freezing and boiling point similar to water, hydrazine.

Nitrogen, oxygen, and water can be combined to produce nitric acid. When Hydrazine and nitric acid are combined the hydrogen in hydrazine and the oxygen in nitric acide combine to produce water and energy. If the quantities of hydrazine and nitric acid are carefully controlled the nitric acid could be reduced to nitric oxide and if nitric oxide is again exposed to air it will combine with atmospheric oxygen to produce nitrogen peroxide that in turn will react with water to produce more nitric acid. Experimental hydrazine fuel cells have been made. This suggests the possibility of producing a new nonpolluting fuel cell fuel from water, air, and energy that was previously wasted in fission reactors.

Fight pornography, visitor says

Editor:

I have just recently returned home after a weeklong vacation in Charlevoix. I enjoyed beautiful weather, fine restaurants, and fantastic sailing. However, I find it very unfortunate and sad that the Charlevoix community has such low standards concerning pornography and the display of obscene materials. Charlevoix the Beautiful took on an ugly cast after I shopped in its grocery and party stores for a week. To say the least I became extremely disgusted at the way pornography is so openly displayed in your town.

While in Charlevoix I noticed all the lovely churches. It made me wonder why the Christians and Jews in the Charlevoix community are asleep on this issue? Pornography goes against all of God's teachings concerning sexuality and morality (Matthew 5:28, Exodus 10:14, Philippians 4:8, Proverbs 23:7)

Also, from a feminist standpoint, pornography is definitely a lie about women. Porn kings have built a billion dollar industry by exploiting and selling the female body. Pornography depicts women as a piece of meat and often shows women being bound and raped for male gratification. Let me take a bit more paragraph's magazines open the door the bookstores and x-rated theatres follow behind. I know because I live in Lansing where this has happened.

Pornography is a widespread problem. In Lansing we are fighting the problem so it can be done! Many of our party stories have quit selling pornography. Convenience stores are wrapping the magazines in plastic so the cover is not visible. Other stores keep them under the counter out of sight. We have founded a group called "Citizens Against Pornography". We are trying to raise people's consciousness on the issue of porn and the harm that it is causing to the social fabric of our community.

I truly believe most people want to live in a clean, decent environment. Although I am not yet a parent I definitely want my kids to grow up feeling comfortable with their sexuality. Pornography adds nothing to our communities or to our children's well-being. With as many young travelers as Charlevoix gets, again I was appalled to see so much open display of porn.

For too long people have put up and kept quiet about pornography. The time has come to start fighting this trash. Our country was supposedly founded upon Christian-Judeo ethics. If this is true people will start awakening to the ies they have been fed concerning porn.

Sincerely,
Tony Yerkey

TOM board responds

Editor,

Recently in this column you printed a letter by Mr. Ed May, III and Mr. Tom Webster in which they stated "we know that another Michigan coop, Cloverland Electric in the Upper Peninsula, spent approximately $40,000-$60,000 for fees to Mike Ward, labor attorney of Kalamazoo, for about three weeks service and the same lawyer was on our payroll from October to March here, approximately 24 weeks". They also expressed disappointment in not knowing how much Mr. Ward had been paid by Top O' Michigan for his services.

We received the attached letter from Cloverland Electric and ask that you print it along with this letter. To further clarify any inisunderstanding caused by the above quote we offer the following facts for our members:

1. Mike Ward was not on our payroll for approximately 24 weeks. He worked as a consultant for Top O' Michigan throughout the unionization of our office force, a period of 14 months. During this time he–

a. Assisted with drafting the company's initial contract proposal.

b. Represented the company at a certification hearing held by the National Labor Relations Board for the office employees.

c. Was present during the representation election held by the National Labor Relations Board for the office employees.

d. Provided consultation throughout the pre-strike collective bargaining process.

e. Represented the company in all union matters including collective bargaining throughout the 5 month strike.

f. Prepared and filed the company's unfair labor practice charges against the union.

g. Conducted a workshop for all supervisory employees to review the new contract and assist them with its implementation.

2. The total cost, including reimbursement for expenses, over the 14 months these services were rendered was $20,273. These services resulted in a three year labor agreement, and amounts to a cost to the members of Top O' Michigan of $6,757.67 for each year of the contract.

We feel that this was a small price to pay for the professional expertise necessary to assure that the rights of the members to control their own cooperative were not taken away at the bargaining table.

3. For their professional representation our employees pay the union 1% of their total gross earnings plus $6.00 a month. Based upon our current labor force the union will collect approximately $52,000 in dues during the 3-year term of the labor agreement. This is over $17,000 per year. This money comes directly from the employees' earnings through a payroll deduction plan. It is money which first must be collected from each rate paying member of Top O' Michigan.

Board of Directors
Top O'Michigan Rural Electric Company

Mr. Roger Westenbroek, Manager
Top O'Michigan Rural Electric Co-op
Boyne City, Michigan 49712

Dear Roger:

It has come to my attention that an article written by Mr. Ed May III has appeared in several of the newspapers in your area which state that Cloverland Electric Cooperative paid approximately $40,000 - to $60,000 - to the legal firm of Jacobs and Ward for three weeks of service. These figures are totally incorrect and I would appreciate it if you contact the newspapers that ran the article and inform them of the correct figures. The firm worked for Cloverland over a span of time beginning in May of 1977 and ending in December of 1977. Our labor contract was completely re-written by Mr. Ward and he participated in our labor negotiations with the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers until the settlement of our contract. The total fee paid to the firm over this entire period was $14,844.36. Thank you for help in this matter.

Very truly yours,
John F. Holt, Manager
Cloverland Electric Cooperative

Do Business Where Business Is Being Done

Singers here Aug. 8

The New Nature Singers will present a concert at the Community Church of God, 202 W. Hurlbut Street in Charlevoix, on Wednesday, Aug. 8 at 7 p.m., according to Rev. Walter G. Hastings, pastor.

New Nature is composed of three women and seven men from Anderson College in Anderson, Ind. They have a contemporary Christian sound which appeals to all ages. They are on a summer tour throughout the Midwest, appearing in churches, youth rallies, and conventions.

Their one hour program of worship and sharing is a unique combination of music, drama, puppetry, and multi-media. They have been enthusiastically received wherever they have gone.

The public is cordially invited to attend this sacred concert at no charge.

Area law enforcers attend safety seminar

The Charlevoix City Police and Charlevoix County Sheriff's departments were among 44 law enforcement agencies who attended a school crossing guard workshop Wednesday (Aug. 1) sponsored by Automobile Club of Michigan and the Michigan Department of Education.

The half-day seminar, one of eight held throughout the state this month, took place at the Holiday Inn, in Grayling.

The program was designed to help police comply with state requirements that all adult school crossing guards receive four hours of training and two hours of annual review from local officers in traffic control, first aid and other areas.

Persons who attended also reviewed formulas to determine where guards are most needed and received new federally mandated reflectorized hand-held stop signs and highly visible orange-and-white-striped guard vests.

Ellsworth issues challenge in contests of skill/endurance

The Ellsworth Chamber of Commerce has issued a challenge to the towns of Charlevoix and Central Lake! The Ellsworth-Atwood area will field a team to challenge on the playing field of the Wooden Shoe Park in Ellsworth teams from Charlevoix and Central Lake in contests of skill and endurance until the best team wins. The Chamber games will take place on Aug. 18th at noon and last until a winner is declared.

There are seven games of skill involved: sack race, slide down a slide and catch a water balloon race, swing and hand a cup of water forward to fill a jug race, chicken race with wiffle balls in place of eggs, blindfolded golf cart race, bicycle-basketball race, and the famous obstacle course.

All the members of the teams, consisting of three women and three men, must be over 25 to be eligible to play. As each game is played the first, second and third place winners receive various point scores which are totaled up at the end of the day to determine the overall team winner. The winning team takes a large cup home for display. The cup rests now at the Charlevoix County Bank in Ellsworth as the home team was the winner last year. Also, each member of the team receives a gold, silver, or bronze medal for first, second or third place depending on the status of their team.

Throughout the whole afternoon a chicken barbecue with potato salad, baked beans, roll and lemonade or coffee will be available. Home made pies and cakes can be eaten at the Wooden Shoe Park or taken home. The local merchants in Ellsworth have contributed door prizes.

Bible school at First Baptist

The Annual Vacation Bible School will be held at First Baptist Church of Charlevoix on South M-66 from Monday (Aug. 13) through Friday, (Aug. 17), 9-11 a.m.

Classes will be held for children nursery age through junior. There will be no junior high department this year.

Joan Wagner and Pastor and Mrs. Dan Abner will be directing the school. This year marks the 50th anniversary of Vacation Bible Schools in the Charlevoix area. It was originated in the First Baptist Church in the year 1929 under the ministry of W. H. Rouch, then pastor of the church. The movement very soon spread throughout churches of other denominations and has continued to grow through the years.

Charlevoix second in Great Lakes Regional

SAGINAW–Charlevoix won three of five games here, over the weekend, to take runner-up honors in the Great Lakes Girls Youth Regional Softball (fast-pitch) Tournament. The event was for girls ages 13-15.

State champions from Michigan, Ohio, Wisconsin and other states took part in the two day tournament with Charlevoix eligible because of a runner-up finish in the Michigan tournament held in Petoskey back in July.

In fact, Charlevoix gained a measure of revenge in two of their three victories by whipping Chelesa–The very team Charlevoix had lost to in the state tournament finals.

Charlevoix's first Great Lakes Regional game was a 23-4 romp over Chelesa as Rhonda Buchanan fired a six hitter. Margo Smith had three hits including a double and accounted for six runs batted in.

Next Charlevoix ran into the eventual champ Trini-Calman and was held hitless in a 14-1 loss.

Now in the losers bracket Charlevoix trimmed Chelesa again 11-1 as Buchanan got the win with Smith collecting two hits. Lori Hofbauer had two including four runs batted in, Patti Strobel tripled and Holly Taber and Kim Bolduc had one hit.

Charlevoix next eliminated Saginaw Township 19-4 with Buchanan allowing eight hits while Hofbauer had two hits, one a home run, Mary Ellen Ciuk two hits, Stroble homered and Colleen LaBlance and Buchanan totaled one hit each.

In the finals Charlevoix lost to Trini-Carman's 6-2 with Buchanan taking the loss on a four hitter. For Charlevoix, Margo Smith had three hits and Hofbauer one while Strobel and Taber hit back-to-back home runs.

Charlevoix added two players for the tournament, Strobel from Petoskey and Hofbauer of Alanson. The team is managed by Curt Ayres.

THE CHARLEVOIX GIRLS finished runnerup in the Great Lakes Regional Youth Junior (13-14-15) Softball Tournament over the weekend that included teams from the northern Midwest. Charlevoix won three of five games, losing in the finals 6-2. Back in July Charlevoix finshed runnerup in the state tournament in Petoskey to Chelesa but this past weekend beat that same team twice. Squad members are, front, left to right, Colleen LaBlance, Patti Strobel, Bridget Noirot, Teresa Noirot, Rhonda Buchanan, Lori Hofbauer. Back row: Sue Smith, Holly Taber, Kim Bolduc, Margo Smith, Mary Ellen Ciuk, coach Mel Kerridge and manager Curt Ayres.

The Crooked Tree Arts Council held its annual dinner recently at Birchwood Farms Country Club and the get together provided some unusual entertainment, too.

According to the council's newsletter, "During the cocktail hour, hostess EDITH GILBERT (Charlevoix) inuved through the crowd selling raffle tickets for a sculpture donated by JACK PERRY of Gallery One. At the close of the festivities, Edith shook the ticket box vigurously while Oen Jaeger reached in and pulled out the lucky number whieh was – you guessed it – Edith's ticket number. Don remarked with a grin, 'Well, now I know why you're called Crooked Tree.' and Edith was pleased though somewhat embarrassed, to win the fine NORMAN BRUMM sculpture."

Gerald Ford at LT today

Former President Gerald R. Ford will dedicate the $26 million addition to the Little Traverse Division of Northern Michigan Hospitals today (Wednesday).

The dedication is planned for 10 a.m. under the new main entrance and will be followed by refreshments and tours of the new building.

Ford will speak at the ceremonies, hold a brief press conference and later tour the new facility.

The building slated fur completion in September of this year, will add 136,000 square feet of floor space, more than doubling the size of Northern Michigan Hospitals, Inc.

One hundred sixteen patient care beds will be housed in the addition. Including beds that will be renovated and kept in the existing structure and with the Lockwood-MacDonald beds, the capacity of the hospital will rise to 297, an increase of 33 beds.

Included in the addition are entirely new Intensive and Cardiac Care units, enlarged by a total of seven beds.

Ten beds will lie added in Sub Acute Care, with three additions being eight beds in Neonatal Intensive Care, six in Obstetrics, and two in Medical/Surgical units.

DIAMOND: THE WHERE AND WHEN OF IT

Diamonds were formed millions of years ago, under intense heat and pressure deep within the earth. But it was not until about 2500 years ago that they were first discovered.

The initial discovery of diamonds took place along the banks of rivers in India where, through erosion and other weather conditions, the diamond crystals tore loose from their host rock and were washed away into streams and rivers. Although some diamonds are still lodged in their place of formation, most are found buried in river beds and along river banks.

Diamonds were first found in Brazil in the 18th century. The supply at that time was substantial, but today South America supplies little more than 1% of the world's production.

The first diamond in South Africa was stumbled upon in 1866. Since that time the African continent has developed into the world's major diamond producing nation.

A more recent diamond producing country is Russia. It is estimated that Russia produces 20% of the diamonds currently coming onto the market.

A brand new source of diamonds is Australia; however, the impact on the market is not yet known.

Diamonds are not a renewable source. When your diamond was mined, it left a gap in the earth's make up that will never be filled. Yours is a truly unique stone.

Watch for my next article in which I discuss how diamonds are mined and processed.

Wedding

Smith - Stevens

Virginia Lee Smith became the bride of Gregory Lee Stevens Saturday afternoon, July 21, at the Norwood Methodist Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leston Brown of Charlevoix, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Stevens, also of Charlevoix.

The Reverend Dan Minor performed the double-ring ceremony before 150 guests.

Given in marriage by her brother, Mike Smith, the bride wore a gown of white satin styled with a flounce at the bottom of the long skirt, a sheer lace bodice, long sheer sleeves, a high lace collar, and floor-length matching lace mantissa. Her bouquet consisted of white and yellow daisies arranged with blue delphiniums.

Music for the ceremony was provided by Ron Stevens, the bridegroom's brother, who sang "Let It Be Me" to the piano accompaniment of Francis Boss.

Mary Reich served her sister as matron of honor wearing a gown of yellow and white cyclet lace and featuring yellow angel sleeves and a yellow tic.

Debbie Brodin, as bridesmaid, also wore a gown of yellow and white eyclet lace.

Byard Stevens served the bridegroom as best man, Bill Thorp as groomsman, and Jeff Stevens and Jim Moore as ushers. They all wure silver gray tuxedos.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Brown chose an aqua gown with floral shawl. Mrs. Stevens wore a fluor-length gown of mint green with matclung lace jacket.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held on the lawn of the bridegroom's parents' home. The rehearsal dinner was held in the Gallery Rooin of Leutheuser's Restaurant, hosted by the bridegroom's parents.

Following a wedding trip through the Upper Peninsula, the newlyweds will be at home in Charlevoix.

Duke-Tache

Linda Love Duke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A Duke, Jr. of Mt. McSauba Rd., Charlevoix and William Tache' son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Tache' of St. Clair, were united in marriage on July 6 at a candlelight ceremony at Franklin Community Church in Franklin with Rev. Frank Cowick, the pastor, officiating at the double ring ceremiony before 200 guests.

The bride was escorted down the aisle by her father. She wore a victorian gown by Priscilla of Boston in ivory satin organzine. The skirt was trimmed with tiers of Bristol lace flounces. The bodice was detailed with Alencon and ruffled val laces framing the open neckline and covering the cap sleeves. Bristol lace and stain venise bordered the matinee length mantilla worn as her head coverlug.

The bride carried a bouquet of white roses, stephanotis, daisys, baby's breath and ivy.

Attending the bride were Mrs. Diane Bidart of Petoskey, as Maid of Honor and Marny Medler from Seattle, Washington; Patty Pacovich of Marquette and sister of the groom Renee' Tache' as bridesmaids. They wure sky blue quiana gowns with chiffon over blouses which tied in the back. They all carried pink Sonya roses with ribbons and ivy.

The groom was assisted by George Tache' from Los Angeles, California brother of the groom as best man and Nino Silveri, Marco Licari and another brother John Tache' as ushers. They wore sky blue tuxedos and a Sonya rose Boutonniere.

The music was performed by the singing group, "The Trees" from Ann Arbor with guitars and a flute. An organist also played.

A dinner reception inunediately followed the ceremony at Glen Oaks Country Club in Farmington Hills. There was dancing to the inusical group "Serenity".

The couple left for a 10 day trip to Bampf, Canada and Washington.

The bride is a 1974 graduate of Charlevoix High School and attended college at Hawaii Loa. The groom graduated from Bishop Foley High School in Madison Heights and Northwestern Michigan College in Traverse City. He also attended Sienna Heights College and Wayne State University.

The couple will be residing in Farmington Hills.

The bridegroom's parents hosted a hehearsal dinner for the bridal party at Mountain Jack's in Farmington.

The mother of the bride chose a pale yellow pleated chiffon gown for the wedding and wore a gardenia and stephanotis flower arrangement in her hair. The groom's mother wore a white with blue flower print gown with a matching sleeveless coat and her corsage was baby pink rosebuds.

Fudge shop featured

Murdick's Famous Fudge, 210 Bridge St., Charlevoix, is featured in the August issue of Michigan Living-AAA Motor News, reports Fred Doelker, Automobile Club of Michigan's Traverse City branch manager.

According to the article entitled "Fudge Northern Michigan Style," the popular candy "is as much a part of northern Michigan as are the ski slopes or morel mushrooms."

North Michigan fudge making began on Mackinac Island, but when the Big Mac bridge was built in the 1960s, it spread to other resort towns, the article states.

HATTIE BOS

ELLSWORTH – Funeral services for Mrs. John (Hattie) Bos, 85, who dieu July 31 at the Charlevoix Area Hospital, were held Friday at the Bell Tower Reformed Church near Atwood. The Rev. J. Mark Schoon, pastor of the church, and the Rev. Fred Olert of Petoskey officiated. Burial was in the Atwood cemetery.

Born in Banks township, Antrim County, Oct. 25, 1893, the former Hattie Kloester was married to Mr. Bos at Ellsworth on Sept. 9, 1913. They owned and operated a general store at Atwood for 31 years and after selling it had a grocery store in East Jordan for 20 years before retiring. Mr. Bos preceded her in death in 1973. She was a member of the Bell Tower Reformed Church, its Ladies Guild, had been a Sunday School teacher in the Primary Department for many years, actively supported nission work and was a member of the Meadowbrook Medical Care Facibty Auxiliary. Until recently she made and delivered birthday cakes to patients at the Facility.

She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. LaVerne (Hildegarde) Schaerhorn of Grandville, Mrs. William (Freda) Coolng of Petoskey and Mrs. Ronald (Joan) Meyers of Grand Rapids; two sons, Henry of Winterhaven, Fla., and Adrian of Santa Ana, Calif.; 18 grandchildren; 16 great-grandchildren; two sisters, Mrs. Fred Olert of Petoskey and Mrs. Harold Nyland of Central Lake and a brother, Conrad Klooster, Sr. of Charlevoix.

The Hastings Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Anyone wishing to honor her memory may contribute in her name to the missions of the Reformed Church or the charity of their choice.

MARION PURDY

Graveside services for Mrs. Marion H. Purdy, 94, who died Tuesday at Meadowbrook Medical Carc Facility at Bellaire where she had been a patient for two weeks, were held Thursday at Brookside Cemetery. The Rev. Raymond Giffin of the First Congregational Church officiated.

Mrs. Purdy, the former Marion Harris, was born at Norwood June 26, 1885. In 1915 she was married to Lynn Purdy at Charlevoix. They made their home in California, Detroit and in Lake Worth, Fla. Mr. Purdy preceded her in death in 1961. The following year she returned here to make her home. She attended the First Congregational Church and was a member of the Charlevoix Women's Club.

She had no immediate relatives.

ELIZABETH CLARK

Memorial services for Miss Elizabeth B. Clark, 71, of St. Louis, Mo., who died Sunday at her home at the Belvedere Club, were held Monday at the First Congregational Church. The Rev. Raymond Giffin officiated.

Graveside services will be held at Oak Grove Mausoleum in St. Louis, Mo., later this week.

Born at East St. Louis, Ill., Jan. 14, 1908, Miss Clark had been a summer resident at the Belvedere Club for 69 years. She was a member of the Second Presbyterian Church in St. Louis, Mo. where she always resided.

She is survived by a half-sister, Mrs. Alma Stifel of St. Louis; two nieces and a nephew.

The family suggests anyone wishing to honor Miss Clark's memory may contribute in her name to the American Cancer Society.

Births

Mr. and Mrs. Alan Lusk of Salon, Iowa are the parents of a son, Kyle Joseph, born July 19. The paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Wilbam George Lusk of Charlevoix.

"Night," a pre-show warm up for the Doobie Brothers concert here recently, presently making the circuit to promote their debut album by the same name. The group is newly formed and full of initial energy, if not polish. Lead singer Stevie Lange, who bears resemblance to Ann Wilson of Heart with her stage antics, has previously done back up vocals for Thelma Houston, Status Quo, Bad Company and Elton John. Chris Thompson, lead guitarist and vocalist, earned his reputation by achieving major success with Manfred Mann's Earth Band. Best songs were an oldie "Blinded by the Light," and "Hot Summer Nights," off their album "Night," soon to be released by Planet Records. Photograph/Anne Kelly

Preoccupation will blow away

George Harrison of 60's Beatle fame, blew back onto the hit single charts in late spring with his very catchy "Blow Away." It had been three long years since the controversial "My Sweet Lord" caused Harrison to be successfully sued by Bright Tunes Publishing, who claimed that he had lifted his melody from their 1963 Chiffon's hit "He's So Fine."

Whenever I hear "Blow Away," I can't help but think of how many fad groups like the Beatles have blown over and away over the years, much to the relief of distressed parents of the pre-teens and teens of whatever era who idolized them. Someone recently asked me if I wasn't upset or at least nauseated by our son's preoccupation with Kiss. I had to laugh. I suppose someone also put a similar question to my parents about my 10-year-old fanatacisms, once many years ago.

Upset? No, Kiss, to the 9-11 year old set is, from all I can observe, a combined fascination with rock music, Halloween, and 4th of July fireworks, none of which I have ever considered harmful. If it has brought a drum set into his bedroom and concerts into our living room, at least I can feel assured Kiss is fostering active participation. The caliber might be questionable, but it is participation none-the-less. And it sure beats the battle of Saturday morning cartoons. (Is Walt Disney really our hero?)

I was a fan club person as a bobby soxer. I perspired over Pat Boone and Elvis, went to Frankie Avalon and Bobby Darrin concerts and even managed to have controversial Cleveland Indians center-fielder Jimmy Piersall over to our house for a cook out. So how can I, of all people, admonish Scott? Kiss will blow away. So will The Doobie Brothers, Chicago and Styx. They'll all blow away just like the Beatles. Oh, they may try for a comeback, but are they really the same?

As long as parents also expose their kids to other happenings in the world around them like symphonies and plays and Tiger baseball games, and Young Americans performances and even decent church choirs, well then I see no reason to fear for their offspring's morality. Censure is always the most direct way into the heart of the non-communicative area of the generation gap. Our kid's preoccupations will all blow away just like ours did, despite our support or resistance either une. And so will all the [illegible] parents who persist in hindering parents from sharing in a very special segment of their children's fantasy world as they grow up and develop and become participating adults.

Police solve 12-year-old accident

It took 12 years, but the Charlevoix Police Department finally solved the hit-and-run accident that killed Archie James Washegesic, 53, of Charlevoix.

Washegesic was struck by a car on the evening of March 7, 1967. He was found lying on Antrim Street in front of the old Charlevoix County Jail. Washegesic died the following day at the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Meanwhile, police could not crack the case. A search for the vehicle proved fruitless. Finally, the file was closed.

But it was re-opened again last month (July 12) when Dwain Mosher, 51, of Manton, stopped at the Charlevoix Police Department and identified himself as the driver of the hit-and-run car. Mosher told police his conscience had been bothering him and he wanted to get the accident off his mind.

He told police that Washegesic had staggered in front of his car and that the accident was unavoidable.

Mosher submitted to a polygraph test which substantiated his story.

Police referred the case to Charlevoix County Prosecutor Scott Beatty, but the statue of limitations covering the offense has run out. Mosher will not be prosecuted.

East Park was packed Saturday for the Waterfront Art Fair. See Page 6.

Q/A session on n-power Wednesday

Anyone who has questions about nuclear power, in general, and the Big Rock Point nuclear plant, in particular, might be interested in attending an informational meeting Wednesday (tenight) at City Hall.

Representatives from Consumers Power Co. will be present to field questions. The meeting will start at 8 p.m. and is open to the public.

The meeting has been arranged by Shirley Roloff of the Charlevoix City Council. Last week an anti-nuclear power group asked council to intervene before the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) and seek a public hearing on Consumers request to increase its spent fuel storage capability at Big Rock. Consumers has filed an application with the NRC to increase the number of spent fuel rods that can be kept at the plant from 193 to 441. Council declined to intervene, but Mrs. Roloff asked Consumers officials, who also were at the council meeting, if they would be willing to meet with the public to answer questions. Consumers officials agreed.

"I hope it doesn't turn into a battle between the anti-nuclear people and Consumers," Mrs. Roloff said. "The reason I asked for this meeting is because I think Consumers has an obligation to the people in this town to answer questions that we have about their operation.

"I know I'm a little worried about it (increasing spent fuel storage capacity)."

Representatives from the anti-nuclear Energy Resources Group (ERG) are expected to be present for the meeting. Mrs. Roloff said she expects Dave Bixel, Consumers regulatory administrator, Roger Sinderman, Consumers physicist, and Cy Hartman, plant manager at Big Rock, to be present also.

4-H youths to sell steer

Twenty-six 4-H members from Charlevoix County will exhibit and sell their market steers at the Emmet County Fair next week. These members have been feeding and raising their animals since last fall.

The 4-H Members will bring their animals to Petoskey on Monday Aug. 20 and have them weighed. Judging of the steers will take place on Tuesday starting at 10 a.m. The sale of the animals at public auction to the highest bidder will be in front of the grand stand at 2:30 p.m. on Thursday. All are welcome to attend.

Members from Charlevoix include: Tim Plagge, Peter Plagge, Dan Kiteley, Jim Stowe, Beth Jones, Barb Stowe, David Elzinga, Dennis Theimn and Tom Themm.

Fly-in Sunday

The Lions Club of Charlevoix will be sponsoring a fly-in Sunday, Aug. 19 at the Charlevoix Airport. The all day affair will start at 8 a.m. with a pancake breakfast. Later in the day – at noon – the Lions famous charcoal broiled chicken will be served.

Airplane rides will be given throughout the day. The cost for a ride will depend upon a person's weight. Also, there will be a helicopter demonstration.

There will be several contests during the day with prizes awarded.

All proceeds from the event will go to worthy causes.

Township approves election on Medusa rezoning request

Registered voters in Charlevoix Township will have a say on whether or not 230 acres of land belonging to the Medusa Cement Co. is rezoned from agricultural scenic to industrial.

The Charlevoix Township Board Monday night tentatively set Tuesday, Nov. 13 as the date for the special election. The date must be confirmed by the County Election Commission, Trustee Dale Glass told the Courier.

When the date is approved, the "ballot wording must be drawn up," Glass added.

A petition signed by 125 residents was presented to the board over a week ago, asking for a referendum vote. The board concluded that there were enough valid signatures on the petition to call for an election. According to law, the petition had to be signed by 8 percent of the total vote in the last gubernatorial election.

The land which is adjacent to the Fisherman's Island State Park south of town will be used for mining limestone for the cement plant, Medusa officials have indicated.

The rezoning request has been opposed by some residents who object to the blasting, dust, noise and other nuisances they assert the quarry operations will cause.

Gary Gleason, Charlevoix's sailmaker, in his sleep RAAMATAZZ won first place honors in the 1st annual eastern SANTANA 525 Championships held over the weekend in Lake Charlevoix. A close second was Dr. David J. Strawbridge in SLY with Jerome A. Leonard in MUD DUCK, third. Bryan Hartwell from Grosse Ilse took first place in the Santana 520 class. Ten boats competed -- with one from Toledo -- in the four roco Santana 525 series, with two races on Saturday and two on Sunday. (Photograph by Tom Dammann.)

Northwood Symphonette in concert Friday night

In cooperation with the Crooked Tree Arts Council, and under the direction of Don Th. Jaeger, the Northwood Symphonette will present a concert of "Midsummer Night's Music" on Aug. 17 in Charlevoix.

The Northwood Symphonette is a new fully professional 36-chamber orchestra featuring outstanding instrumentalists from throughout the United States and Europe. The virtuoso ensemble will present a varied program on each of the concert dates.

On Friday, Aug. 17, the Northwood Symphonette will perform at the Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix at 8:30 p.m. The same concert series will be played at St. Francis Xavier Church in Petoskey on Saturday, Aug. 18 at 9:30 p.m.

This stimulating symphony program series in Charlevoix and Petoskey will highlight soloists William Preucil, violin and Dennis Horton, trumpet.

Preucil began violin study at the age of five taught by his mother. At 14 he entered the Interlochen Arts Academy where he served as concertmaster of the orchestra. He has participated in The Cleveland Chamber Music Seminar, the New York String Orchestra, the Casals Festival in Puerto Rico and Ernen Musikdorf in Switzerland. In 1976, he won two important competitions – the Indiana University Violin Competition and the Enlow Young Artist Award of the Evansville Philharmonic, leading to solo appearances with those orchestras. Preucil is presently a student of the famed Josef Gingold. Additional study has been with Ivan Galamian in New York, Zino Francescatti in France, and Gyorgy Sebok in Switzerland.

Dr. Horton is a graduate of the University of Michigan School of Music and is presently professor of trumpet at Central Michigan University. He has enjoyed an extensive performance career, presently serving as principal trumpet of the Midland Symphony. He has appeared as soloist with numerous orchestras including the Midland Symphony and the Northwestern Michigan Symphony, and performs regularly with the Central Michigan University Brass Quintet. Last summer, Dr. Horton was principal trumpet with the Matrix: Midland Festival Orchestra.

The program for this concert series will be Overture to "Preziosa" by Weber; Concerto in A Minor for Violin by Bach; Octet for Wind Instruments by Stravinsky; Prayer of St. Gregory by Hovhaness; and Ginastera's Variationes Concertantes.

Tickets for the concert are $4 and may be purchased by mail from Northwood Institute, Midland, Michigan 48640 or in advance from the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce. Tickets will also be available at the door on the evening of the concert.

Sacred drama program Sunday

The Covenant Players will present a program of contemporary sacred drama Sunday, Aug. 19, at the Community Church of God, 202 W. Hurlbut Street in Charlevoix, beginning at 9:45 a.m., according to Rev. Walter G. Hastings, pastor. The public is cordially invited at nn charge.

Covenant Players was born in September 1963, when the first production of "the Christian Dynamics' series was presented. Prior to this time the director, Charles M. Tanner, had sought to develop the idea of drama in the church for years. The opportunity came with the commission to write and produce three one-act plays dealing with three themes relating man to God. The plays were received with enthusiasm and other churches wanted similar presentations. To fulfill these requests Covenant Players was established.

Some 64 presentations were made that first year, jumping to 364 the next. The year following Covenant Players went on their first road trip to Seattle, Washington, where the reception was so good that their first permanent touring group was formed. Its success can be measured by the fact that since that time, they have grown to over 40 full-time touring units and have given more than 250,000 performances in all 50 states, ah the free countries in Europe, Canada, Australia and New Zealand and 10 countries in Asia.

The end is not yet in sight - and part of the message is the method by which it has ati been accomplished. By design and practice, Covenant Players is totally a ministry of faith. It is at times a difficult life. There ore times of literaliy not knowing where the next meal is coming from. But it always comes... from somewhere. Covenant Players is a full-time jobifor the people involved. But it is inore than a job - it's a great ministry!

The founder and director of Covenant Players is Charles M. Tanner. A man of many talents, Tanner was born in Salamanca, New York and completed his formal education at Columbia and Syracuse Universities. He is a full inember of the Screen Producers Guild of Hollywood and a signatory participant to the Title Registry Bureau of the Motion Picture Association of America.

He has completed over 600 properties, for both screen and stage, in oddition to numerous short stories and novels.

Tanner's life-long participation in the church laid the groundwork for his total involvement in the Covenant Players ministry.

County planners have come a long way in 16 years

By Peg Ohle

(This is the first in a series of articles about county commissions which will appear in the Courier during coming weeks.)

Almost 16 years ago, on Oct. 29, 1963, the Charlevoix County Planning Commission held its first meeting.

The nine men who had been appointed to the commission by the Charlevoix County Board of Supervisors (now County Board of Commissioners) convened under authority granted by Act 282 of 1945, which gave counties power "to make, adopt, amend, extend, add to, or carry out a county plan os provided in this act and create by ordinance a planning commission with the powers and duties set forth".

Those nine meu who pioneered planning in Charlevoix County were Ralph Gillam, James Porter, Walter Thorsen, Robert (Ira) Davis, Dr. Howard Messmore, Sherman Thomas, Alfred Hass, George Hutchinson, and Ed Hebman.

They had been selected under the guidelines of Act 282, which stated they should be "representative of important segments of the economic, governmental, social life, and development of the particular county, such as agriculture, recreation, education, government, transportation, industry, and commerce."

To learn what their job was and how to go about doing it, members of the planning commission invited Ed Alchin, community development specialist from Michigan State University, to appear before them, which he did on Nov. 4.

According to the minutes of that meeting, Alchin suggested that the commission obtain a set of five-drawer files, legal size, and a map case. He also suggested they obtain the county data sheet from the Department of Economic Expansion, Michigan census data for 1960, city-county data book from a congressman, county maps from the U. S. geological survey, a statistical summary from the state health department, and county maps.

So equipped, the planning commission was to start on its way with its first projects: a land-use mapping program, a population study, an expanded Overal Economic Development Plan, and compiling a list of technical people in the area.

Today, the nine-member county planning commission still meets monthly to study and seek solutions to problems, many of which were non-existent 16 years ago. Many local residents have served terms on the planning commission through the years. Of the original members, only one, Walter Thorsen, remains on the commission, although Ed Rebman serves the group as a paid secretary.

Other current members are Arnold Hudson of Melrose Township, Jr. Hunt of Boyne Valley Township, Tom Wieland of Norwood Township, Dennis Jason of East Jordan, Don Smith of Charlevoix Township, Larry Levengood of Charlevoix, and Ray Towne of Boyne City. There is one vacancy.

The number of matters brought before the planning commission since its inception runs into the hundreds, and the list of projects undertaken and completed is impressive. To note just a few of both:

In 1964, the commission prepared and distributed the first county-wide map and brochure. Previously, the Charlevoix County Board of Supervisors, East Jordan, Boyne City, and Charlevoix had all put out their own maps.

That same year, a set of uniform road signs for the county was obtained with the cooperation of the county road commission.

The feasibility of an incinerator to handle the county's waste matter was considered, with the subject being dropped later.

When the Medusa Cement Company announced its plans to build a plant in Charlevoix in 1965, the planning commission approved, citing the employment and other economic benefits the plant would bring to town. A month later, the Commission endorsed legislation for air pollution control. There was none ot the time.

The development of a sanitary code and county zoning ordinance was first mentioned at the Nov. 16, 1967 meeting of the planning commission. So were the problems anticipated by the coming influx of Coho Salmon fishermen. "Where will they park? Do we have enough boat launching sites?"

In 1968, the planning commission received a grant of $4,475 from the state Community Planning Division to help pay for a three-phase comprehensive study of the county. The study was later "farmed out" to Williams and Works, Grand Rapids community planners.

A few months later, the planning commission was advised of the proposed expansion of Bell's Bay with 18 new campsites, and asked for comments. Then along came Dick Aud ond George Richardson, owners of the Weathervane Restaurant, who asked the planning commission to give its endorsement to their request that a revetment be built along the Pine River Channel bank.

Up through 1970, members of the planning commission had served without compensation, but their budget request for 1971 included a sum of $2,700 for per diem payments. The request was granted,and members of the planning commission have received per diem ever since.

In April, 1971, members of the planning commission reviewed and made final changes in a model Charlevoix County Zoning Ordinance. For the first time, they also mentioned hiring a county planner. In July of that year, Bib Mercer, who had worked with the planning commission as an employee of Williams and Works, was hired, effective Sept. 1.

About this time, the planning commission undertook a sewer and water study of the county.

Consideration of routes for a four-lane highway through the area, as requested by the state, began in 1971 and continued for many months with the holding of public hearings throughout the county.

The proposed establishment of a "Woodland Indian National Memorial" park on property south of Charlevoix put the planning commission in the middle of a heated pro and con argument, beginning toward the end of 1971. The project was not undertaken because of lack of funds.

Then came consideration of the State Construction Code, which was enacted in 1971. Eventually, the Charlevoix County Department of Building Inspection was set up to administer the code.

The subject of Monroe Creek – whether a group of developers should be permitted to dam It up to create a lake – came up early in 1972, with the planning commission leading the way with a series of public hearings. Nothing ever came of the plans. However, the proposal for designating the Jordan Rivera "Wild Scenic River" was approved by the planning commission, and today the Jordan has that designation.

All through 1972, the planning commission held public meetings to discuss the proposed county Zoning Ordinance and continued making changes in it to reflect the feelings of the public. The ordinance was adopted by the county on Oct. 11.

Announcements of proposals to abandon rail service to many areas of northern Michigan began to come late in 1972. The planning commission took an interest in retaining rail service, expressing the thought that its continuance was necessary to the economic well-being of the area. It still endorses efforts in this direction.

The county Zoning Ordinance was brought to the people for a referendum vote in August, 1972, and was defeated 696 to 988, with only Charlevoix and Melrose Townships voting in favor of it.

However, a yenr later, all but one of the 15 townships in the county had enacted their own zoning ordinances, with the help of the planning commission.

and was defeated 698 to 988, with only Charlevoix and Melrose Townships voting in favor of it. However, a year later, all but one of the 15 townships in the county had enacted their own zoning ordinances, with the help of the planning commission.

Thus began one of the services to the townships which are performed regularly by the planning commission – advising them on the preparation of changes in their zoning ordinances so as to meet state standords and at the same time fulfill the needs of local residents. Hardly a meeting of the planning commission goes by these days when some aspect of a township zoning ordinance is not considered.

Late in 1974, the planning commission approved a plan, prepared by the planner, for the disposition of solid waste within the county. Although it was sent to the state for approval as requested, it was never acted upon in Lansing, and since then the state has set up new and different guidelines for solid waste disposal.

The subject of a highway as an alternate to US-31 and US-131 was brought up again in 1975, and after more public hearings, the planning commission made its recommendations: That it be a limited access highway, that it go to Mackinac City, that US-31 and US-131 intersect some place south of Charlevoix County, that it be built where it would do the least possible harm to the environment and where it would provide the greatest economic benefit to the orea.

In 1976, the planning commission sent out a Citizens Attitude Survey questionnaire, in which a sampling of local people were asked to report on how they felt about the quality of life in Charlevoix County, including government service, educational facilities, and job opportunities. The results were compiled and published.

Then along came "A-95 Reviews". The planning commission is chargei with the responsibility of approving or disapproving all requests by units of government for state or federal funds. Although the commission acts only in an advisory capacity, consideration of these grant applications takes up much time in almost every planning commission meeting.

New matters keep coming up before the planning commission: The Clean Water Committee ond its work, actions on applicants who want to put their land under the Farmland and Open Space Acts, the Criminal Justice Program, the County Recreational Program, a Capital Improvement Program and Coordinated Purchasing Plan for county government, funnel development. And there is always updating of plans, even the Comprehensive Plan with which they started in business back in the early 1960's.

Today, the planning commission has the services of county planner John Hess and his assistant, Barbara Fels. These two carry on the everyday activities of the planning department. The commission meets at 8 p.m. on the first Thursday of each month in the Commissioners Room of the County Building Annex. They welcome visitors.

Cost of doing business getting out of hand

Small business is the backbone of Northern Michigan's economy. No thanks to our government, the cost of doing business, especially in smaller operations, is getting out of hand. These businesses are forced to abide by so many rules and regulations that many owners are being tempted to just give up and close down operations. We can't afford to let that happen.

What can be done to get the government off the back of the small businessman?

I have cosponsored H.R. 4660, the Smaller Enterprise Regulatory Improvement Act, which requires federal agencies and regulatory commissions to notify small businesses of any proposed rule or regulation which may affect them. These agencies would have to analyze the impact of any proposed rule or regulation, and if it is determined that the rule would be harmful to small firms, they would be required to find some way to ease this impact. The agency could either exempt the business altogether, or set different, less burdensome standards for the firm.

The bill is the result of over two years of hearings and testimony, and is considered a milestone in efforts to improve government/small business relations. The House Committee on Small Business reported the bill out unanimously and floor action is expected when we reconvene in September. The bill currently has 225 cosponsors, and with such broad suport, I am confident we can pass the legislation this session.

The 1980 Department of Interior budget was recently passed by the House, with a recommendation for a cut of $159 million in the Land and Water Conservation Fund. This fund provides money for recreation projects such as baseball diamonds, tennis courts, bikeways, restrooms, and marinas.

In the past, Northern Michigan has benefited greatly from this fund. In fact, there are currently 73-100 projects pending. The program is especially important to small communities that must work within extremely tight budget constraints. The ability to use this source of matching funds presents an opportunity for these smaller communities to provide recreational facilities that are easily accessible to local residents.

While I wholeheartedly support efforts to cut wasteful government spending, I think an error has been made in selecting this program as one which justifies a cut. The original budget request made by the administration already reflected a 19 percent cut from 1979 levels.

Since there was not time to offer an amendment to restore the cuts, I submitted a statement urging my colleagues to agree to a higher level of funding during conference committee consideration of the bill.

I am confident that the Senate will restore the cuts in their version of the bill, and I hope I can help convince my colleagues in the House to go along with their recommendation.

The Federal government has recognized peat as an important potential source of energy for our country. Michigan has the third largest reserves of peat in the entire country, and I have been actively seeking additional funding for peat gasification research.

Earlier this year I added to the Department of Energy Authorization bill an amendment providing $6.7 million to continue research and development programs in the area of peat gasification. That amendment was adopted without change just before the recess by both the full Appropriations Committee and the full House. The money will be used to collect data regarding all aspects of peat gasification, from harvesting to production of the end product of gasoline.

Most of Michigan's peat is found in the Upper Peninsula and the Northern Lower Peninsula. Peat reserves are traditionally located in bogs or swamp areas commonly referred to as "wetlands."

The Michigan Legislature has been debating a controversial "Wetlands Preservation" bill for some time. The bill passed the Senate and is currently under consideration by a House committee.

I have been an ardent opponent of the bill for many of the same reasons I oppose, the RARE II Wilderness proposals and further Wild and Scenic River designations. Too much of our land is being set aside and protected from any kind of development. This preservation is eroding our local tax base and eliminating potential jobs because of the development restrictions. The restrictions could also have serious negative effects on our mining and forestry industries.

Good hospital care

Editor:

I would like to compliment you on your fine and beautiful hospital in Charlevoix Area and on beautiful Lake Shore Drive.

I have been in many hospitals in Florida, Michigan and Ontario but as yet I have never met a staff, nurses and aides who have been so considerate.

During my seven day stay, I was in a room with a stroke patient (I had a stroke myself). She could not say anything, but shake her head "yes" and "no." The aides working summers and going to school winters had so much love and patience with her. Many times I could see her not wanting to eat, but they talked and coo'ed around with her until she ate. Without love and affection and good attention she could or would not get better. She chocked it seems with every bite - but with time and patience the nurses and aides gave her - she was able to eat, and use a walker before she left. I was amazed!

There was an aide named Candy and a male nurse named Tom, who I will never forget. They all were so good and patient with me also.

I do wish we had all your staff in Detroit. We would have more healthy people. The elderly would get as much love as the newborn babies.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Irene Keillor

Attending the turnips

Why would a middle-aged North American of sound mind and sturdy limb suddenly decide on a fine spring day that if he doesn't have a mess of turnips soon he'll start climbing walls?

Turnips? you ask. Yep, turnips — those purplish-white root vegetables highly prized as hog feed in most civilized countries. They used to be a big item in the southern states, before Dixie discovered tacos.

Turnips even had quite a following in places like Detroit during the Depression when large, cheap vegetables enjoyed a popularity all out of proportion to their culinary properties.

Furthermore, turnips were particularly prized because you could also eat the tops — boiled, drained and slathered with vinegar and butter. For the frugal housewife, a bunch of turnips meant two vegetables for the price of one.

To tell you the truth, I hadn't even thought about turnips for 40 years until last spring when I was leafing through packets of seeds at the Ben Franklin Store. Suddenly I came aeross an envelope of turnip seeds packaged by the Ferry Morse Seed Co.

I checked the date to make sure they weren't a holdover from the 1930s. Nope. They were dated for use in the calendar year 1979. And they cost only 39 cents, compared to 59 cents for most of the other seeds.

The picture on the front showed three snow-white turnips with purple tops languishing on a maple block cutting board. I read the instructions on the back:

"The most popular turnip for table use. (The implication, of course, is that some turnips are not for table use, unless you invite the hogs inside for dinner.) Grows from five to six inches in diameter. The white flesh is firm and fine grained. Tender when young and keeps well."

Ferry Morse didn't have to go any further, because I was already sold. I would plant a row of turnips in my city garden plot.

For the past two months I have been lavishing my attention on my single row of turnips, sometimes to the neglect of my other crops. During the July drought they received extra rations of water and I spent inordinate amounts of time on my hands and knees culling the weaker plants and making sure the survivors were properly spaced.

When unwholesome garden pests started nibbling the leaves, I counter-attacked with healthy doses of Sevin.

Sunday my efforts paid off. While hoeing around my turnips I noticed that some of the plants appeared to be too crowded so I started thinning them for the 50th time. Before I knew what was happening I was the proud father of a bunch of nice, firm, white turnips with purple tops.

It goes without saying that we had turnips for dinner Sunday night. Actually we had them after dinner, because they took longer to cook than anyone would have imagined. But the flavor — that spicy, aromatic bouquet straight from the depths of the Depression— was a delectable as ever.

The kids wrinkled their noses when they were asked to sample daddy's latest culinary delight, but I think they were pleasantly surprised.

At least I hope so, because there are an awful lot of turnips in one package of seeds.

I hope you didn't miss the annual Waterfront Show for Artists and Craftsmen because it was a gem.

Of course, the weekend weather was perfect, sandwiched between a rainy Friday and a rainy Monday. And the number of viewers — and buyers — throughout the day was nothing short of astounding.

Unfortunately, I always leave the art fair with a feeling that I have been short-changed in the talent department. If they can do it, why can't I?

Economy down, stocks up

The economic news these past few weeks couldn't have been blacker. Retail sales have grown sluggish. The great American backbone, the automotive lausiness, has turned so bad that introduction dates for some of the 1980 models have been delayed. Even the long term survival of one of the "big three" has been seriously questioned. So called "lead" indicators are signalling business adversity, conceivably a recession of broad dimensions. Further, our balance of payments has worsened again as the nation continues to buy more goods from abroad than it sells. Productivity gains have slackened, and the unemployment numbers threaten to turn higher.

In the face of all of these sad statistics and forecasts, stock prices, over the past two weeks in particular, have marched steadily higher. Trading volume has also been rising, reflecting broad participation.

So whats going on? There are a lot of answers to this question. Perhaps as many as there are investors. But a few stand out and bear close scrutiny.

First, many investors operate with very long time horizons. They look at current business difficulties, carefully scan the near and intermediate term economic malaise, and if satisfied that disaster will somehow be avoided, sweep the short term scenarios aside in favor of what they believe will be a far brighter long term picture.

Next, there is a fairly large investor concensus that believes stock prices today are so low in relation to dividends and earnings that almost everything bad that could happen to the fortunes of the underlying companies has been "discounted". In other words, all the bad news is already reflected in the price of the stock, and none of the good news. He has concluded, therefore, that the surfacing of bad news will have no, or at least not much, adverse effect on stock prices. And the first appearance of good news will excite additional investors and drive stock prices higher.

But most important of all is the investors' inflation prognosis. There is a formidable bit of investor intelligence around that holds that today's galloping inflation rates have punished corporations almost as much as consumers. Today's buyers of stocks obviously believe this inflation picture is changing. As the business recession takes hold of the economy, many of the pressures that cause inflation will abate, perhaps significantly. Secondly, they are betting that rates will not hold steady, or steadier.

So that's the story about today's investors and why they're doing what they're doing. If right about these inflation rate changes, their investment decisions are well founded. They will probably make money on their stock investments. If wrong they'll take a few lumps. But since today's high inflation rates and a lot of other bad news may already be discounted, stock investments could show impressive returns.

Not a candidate

Geraid Ford sounded like a presidential candidate Thursday, but the former Michigan congressman will not be a candidate in the 1980 presidential primaries.

Ford was in Petoskey to help dedicate the $26 million addition to the Little Traverse Division of Northern Michigan Hospitals, Inc. He told reporters afterwards that there is a "wide spectrum" of candidates in the Republican Party and that he will "support the nominee of the convention."

Ford told CBS that same day that he would not run in the 1980 primaries. He did not, however, rule out a draft. There has been speculation that if one of the frontrunners – Howard Baker, Ronald Reagan or John Connelly – cannot take charge before the summer convention in Detroit that the party will look to Ford and move to draft him as their candidate at the convention.

It's doubtful Ford would reject. He told CBS, "Betty and I have never ducked any responsibility. If the circumstances developed, obviously, we would not back off."

In Petoskey, he told reporters, "I'll be around."

Those who know the former president say Ford would like another shot at Jimmy Carter. Ford, they say, thinks he can beat Carter the second time around.

While he was in Petuskey, Ford made it clear that he did not think too much of Carter's wurk in the White House. He was especially critical of Carter's economic policy.

"When I turned the reins of government over to the Carter administration, we had brought the rate of inflation down from 12 to 4.8 percent I think it's sad and very tragic that the Carter administration has reignited the flames of inflation...and it's now running 13 percent...They've blown it. We're on the brink, if not in, another recession where you're going to have higher unemployment...I think the Carter administration is totally to blame. We had the economy moving forward in a constructive way...We got results."

One candidate in the Republican Party who might bear watching is Robert Dole. Dole, reportedly, is working hard on the East Coast. He hopes to make a strong showing in the New Hampshire primary and use that as a springboard – much like Carter did.

Dole, interestingly enough, has said that if he and Ted Kennedy vie for the presideney he will not make Chappaquiddick an issue.

I find that interesting because Chappaquiddick is a thorn in Kennedy's side. Is Ted Kennedy telling us the truth about Chappaquiddick? A lot of people don't think so.

But, then, maybe Dole doesn't have to make Chappaquiddick an issue because the press will.

Dodge Aspen. It's a lot of car for the price. Aspen sedans and wagons can handle six passengers comfortably. And deliver a surprisingly smooth, stable ride, thanks in part to its unibody construction and transverse torsion bar suspension up front, multileaf springs in the rear.

To Aspen's room and ride, add mileage. Dodge Aspen with slant 6-cylinder engine and optional automatic transmission has better EPA estimated MPG's than comparably equipped Granada or Monarch.

Dodge Aspen. Its credentials are many. Its time is now during your Dodge Dealer's "Aspen Action Close-out." Remember: by acting now you could get an automatic transmission at no charge to you! See the Dodge Boys right now!

Meet Charlevoix

Carla Spencer

"Carla Spencer has worked for the Charlevoix County Equalization Department for 13 years. Last week, the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners named her assistant director of the department.

COURIER: What did you do when you first started working for equalization?

SPENCER: I started making addressograph plates. Then I went on to drawing maps, preparing property descriptions, making up assessment rolls and appraisal sheets, and finally got into equalization studies, land value studies.

COURIER: Did you take any courses during this time to help you with your work?

SPENCER: Yes, I attended all the short courses for assessing officers held through the University of Michigan Extension Service. I also took a course in Real Estate Law and all the necessary courses for recertification since 1971.

COURIER: What is your certification now?

SPENCER: I'm certified at level three by the Assessors Board. Four is the highest.

COURIER: Do you do much assessing work?

SPENCER: Yes, for the townships and cities in the county that don't have their own assessors.

We will soon be doing the assessing for four townships and two cities and assisting another township.

COURIER: Are there many women in equalization work?

SPENCER: More and more of them are entering the field. Joan (Blanchard) used to be the only woman equalization director in the state, but now there are four or five. Also, more and more women are going into appraising — there is a lot of room for them. Appraisers working for estates, banks, etc. make good money.

COURIER: What does it take to be a good appraiser?

SPENCER: Good appraising techniques, mathematical ability, and good sound judgement. You have to be able to work with the State Tax Commission Manual and go by their guidelines, their rules, policies, and procedures. Since I've been here, I've seen changes in assessing and equalization to a greater professional level. People are more interested in how property is appraised and if they are being treated fairly compared to their neighbors. They want facts and figures to back them up.

COURIER: Then you have to be good at dealing with the public, don't you?

SPENCER: It's important to be able to relate to the public because we get so many angry tax payers in the office. We explain our work to them and hope they leave satisfied. Most of them do. It's most important to me that people are treated in a pleasant manner.

COURIER: How do you suggest that a person get started in assessing?

SPENCER: Start out with the short courses taught in Traverse City. Then you have to have practical experience. Get on-the-job experience with another assessor. Some of the townships have trouble hiring assessors now because it's only part time work. However, it's becoming a full time job some places.

COURIER: What did you do before you came to work for the equalization department?

SPENCER: I'm a licensed beautician and worked in a local beauty shop for three or four years. I was all ready for a change and wanted a challenge, so I changed jobs. I was asked to come here and try it for a week or two. I did, and I stayed.

COURIER: You sound as if you enjoy your job.

SPENCER: I do. It's been interesting and I've learned so much through the years. I've especially enjoyed the people I've worked with.

COURIER: Have you always lived in Charlevoix?

SPENCER: Yes, and I graduated from high school here in 1961.

COURIER: You have a family, haven't you?

SPENCER: My husband, Gary, and I have two children. Ember is 10 and Jordan is six. Gary is a carpenter and we live on Susan Lake.

COURIER: Do you have any hobbies?

SPENCER: Reading, also sewing and handicrafts, but I don't do much with those. I'm not an outdoors person, either.

COURIER: What organizations do you belong to?

SPENCER: The Order of Eastern Star - I'm a Past Matron, the First Baptist Church, and the Michigan Association of Equalization Directors. I guess I'm an alternate member of that organization, but I go to all their meetings.

COURIER: Besides your immediate family, do you have other relatives in the area?

SPENCER: My parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Riley. They've lived in Charlevoix most of their lives. My sister, Joan Wagner, lives in Charlevoix, too, and my sister, Gayle Anderson, lives in Boyne City. Another sister, Ruth Ann Chapman, lives in Corpus Christie, Texas. Then there's my grandmother, Agnes Fairbanks, in Charlevoix, and my grandmother, Ethel Riley, who's in the Emmet County Medical Care Facility. My mother-in-law, Arlene Spencer, lives with us.

Act provides for civil infractions

Public Act 510 of 1978 became law August 1. The Act decriminalizes certain traffic offenses and puts them in the category of civil infractions instead of criminal misdemeanors. However, fines are levied on the same basis in both categories and "points" are charged against drivers' records for both misdemeanors and civil infractions.

The offenses which remain misdemeanors are generally more serious and include, among others: not having a valid driver's or chauffeur's license in possession while driving, fading to stop when directed to do so by a police officer, failing to stop at the scene of an accident, driving under the influence of intoxicating liquor or controlled substance or both, driving while visibly impaired, reckless driving, drag racing, and spilling loads on the highway.

The list of traffic offenses which become civil infractions is much longer, such as: not displaying registration plates properly, drivers not reporting change of address, not obeying flashing red or yellow signals, not driving on right side of road, improper overtaking and passing of other vehicles, following too closely, improper entering and exiting from limited access roadways, not yielding to emergency vehicles or funeral processions, most instances of speeding, ignoring railroad signs, improper parking, not maintaining equipment, most bicycle offenses, and many, many others.

According to Charlevoix Magistrate Marilyn Blauman, labeling certain offenses as civil infractions takes the onus of criminality from the offense.

"A civil infraction is a private wrong," she explained, "one person against another, usually a police officer."

Building tapers off in July

Building starts in Charlevoix County dropped from the year's high of 102 in June to 86 in July.

The Charlevoix County Department of Building Inspection reports that last month it issued 86 permits for construction amounting to $962,497.

For the first seven months of 1979, 384 permits have been issued for construction totalling $6,163,431.

During July, 11 permits were issued for construction in Boyne City, followed by Melrose Township, nine; Eveline Township, seven; City of Charlevoix, seven; Evangeline Township, six; Marion Township, six; City of East Jordan, six; Charlevoix Township, five; Hayes Township, four; South Arm Township, four; Peaine Township, three; Bay Township, two, Boyne Valley Township, two; Chandler Township, two; Wilson Township, two; Norwood Township, two; and St. James Township, two.

DIAMOND: THE WHY OF IT

In my last two articles I discussed the when, where and how of diamonds. If you've been following this series of reports, you'll agree that there is a great deal of work involved in the recovery and processing of these well loved stones.

Why are such pains taken? Well, from a business standpoint, the whole painstaking process is a profitable one. People are willing to pay the price for all the work behind a fine diamond because it has come to represent very positive and sought after aspects of the human condition.

Because the diamond is so durable, it has come to symbolize eternal love. The diamond is the favorite choice for promise gifts as well as for the engagement and wedding rings which eventually follow. The diamond is also a favorite participant in the celebration of an anniversary or any other occasion in which deep love is being expressed.

The diamond has also evolved into a status symbol. The larger one's diamond, the more successful he or she appears. (Of course, quality is more important than quantity, but not everyone realizes that). Even those who are not status conscious experience a certain uplifting of confidence and self esteem from diamond ownership.

Giving a diamond as a gift has come to mean, "My love for you will endure through all time and will continue to sparkle through all hardship." If you've bought yourself a diamond, you're announcing that you consider yourself important too, and that's essential for good human relationships. You can't love others until you learn to love yourself.

Micro-Data Services opens

Micro-Data Services opened for business Aug. 1 in the Market Mall in Charlevoix.

Micro-Data Services offers a complete line of microfilm and microfiche services, according to owner Frank Curtis. Also, Micro-Data Services sells microfilm equipment and supplies.

"No business is too small to take advantage of this service," Curtis says.

The owner adds that some of the benefits of putting records on microfilm are: saves space, speed and convenience of retrieval, security, improved customer service, fixed file continuity, dimensional uniformity, low cost distribution, and versatility.

Curtis says "all filming and developing will be done by Micro-Data Services."

Curtis is moving to Charlevoix from Marquette. He is a 1963 Charlevoix High School graduate. He also attended Michigan State. He has had eight years experience in the data processing field and five years in micrographics.

State champs

The Super-Stars of Gaylord, a Junior Girls Bowling League, claimed the state title in their class, in the state finals of the Michigan Youth Bowling Association roll-offs held recently at Lansing.

Playing with the team at the invitation of the Gaylord Coach was Heather Weliver, 16, a member of a Charlevoix team who is pictured here with the Regional Trophy won earlier at Cheboygan and the State trophy won at Lansing where the state finals were played.

Heather, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Weliver, will be a sophomore when she returns to the classroom this fall. However, it is unlkely that she will return to class in Charlevoix for her father, who is with the Personnel Division with the Consumers Power Co. has been transferred to the company's headquarters in Jackson.

The Super Stars placed first in the regional matches at Cheboygan with a score of 2947 to qualify for state competition.

Track and field meet slated for this week

The annual Track and Field Meet sponsored by the Charlevoix Recreation Department for boys and girls eight through 13 years of age will be held at Kipke Field Wednesday and Thursday, Aug. 14 and 15, Dwight Boss, city recreation director, has announced.

The girls' meet will be held at 1 p.m. on Wednesday with the boys' meet scheduled for the same time on Thursday.

The meet will be divided into two age groups with the eight through 10 year olds in the junior division and the 11 through 13 year olds in the senior division.

There will be seven events. Each entry may participate in three events of his or her choice plus the 440 yard relay. The events are the 25 and 75 yard dashes, 60 yard low hurdles, the long jump and the standing long jump, the softball throw and the 440 relay.

Ribbons will be presented to the top three winners in each event.

Those planning to participate need only appear at Kipke Field at 1 p.m. on the day they will be taking part in the meet ... the girls on Wednesday and the boys on Thursday.

Letter of appreciation sent to local club

The Petoskey Club Central Council of the Great Lakes Chapter of the Telephone Pioneers of Michigan have received a copy of the letter sent in appreciation of their work during the Michigan Special Olympics held in June in Central Michigan University.

The letter reads in part: On behalf of myself and the 3,200 mentally impaired athletes involved in the 1979 Summer Special Olympic games, we wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation for all of your efforts and volunteer support.

I am sure that all of you are aware of the fact that this year's dedication to the games read; "We wish to dedicate the 1979 Summer Special Olympic Games to the Telephone Pioneers of Michigan for their tireless efforts and unending devotion expended on behalf of the Michigan Special Olympics".

I can think if no more deserving group to present this honor to than all of you. I also hope that you have many happy memories of the Michigan Special Olympics that will stay with you forever.

Once again, thank you for everything you do and thanks for being the kind, generous people you are.

Signed: Susan Y. Randolph.
Special Projects Coordinator.

Charlevoix wins playoff

Charlevoix claimed the Petoskey Girls Youth (13-15) League title Wednesday, defeating Pellston 13-3 in a one game playoff.

Both teams had completed the regular season with 13-1 records.

Charlevoix broke a 1-1 tie in the second with a solo run and then scored five times in the fourth inning, aided by a home run from Teresa Noirot.

Leading 7-1 Charlevoix put the game away in the top of the sixth inning with a six run outburst on two hits. Pellston's scoring came on a solo run in the first and two more in the sixth and final inning.

Winning hurdler was Rhonda Buchanan on a four hitter while Brenda Cooper worked for Pellston, granting five hits and fanning seven.

For Charlevoix, Noirot homered, Mary Ellen Ciuk tripled while Margo Smith, Collen LaBlance and Kim Bolduc added singles. For Pellston, Bev Sobleski had a triple among two hits while Amy Hessel and Cooper added singles.

Charlevoix completed the year with a 25-5 overall record that included runnerup honors in both the State and Great Lakes Regional Youth Tournaments plus a District championship. Pellston was runnerup to Charlevoix in the recent District tourney and also competed in the state event.

CHARLEVOIX COUNCIL MINUTES

AUGUST 6, 1979
8:00 p.m.

The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date and time with Mayor Supernaw presiding.

Councilmen present: Timms, Roloff, Wood, Muma, Whitley and Porter. Absent: None

The Minutes of the July 16 1979 regular meeting were approved as presented in writing and as recorded in the Council Minutes Book

A Public Hearing was held regarding the proposed rezoning of four parcels of property on the City's South side to allow construction of a 62 unit senior citizen complex as requested by the owners of the property. Several members of the General Public present expressed a desire to see a Site Plan of the project prior to the rezoning being granted. Further concern was expressed regarding the physical location of the property, exactly who would be able to rent the units, if the units would indeed be used, and who would own the complex. A general discussion of these topics followed with mayor Supernaw and Council advising the General Public that the rezoning is a requirement of obtaining a loan for the project from HUD and that there would be a Site Plan Review of the project when the Housing Commission applies for a Building Permit. They further stated that the project would be City owned, run and maintained by the Housing Commission. Councilman Roloff stated that approximately 150 senior citizens had already expressed an interest in renting one of the units and that all prospective tenants must be at least 62 years of age

Moved by Councilman Porter and supported by Councilman Roloff that the property described below be rezoned from R-2 to R-4 as requested by the owners of said property for the purpose of constructing a senior citizen's housing complex with said property to revert to the R-2 zone if construction of the proposed project does not commence within 1 year.

(A) Commencing 2 rods South and 2 rods West of the Northeast corner of the Southeast ¼ of Southeast ¼ of Section 27, Town 34 North, Range 8 West, thence West along the South line of Garfield Avenue 328 feet from the point of beginning of this description, thence South 435 feet, thence West 139 feet, thence North 327 feet, thence East 99 feet, thence North 108 feet; thence East 99 feet, thence South 327 feet, thence West 125 feet, thence North 435 feet; thence East 26 feet to point of beginning, said parcel being purchased under land contract by Dean Davenport and Joyce Davenport

(C) The West 318 feet of the following: Commencing at a point 468 feet South and 33 feet West of the Northeast corner of the South ½ of the Southeast ¼ Section 27 Town 34 North, Range 8 West, thence South 140 feet more or less; thence West 175 feet; thence South 40 feet; thence West 353 feet more or less; thence North 180 feet more or less; to point West of point of beginning; thence East 528 feet to point of beginning, said parcel being purchased under land contract by George A. Hartford Jr. and Linda K. Hartford

(D) Commencing at the Northeast corner of the South ½ of the Southeast ¼ of Section 27, Town 34 North, Range 8 West, thence South on the East line of said Section 27, 42 rods, 10 feet more or less, thence West parallel with the South section line of said Section 27, 208 feet being point of beginning, thence North parallel with East section line of said Section, 55 feet, thence West parallel with South section line of said Section 27, 353 feet, thence South 292.5 feet, thence East parallel with South section line of said Section, 264 feet, thence North parallel with East section line 3.75 feet, thence East 89 feet more or less to a point 208 feet West of the East line of said section; thence North parallel with said East section line 113.75 feet to point of beginning, being part of the South ½ of the Southeast ¼ Section 27, Town 34 North, Range 8 West, said parcel owned in fee by George A. Hartford Jr. and Linda K. Hartford.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Councilman Timms, Roloff, Wood, Muma, Whitley and Porter Nays. None.
Absent: None.

The following sealed bids for a two-post truck hoist were opened and read by the City Clerk.

Name of Co.	Amount of Bid
Boyne Auto Supply, Inc.	$5,200.00
Northern Autobody Supply Factory Direct Tires, Inc	$6,638.05
Fochiman Motor Co	$6,141.10
	$5,815.00

As bids were referred to the Committee of the Whole with the power to act

Michael B. Spry of the Department of Social Services appeared before Council to present the Adult Foster Care Homefinding Program and to request Council's support in making the Public aware of the need for Adult Foster Homes in Charlevoix County

The following Resolution was offered and moved for its adoption by Councilman Porter and supported by Councilman Roloff

RESOLUTION 79-8-1

WHEREAS a needs assessment recently conducted by the Michigan Department of Social Services indicates that there is a significant need for new Adult Foster Care homes in Charlevoix County

WHEREAS this same needs assessment, in fact, projects that as many as 36 Adult Foster Care beds must be developed in Charlevoix County in the next year to adequately satisfy anticipated demand for AFC homes.

WHEREAS Charlevoix County Department of Social Services and Community Mental Health staff state that the vast majority of individuals who request AFC placement in Charlevoix County express that they would prefer to live in either Charlevoix, East Jordan or Boyne City

WHEREAS according to individuals requesting AFC placement, urban AFC placements are often more desirable because of the immediate proximity of community resources (such as stores, theatres, libraries, doctors, etc.),

WHEREAS many of the disabled and elderly residents of Charlevoix and Charlevoix County could benefit greatly from the further development of Adult Foster Care resources in Charlevoix

THEREFORE be it resolved that the City Council of Charlevoix, Michigan supports the development of Adult Foster Care resources in the City of Charlevoix and Charlevoix County adequate to care for those disabled and elderly residents of Charlevoix County who request Adult Foster Care placement in the county and who, in fact, need such care to improve their quality of life.

Resolution was adopted by the following yea and nay vote: Yeas: Councilmen Timms, Roloff, Wood, Muma and Porter. Nays: None. Councilman Whitley. Absent None.

Representatives of the Energy Resources Group of Petoskey appeared before Council to request the City's aid in their efforts to prohibit Consumer's Power Company from increasing their spent fuel capacity at Big Rock Nuclear Plant. The Group also stated that, in their opinion, the Big Rock Plant is unsafe and that the burden of proof regarding the safety factor lies with Consumer's, not the General Public. Representatives of Consumer's were present to discuss the alleged safety violations and the two groups agreed to discuss the matter further at a public meeting on August 15, 1979 at 8:00 p.m. in the Community Room of City Hall.

Moved by Councilman Timms and supported by Councilman Wood to accept and file the City Planning Commission Minutes dated July 23, 1979

Motion was accepted by the following Yeas: Councilmen Timms, Roloff, Wood, Muma, Whitley and Porter Nays: None. Absent None.

Carl Cavisch of 403 Sherman, a member of the General Public present, appeared before Council to state that a construction project in his neighborhood does not adhere to the Building Code. Mayor Supernaw directed the City Manager to obtain a report on the project from the Building Inspector.

John Sharrow of 406 Sheridan, a member of the General Public present, appeared before Council to express concern about storm water drainage on the N.W. corner of the Garfield-Norwood Rd intersection. The City Manager was directed to obtain a cost estimate on a drainage system for that location

Council tabled any action regarding appointments to the Parks and Recreation Commission until the next regularly scheduled Council meeting.

It was generally agreed to submit the names of Mayor Supernaw as Delegate and Councilman Whitley as Alternate to the annual Michigan Municipal League Convention to be held in Dearborn, September 12-14 1979.

The following Resolution was offered and moved for its adoption by Councilman Porter and supported by Councilman Timms.

RESOLUTION 79-8-2

RESOLVED, that it is hereby deemed in the best interests of the City of Charlevoix to enter into a settlement agreement with Consumers Power Company of Jackson, Michigan, resolving among other things, all issues in the Midland Plant Antitrust Review Proceeding (NRC Docket Nos. 329A and 330A), in accordance with the terms of the Settlement Agreement and the Mutual Covenant Not to Sue, Indemnification and Release heretofore submitted to and considered by this council (Commission); and

RESOLVED that the Mayor and City Clerk (and other designated city officials) be and are hereby authorized and directed to execute such settlement Agreement and Mutual Covenant Not to Sue, Indemnification and Release on behalf of the City

RESOLVED FURTHER, that such City Officials and the City's legal counsel be and are hereby authorized to take all such further action to secure any further necessary governmental approval, and to enter into, execute or authorize all other documents, certificates, papers, applications and instruments of any kind as may be necessary or desirable for the consummation and/or execution of the agreements contemplated by the above resolutions

STATE OF MICHIGAN) ISS

Resolution was adopted by the following yea and nay vote Yeas: Councilmen Timms, Roloff, Wood, Muma, Whitley and Porter Nays: None. Absent None.

The following Resolution was offered and moved for its adoption by Councilman Wood and supported by Councilman Muma.

RESOLUTION 79-8-3

RESOLVED, That it is hereby deemed advisable to enter into a contract with the Consumers Power Company, of Jackson, Michigan, for furnishing electric service to the City of Charlevoix, for a period of three (3) years and from month to month thereafter in accordance with the terms of the contract heretofore submitted to and considered by this Council; and

RESOLVED Further, That the Mayor and City Clerk be and are authorized and directed to execute such contract on behalf of the City

Resolution was adopted by the following yea and nay vote: Yeas: Councilmen Timms, Roloff, Wood, Muma, Whitley and Porter Nays: None. Absent: None.

The following Resolution was offered and moved for its adoption by Councilman Porter and supported by Councilman Muma

RESOLUTION 79-8-4

WHEREAS, the City of Charlevoix (the "Participant") is a member of the Michigan Public Power Agency (the "Agency"), an agency formed to meet the future electric energy needs of its member municipalities; and

WHEREAS, it is anticipated that the expenses of the Agency will be met in the following manner.

1. General administrative expenses will be paid from dues to be received by the Agency from all members of the Agency

2 Project costs will be paid by members of the Project Committee; and

WHEREAS, Project Study Costs, such as engineering fees, legal fees, financial consulting fees, travel costs and others must be incurred by the Agency to determine the desirability of a suggested project; and

WHEREAS, Project Study Costs must be paid by the Agency whether or not a project is finally acquired; and

WHEREAS certain Agency members have expressed an interest in having the Agency acquire an ownership interest in

1 Consumers Power Company's Midland Plant, Unit No. 1

2 Consumers Power Company's Midland Plant, Unit Nos. 1 and 2

3 Detroit Edison Company's Fermi Plant, Unit No. 2

4 Detroit Edison Company's Belle River Plant, Unit Nos. 1 and 2

5 Related transmission facilities.

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED by the City of Charlevoix as follows:

1 The Agency is hereby requested to continue its investigation of the proposed projects

2 The Participant agrees to reimburse the Agency for a proportionate share of Project Study Costs. Reimbursement to the Agency pursuant to the resolution shall be made by the Participant as Project Study Costs become due and payable by the Agency and upon billing by the Agency to the Participant.

3 The Participant hereby expresses an interest in entering into a power sales contract with the Agency as follows

2 MW of Campbell, Unit No. 3
0 MW of Midland, Unit Nos. 1 and 2
3 MW of Fermi, Unit No. 2
3 MW of Belle River, Unit Nos. 1 and 2
8 MW of transmission capacity

4 In the event the Agency acquires the Project, the Project Study Costs shall be included in the cost of the Project and appropriate adjustments shall be made between the Agency and the Participant.

Resolution was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Councilmen Timms, Roloff, Wood, Muma, Whitley and Porter. Nays: None. Absent None

The following Resolution was offered and moved for its adoption by Councilman Timms and supported by Councilman Porter

RESOLUTION 79-8-5

WHEREAS, this Council has heretofore adopted a resolution approving the Articles of Incorporation of the Michigan Public Power Agency (herein the "Agency") and participation of the City of Charlevoix in such Agency; and

WHEREAS, the City of Portland and the City of Niles have each adopted a Resolution electing to become a member of the Agency and authorizing participation therein; and

WHEREAS, it is necessary to amend the Articles of Incorporation of the Agency (the "Articles") in order to provide for the membership of the Cities of Portland and Niles and for certain other reasons.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED as follows:

1. The City of Charlevoix hereby consents to the participation in the City of Niles and the City of Portland as members in the Michigan Public Power Agency

2. The City of Charlevoix hereby approves the following amendments to the Articles of Incorporation of the Michigan Public Power Agency:

(a) The title of the Articles is hereby amended to read as follows: "First Amended Articles of Incorporation of the Michigan Public Power Agency"

(b) The existing paragraph under Article II of the Articles shall be designated "Section 1." and Article II of the Articles is further amended by the addition of the following paragraph:

Section 2. The members of this Agency are the cities of Bay City, Charlevoix, Croswell, Grand Haven, Harbor Springs, Hart, Holland, Lowell, Niles, Petoskey, Portland, St. Louis, South Haven, Traverse City and Zeeland, and the Villages of Chelsea, Paw Paw and Sebewaing; all municipal corporations of the State of Michigan operating municipal electric utility systems as of the effective date of Act 448

3. This resolution shall be printed once in the Charlevoix Courier, a newspaper generally circulating in the area of the City of Charlevoix.

4. The amendments approved by this Resolution shall become effective and in full force and effect immediately upon the publication of this resolution and the filing of this resolution in accordance with the applicable provisions of Act 448 of the Michigan Public Acts of 1976.

Resolution was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Councilmen Timms, Roloff, Wood, Muma, Whitley, and Porter. Nays: None. Absent: None.

The following Resolution was offered and moved for its adoption by Councilman Muma and supported by Councilman Timms.

100 years ago

When the Charlevoix Village Council met 100 years ago, on August 16, 1879, it referred two bills to the Committee on Finance.

The first bill was from Fox, Rose, and Buttars, in the amount of $2.75, for a Spittle, apparently a necessary accessory to any meeting room back in those days.

The second bill was from Arthur Hamlin, in the amount of $2.74, for "labour on crosswalks".

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX
COUNTY OF CHARLEVOIX

RESOLUTION APPROVING AMENDMENTS TO ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION OF MICHIGAN PUBLIC POWER AGENCY

At a regular meeting of the Common Council of the City of Charlevoix, County of Charlevoix, held at the o'clock p.m. local time in the City of Charlevoix, pursuant to notice duly given.

PRESENT: Councilmen Timms, Roloff, Wood, Muma, Whitley, and Porter.

ABSENT: None.

The following preamble and resolution were offered by Councilman Timms and supported by Councilman Porter:

WHEREAS, this Council has heretofore adopted a resolution approving the Articles of Incorporation of the Michigan Public Power Agency (herein the "Agency") and participation of the City of Charlevoix in such Agency; and

WHEREAS, the City of Portland and the City of Niles have each adopted a Resolution electing to become a member of the Agency and authorizing participation therein; and

WHEREAS, it is necessary to amend the Articles of Incorporation of the Agency (the "Articles") in order to provide for the membership of the Cities of Portland and Niles and for certain other reasons.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED as follows:

1. The City of Charlevoix hereby consents to the participation in the City of Niles and the City of Portland as members in the Michigan Public Power Agency.

2. The City of Charlevoix hereby approves the following amendments to the Articles of Incorporation of the Michigan Public Power Agency:

(a) The title of the Articles is hereby amended to read as follows: "First Amended Articles of Incorporation of Michigan Public Power Agency."

(b) The existing paragraph under Article II of the Articles shall be designated "Section 1." and Article II of the Articles is further amended

Erber Auto of Charlevoix was the winner of the fourth annual Beaver Island Homecoming Invitational slo-pitch tournament held here last weekend. The team lost the opening game to the Beaver Island teams and then came back through the loser's bracket to defeat the Islanders twice to take the title. Pictured front row (l to r): Tarry Cummings, Gary Novotny, Kirk Lieharman, Jim Alger, John Greene, Tom Left, Dan Groono. Back row: Warren Balding, coach; Bob Alger, Jim Elzinga, Jim Marsh, Casey Culbertson, Randy Williams.

Erber's win tourney on island

ST JAMES, Beaver Island – Erber Auto of Charleoix had hardly arrived on the island Friday then the team found themselves on the short end of a 9-3 score in the opening game of the annual Homecoming Invitational Tournament with the Beaver Island Beavers.

While Beaver Island was coasting through two more games in the winner's bracket with wins by scores of 5-2 over C.R.E. and 11-6 in 11 innings over Flight Deck, Erber Auto was battling its way through the loser's bracket, taking on four opponents before clashing again with the stubborn host team in what was to be the finals. Erber's however, had different ideas and, in the first game, toppled Beaver Island out of the winner's bracket with a resounding 19-6 score. In the final game Erber's added insult to injury by defeating the Islanders 12-3 for the title.

The tournament is sponsored annually by McDonough's Spartan store which provides the trophies for the winner, the runner-up, the special trophies as well as the individual players.

In their opening game the Islanders scored their nine runs on eight runs with Rich Gillespie on the plate. The McDonoughs, Tim and Bill along with Gillespie scored homers for the winners.

Erber's had three runs on five hits. John Greene was the losing pitcher.

Then came the second meeting between the two teams on Sunday morning. This time John Green was the winning pitcher, allowing 14 hits on which the Islanders scored nine runs. Erber's, on the other hand, collected 23 hits off Rich Gillespie and scored 16 runs to keep them in the running for the title.

Jim Alger and Bob Alger aided by knocking two and three homers, respectively, while Gillespie had one and Tim McDonough two for the losers.

With the same pitchers returning to the mound, Erber scored 12 runs off 17 hits while Beaver Island had three runs on 12 hits to give the Charlevoix team the title. Jim Alger did his bit by hitting two homeruns.

On their way to the finals, Beaver Island defeated C.R.E. 5-2 after collecting nine hits off the losing pitcher, Dave Novotny. Gillespie was the winning pitcher, allowing 12 hits. Tim and Tom McDonough delivered one homer each in the game.

In their next game that went nine innings, the Islanders eliminated Flight Deck 11-6 after taking Don Willis for 16 hits. Flight Deck had 10 off Gillespie. Gillespie and Tom McDonough added home runs for the victors.

Meanwhile, Erbers were working their way to the finals the hard way defeating Townhouse 9-4 with Harold Thomure the losing pitcher. Greene was on the mound for Erbers and Kirk Lieberman hit a home run; In their next game Erbers won over C.R.F. in an eight inning game. C.R.E. had 21 hits but managed only 12 runs while Erbers scored 13 runs on 19 hits. At one time Erbers led 12-6 before C.R.E. caught fire in the fifth and scored six runs. Erbers managed one run of the eighth to take the game. Lieberman had a homer for Erbers. Steve Dunkelberg had one for C.R.E. Dave Novotny was the losing pitcher. Erbers went on to defeat Sundew 7-4 with Greene the winning pitcher and Dave Matta the loser. They then dumped Flight Deck 12-7 with Greene again on the mound. Don Willis was the losing pitcher.

In other games, Flight Deck shut out Townhouse 3-0; C.R.E. won over Sundew 19-2; Flight Deck won by forfeit over Beebe's G-Men when the latter failed to field a full team; Sundew defeated the G-Men 12-10.

John Greene who pitched Erber Auto to the title was named the most valuable player; Tim McDonough of the Beavers was named the home run king and Kirk Lieberman was the batting champion with an average of .666 for the tournament.

Tag Day nets $2,656

The Grondvue Medical Care Facility Auxiliary held its annual Tag Day recently with a total of $2,656.35 contributed throughout the county. Mrs. Phyllis Malpass, auxiliary treasurer, reports.

A breakdown of the contributions shows $56 given in community of Barnard; $147 on Beaver Island; $980, Boyne City; $2.40, Boyne Falls; $620.80, Charlevoix; $650.50, East Jordan; $52.29, Grandvue Medical Care Facility; $105.80, Horton Bay and $1.50, Walloon Lake.

Funds will be used to purchase furnishings for the new wing of the facility, now under construction.

Wedding

Badgerow-Geiken

Holy Trinity Church at Comstock Park was the scene Aug. 3 of the wedding of Joan Ellen Badgerow of Sparta and Geik L. Geiken of Grand Rapids.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Lester Moniber of Sparta and Mrs. Mary M. Geiken of Charlevoix and the late Cornelius D. Geiken.

The Rev. Peter Damian Massengill and the Rev. Mr. Rock Badgerow officiated at the double ring service in the presence of 300 guests. Music was by a contemporary choir.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. For her wedding she chose a gown fashioned with a bodice of ivory re-embroidered Alencon lace, empire waist and ivory chiffon skirt. Her matching train and mantilla veil was also of ivory re-embroidered Alenenn lace. Her bridal bouquet was of yellow roses, baby's breath and ivy.

Cindy Law of Saginaw, as her maid of honor, wore a full length mint green gown styled with an empire waist, elbow length sleeves and a matching designed blouson. Her bouquet was of garden flowers.

Daniel J. Donnelly ossisted the bridegroom as best man. Seating the guests were James Badgerow, Mark Badgerow, Greg Snyder and Bruce LaFever.

A reception followed at The Friendly Fox in Sparta hosted by the parents of the couple. Thomas and Kathy Badgerow were master and mistress of ceremonies.

After a wedding trip around Lake Superior, the couple will be at home at 2123 Union Blvd., Grand Rapids after Aug. 18.

The bride is religious education coordinator at Holy Trinity Church. The bridegroom teaches at St. Andrew's School in Grand Rapids.

A rehearsal dinner on Thursday evening at Lakes Dry Dock was hosted by Mrs. Geiken

Engagement

Kleiber-Johnson

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Kleiber of Charlevoix announce the engagement of their daughter, Judith, to Gilbert Johnson.

Johnson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G.N. Johnson, of Charlevoix.

The bride-elect is a 1979 graduate of Charlevoix High School and works at the Charlevoix Area Hospital. Her fiance is a 1978 graduate of Charlevoix High School and works at C.H. Smith Construction.

A fall wedding is planned.

VERN J. WHITEFORD of East Jordan, long tune pubbc servant, has been forced to resign from the Charlevoix County Welfare Board because of ill health.

In accepting his resignation last week, the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners adopted a resolution in which they did "duly record appreciation for services performed by Vern J. Whiteford as a long time member and chairman of the Social Services Commission. His devotion and diligence in the performance of his duties may well serve as an example to others who may follow him in commission or committee appoints."

The resolution further stated that Vern J. Whiteford was to be appointed a member emeritus of the commission for an indefinite term.

HARRY WATSON, former mayor and councilman of East Jordan, has been appointed to the Charlevoix County Welfare Board.

The appointment was made last week by Clyde Cunningham, chairman of the County Board of Commissioners.

Watson will fill the unexpired terni of Vern Whiteford, which terminates December 31, 1980.

Whiteford recently resigned the post because of illness.

Other persons currently serving on the Welfare Board are Condit Drury of Charlevoix and Eileen Rouse of Boyne City.

CLARE GENE MILLS of Reusch Jewelry in Charlevoix will be in the forthcoming edition of "Who's Who in the Jewelry Industry."

The first ever, hard bound publbcation will focus on the accomplishments of 3,000 jewelers "who have risen to the top of their profession."

"One point I want to emphasize," said Who's Who Editor Don McNeil, "is that this book will be a salute to the true leaders in our industry. It is very selective. No one will be included unless he or she has made a genuine contribution – though, of course, the nature of the contribution may vary greatly."

Mills has been a watchmaker for 32 years. He attended the Kansas City School of Watchmaking for two years. He worked as a watchmaker in Ohio and California before starting at Reusch Jewelry in Charlevoix in 1978.

Mills and his wife, Jerry, have four children and five grandchildren.

Urban decay

The last I read of Margaret Drabble was The Waterfall. Something about her characterization was untque, though what has survived in my memory is more of a mood, of the slow-moving course of fate toward lack of any particular resolution for the characters involved. Aud, too, her latest novel, The Ice Age follows suit.

You have to be in a reflective mood to read Margaret Drabble. For in these novels at least, there is no frantic action line directed to any surprising conclusion, there are no mysteries to be investigated or solved. There is little to maintain the rapt attention of the reader except reflection; the pondering of the characters over the lot that life has seen fit to cast them.

On the other hand, there are few novelists who get down to weaving their narratives around their characters so intensely. Margaret Drabble deals with plausible, if not ordinary circumstances, and plays them out true to life. And as in life, the reader is left to grapple with the mundane, rather than the romantic. What is or unfortunately will be and of course, what might have been, are the stuff out of which The Ice Age evolves. This is melancholy mortar, dealing with long periods of time, corruptible change, inevitability, and only occasionally, happenstance. Life is usually not an unbelievable fairy tale or a chiller which leaves us clinging to our chair arms. Either is The Ice Age.

Anthony Keating, one time property sharkster, on doctor's orders to reeuperate from a recent heart attack without indulging in any of his usual pleasures, is the visionary of the novel. Left to cope in mid-70's England, on the brink of financial disaster and personal domestic insecurity without the aid of the proven means of dulling the senses, Anthony finds his sentence more as a purgative than a penance. The solitude imposed by his country estate is at first threatening to Anthony. But he soon finds himself resenting intrusions upon this privacy. For the first time in his life, perhaps, he has to face himself without distraction. The time spent is not unlike that which one of his colleagues is enduring in prison. But Anthony finds the English countryside across the moors, rather than a prison, a refuge from the freedom to have to make decisions and deal with worldly matters.

Then there is Anthony's counterpart and long-term lover Alison, who is burdened with her own problems. One of these is a surly, sulky teenage daughter, who has recently been imprisoned in a hostile country for a driving accident, and the other, a ten-year-old who has been imprisoned in her wheel chair with cerebral palsy all her life.

The Ice Age is about people like Anthony and Alison. It is about the urban decay of modern day England and about the disillusionment that ruthless acquisition can lead to. It is about the life of self-realization verus the kind of life imposed upon us by business or social life. It is a true-to-life story which risks the danger of depressing its reader.

Dorothy Stoel recently returned from an exciting trip to Russia. In this week's Meet Charlevoix column, she talks about the country and the people. See Page 5.

Evergreen to be planted in East Park as 'living memorial'

Mr. and Mrs. Woodbury Ransom

An evergreen will be planted in East Park as a "living memorial" to Mr. and Mrs. Woodbury Ransom, founders of the CHIP Counseling Center.

The tree will be planted near the Chamber of Commerce office by CHIP's Board of Directors. A plaque recognizing the Ransom's generosity will be placed at the base of the tree.

The Charlevoix City Council approved the planting Monday night.

The Ransom s established and funded the counseling center after their son died in a boat accident. The center has been in operation for three years.

The board held a reception Sunday night for the Ransom's at the First Congregational Church. At that time, Mayor Sam Supernaw presented the couple with a proclamation from the city and Ron Moore, past president of the board, disclosed that a tree would be planted in a city park for the Ransom's - pending approval by council.

Moore said the tree will be planted and maintained by Site Planning Development.

In other action Monday, council:

Approved rezoning parcel of property at 906 Bridge Street (Boss Engineering) from professional office to residential. Council stipulated that no more than two families reside in the apartment building.

Approved a request from Coast Guard officials to have the sewer and fresh water lines placed under the concrete at the city pier near the Sundew mooring. The cost will be occurred by the Coast Guard.

Rejected a motion to send a letter to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission opposing the storage of more spent fuel rods at the Big Hock Point nuclear plant. Reportedly, some area residents plan to petition the NRC and intervene in the case. Consumers Power has petitioned to increase its storage capacity from 193 spent fuel rods to 441.

Learned that a small light manufacturing company from the Detroit area is interested in building a plant on property adjacent to the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District. The property is already zoned light industrial. The matter will be brought to council at a future meeting.

Learned that the recent wind storm "demolished" the diving platform at Michigan Beach. The board was ripped off the platform and afterwards was found on the beach. In that same wind storm, one of the new bouys was lost.

Agreed to put on the November ballot an amendment to the City Charter to change the clerk's job from an elected to appointed position.

Learned thut the resurfacing of five streets should begin in a "week or two." Streets slated for resurfacing include Dixon (Meech to Mercer), Meadowlane (May to Garfield), Upright (Grant to Lake), Hurlbut (Grant to Lake) and Cherry (Central to Mercer). A portion of Cherry Street might not be done this year, depending upon how much work is required on Dixon Avenue. Hodgkiss & Douma, Inc. will do the road work.

Appointed Conrad Klooster and John Hess to one year terms, and Dave Novotny to a two year term and Dave Novotny to a three year term on the Park and Recreation Board.

Jim Peacock named sheriff's deputy on Beaver Island

James Peacock is the new Charlevoix County Sheriff's deputy on Beaver Island.

The 30-year-old ex-Marine started work Friday.

"I'm excited about it," Peacock told the Courier before leaving for the Island. "It's too good to be true.

"Jobs like this are rare. I'm extremely excited and enthusiastic about going over."

Peacock will set-up his office in the DNR building. But eventually, he said, the office will be shifted to the St. James Township Hall. He'll succeed Jeff Alexander who was serving as interim deputy.

While working on the Island, Peacock will also be finishing his requirements for a bachelor's degree at Michigan State. As part of an independent study program, Peacock will pen a thesis paper on the topic: Law enforcement on a small, isolated island.

"They (professors) are really interested in this type of research because so little has been done on it," Peacock said.

Besides criminal justice, Peacock also is majoring in political science and psychology. Initially, he enrolled at Wayne State as a pre-med student.

While at MSU, Peacock has captained the judo team. He has a first degree blackbelt in judo and a second degree blackbelt in karate. He finished fourth in the nation in a recent AAU judo tournament.

Prior to his college studies, Peacock spent six years in the U.S. Marine Corps - starting as a private and ending as a captain.

Peacock served in many capacities with the marines including; teaching hand-to-hand combat, flying, and working as an air traffic controller.

The new deputy said he will work hard to establish the sub-station and give the people on the island "full service." He will stress communication.

"I realize I'm an outsider coming in," he said. "That's why I want them to let me know what type of law enforcement they want.

"I'm not going to come in and say 'this is how it's going to be done' because if someone came into my house, for instance, and told me how to run my house, I'd throw the guy out.

"I consider myself a non-violent, low-key person who prefers to avoid confrontations by communicating and trying to understand people.

"But, most importantly, I'm there to serve and protect."

Peacock visited the Island just prior to accepting the job and "it was everything I hoped it would be. The people, in particular, were just great."

Peacock's wife, Bobbi, should also like it.

"My wife likes the outdoors. In fact, she always dreamed of being a forest ranger. She was as disappointed living in the city as I was. When this came (job) we both smiled."

The Peacock's have an eight year-old daughter, Amy, and are expecting another child in January.

Bus service for senior citizens to continue

Although present funding for the Commission on Aging bus program will run out at the end of September, there will be bus service for senior citizens in the area at least until Jan. 1, and probably longer.

Art Saworski, coordinator of the bus program, told the Courier last week that he has been assured of enough money from a state source to operate the buses through October, November, and December. In addition, he is working on a funding project which would make it possible to operate the present buses from next January to the following October, when a new bus program is expected to start.

Charlevoix County has applied for five buses under the new state-sponsored "Dial-a-Ride" system which will be paid for by increased gasoline taxes and license plate fees.

"There is a better than even chance this new system will be in operation by October, 1980," Saworski said. A shortage of small buses has caused a delay in getting the program started throughout the state.

The county's application asks that three of the five buses be equipped with lifts for handicapped people. They will cost the state approximately $150,000. In addition, the plan calls for the state to pay 100 percent of the operation costs for the first two years and 75 percent the third year. If there is a deficit after the third year, the federal government could pick up one-half of the deficit, according to Saworski. In addition, the bus system could be partially supported by voted millage, as is the case in several Michigan counties and towns at the present time.

Janet Begrow joins Courier advertising staff

Janet Begrow has joined the advertising staff of the Charlevoix Courier and Petoskey News-Review. Miss Begrow is a recent graduate of Michigan State University, where she earned a bachelor of arts degree in advertising.

She was employed as a layout artist at the Towne Courier in East Lansing before joining the Courier and News-Review. She was involved in planning and designing promotional contests. She also worked closely with the sales staff in designing and recommending specific ad ideas for clients.

Before graduating in June, Miss Begrow had two internships. Last summer she interned with WVOY, where she produced commercials for several local accounts, and in the fall she interned with Justin Ward Advertising Agency of Lansing, where she planned media budgets, scheduled advertising and consulted with staff designers on art work for pamphlets for her clients.

At the Courier and News-Review, Miss Begrow will be covering the Charlevoix area.

"I hope over the next year to pool together my clients' ideas and my ideas to build consistent advertising that works," she said. "I think of advertising sales as a job where I sell ideas and not just space."

Board accepts bids

Bids for insurance, the paving of a section of the high parking lot, garbage service, milk and bread were opened and awarded at a special meeting of the Charlevoix Board of Education Monday.

The Charlevoix Agency received the bid for the umbrella and Workmen's Compensation insurance, lowest of two bidders. The company bid $27,204. Ellzinga Insurance was the second bidder.

The Tri-City Asphalt Co. was awarded the bid for the paving of a section of the parking lot at the high school. The company's bid, the only one received, was $5,000 for 18,000 square feet of asphalt two inches thick. The price includes grading and preparing the area for the asphalt. When this work is completed approximately one-third of the lot will be paved.

Only one bid was received for garbage service. Charlevoix Garbage Service bid $177 per month during the school year and $36 per month during the summer months. This includes all three schools.

The Ideal Division of the Pure Milk Co. was the successful bidder among four for milk products. The company's bid was for .1195 per one-half pint homogenized milk; .1295 for the same amount of chocolate milk and .1175 for one-half pint two percent milk. Other companies biding were Borden's, Inverness Dairy and Northern Michigan Dairy.

Grocers' Baking Co. was awarded the bid for breads/buns. The company's bid was 32¢ for a 20 oz. loaf of white bread; 40¢ for 24 ounce loaf of white bread; 45¢ for 18 ounce loaf wheat bread and 44¢ per dozen for hamburger and hotdog buns. Schafer Bakeries also bid.

The next regular meeting of the board of education will be held at the high school study hall at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Aug. 27.

100 years ago today

The Charlevoix Volunteer Fire Department was born on August 23, 1879, when the Charlevoix Village Council met in regular session.

According to notes from that meeting, members of the newly-formed fire department signed a statement in which they agreed "to be governed by such rules and regulations as the Common Council or the Chief Engineer shall prescribe." They also agreed to "answer when possible to do so, any alarm of fire in the Village of Charlevoix or any summons of the Chief Engineer for drill, parade, or inspection, and that we will promptly obey all orders of the Chief Engineer or his assistant on any such occasion of fire, drill, parade, or inspection."

DNR hosts hazardous materials seminar

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources recently hosted a three day hazardous materials seminar.

The seminar opened at the Big Rock Point nuclear plant where those in attendance received instructions from Consumers Power Co. personnel on how to recover contaminated materials.

On the second and third days, the action shifted to High Island where the group received intensive instructions in the underwater recovery of chemicals, flammable materials, explosives and other hazardous materials.

Roger Bush, a certified diver who is stationed here with the DNR, said that divers practice the year round on dive and search patterns under all types of circumstances. Divers are required to make practice dives a minimum of once a month.

Heading the three day event were James Martindale of Lansing, representing the DNR Division Office, and Sgt. Cliff Elhs of Lansing, representing the Michigan State Police.

Among the 19 persons attending were members of the DNR Law Division Recovery Unit, Upper Peninsula Fish Division divers, and Underwater Recovery Units from the Michigan State Police, Emmet County Sheriff's Department and the Grand Haven Police Department.

Energy assistance available through NMHSA

In March, the Northwest Michigan Human Services Agency received monies for an Emergency Energy Assistance Program to assist persons suffering from hardships in paying their 1978-79 fuel bills. Each household was limited to $250 of assistance.

Well, the program turned out to be quite a success.

When it ended on June 30, the agency had served 1,098 households in 10 northwest Michigan counties. In Charlevoix, 119 households were served. Only in Grand Traverse (233) and Wexford (176) counties were more households served.

The agency also has an Energy Conservation Program that assists low income home owners in conserving energy consumption and lowering fuel bills. The program includes replacing broken window panes, making minor repairs to leaking roofs, weatherstripping, caulking and glazing, insulating ceilings and providing aluminium storm windows. If a home is insulated by agency crews it will be given a "freshen up" coat of paint if needed. The cost of paint is limited to $80 per house while the material cost in the conservation program is limited to $500.

The agency is headquartered in Traverse City.

Low bid $30,410

Merrill Electric Co. has the inside track on installing a beacon and lighting the runway and wind cone at the Beaver Island Airport.

The Scottville company bid $30,410 on the project - the lowest of three bids received by the Michigan Department of Transportation.

Before a contract can be awarded, however, the low bid must be approved by the Michigan Transportation Committee and the State Administrative Board.

If approved, the project could be completed by December.

Eight years ago when Pastor Tommy Barnett accepted the pastorate of the Westside Assembly of God Church in Davenport, Iowa, the church was averaging 76 people in Sunday School. It is presently averaging 4,400 each Sunday.

In the October 1976 issue of CHRISTIAN LIFE, Westside was honored with the "Fastest Growing Sunday School in the Nation" award. They have also been recognized in America as the largest Assembly of God Sunday School. Since Pastor Barnett's arrival, two auditoriums, a gymnasium and a bus garage have been built.

Pastor Barnett will be at the Charlevoix Assembly of God Church Monday night at 7:30 p.m. for a church growth seminar. The public is invited.

Although he is 41 years old, Pastor Barnett has preached for 25 years. He has preached in city-wide meetings, camps, and to as many as 30,000 in a single audience in India. He has traveled six times around the world preaching the gospel.

His ministry includes helping pastors, leaders, and workers to build soul winning churches.

Rye Seeds are dropped on Tom Wieland's cornfield.

Two bushels of seeds were dropped on each acre.

Rye seeds planted in 1,803 acres of Charlevoix County farmland

In an effort to stabilize the soil and prevent erosion in the spring, 1,803 acres of farmland in Charlevoix County has been seeded with rye.

The rye will act as a cover crop in the cornfields, strengthening the top soil and keeping it in place after the spring thaws and rains. The rye has been planted in August in order to give it time to grow before winter. According to Helen Dietze, county executive director for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, the August planting will not interfere with the fall harvest.

Over 20 farms in the county were seeded, Mrs. Dietze said, although all farmers had a chance to participate in the program. Farms in Emmet County were also seeded.

The two counties received a federal grant that paid 80 percent ($11,696) of the cost. Participating farmers paid the remaining 20 percent.

Two airplanes were used to seed the farms. Each plane carried a ton of seed and dropped about two bushels of seed on each acre.

Mrs. Dietze said statistics indicate that two tons of top soil are lost for each acre i with a six percent slope, which is average for the area i that does not have a cover crop. By planting a cover crop, officials hope to cut the loss in half.

Initially, officials tried to secure a three year grant for Charlevoix, Emmet, Antrim and Otsego counties. However, that fell through and the grant was limited to Charlevoix and Emmet counties for a one year time period.

Helping out Chrysler

Certainly one of the more controversial issues we will be dealing with after the August recess will be federal assistance for the ailing Chrysler Corporation.

Chrysler, the nation's tenth largest corporation, has lost about $260 million so far this year. They have admitted that, without some kind of help from the federal government, the company will be forced to shut down.

There are a lot of arguments on both sides of the Chrysler aid issue. But, what it all boils down to is that if Chrysler is not provided with some kind of limited and qualified assistance on a one-time basis, the economy of the entire country will suffer unnecessarily.

According to a study just released by the Congressional Budget Office, the United States economy could suffer a permanent loss of 200,000 to 300,000 jobs and a temporary loss of more than 500,000. The study also noted that, with the loss of Chrysler, our foreign trade deficit would increase by $2.1 billiun; "real" economic growth, which is already in dire straits, would decrease by .6 to 1.0 percent; and a generally weaker economy would only be able to absorb some of the unemployed, resulting in a net increase of .3 percent in the national unemployment rate.

Another fact that we must consider is the cost to the federal government, should Chrysler collapse. Failure of the firm would mean a loss of about $11 billion in tax revenues and would cost the government another $2 billion in unemployment and welfare benefits. The costs to state government in Michigan would be astronomical, considering the firm employs some 75,000 workers in our state alone.

Philosophically, the loss of Chrysler would leave only two major domestic automakers, eliminating much of the industry's competition, and probably driving up prices.

I will not support an outright bail-out of Chrysler, I do, however, believe that we must provide the corporation with some form of qualified tax relief, or guaranteed loans. But first, I think that Congress has a responsibility to make sure that the firm will be able to turn around and won't be in the same position again in a couple of years.

Perhaps in considering Chrysler's financial crisis, a majority of the members of Congress will come to realize the effects of federal regulations on the smooth and efficient operation of business. Maybe because the whole country has been forced to take notice of the results of stringent government regulations on a major corporation, the Congress will start to think about the effects similar controls are having on the small businesses which are really the backbone of our country's economy.

If we can help Chrysler survive this present danger, and if Congress can in fact realize that government controls have gotten out of hand, then a short-term economic crisis may be foregone for a longer term benefit to our country's economy.

Bob Davis represents the 11th District in the U.S. House of Representatives.

Questions about nuclear power

I attended the Wednesday night public hearing in Charlevoix concerning the Big Rock Punt nuclear facility's application to the NHC to increase their on-site waste storage. A couple of questions remain in my mind that I feel are essential to be answered.

The issue of allowing Big Rock to store additional fuel and spent fuel rods, is the issue of Big Rock continuing as a power producing facility. There has been an intervention request of the NRC by the local concerned citizens, and should this be granted there will be a pubbc hearing with the NRC. My questions to the NRC are: Does the human concern, fear and dislike of nuclear power factor in at all in the decisions made by the commission? Does it matter that many do not want to accept the risks involved with this type of electricity, and that we are afraid for our children and future generations? Also, does the safety record of a facility, notorious for being one of the most dangerous, have any bearing on the decisions?

In February of this year there were any operational problems with the Big Rock reactor: There was excessive leakage in two containment isolation valves and other leaking valves, a condenser hotwell fill valve failed to open after a plant shutdown, there were unacceptable welds discovered, and seven of 32 controll rod drive switches failed to operate satisfactorily during test at shutdown. These incidents went unannounced to the public, and were found in the plant's status report of 3/31.

The questions I have for Consumers Power Co. are: How can we trust that you will inform the public of future potential dangers when your reputation is consistently negligent in this respect? Also, as controversial and truly dangerous as nuclear power is, why is Consumers Power adamant in continuing it's development when there are so many viable alternatives for Michigan, especially in the Charlevoix area with the great expanse of forest land, the constant strongwind, and the powerful Lake Michigan. When is Consumers going to really begin to develop these and other available technologies for Michigan? Already there are plans for a 25 megawatt cogeneration wood-fueled plant in Hersey, Michigan. Why not move in this direction in Charlevoix starting now?

I am writing on my behalf and on behalf of my friends on the Leelanau Peninsula who live just 20 miles across the bay from the Big Rock plant. They do not receive their power from the plant, but do face the same risks in their land, their animals and themselves being exposed to radiation in the event of an accident. A class A accident would involve evacuation of people within a 50 mi. radius of Big Rock including most of the peninsula. It is unfortunate and unfair that the people who do not want this perilous risk, and do not benefit from it in any way, cannot escape it and seem powerless in the fight against it.

A night at the concert

I felt somehow outdated as I drove toward Bay View while loads of free spirits sped south past me, hurrying to hang loose and hear the heavy rock sounds of a Castle concert. Woodstock didn't seem that long ago.

When my usual companions were unable to go to our favorite Sunday night concert, I invited daughter Rachel, who is five. With the unthinkable treat of M & M's and a promise of a post-concert Italian Ice, we set out for our adventure. How would this youngster handle her first "medium-brow" concert?

Most of the way there, I recalled for her, in drooling detail, the great T.V. commercial about M & M's. Remember the fat little peanuts with faces, arms and legs that dove into a pool of chocolate and got zapped with a "thin candy shell"? We both agreed that M & M's do melt in your hand, NOT in your mouth.

Upon arrival in the spacious auditorium, we found ideal seats in the front row balcony. The first few moments brought a barrage of inquiries: "Is this a church? Why is there a cross up there? Are we all going to sing now? Will I fall off here?" Enter the choir. "Why are those ladies faces sad? Can I sit on your lap?" Hot legs wound around mine. I started to sweat. It was about ninety degrees and quite possibly, this had been a very dumb idea.

During an instrumental introduction, a clear voice intoned, "When will she ever sing? She looks like a statue!" There were near-tears during a violin solo, perhaps reminiscent of an emotional scene in Woody Woodpecker. The triu's merry melody brought forth delightful giggles. And a serious bass solo received an amazed, "Would you clap for That?"

About one-half way through the evening, it occurred to me that light concerts on the grass in the park had a certain appeal. My daughter's interest in standing at the rail and "directing" (which was ok, I decided) became a diligent dig to unlodge her underwear from its difficult position. Upon return to her seat, she said, "Do you like me?"

Beautiful music floated on. Long, dramatic releases of air escaped at various intervals. "A spider climbed up my leg once," Luther smashed it or pulled it down. I can't remember." The M & M's melted in her hand. The handbell choir with its enchanting piece elicited a sincere, "Wow. Now THAT was neat."

I took to heart the words of the final unison hymn "Be still, my soul; the Lord is on thy side... Thro thorny ways leads to a joyful end." Rachel leaned over and whispered, "I love you, mom." And the reviews were good. "This was OK. Fine. Well... nice, y'know? Real nice," She found a souvenir – one metal haircliip under a hush outside the auditorium. t Are strange hairclips in Bay View bushes more acceptable than those in most?) And, of course, the Italian Ice melted in our mouths as we quietly returned home to Charlevoix.

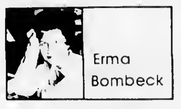
The winner qualifies for the Dating Game



Erma Bombeck

There was an ad in an LA paper for "single, attractive, outgoing girls and guys between 18 and 60" to try out as contestants for The Dating Game.

It blew my theory on where they found contestants for game shows. I thought most of them were graduates of the School for the Perpetual Cheerful with special skills in Handling Sexual Innuendoes and How to Hyperventilate When You Win the Car.

I haven't seen The Dating Game in several years, but occasionally the Newlywed Game will flash before me on the screen. I am amazed that the marriages last to the end of the show.

A bride recently was asked to respond, "If your husband was a vegetable on your wedding night, which une would he be?" followed by, "When you make 'whoopie' do you face Australia or the Virgin Islands?"

Another one was asked where her husband would predict she would say the sun set over her bedroom – in the east or west. She said the sun set in the east. Her husband predicted she would say that.

There was a lot of arm-punching, loud arguing and "You never said that's among the contestants and then it was back to innuendoes... double entendres... blank blanks and beep beeps.

It occurs to me there is only one more avenue for game shows to explore. It's only a matter of time before we're introduced to the "We've Split Game."

The show would host people like Cheryl and Don (who lost five valuable points on The Newlywed Game when Cheryl didn't know what Don would say was the most embarrassing thing their dog saw them do in their own home) who qualified for the We've Split Game.

Host Chuck Whacko will put each of them before a buzzer and for five points and a public defender ask Cheryl, "What is the worst meal Don will say you've ever cooked?"

If Cheryl misses and Don guesses it correctly, he'll get custody of the public defender and 15 points.

Then Don will be asked, "How did you react to Cheryl's dating while you were married?" An answer that matches Cheryl's would be good for 15 more points and a non-support clause.

The winner? You guessed it... will qualify for the Dating Game.

Puffed-up unemployment statistics hide truth

Nick Thimmesch

WASHINGTON – For decades, Presidents and other pols up for reelection always displayed itchy trigger fingers when it came to unemployment statistics. The rate goes up a decimal or two and, ham, the federal spending gun goes off in the belief that such spending makes jobs.

I have long been suspicious of this dogma, a reflection of Depression Mentality – and indeed of how bad unemployment really is when the Bureau of Labor Statistics proclaims it is bad. Even when it was 8.5 percent four seasons ago, it was hard to find a repairman, and the want-ad pages still screamed for help.

Now comes Prof. Peter M. Gutman of the City University of New York to confirm my suspicions. This man deserves a medal for arguing that President Carter should worry less about "substantially overstated" unemployment figures and fearlessly bear down on inflation, even if the "official" unemployment figures rise.

Writing in the current issue of the Journal of the Institute for Socioeconomic Studies, Gutman poohpoohs the media's mad pursuit of unemployment figures which he says the government's most sophisticated labor economists know are biased and even a fake. If it was just a matter of another federal misconception, so what, but this one fires inflation, boosts the deficit and might even create more real unemployment.

As Gutman points out, economists trained a generation ago often think of the profundities of the labor market as it was when they were in college. But the structure of the labor market has changed drastically since then. An "official" unemployment figure of 4 percent in, say, 1969 equals 6 percent today. Or the current (July) figure of 5.7 percent really boils down to about 4.3 percent.

One reason for the "inflation" in unemployment figures is that many people are officially counted even though they are really looking for part-time work. A 16-year-old high schooler, Gutman points out, looking for a Saturday job, is counted. So is the housewife hoping for part-time work.

Then there are many people listed as unemployed who actually are working and lying about it. They get unemployment checks and, if ever asked, be about their "off the books" jobs. Finally, some counted as unemployed do not want jobs. Take people getting food stamps or Aid for Families With Dependent Children (AFDC). They are told to seek work or lose these benefits, so they tell investigators that, yes, indeed, I am looking for work, only they aren't. Who cares?

If this doesn't take some of the air out of unemployment statistics, consider how the "official" rate is determined. The Census Bureau hires part-time workers (mostly housewives) to sample 56,000 households in the republic to find out who's working. Gutman reports 50 percent of these interviews are by telephone, and any household member, 14 or older, may answer for the whole family. Only 20 percent of the men and 55 percent of the women who are subjects of the survey are personally interviewed, Gutman says.

He argues that the government is naive to think that the questions are answered honestly. "Put bluntly," Gutman observes, "plenty of respondents lie... consistently and... with good reason. Will someone collecting unemployment insurance – but also working 'off the books,' paid in cash in the subterranean economy – tell the census interviewer that he is employed? Of course not! He knows what he is doing is illegal."

The same for welfare recipients or the member of the household covering up for the others. And the same would apply to so-called "discouraged workers" if they were allowed to be counted as some politicians want. These are people who claim to have looked for work once in the past six months and couldn't find a job.

Looked only once? If a person doesn't keep trying, does he really want a job? Gutman observes: "Presumably he is waiting for a job to be handed him on a silver platter. We may term this the 'Silver Platter Syndrome.'"

And yet there are politicians still pushing the Humphrey-Hawkins Act, with its 4 percent unemployme" goal, to be accomplished by triggering federal spending. With all respect to the late Sen. H.H.H., a bighearted man who owned a Depression Mentality, this is one of the most foolish bills ever turned down. It is a perfect engine for even worse inflation.

Government-created jobs never work. They often teach youngsters the wrong values because many of these jobs are ripoffs. True, consultants, lawyers and others of the Beltway Bandit ilk profit when the Feds lay out big doses of money to offset unemployment statistics. Better we ignore the statistics and get after inflation before it eats us all up.

We in the press should spend less time disseminating federally ladled "official" unemployment statistics, and more time examining the question of who's working, who isn't and who is paying for those who don't.

Topping-off is great

Until Friday night, I wasn't exactly sure what a "topping-off" ceremony was supposed to be.

I'm still not sure, but I can tell you this: They're great.

As a member of the press, Clockwise and his wife Judy were invited to mark their 10th wedding anniversary by attending the "topping-off" of the new Grand Traverse Hilton Hotel, just northeast of Acme in a former cherry orchard.

Of course, you'll remember that it rained Friday – a day-long, soaking rain that left all of Northern Michigan as wet as a bar towel. Nonetheless, our little press party, made up of Denny Chase of the Charlevoix Courier, Marsha Robinson of the Graphic Resorter and Judy and I headed south in a steady drizzle to find out what "topping-off" is all about.

"The rain will have stopped and the sun will be beginning to break through by the time we reach Acme," I predicted as we tooled past the Flight Deck. My passengers were all skeptical, but it turned out I was half right. The sun did stop, but the heavy, grey cloud cover hadn't budged an inch when we caught sight of the new hotel – certainly one of the largest if not the largest structure in Grand Traverse County.

We turned off U.S. 31 and found ourselves in a long, slow-moving line of cars obviously headed for the new hotel, since that was the only destination in sight. Still later we were flagged off the pavement and began slogging through wet sand ruts between rows of construction trailers and stacks of building materials.

"There's a funny noise under the car," Judy said. She is always hearing funny noises under the car.

"Don't worry," I answered. "It's just the brakes. They've been going since last summer."

Very shortly the long line of cars filed in front of the building where literally hundreds of visitors were milling about under the big marquee. We could have let a lissome high school girl park the car, but what with the funny noise I decided I had better do it myself.

By the time I got back to the hotel, my "ice cream" colored trousers were splattered with mud and I was beginning to think we would have been further ahead if we had stopped at the Flight Deck.

But that was before we discovered what "topping-off" is all about.

Inside the unfinished hotel – with puddles of rainwater on the vast cement floor, piles of construction materials along the walls and portapotties outside the back door – the most fantastic cocktail party I have ever attended was under way. And it was all on-the-house.

Picture, if you will, at least three bars set strategically around the floor, with Mexican oil and Chivas Regal was the "bar scotch."

Now picture, if you will, a shrimp boat – fully six feet long – piled high with succulent three-inch-long shrimp – steamed, chilled, shelled and ready for dipping.

Now picture, if you will, one little out-of-the-way stand at which beef tenderloin and gravy were being prepared on crispy sandwich buns.

Now picture, if you will, a long buffet at which white-capped chefs doted over skillets of shrimp scampi which flamed and crackled when doused with brandy. Nearby were heaping trays of beef ribs au jus, meatballs a la Hilton and a variety of other delectable entrees.

Somewhere in that vast semi-enclosed arena with puddles on the floor an orchestra played.

Somewhere else there must have been a speakers platform because through the din (it sounded like a Japanese railroad station) I could hear someone on a loudspeaker trying to

Meet Charlevoix

Dorthy Stoel

Charlevoix resident Dorothy Stuel recently returned from a trip to Russia. This week the former school teacher talks about some of her observations of the country and its people.

By Peg Ohle

COURIER: Did you go on a tour or by yourself?

STOEL: It was a "Great Cities of Russia" tour, sponsored by the National Education Association. We spent 11 days in Moscow, Kiev, and Leningrad, and two and a half days in Finland. I went with my daughter and son-in-law, Betty and Doug Nevver.

COURIER: What kind of housing do the Russian people have?

STOEL: In the cities, everybody lives in apartments, but out in the country there were lots of small houses surrounded by heavy bushes and trees and a little plot of garden, usually planted with potatoes. Then, when we flew over the Ukraine on our way to Kiev, we could see the huge wheat fields and dotted among them were apartment buildings where the wheat farmers lived. The farms are huge, up to 28,000 acres.

COURIER: How was the food?

STOEL: Good. There was always rye and white bread on the table. The white bread had a solid texture, heavier than ours, but very good. There was sweet butter to go with it. Sometimes we were served both rice and potatoes at the same meal. The meat was mostly beef and chicken and fish, and lots of sausages. Of course we were eating in hotels and restaurants, and sometimes I wondered how much food ordinary people could buy in the stores. The stores specialize in certain kinds of food, such as vegetables, or meat, or staple products. The Russian women carry string bags called an "avoska" which means "maybe" – maybe today there will be a scarce item they have been looking for to put in the avoska. Shoppers are never furnished bags to put their purchases in. At the Farmer's Market in Kiev, berries were piled up on a counter next to plucked chickens and beef heads.

COURIER: Is there much construction work going on?

STOEL: There's a lot in Moscow and Leningrad where they'll have the Olympics next year. Women do much of the menial work, such as laying stones for pavements. They all wear dresses at work and I saw one woman laying stones with straps of leather tied around her knees. You also see women do jobs like standing on a scaffold painting. Most of the women are husky, women of strength – One thing worries me. In Leningrad we were told not to drink the water; not even brush our teeth with it, and not to eat fresh vegetables. I hope they get the water situation taken care of before the Olympics.

COURIER: Did you go to any cultural centers?

STOEL: We went to the opera in Leningrad and to folk concerts in Kiev and Moscow. They were well done and the costumes were beautiful. St. Isaacs cathedral in Leningrad, the third largest in the world, is now a museum and is used to show the architectural history of the country. The Russians have restored much of the bombed out areas. In some places they have even painted the old buildings yellow and pink.

COURIER: Then you didn't find the country as drab as some people have reported?

STOEL: No. There are lots of parks with trees, shrubs and grass. Even the subways are beautiful. In Moscow, there are 102 miles of subway lines, and the stations are full of statues, paintings, and beautiful chandeliers. There's no graffiti or litter anywhere. We went to a Pioneer Camp, like our Boy Scout or Girl Scout Camp, out in the country, and were escorted all around the grounds. We were surprised when we looked into the dining room and saw round tables covered with cloths and a vase of flowers on each table. The Russians are always talking about nothing being too good for their children. The children are very well dressed at all times.

COURIER: Did you get into any political discussions?

STOEL: We went to a so-called round table discussion where two journalists held forth. They brought up the Salt II treaty and why the Russians were anxious for it. They mentioned that we were world leaders in nuclear power, and dropped the first bomb. They stressed that they were not aggressive people, and that we had 2,500 military bases in other countries and they none. They mentioned our military-industrial complex and that defense was a great part of our economy, whereas the Russians would not benefit from a war. It was not an open discussion and the air became filled with cold war. When someone asked why Americans couldn't visit their Russian relatives in their homes but had to meet in hotel rooms instead, the answer was that because the Russian standard of living was below ours, they might be embarrassed about their homes. Another American suggested that it was easier to "bug" hotel rooms.

COURIER: But you did enjoy your trip, didn't you?

STOEL: Yes, I decided they were not so far behind us. They have accomplished much in recent years in the way of restoration and other things, even though their food supply may be a little short. We must remember that the Russians lost 20 million people during World War II by starvation and war. I recommend that people take a trip to Russia because we need more communication and understanding between nations. We should also study more languages so we can communicate better and with more specific meaning. There are more teachers teaching English in Russia than there are students studying Russian in the United States.

COURIER: Were they strict with customs?

STOEL: They were with books and magazines. They asked us what we had. One book that was banned was Hedrick Smith's "The Russians", which I had read.

COURIER: Are the Russians anti-religion?

STOEL: Not entirely. Although they go along with the Communist rule, you get the feeling that many believe in some kind of a higher power.

COURIER: What else do you remember?

STOEL: I can't forget seeing them using an abacus in their shops.

COURIER: Was this your first trip out of the country?

STOEL: Yes, the only other country I had ever visited was Canada, taught school for 22 years, 17 of them in Ellsworth.

Charlevoix Housing Commission establishes office at City Hall

The Charlevoix Housing Commission has set up an office in the basement of City Hall.

Office hours for the new headquarters will be announced at a later date.

The commission will hire a part-time clerk. A preliminary loan of $31,000 has been received from HUD. The funds will be used for administrative costs, wages for a part-time clerk, fees for architectural planning, accounting and for office furniture.

The commission has selected Housing Data Specialists, Inc. as its accountant.

The commission meets at City Hall at 4 p.m. on the first and third Wednesday of each month. The public is invited to attend.

Recently, the commission was informed that HUD had approved $3,045,263 for senior citizen housing in Charlevoix. Since, the commission has received approval on the rezoning of 5.5 acres of property on Garfield Avenue for the proposed 82 unit development.

It has also been announced that Charlevoix has joined the Upper Peninsula Housing Organization, which meets quarterly to discuss problems relating to housing. Marjorie Dinwiddie, commission member, recently attended a two-day seminar sponsored by the organization. The meetings are attended by representatives from the Michigan State Housing and Development Association and the Farmers Home Association.

introduce Wes Tebeau, chairman of the Michigan Travel Commission and president of the West Michigan Tourist Association.

I didn't actually see the speakers platform, but I think it was somewhere between the shrimp boat and the beef ribs.

After the speeches, they raised an American flag – one that had flown over the capitol in Washington.

And I guess that was the "topping-off" because when the flag was up they turned off the loudspeaker and folks settled down to partying in earnest.

I would like to tell you more about the hotel, but I'm running out of space. It will have 250 rooms, six suites, banquet facilities for up to 1,000 and 11 meeting rooms, some of which may be opened into a 9,000-square-foot conference center.

Oh, yes. There'll be two restaurants, two bars, a disco, indoor and outdoor tennis courts, four indoor racquetball courts, an indoor swimming pool, a sauna and a whirlpool. All of this will be surrounded by an 18-hole golf course and scads of condominiums and apartments.

And if the day-to-day ambiance of the Grand Traverse Hilton is anything like it was at the "topping-off" ceremony after a day-long rain, developer Paul Nine has a winner on his hands.

One final note. The muffler fell off the car before we left the parking lot.

Bus to make rounds

Stepping into a big yellow school bus for the first time can be one of life's major experiences.

In fact, it can be traumatic for a child.

Starting Wednesday, Aug. 29 at 9 a.m., a school bus will stop at the home of each kindergarten student. The child will be able to meet the driver and go aboard the bus to get the "feel" of it before opening day.

Parents are urged to be available along with their youngsters at this time.

The first few days of school can be extremely important in determining how a child will adjust to a school environment, officials say, and this program is intended to make that first step a little easier.

Walloon Lake Association files suit against Bay Township developer

An injunction against a Bay Township developer will be sought by the Walloon Lake Association.

Dr. William E. Heisel, president of the association, said the suit has been filed in Charlevoix County Circuit Court against Hildee Co., which is developing a 47 lot subdivision on Zenith Heights Road.

Also named in the suit are John DeLuca, Drielda DeLuca, Hildegarde Schultz and the Walloon View Brae Property Club.

The subdivision is more than a half mile from Walloon Lake, according to the suit, and unlimited access and use of the lake is provided to the subdivision lot owners across a 150 foot lakefront lot on Eagle Island Road leased to the Walloon View Brae Property Club.

Permitting 47 lot owners to "funnel" on to Walloon Lake through a single lot constitutes a trespass upon the rights of the lakefront property owners, the suit states.

"Previous Supreme Court decisions have prohibited "funneling' from 'back lots' which have no waterfront property," Heisel said.

"The Michigan courts have ruled that subdividers who sell an 'artificial' lake access to non-riparian back lot owners are attempting to profit at the expense of the lake owners, and have condemned the practice," Heisel said.

"Walloon Lake is a lake of unusual beauty nestled in the rolling hills near Petoskey. The waters of the lake are still clean and sparkling. The lake is a natural resource of this community which must be preserved for future generations," Heisel said.

"Recent studies of Walloon Lake conducted by the University of Michigan Biological Station have shown that the purity of the waters of the lake are in a delicate balance. The lake is spring fed and changes water only once in 4 years. The slow rate of water change results in long term retention of nutrients. Too many power boats stirring up those nutrients could quickly fill the lake with weeds and destroy this community resource," Weisel said.

"Walloon Lake does not only belong to the lakefront owners," Heisel said. "There are numerous public access sites and public beach which are used and enjoyed by hundreds of local residents. If the lake is destroyed by over use, the loss will affect everyone," he said.

"It is essential that the green areas near the shoreline be kept undisturbed to prevent fertillzers and other nutrients from entering the lake," Heisel said.

The suit charges that the subdivision developers have removed trees and shrubs near the water's edge in violation of the Bay Township Zoning Ordinance.

In addition, the suit charges that the subdividers have dumped fill dirt on the low lying lakefront lot which will kill the remaining trees.

The suit also charges that the fill dirt has been piled in steep banks next to the water's edge and is eroding into the lake. The heavy fill on underlying muck is forcing the muck to ooze into the water, according to the suit.

The suit asks the court to compel the developers to remove fill dirt which is causing lake pollution and to hire a nurseryman to attempt to save the remaining trees, and replant near the water's edge.

Under the environmental Protection Act of 1970, the suit states, the developers' activities are destroying the "beauty, purity and clarity of the waters" in the lake.

The association asks the developers to repair damage to the property and the lake and asks the court to enforce restrictions on use of the lakefront lot.

Board of Realtors sign Afirmative Marketing Agreement

The Antrim-Charlevoix Board of Realtors has signed an Affirmative Marketing Agreement that will offer equal professional real estate services to all people.

The Affirmative Marketing Agreement, promulgated by the National Association of Realtors and HUD, is a voluntary commitment by realtors and realtor-associates based on the National Association Code of Ethics and Code for Equal Opportunity in Housing and in response to the 1968 federal Fair Housing Law.

Under the terms of the agreement, the Antrim-Charlevoix Board of Realtors will instruct its 246 members in the requirements of the Fair Housing Law, and make affirmative marketing procedures available to assist them.

Also, it will encourage the participation of minorities in the real estate industry as licensed brokers and salespersons and as members of the board.

"It is our policy and obligation to provide equal opportunity in housing," Board President Bill Carey said. "We of the Antrim-Charlevoix Board of Realtors want to see that professional real estate services are made available to all Americans, regardless of race, color, religion, sex, or national origin. The goal of this agreement is to provide information that will enable all buyers to make a free choice of a housing location."

He added the voluntary action was clear evidence on the part of the realtors that they not only comply with the letter of the law but will actively work toward creating a truly fair and equal housing market in Antrim and Charlevoix counties.

Carey signed the agreement on behalf of the board while John Kirkwood signed it on behalf of HUD.

Present to witness the signing were: George Laufersky, realtor, Ski & Shore of Bellaire, Inc.; Martin Bieganowski, realtor, Bieganowski & Associates, Inc. of Boyne City; Mark Kowalske, realtor, Ski & Shore of Boyne, Inc.; and Connie Dawson, executive secretary, Antrim-Charlevoix Board of Realtors.

Grant to help some people pay tuition

North Central Michigan College and The Women's Resource Center have received grant monies for tuition reimbursement for specific population groups. These monies will be used to pay tuition costs in vocational education. Any person fitting any of the following four categories will be eligible.

•Displaced homemaker: A person who has worked as a homemaker for not less than 10 years and who now, because of dissolution of marriage, must seek employment, or a person who has worked as homemaker for not less than 10 years and has previously depended on the income of a family member or government assistance and is no longer supported by that income or assistance.

•Part-time homemaker/wage earner: a person who has worked as a homemaker for not less than 10 years and is currently working part time, but who wishes to secure full time employment.

•Single head of household: a single head of household not currently depending on government assistance as the parent of a dependent child.

•Non-traditional job trainee: a person who wishes to be trained and to secure employment in a job area which has not traditionally been considered a job area for his/her particular sex.

In addition to being a member of at least one of the above population groups, an eligible program participant must be a person who:

•Lacks adequate job skills to secure gainful full time employment. (Gainful full time employment shall be broadly defined as employment which provides adequate financial support to provide for the individual and his/her dependents.)

•Lacks recent full time work experience.

•Is not receiving other educational assistance.

A complete list of eligible classes is available at the Women's Resource Center. Anyone wishing more information or who may think they are eligible may contact the Women's Resource Center at 347-3973 ext. 365.

County receives $244,815

Charlevoix County has received $244,815 from the Michigan Department of Transportation for the second quarter (April, May and June) of 1979.

The state department collects the money from gas, diesel fuel and weight taxes and then distributes it to counties, cities and villages. The money is distributed four times a year.

The City of Charlevoix received $22,199, Ellsworth picked up $4,916 and East Jordan received $13,724.

The state reported that gasoline consumption in Michigan during April, May and June declined for the first time since the Arab oil embargo of 1973.

The decline is attributed not only to reduced driving because of fuel shortages and steeply rising prices but also to improved engine performances and better weight vehicles.

Coaches, referees needed for football

Plans for the annual Flag Football season are being formulated and the search for coaches and referees has been initiated, accordingto Dwight Boss, city recreation director.

In order to have the program with both junior and senior leagues a minimum of 10 coaches and four referees will be needed, Boss said. In order to have players register for the program, coaches and officials must be found.

Anyone wishing to coach or referee during the season which will begin Saturday, Sept. 8, with registration until Oct. 27 is asked to contact Boss. This allows for a week of practice prior to the first game on Sept. 15. The six game schedule will be concluded Oct. 27.

Tentative plans call for registration at the Carpenter Ave. field at 10 a.m. Sept. 8.

Persons interested in serving as coaches or officials are asked to call Boss at the Recreation Department telephone at the City Hall, 547-4272 or at his home 547-9098.

Residents donate $835

Residents in Charlevoix have pledged $835 to support public radio stations WCMU-FM and WCML-FM in Mt. Pleasant.

A fund drive for the two stations was held from Aug. 3 to Aug. 12. In all, the stations received over 1,000 pledges totalling $35,650.

SAFE Boating TIPS

BOATING SAFETY - NO WAKE ZONE

I'd like to remind you that you are responsible for any damage caused by your vessel's wake. This is especially true in "Slow, No Wake" zones.

There are two "No Wake" zones in our area - one is from the pier heads in Lake Michigan, through Round Lake and Pine River to the turn/train bridge in Lake Charlevoix.

The other "No Wake" zone is through the "narrows" in the Ironton area. This area is not marked but is a "Slow, No Wake" area.

CHARLEVOIX TOWNSHIP BOARD MEETING MINUTES
August 13th, 1979 at 7:30 p.m.

The minutes of the July 9, 1979 meeting were read, corrected and approved. The Treasurers report was read and approved.

Robert Gondolfie, representing Burnham & Flower Insurance Agency, presented insurance coverage for the upcoming year. Bergmann moved we insure our voting equipment on all risk policy & increase the fire insurance on the Township Hall from $10,000 to $20,000. Dale Glass supported. Roll call vote. All yeas.

Six petitions were presented by the Clerk with 130 signatures, 79 of which were valid, asking for a referendum on the recent zoning change enacted by the board, changing 230 acres of Medusa owned property from Agricultural & Scenic Reserve, to Industrial. Bergmann moved we have a special election at the request of petitioners, regarding the rezoning change of Medusa property. Dale Glass supported. Roll call vote. All yeas. A tentative date was set for November 13, 1979, subject to approval.

Elzinga asked permission to change the water billings from monthly to quarterly. Smith moved customers be given the option of paying bills quarterly or monthly. Glass supported. Voice vote. All yeas.

Glass moved the clerk investigate changing the Township classification with M.E.S.C. from Non contributing to contributing. Elzinga supported. Voice vote. All yeas.

The Clerk stated that the Health Department and the DNR were working on a program for monitoring the emissions at Medusa.

Elzinga moved we hire Roy Hayes to draw up the ballot for the special election and to answer any questions which might arise regarding same. Bergmann supported. Roll call vote. All yeas.

Bills were presented and approved.

Meeting adjourned.

Respectfully submitted
Jo Ann Elzinga, Clerk

Open house Friday

ELLSWORTH--An open house at the Ebenezer Christian School will be held from 3-9 p.m. Friday.

According to Paul A. Krause, school principal, the open house will serve two purposes: 1) students not previously registered at the school may register at this time and 2) it will acquaint parents with the faculty and the curriculum.

"Many parents have shown an interest in the school and have made inquiries about it," Krause said. "The open house will give them an opportunity to check out the facility, gather informatron about the school and help them make a decision regarding the possible enrollment of their children in the school."

Installation meeting scheduled for Sept. 4

The Auxiliary of the Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226 will hold a joint installation with the post at the post home on Tuesday, Sept. 4.

A potluck supper at 6:30 p.m. will precede the installation ceremony and business meeting.

At the last meeting, Mrs. Harry Pearsall, a delegate to the recent state convention of the American Legion and Auxiliary, gave a detailed report on the convention. She reported that Wolverine Girls State, sponsored by the Legion, will be held in Mt. Pleasant in 1980. In the past it has been held at Olivet College.

Mrs. Josephine Bindi, community service chairman, reported that two get well cards, one sympathy card and 14 others to be sent to shut-ins and absent members were signed by those present.

Mrs. Bindi, Mrs. Evva Smith, Mrs. Genevieve Smith, Mrs. Angela Borths, Mrs. Lillian Hull and Mrs. Mary Ann Farkas were in Petoskey recently to attend funeral services for Mrs. Min Burns, district past president of the Auxiliary.

Irwin supports modifications for presidential primary

State Senator Mitch Irwin (D-Sault Ste. Marie), chairman of the Senate Committee on Municipalities and Elections said the committee will take up two bills designed to preserve the Michigan Presidential Primary Election.

"I support making the necessary modifications to Michigan's primary election law in order to assure all citizens an active role in the selection of this Nation's chief executive," Irwin said.

The committee had been awaiting final consideration by the House of Representative Sheridan's House Bill 4392, which would repeal the primary. This legislation passed the House, but is presently awaiting reconsideration of the vote.

"With the Legislature in recess over the summer and final determination needed by early fall, we in the Senate ought to do what we can to expedite the process," Irwin said. "Resolution of this issue by the Senate now will represent a major step in that direction."

"It is clear to me from the degree of participation that there exists sufficient popular support to maintain this election," Irwin said. "In each previous year, nearly 2 million voters took part in this important process. Their interest cannot be ignored."

Real Estate Is A People Business And Ski & Shore Wants You To Know Its People

Sulane Hamilton

Ski & Shore, Charlevoix, is proud to announce that Sulane Hamilton has joined their staff as a full time sales consultant. Sulane, originally from Chicago is a graduate of Dennison University in Ohio. She has extensive experience in public relations through previous employment with United Airlines, Passenger Service, and has been a personnel director for a large manufacturing firm in Indiana.

Ms. Hamilton is now a full time resident of northern Michigan. She and her husband, Hagen Manker, also a sales consultant with Ski & Shore expect to move to Charlevoix in the near future. "I look forward to becoming a Charlevoix resident and participating in community events." Sulane has served as a board member on the American Cancer Society, Junior Achievement and was a residential fund raiser for United Fund.

Sulane began her real estate career through the Petoskey office of Ski & Shore, transferring to Charlevoix last June. She feels that the real estate profession is a "Continual learning challenge and is rewarding by meeting people and helping them evaluate their needs to property."

100 years ago

Local newspaper man W. A. Smith was elected Charlevoix's first Chief Engineer of the Fire Department when the Charlevoix Village Council met 100 years ago, on August 9, 1879.

At the same meeting, Smith presented a bill for $15 to cover the cost of printing he had done for the Village.

In other business, Village Marshall McLeod was notified that he must collect the Billiard and Gaming Table Tax "forthwith".

Village Trustees heard a petition from a group of residents "praying an extension of Bridge Street south to a line intersecting the south side of Smith Street in Newman's Addition to the Village of Charlevoix be granted and the same be declared a public flighway and that no damage be awarded in consignation."

A resolution granting the extension was passed.

In other action, the Village Trustees moved "that the bond of liquor dealer, beer seller, and druggist be Two Thousand Dollars."

GEMWISE
JEWELRY FASHIONS FACTS FICTION
John Reusch
RUBY CORUNDUM
Ruby Corundum is one of the loveliest of the lovelies. Unfortunately, gentlemen, ruby is not a woman; ruby is a gemstone - the variety of the mineral corundum that possesses that marvelous rich, red color. Ruby is one of the top three gemstones in value and popularity (The other two are diamond and emerald).
Why is ruby so valuable? Basically, because of supply and demand. Although the demand for fine ruby is high, this quality is exceedingly rare. As a matter of fact, large rubies are more rare than large diamonds.
Why is ruby so popular? Ruby's velvety red color has an unequalled appeal to the human eye. Red has often been identified as a royal color. It is also known to stir one's emotions.
Fine large rubies are a rare breed, but there are some exceptional specimens on display in museums throughout the world. The 167 carat Edward Ruby is in the British Museum of Natural History in London. The 138.7 carat Reeves Star Ruby is in the Smithsonian Institution, Washington, DC. The 100-carat Long Star Ruby is in the American Museum of Natural History in New York.
If you were born in July, ruby may have added significance for you, since it's the official birthstone for that month. It has been said that when a person wears his or her birthstone, the stone's special powers exert their influence. Ruby symbolizes charity, dignity, freedom and divine power.
If you would like to learn a little more about rubies or other stones of interest to you, come into Reusch Jewelry for a free consumer information pamphlet on the stone of your choice.

Anniversaries

Mr. and Mrs. Gennett

An open house honoring Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Gennett on their 50th wedding anniversary will be held Sunday at the American Legion Hall in Charlevoix.

The couple will greet relatives and friends between 1 and 5 p.m.

Clifford Gennett and the former Margaret Gornell were married Nov. 20, 1929 in Charlevoix County. Their attendants were Mrs. Gennett's aunt and uncle, Mrs. Elizabeth Reinhart and the late Charles Reinhart.

The Gennetts children and spouses include Max and Margaret Gennett, Ed and Mary Stahulak, Richard Gennett, Ken and Barbara Russell, Steve and Sue Gennett, and Bill and Genevieve Brodin.

The Gennetts have 13 grandchildren and seven great grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Gennett have always resided in Charlevoix County. Mr. Gennett retired from the Belvedere Gulf Club in 1975 after 42 years of employment.

Wedding

Carey-Kirinovic

Marjorie Jane Carey of Charlevoix and Thomas Frank Kirinovic of Ovid were married before 250 guests Saturday, Aug. 11 at the Christ Episcopal Church in Charlevoix.

Rev. Roger Ames performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Carey. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kirinovic.

The bride approached the altar with her father past pews marked with bows. She was given in marriage by her parents.

For her wedding, she chose a Victorian gown of white chiffon fashioned with a lace trimmed high neckline, ruffled yoke and long sleeves. The same lace edged the chapel length train. Her fingertip veil fell from a Juliet cap and she carried a bouquet of wildflowers.

Mrs. Mark Stanley of Grand Rapids served as her sister's matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Sue Fuwler, Ellen Carey, cousin of the bride; Mrs. Jack Bashore of Big Rapids and LeAnne Kirinovic of Ovid, sisters of the bridegroom. They wore gowns of wildflower print styled with spaghetti straps and carried lighted candles in lanterns trimmed with wildflowers and bows.

Meg Fowler, as flower girl, wore a gown identical to the bridesmaids gowns, designed by her mother, Mrs. David Fowler, and carried a bouquet of wildflowers. Steven Kirinovic of Ovid, brother of the bridegroom, was ringbearer.

William Foran of Ovid assisted the bridegroom as best man. Groomsmen were Ronald Mead and Thomas Clark, both of Ovid. Kenneth Basse of Elsie and David Kirinovic, brother of the bridegroom, seated the guests.

William Klimas at the organ played a program of traditional music and accompanied Thomas Carey, uncle of the bride, who sang "The Lord's Prayer."

Mrs. Carey selected a full length coral gown for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Kirinovic, mother of the bridegroom, wore a silver gray gown.

A reception, hosted by the parents of the couple, followed at the Charlevoix Yacht Club.

After a wedding trip to Traverse City, the couple will be at home at 6606 Wildcat Road, Ovid.

The bride, a recent graduate of Western Michigan University, will be teaching in the Ovid Elementary School. The bridegroom teaches and coaches in the Ovid School System.

A rehearsal dinner, hosted by the bridegroom's parents, was held at Duffy's of Charlevoix.

CHARLEVOIX
CHURCH DIRECTORY
In today's world of strife and torment, we can hardly listen to a news report without being plunged into a morass of deep despair by all the accounts of war, crime, corruption, economic woes, shortages, and predictions of further disaster; with the feeling of gloom perhaps reinforced by some experience in our own lives. In times like this, it becomes more important than ever to turn to God as an unfailing source of comfort and the assurance that with his help and guidance we will survive these storms that would seem to threaten our very existence. Take refuge in your Church this Sunday.

Spare us

The Main Event

Extra, Extra, I'm in love
I've gotta thank my lucky stars above hurry, hurry, don't be late
I gotta celebrate
it's n fact, we've got a first rate act that's ever been when we make love
The Main Event

You're my every thought you're my one attraction you must be heaven sent to give me so much satisfaction you make life worth fighting for you're the one cause there's nobody quite like you honey you're the one fight for what you want fight for what is real fight to keep the one you love if love is what you feel

Love don't try to kick me when I'm down love you're gonna give up without a sound keep it comin, keep it comin Look out kid cause now I'm comin in keep it goin, keep it goin
I'm a knock out
so pul up your dukes and fight

Copyright 1979, CBS Ine.

It was primarily a matter of disappointment. The movie was so boring that even the crunching of popcorn couldn't keep two uf uur party from nodding off.

It's too bad, because the song has a grent sound which in turn leads you to believe that just maybe you will see another "Rocky" only funnier. I couldn't believe the lyrics. Was it the chicken or the egg, I wonder, Trite lyrics written for ho-hum film, or a trite film written for ho-hum lyrics. Could this be the Ryan O'Neal from "Love Story?" Could this be the Barbara Streisand who sang "You Don't Bring Me Flowers" and "Evergreen," and who played "Funny Girl?"

I suppose Hollywood has to do something to keep its stars busy, but they should have spared us this one. "The Main Event" will make it as a song because it has a credible melody and because Barbara Streisand is singing it. She would sound good putting her vocal chords to "Will You Please Take Out The Garbage." But I'm afraid this movie will never be the Main Event of anyone's movie-going year.

Are school residents informed? Poll says 'yes'

What do the residents of the Charlevoix School District think of their school system?

To gain some insight into this question, a Professional Study Committee recently selected names at random (from poll lists) and conducted a telephone survey, asking questions that touched all phases of education.

The committee felt that by selecting the names at random they had reached a cross section of the population representative of the district.

Because 85 percent of those called said they had contact with the school, the committee assumed they were talking to people who had a definite interest in the school system and thus were aware of what it offered.

The survey was full of surprises and revealed that the majority of the people in the district are aware of problems facing the school and that they have given a great deal of thought to its operation.

For instance, those questioned were quick to put their fingers on two major problems facing not only Charlevoix but other schools as well - financial support and discipline in the schools.

The majority of adults favored whatever whatever means the administration believed necessary to maintain discipline in the classrooms. The poll indicated that it was important that "something be done."

While numerous suggestions were made , none included severe physical punishment. Twenty-two percent said that parents should be advised when there were disciplinary problems with children.

While financial support was listed as a problem, no solutions were suggested. However, practically all the people said they wanted to be kept abreast of school needs, money problems and other school issues, particularly those relating to classes.

A resounding 73 percent said students should be required to take a test on minimum requirements in order to graduate. Presently, students are required to earn a given number of credits in different phases of education - math, English, science, history, government. Elective subjects comprise the remainder of the necessary credits needed for graduation.

Residents of the district were also very emphatic regarding an open campus of the three schools. Fifty-three percent said high school students should be required to remain on campus (school grounds) during the lunch hour, 68 percent said middle school students should remain on campus and 97 percent said elementary students should remain on campus during noon hour.

In regards to the type of information the people would like to receive concerning the school, those contacted listed curriculum, teachers-teaching inethods and financial information (milloge, bonding, etc.)

Fifty-five percent said they were well informed about school operations. Twenty-five percent said they were somewhat informed and 26 percent said they were not too well informed. Fifty percent said they received most of their information on the school from the newspaper. Small percentages said they received news from students, others parents-adults, school memos, notes and other school publications.

Few people thought that students were given too much homework. In fact, 48 percent said students were getting about the right amount of homework while another 40 percent said students should be given more.

Eighty-nine percent of those polled said parents should be involved in the consideration of what is taught in the classroom. Most qualified that answer by adding that they would like to know and be kept informed, but that they did not want a part in making decisions about what should be taught.

Two-thirds said they were satisfied with the way parent-teacher conferences are conducted and the same percentage said they were pleased with the grading system.

On report cards, 42 percent said formal type report cards should be sent home every four to six weeks and 22 percent said twice a semester. Report cards are presently sent every six weeks.

Forty-eight percent said they were satisfied with the counseling system in the three schools. On how it might be improved, 23 percent suggested that students receive more personal attention, 18 percent suggested more attention be given to college planning and 13 percent suggested better communications.

Two interesting pieces of information were derived from the survey: 1) 60 percent of those polled have lived in the district 10 years or more, 24 percent have lived here from five to 10 years, 12 percent from two to four years and one percent a year or less and 2) 35 percent of those polled attended the Charlevoix School System.

Charlevoix Hospital celebrating 25th anniversary

Twenty-five years ago a standing room-only crowd gathered in front of the newly constructed Charlevoix Area Hospital to dedicate and celebrate the realization of a dream.

The new hospital replaced the original which had served the community for 34 years, since 1920. That first hospital was a two-story remodeled framehouse on the hill at Hurlbut Street.

The new modern one-story facility, overlooking Lake Michigan dedicated Aug. 22, 1954, was the result of the coordinated hard work of many devoted people.

Since 1944 committees hud been studying possible sites for cunstruction of a new hospital. The original hospital grew over crowded despite an addition built in 1924. More serious it had become a fire hazard because of its age and frame construction. W.H. Wallace, Chairman, E.J. Edwards and Earl Young mounted a fund raising campaign and engaged an architect. The present site was chosen and a model for a new hospital constructed, but the high building costs forced a delay.

Fund raising for the new hospital continued through 1949, 1950 and 1951, until $120,000 was raised by organizations and individuals throughout Charlevoix County. Year-round residents and summer visitors worked together soliciting pledges and donations.

Government assistance to help communities such as Charlevoix build hospitals, became possible with the passage of the Hill-Burton Act. Members of the Board of Trustees worked tirelessly to arrange for Charlevoix to take advantage of this act.

Among the fund raisers and members of the hospital Board of Trustees were Fred W. Willis, president, Gordon L. Freedman, vice president, Mrs. Edward K. Shanahan, Charles Bleha, Floyd Brown, Harry A. Craig, Mrs. Kit Carson, Hans de Young, Max Novak, John Porter, Norman Ance, Kit Carson, chairman of the fund drive, Robert Bridge, Herbert Scholfield, Earl Young, Theodore Malpass, Alvin Goldman, Ernest Loeb, Julius Gilbert, John P. Wilson, J.H. King, Mrs. D. Eckhart Wilbams, and Mrs. W.B. Stewart.

The fund raising was a combined effort of year round and summer residents.

Since the day the first patients moved into the hospital it continued to grow. The planning and forcsight that went into the design of the new hospital in 1954 permitted the hospital to keep abreast of advances in health care, without major remodeling.

In 1958 the hospital began offering EKGs. The physical therapy department opened in 1963 and inhalation therapy w as added in 1973. In 1967 the "solarium" was added and in 1967 the pediatric department was built onto the original building.

In 1972 the community rallied again to raise $200,000 for a new Coro nary Care-Intensive Care Unit.

Since 1964 the medical staff has grown from 13 full time and part time physicians to a staff of 29, including consulting physicians and dental staff.

These physicians have specialties in obstetrics, internal medicine, surgery, orthopedic surgery, family practice and radiology. Their expertise coupled with advances in medical technology such as radiologic ultrasound, fetal monitoring and sophisticated surgical tables, has enabled Charlevoix Area Hospital to offer an increased range of health care to its communities.

Today more patients than ever are using the facility. With modern medicine increasing emphasis on out-patient care, departments such as x-ray, emergency room, laboratory, physical and inhalation therapy, are experiencing more people pressure. Thus Charlevoix Area Hospital is about to embark on another expansion and renovation project.

The growth of 1979 was again made possible by the dedication of the Charlevoix area people who believe in and support their community hospital. That the new growth is merely an expansion and renovation of the building dedicated 25 years ago, is a tribute to the people who worked and planned for the new hospital of 1954.

As Eleanor Carson said as the new hospital was dedicated:

"This is the tomorrow we dreamed about yesterday.

"Today we are happy – and the happiness is an earned happiness because it is fashioned out of much striving, many failures, some adventure and a lot of courage.

"And here stands your monument – a monument of peace and good will – a local lamp to light the world."

Dr. Robert Martin retires after 25 year stint here

"Dedicated," "earing," "considerate," "a fine physician," are but a few of the accolades his former patients and colleagues offer as Dr. Robert Martin officially retires after 25 years of medical practice in Charlevoix.

Dr. Martin came to Charlevoix in 1954.

"Charlevoix had three active physicians in the community," Dr. Martin remembers. "I came in October and it was pretty quiet here in those days after Labor Day."

The new Charlevoix Hospital had just opened that August and Dr. Martin joined the staff. Today he reflects on how the hospital has grown and how the practice of medicine has changed in 25 years.

"Things we never heard of 25 years ago are common place today. We are fortunate in having so many fine young men join our staff, "the physician comments.

Always modest, Dr. Martin is reluctant to talk about his medical career. But his patients and colleagues do not share that reluctance.

One life-time patient of Dr. Martin's comments, "He is a rare breed. He was a friend and a doctor. He was always there when you needed him. He was a very fine family physician."

Dr. Soltenstall who encouraged Dr. Martin's decision 25 years ago to move his practice to Charlevoix from Cheboygan agrees:

"We only had three physicians in Charlevoix when he came and he was always very generous in giving his time and knowledge to help everybody."

A Charlevoix Area Hospital nurse recalls that in the first days of Charlevoix Area Hospital's new building there was no round-the-clock emergency room service.

The same nurse adds, "He is a quiet man who cared about his patients. He was always a joy tu work with, he rarely got upset. He was a good all round physician."

Retiring with such vital statistics as 3,000 deliveries in his portfolio, Dr. Martin now plans to do what he has heard for years is the thing to do in Charlevoix.

"I wanted to retire so I could take a vacation in Charlevoix. I've been hearing for years how great it is."

Despite giving up his active practice and his position as county medical examiner, Dr. Martin will continue to serve as Grandvue Medical Care Facilty medical director.

And he will devote more time to his avocation for which he has already achieved some fame – photography. Several years agu Dr. Martin won a second prize in the photography contest sponsored by the Crooked Tree Arts Council.

He is an active member of the Charlevoix Camera Club, and he has one of the larger and best equipped darkrooms in the area.

One of his favorite subjects is barns.

"They are fast disappearing," he explains. "Different style barns reflect the different cultures of the people who built them."

He is also looking forward to a six week trek through Alaska which he has planned for next summer.

Dr. Martin served for six years on the Charlevoix School Board, in the early 1960s. He is a trustee of the Congregational Church, active in the church choir and a fervant barbershop singer.

Dr. Martin and his wife Lucille, who retired from her position as Charlevoix Middle School librarian, have three children and four grandchildren.

His oldest daughter Ann, who is a geneology buff, revealed as aspect of the doctor that few of his patients know – he is a descendant of King Alfred the Great (849-899 King of the West Saxons), Aethelred the Unready (a Saxon King, 968-1016, who was not prepared for a Danish invasion) and Lady Godiva.

Board approves plans for school addition

The Charlevoix Board of Education Monday night approved the plans and specification for the new high school addition.

Formal approval of the final plans and specs followed a presentation by William Kane representing Manson Jackson & Kane, architects for the addition, during which he explained, in detail, all phases of the proposed structure to be financed by a $700,000 bond issue approved April 30 by the voters of the school district.

He said that Monday, Sept. 17, had been set as the date for receiving bids. The company will advertise for bids shortly, allowing contractors more than two weeks on bids. This date will put the progress schedule five weeks ahead of the original time table.

In presenting the plans, Kane said that the addition would be heated by hot water; lighting in the drafting room would be changed because the room will be enlarged and will now be an inside room. The lights in the present drafting room will be utilized in the cafeteria addition; the electric service will be changed to a larger service and that allowances had been made for air-conditioning in inside rooms should the need arise. These are rooms which will lose present window space.

The Building Committee composed of local residents including contractors in the various areas were commended for their work. Thomas LaBlance, chairman of this committee and chairman of the former Task Force that helped plan the addition, thanked the architects for their cooperation and said "Everything that is going into this building has been approved by the committee, teachers, the administration and the board. It should be a building we can be proud of". John Haggard, a member of the committee, reiterated his comments. Mrs. Connie Pointer of the board commended the Task Force who made it all possible.

Charlevoix Yesterday

The Beach Hotel was a landmark in Charlevoix for several years. The hotel was built in 1899. At that time it had 15 rooms and one bath. It was enlarged (shown here) in 1904 and again in 1915. Eventually, it had 216 rooms and was seven stories high on the lakeside. While it was being torn down in 1967, the building caught fire. Archaeologists from Michigan State later came up to dig in the area since it was known Indian artifacts were buried there. LaCroft is now on that site. Channel had key role in development

This is the third installment of a history of Charlevoix written by the local history class of the Charlevoix High School in 1926. It is reprinted from the November 17, 1926 issue of the Courier.

To one having an eye to either beauty or business, the banks of Pine River early presented attractions as an eligible site for a town. A mile back from the shore of Lake Michigan lies Pine Lake (now Lake Charlevoix), its two arms stretching away to the southwest, long distances into the interior.

Between it and Lake Michigan lies Round Lake, covering an area of one hundred acres or more. Pine River, the outlet to Pine Lake, in its course to Lake Michigan ran directly through it. The river in its natural state was a narrow, crooked, swiftly flowing stream, full of snags and overhung with trees, as unlike the broad, deep and almost straight channel through which large steamers now go up Pine Lake, as one can well imagine.

But it took tedious and strenuous labor to produce this well built channel from the stream it once was. The improvements for Charlevoix Harbor and the opening of this channel were of incalculable advantage to Charlevoix County. In fact, without this great improvement the county could not have attained its present state of development.

The whole region of Pine Lake was cut off from the commerce of Lake Michigan by a narrow sand ridge that separated it from Round Lake. Only canoes and Mackinac boats entered, and the latter were towed along the south bank with difficulty.

In 1868, a survey of Pine River was made by Major Wheeler, who reported insurmountable obstacles in the way of making a harbor, and that a harbor of refuge was not necessary at this point, owing to its proximity to other good harbors.

In June, 1869, books were opened at the office of Redington, Nelson and company for subscriptions for the improvement of Pine River.

In July, there was a "bee" to open the channel between Round Lake and Pine Lake. A force of upward of one hundred men were divided, and one squad began on the lower river, and the other squad worked at the upper cut. The cut is twenty-two rods in length, and the ridge was originally covered with a heavy growth of timber. The whole space, about three hundred feet in width, was cleared of timber during the day.

The Charlevoix Harbor and River Improvement Company was incorporated to deepen Pine River from 12 feet in Pine Lake to the same depth in Lake Michigan.

Opinion

Loaning $ to students

One of the basic principles upon which our nation was founded was the guarantee that every American would have equal access to a quality education. However, during our country's formative years, educational opportunity was limited to what would amount today to less than a high school education.

In this day and age, young people are almost expected to get at least some higher education following high school, be it trade school or college. As with virtually every aspect of American life, the cost of obtaining more than a high school education is rising behond the financial capabilities of the majority of families in the country.

In an effort to uphold the principle of equal educational opportunity for all, therefore, scholarship and loan programs sponsored by the federal government were established. As a result, hundreds of thousands of young people have been able to continue their educations.

Americans have traditionally supported an investment in higher education as one which pays itself off many times over in the technological advances it generates. In recent years, however, a major problem has developed with the Guaranteed Student Loan Program - a problem which has forced many of us taxpayers to question our willingness to continue allocating large amounts of our tax dollars for this program.

The problem is this: many students are simply not paying back their loans. The seriousness of this problem is illustrated by a recent report by the General Accounting Office (GAO) which indicates that one-fourth of the $4 billion in receivables due the U.S. Office of Education is now in default.

I must, however, commend the students in Northern Michigan for their good records in repaying college loans. Michigan Technological University boasts the lowest default rate in the state of 2.03 percent, and Lake Superior State College is also well below the state average of 19.81 percent at a default rate of 6.64 percent.

Efforts are underway in Congress to curb this problem. Both chambers have passed legislation, for example, which would prevent students from declaring bankruptcy soon after they graduated from college. Another bill would require the Commissioner of Education to report student defaults to credit bureaus.

Steps are also being taken to assure that the students of tomorrow are not denied the opportunity to obtain continuing education loans due to the poor repayment records of their predecessors.

One of these efforts is designed to encourage banks to continue offering low-interest student loans. Just before the August recess we passed legislation allowing increased interest payments to banks making guaranteed student loans. Specifically, the bill removes the existing 5 percent ceiling on special allowances to lenders. I feel that lifting this ceiling was necessary to prevent lenders from dropping out of the program at a time when rising tuition costs are forcing more and more students to rely on borrowed money.

My colleagues and I have a responsibility to see that a few irresponsible students do not ruin educational opportunities for young people who truly deserve them.

Lake Michigan property owners get relief

Dear Sheriff Lasater & Chief Mol:

This letter is to thank you and your men for the excellent job you have done on behalf of the property owners on Lake Michigan. The efforts of your departments, under your direction, have finally given some relief to the property owners, who have suffered for years with the damage done by four-wheel drive vehicles on the shore and sand dunes.

If someone drove over and damaged the golf course or over the lawn of any resident within the city they would quickly be apprehended for trespassing, malicious distruction of property and reckless driving. In past years that same damage could be done to the private property owned by the lakeshore owners with little attention paid to them by the law enforcement agencies. Lake property is privately paid for and is as important to the lake front property owner as the front lawn is to the lot owner other places. The recent ruling by the Attorney General of the state of Michigan made even more clear the fact that it is trespassing to go on the beach area, to wherever the waters edge is at that particular day. This is now public knowledge and therefore there is no longer any excuse for continued trespassing.

The damage done by the vehicles to the sand dunes at North Point will take forever to replace. along that line, please find enclosed some articles that you may find interesting such as, "East Jordan Bans Mutorized Vehicles By Order of City of East Jordan and East Jordan Public Schools." Another in the Detroit News, May 7, 1979, "Vehicles Tear Up Land, Study Says." Still another from the News, "Public Is Urged To Report ORV's Violating Laws." Still another from the Detroit Free Press headlined, "State Wants Off-Roaders Out Of Forest." It seems that the federal, state and local agencies have long ago discovered the damage done and have the "Clout" to have it stopped. We few property owners have had great difficulty protecting our beach and dunes until your efforts which have tremendously eased the problem.

I also enclosed another letter that was sent to me by a long resident of the area and beach owner complaining of still other problems with the vehicles.

I think we all fully understand the popularity of four-wheel drive vehicles and the eagerness of the owners to use them in off ruad conditions. However these owners and drivers must recognize the fact that they have become unwelcome by the federal government, state government, cities, townships and school boards whose land they have torn up. It is interesting that I know of no area that has voluntarily offered their land for the use of the four-wheel drive vehicles, for the simple reason that a person who buys land and pays taxes on it dislikes seeing it chewed up.

On behalf of the many property owners that I have talked to we jointly send you our appreciation and thanks.

Sincerely,
Thomas A. Duke

Heating oil problems may loom ahead

Ralph Ostling

It has become apparent over the past several weeks that a number of midwestern states may be faced with a shortage of home heating oil and distribution problems unless steps are taken soon to remedy the situation. Because of the serious nature of the problem, Governor Milliken recently wrote to Energy Secretary James Schlesinger informing him that oil inventories are down as much as 31 percent and urging him and his staff to address this concern before the winter causes severe problems.

Distributors in the state are concerned that a delivery backlog may develop so there won't be enough drivers or equipment to handle the supplies in the cold winter months, regardless of the amount of home heating oil available.

The inventories in Michigan's Petroleum Allocation District stood at 39 million barrels as of June 29, down 20 percent from June of 1978 and inventories within the state's refinery district are 31 percent less than last year.

The problem exists in part because the federal government has set a goal of achieving an inventory of 240 million barrels of home heating oil nationwide by October 31. Although the goal is coming within reach, most of the home heating oil is being stored in refineries and large terminals and is not reaching the jobbers who deliver the fuel to homes.

There is some speculation among the jobbers, however, that because more people are converting to gas to heat their homes, the problem may not reach critical proportions.

At any rate, the Governor has urged the federal government to take whatever steps necessary to assure that Michigan citizens have sufficient fuel to heat their homes this winter.

Ralph Ostling represents the 103rd district in the Michigan House of Representatives.

High stepping stock market may herald better inflation news

Harold Smith

The stock market turned in some high-stepping high jinks this past week that made just about every other economic activity pale, in comparison.

When the stock market moves to center stage with such pomp and circumstance, it is usually trying to say something of above average importance. I don't pretend to have any special insight, nor unusual credentials, for that matter, but I do have a lot in common with the small investor and tend to see things through his eyes and for his benefit. Since not too many market analysts and pundits can make such a claim, that ought to count for something.

Significant stock market rises and rallys traditionally occur when economic prosperity is just around the corner. If we're to believe all of the financial and fiscal yardsticks gracing the media headlines of late, prosperity may be around the corner alright, but that corner is so distant as to be nigh invisible.

Not only has the prime rate just been marked back up to 12 percent, the record high set in 1974, but competent forecasters believe 13 and 14 percent rates are in the near-term cards.

Inflation rates this year have not only strained the bonds of understanding, they have virtually inhibited reactions of any kind. On the surface, all this inflation news is hardly good. And the forecasts are even scarier. But the fright is so wide spread among consumers, workers, investors, and voters, that the government has finally moved to do something about it, besides just talking, that is.

And what it is doing is giving the stock market its considerable momentum. That's my opinion, anyway. For example, the naming of Paul Volcker to head the Federal Reserve board is the best news on the inflation fighting frontier since Arthur Burns was in charge. Further, the prospect of higher interest rates and tighter money supply is an anti-inflation tonic of the first magnitude. True enough, it may not be good business news for the short pull, but viewed from our long range vantage point, we couldn't ask for better developments to fight inflation.

So business may not be good, interest rates may be rising and public confidence touching new lows. But investors are ignoring such factors. They believe that if inflations inexorable march is finally perceived by its principal architects – the government -- and formidable economic steps taken to counter it, that news may be good enough to not only account for the present stock market rally bnt to launch a further offensive the likes of which investors haven't enjoyed for some time.

Nationalize the U.S. oil industry? A dumb idea

Nick Thimmesch

WASHINGTON – The AFL-CIO now argues that if the U.S. oil industry doesn't behave according to standards set by that union oligopoly, then the government should nationalize it. Ah, this is one trial balloon which richly deserves to be shot down.

Yes, this has been a trying summer for motorists, and maybe next winter won't be fun either for homeowners burning fuel oil. But if we deal with the energy problem by falling to demagoguery, we are a sorry lot.

OPEC is a reality. Arabs are a reality. A return to incredibly low prices for energy is an illusion. The need for vastly increased production of domestic oil is a reality. Nationalizing the oil industry or handcuffing it further are weak-minded, illusory proposals which will get us no additional oil.

As every mother's child now knows, the U.S. enjoyed the luxury of abundant, cheap energy until the early 70's. Then a growing world demand for petroleum, the Arab oil embargo and the stifling of domestic production by the federal government combined to shock us out of our comfort. We now pay oil prices which most of the world has long paid, and yet we still pay less than the rest of the industrialized world.

Even if Congress and the President went balmy enough to legislate and execute a nationalization plan, working it out would require a great deal of energy indeed. First off, the 16 U.S. oil companies would sue the government, and this liligation would take years. Next, a U.S. Oil Company ("We don't clean windshields") is going to do no better in the world market than the private entrepreneurs.

And what if some gray-faced Uncle Sam must deal with OPEC when it or some of its members have a private political hate on for our republic, and decide to punish us at the bargaining table? The Seven Oil Sisters might catch heat from OPEC nations, but they almost always come home with the oil. Finally, an Exxon nationalized in the U.S. could still operate around the world, thus complicating life for Uncle Sam The Oil Company.

Now when life goes wrong, we tend to assign blame, and I suppose oil companies are handy scapegoats. They are currently earning big, if misrepresented, profits. But a look at a Oilbank chart shows that in the 1969-78 period, the earnings of the U.S. oil industry showed a 10-year average of 13.9 percent, compared with 13.7 percent for all U.S. manufacturing firms.

Still, there is valid concern that the U.S., which depends on oil and gas for 75 percent of its energy, would be crippled without an assured supply. Senators like Adlai Stevenson and Ifeny Jackson have proposed that a national oil company be established under federal auspices to compete with the private companies and offer a "yardstick" of comparison. They never explained how a government-run oil company would be any better than the Department of Energy which everybody agrees is a bureaucratic mess.

These plans aren't exactly nationalization, but the TVA approach to a serious problem. Somehow the U.S. oil companies, perhaps due to their roughneck heritage, have historically managed to find, purchase, drill, refine, transport and distribute petroleum better than the private and public companies around the world. The result has been a benefit to the U.S. public.

I might not like the way ARCO, for example, stuffs my bill with advertisements for non-petroleum products and services properly belonging in a department store, or the fact that Mobil bought the Montgomery Ward chain. And I wish that Texaco and others (Midas muffler for one) would quit showing those phony TV ads on how courteous their help is. But as long as these Big Sisters get the oil here at prices not half bad by world standards, I'll grudgingly go with them.

Demagogues do best when people are upset and looking for easy answers. In our Great Depression, President Roosevelt often demagogued, and even tried to introduce a form of economic fascism with the National Recovery Administration (ruled unconstitutional).

People can be stirred to anger against the "rich capitalists," and no less a demagogue than Adolf Hitler frequently assailed "capitalists" to the delight of frenzied audiences.

Hitler constantly reminded Germans that "we are National Socialists" (Nazis) pitted against "narrow-minded capitalists." In one speech to the workers, Hitler bragged that he had reversed capitalist doctrine by making trade and industry "exist for the people...the people come first." He also threatened armament manufacturers who did not reinvest their profits (six percent ceiling by Nazi order) "for the good of the country...(or) the National Socialist state will intervene."

Well, we are a long way off from Hitler's middle ground economy (between capitalism and communism), and I am sure it can't happen here. At least, I am reasonably sure that a few winters from now when the fuel oil truck arrives, it won't be a dingy, gray one lettered, "U.S. Government."

Trying to ignore 'rock'

"If you ignore it long enough, it will go away."

This wonderful little piece of down-home philosophy works well with hives, hangovers and hangfatals.

But it apparently doesn't apply to rock music, which I have been ignoring for 20 years in hopes it will go away.

Instead, it seems to be proliferating. Some local radio stations are attuned completely to rock. I can't tell you which ones because I turn them off before they have a chance to tell me what their call letters are. But they are out there in the ether waiting to assault me whenever I drop my guard.

I guess what bothers me most about rock is that it has won over some highly respected musicians, including the late Arthur Fiedler of the Boston Pops. If Fiedler appreciated it, it must have something. But what it is has managed to elude me since the early days of Elvis Presley. If Presley had stopped after recording "Love Me Tender" I would have been a fan of his for life.

All of which makes me feel bad, because I enjoy all good music – except rock.

I am particularly aggrieved when I hear a rock musician boast on a TV talk show that he cannot read a note of music. Well of course he can't. If he could he would be able to create something more enjoyable than a bone-jarring jungle beat accompanied by tuneless, unintelligible gibberish.

Have you ever heard anyone try to whistle an out-and-out rock hit? I haven't.

When rock music first hit the airwaves I laughed it off, confident that it was only a passing fad. Today, more than 20 years later, I'm not so sure.

I have felt more than a little sad over Andrew Young's fall from grace as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

When Jimmy Carter appointed him to the post more than two years ago, I considered it a stroke of genius. Who better than a personable, intelligent black to represent the United States in the U.N. where so many important decisions are coming up involving the emerging nations in Africa?

However Andrew Young overstepped the bounds of propriety by conferring with a representative of the Palestinian Liberation Organization — and then neglecting to tell his superiors of the meeting.

Former Secretary of State Dean Rusk, who also sympathizes with Young's plight, characterizes our out-bound U.N. representative as a "free spirit" who probably will never be bound by the dictates of convention.

"Every ambassador must occasionally do things on which he has no instruction from home," Rusk said in an attempt to explain Young's actions. "I don't think the problem is in what he did, but in his lack of effective communication with the secretary of state and the president."

The former secretary predicts that the controversy surrounding Young's fall will die down in a few months and will not do irreparable damage to America's image abroad.

Nonetheless, I feel that Young was on the right track by at least opening a dialog with the PLO. Both presidents Ford and Carter have recognized the legitimate right of the Palestinians to a homeland in the Middle East. But because of our close ties with Israel, we have been unable to take effective steps in that direction.

From here it appears that the task will be all the more difficult with Young out of the picture.

As for Andrew Young, I am confident that the nation has not heard the last of him.

Meet Charlevoix

Jim Annis, who has called Charlevoix home since 1959, is as comfortable with a golf club or fishing pole in his hands as he is with a paint brush. Jim's real love is his self-taught hobby of painting. And painting for pleasure has recently become a source of recognition for him.

By Anne Kelly

Courier: Have you painted for a hobby all your life?

Annis: I have been drawing and painting since childhood. Some of my work has been exhibited at the Art Institute in Chicago as part of a school program workshop. I elected to go into building trades in Chicago - where I worked for a couple of small firms that catered to expensive home and office renovations and that utilized designs then that are just now in vogue. I also worked in the plastic laminate field, which was in its infancy at the time.

Courier: Did you ever expect or hope that your hobby of painting trains, streetcars, trolleys and fish would become a possible full-time job?

Annis: No, I did not. And although I have not yet attained that goal, it has been rewarding and most enjoyable. The interesting and super talented people in art in this area of the state is beyond imagination. The art field is undoubtedly the most frustrating pursuit anyone could imagine and yet it is the most rewarding. When you create a worthy piece of work it is comparable to making a hole-in one in golf. With some of my subject matter it is like unfolding the distant past into the future in the short time of 40 to 125 hours. This is approximately the time I spend on a stream or street railway scene.

Courier: In which art shows have your paintings been exhibited?

Annis: I have exhibited at Elm Pointe, East Jordan, and for two consecutive years I received awards for peoples choice and honorable mention. I have also exhibited at the Traverse Bay Art Fair and a show in the Loop in Chicago in May. Plus, a zillion one man shows at home. I hope to show in the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair. I have been planning to enter the Gold Coast Art Fair in Chicago and the Ann Arbor show in the future if time permits.

Courier: How did you come to be intrigued with the trolleys, streetcars and trains of old Chicago?

Annis: Although it is well known, even today, with all of the luster of the bygone years of railroading, Chicago has always been the Rail Capital of America. Over half of the city commutes to work on fine high speed trains. One can hardly not have an interest. I do go beyond Chicago with my artwork and I paint many rail and trolley scenes from across the nation. All that is needed is correct history and, in the case of old trolleys and interurbans, the correct colors. I do have a tremendous reference library and yet find it frustrating to not find the accurate colors I need.

Courier: Do you think there's a market for these subjects around our area?

Annis: For the depot and railroad lore of this particular area, there is always an interest and it's amazing the people I meet at shows - who now live in the area - who at one time associate some part of their life to one of my scenes. There are an enormous amount of transplants in this area. They come from all walks of life and for some this was their past. I might add that a good deal of younger people stop by to talk to me. They also have a keen interest in the subject matter. Well, I might add, with the cost of energy today, we could use our rail systems to the utmost. Especially the electric systems of long ago.

Courier: You have received some honors with your trout paintings. Could you tell us about that?

Annis: I must first say that I have put a ton of effort in the whole segment of my artwork and have always been a bit squeamish on entering contests and submitting to do magazine covers. But after prompting from friends such as Myrl Keller of the DNR and other associates and fishing buddies I began to have a little more confidence. I was runner-up in competition for the 1st Annual Michigan Trout Stamp Contest for 1980. I submitted a lake trout scene. I have done two covers for Michigan Fisherman magazine (March-April and May-June). I have hopes of doing more for them and have been invited to submit my work for Field and Stream magazine.

Courier: Which paintings have you had prints made of and what are your hopes for these?

Annis: It is with a little sadness I answer this. I have only one print to date. The costs of printing and color separations are out-of-sight. The print I have is a scene of two old Chicago trolleys portrayed in a rain scene with many reflections. The title is Reflections of Yesteryear. The scene is Lincoln and Western Avenues. I have had inquiries from Carson's and also the Chicago Historical Society as to handling this print.

Courier: Where can we see your work on display in the Charlevoix area?

Annis: At present only at the house and courtesy of a call beforehand. I have been contacted by a couple of galleries in the area, but have yet to decide what route to take. I will be seeking galleries both downstate and in the Chicago area.

Courier: What other art mediums or subject matter do you enjoy dealing with?

Annis: Right now I'd rather go fishing and forget painting for a few days. But you see I can't because if I do I am back into my subject matter. All in all it's extremely pleasurable. I paint in the acrylic medium alone for now because the drying element with this medium is tailored to my day. I have worked oils and have done a small amount of water colors. Pen and ink I'd like to tackle, but I know very little about it. Incidentally, I highly recommend anyone looking for an outlet, be they artistically included or not, give it a try. You might be a bit surprised. Buy yourself a beginners paint kit and do some experimenting. Whether you succeed or fail, you will definitely learn some new cuss words.

Courier: Do you have any long range plans for your painting, or are you a believer in fate?

Annis: I'll continue to turn out work, that is, as much as I can. And I will continue to get stronger in the print department. I must add that Howard Fogg, who is the finest rail artist in the world and a good friend, gives me all of the criticism and comments I need from his home in Boulder, Colo. He has been painting for 34 years and was the official artist for the 1976 Freedom Train, of which I proudly own a print, with an inscription, "From a Fellow Brush Pusher" - Howard Fogg.

Do Business Where Business Is Being Done

Condominium regional meeting at Weathervane Terrace Sept. 8

United Condominium Owners of Michigan (UCOM) will sponsor a condominium educational meeting at the Weathervane Terrace Motel, Charlevoix, on Saturday, Sept. 8.

The meeting will run from 10 to 12, and all condominium board members or co-owners appointed as delegates to this meeting by their Board of Directors are welcome. Developers, condominium service people and professionals may find this meeting profitable as well. The purpose of the meeting is to explore the special problems experieneed by resort condominium associations and to inform the participants of the goals of UCOM.

Robert M. Meisner, condominium attorney from Birmingham, Michigan, will be a featured speaker and will respond to questions of a general nature. Meisner has been representing condominium associations and co-owners for a number of years and is well versed in the field, both Meisner and Eleanor M. Palubin, president of UCOM, who will conduct the meeting, are consumer members of the advisory committee to the condominium section of the Michigan Corporation and Securities Bureau, they were instrumental in writing sections of the new Michigan Condominium Law which took effect on July 1, 1978, and the contributed much input to the enabling rules which will implement the statute.

UCOM is a Michigan non-profit corporation which has within its membership condominium associations, co-owners, as well as developers and service-related organizations. Established in 1974, this volunteer group provides a forum for the exchange of information and experiences among condominium associations. In addition to its work in formulating the new Michigan condominium law, UCOM has intervened in specific utility cases before the Michigan Public Service Commission and has prevailed, thus saving condominium associations and their co-owners, as a class, approximately $300,000 annually, despite a rate increase which was granted at the same time.

Beware! Not all Lake Michigan beaches are public, ruling says

Because the Charlevoix area has miles and miles of shoreline, the subject of riparian rights and what rights the public has, if any, has often been discussed.

Most people, especially summer visitors to the area, are under the impression that all Lake Michigan beaches are public property or that the public at least has a right to use all Lake Michigan beaches. However, that is not always so.

According to an Attorney General's opinion handed down in 1978, the owner of riparian property on the shores of the Great Lakes has the right of exclusive use of the bank and the shore although the title is in the state. Thus, the reparian owner may prevent persons from using the beach of his riparian land regardless of whether that land is above or below the ordinary high water mark.

Most beach owners do not object when people stroll along the beach looking for Petoskey stones or watching a sunset.

However, when incidents which have occurred recently continue, then property owners feel they want to make their rights known and observed. The most recent incident involved a group of summer visitors who were participating in a beer-guzzling party. They told the property-owner, when he advised them they were on private property and asked them to leave, where he could go because "the beach is public".

The Attorney General's opinion (Opinion 5327), however, dictates differently for it states that a riparian property owner can object and prevent bathers and others from using the beach in front of his private property. The opinion states, in part, that "it has been held that the public has no right of passage over dry land between the low and highwater mark but that the exclusive use is in the riparian owner".

One property owner along the lake said that in order to advise the public that the beach in front of his house was private, he had repeatedly posted "Private" signs only to have them torn down within 24 hours after they were posted. He added that on other occasions, when he advised sun bathers that they were on private property, they expressed sincere surprise.

Still another owner of lake shore property said "Charlevoix is blessed with public beaches on both Lake Michigan and Lake Charlevoix. Moreover, there are numerous six-foot-wide easements from Michigan Avenue down to Lake Michigan for those who like to "take a dip" and who prefer not to use the public beaches. Those of us who do own private beaches and who pay dearly (in taxes) for the privilege, should not be harassed by knowing trespassers let alone persons who sincerely believe the beaches are "public"".

Whether a stroller, a sun bather or someone planning a beach party, everyone should now be aware that, in the Attorney General's opinion, it is specifically and equivocally spelled out that the owner of riparian lands has trespass control to the water's edge and that the public has no right to use the beach in front of a riparian owner's property.

Get those walking shoes out, it's time to walk the 'Big Mac' Bridge

Labor Day morning is right around the corner and so is the Mackinac Bridge Walk.

As has been customary for the past nine years, Gov. Milliken will lead the "world's greatest walking event" and be followed by an expected 30,000 persons, the same as last year.

The first bridge walk took place on June 25, 1958, sponsored by the International Walkers Association with 55 persons participating. The IWA still sponsors races for men and women and boys and girls just prior to the general bridge walk.

Bridge walkers stroll from north to south, or from the Fare Plaza near St. Ignace to Mackinaw City.

More than 60 busses are pressed into service to convey walkers from Mackinaw City to the starting point. The fare is 50 cents, children under 12 accompanied by adults, free.

It is important to note that a new location for boarding busses was selected last year. It will be the same site this year, an area just north of the Traverse Bay Woolen Company on Huron Street in Mackinaw City.

However, the Bridge Authority strongly recommends that bridge walkers not rely on bus transportation. Last year more than 19,000 persons used the bus service which begins at 6 a.m. Many of them arrived at the starting point too late for the 10:00 a.m. deadline for commencing the walk. Every effort is made to clear the bridge by noon when vehicle traffic, which is maintained during the bridge walk, peaks.

In order to prevent backing up of heavy southbound traffic, bridge walkers are squeezed into a single lane. Then two south lanes are open for automobile crossings and one lane is open for northbound traffic. The procedure has been carried out safely and efficiently during the past five years. It is necessary to prevent backups as long as 10 miles in the Upper Peninsula.

The only dogs permitted to participate in the bridge walk are seeing-eye dogs. This rule is strictly enforced for the convenience and safety of the majority of the bridge walkers.

Also, participants should bear in mind that there are no relief stations on the bridge. Porta-johns will be positioned at the north and south ends of the bridge.

The 210th MP Battalion of the Michigan National Guard from Detroit will be assisting with traffic and crowd control. This is a demanding command post exercise in that north and southbound vehicular traffic is maintained during the bridge walk.

The National Guard persons are stationed all along the bridge to enforce rules and regulations governing the bridge walk such as: no running or jogging, no roller skating, no climbing on bridge railings, no bicycles or other vehicles, plus a number of other prohibitions.

The Hiawathaland Council of the Boy Scouts of America Troop No. 127 will be stationed at the south end of the bridge and passing out 1979 bridge walk certificates. Each is individually numbered and those coinciding with a number posted in Mackinaw City store windows will be awarded more than $1500 worth of prizes donated by Mackinaw City merchants and the Chamber of Commerce.

Strike up the band

The 1979-80 school year is almost here and the Charlevoix High School bands is about to prepare for the upcoming season.

In order to meet the band members and hear them play Michael Filkins, band director, has scheduled auditions for Wednesday and Thursday, Aug. 29 and 30.

The auditions will be held at the high school band room between the hours of 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. on the following schedule: Wednesday: all morning, all brass; all afternoon, all woodwinds.

Thursday: Morning: all percussions: Afternoon, make-up.

Sign-up sheets will be posted in the high school band room so you can sign up for auditions in person or you may call Mr. Filkins to make arrangements for yar audition.

Beginning at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 4, the Marching Band will have its first full rehearsal which all members are asked to attend.

If you have any questions or difficulties with the above schedule, you may call Mr. Filkins at his office, 547-2882.

Office closed Friday

The Charlevoix County Office of Veterans Affairs will be closed on Friday only this week according the Veterans Counselor, Ronald G. Geer.

The office will re-open on Tuesday as per schedule and will be open days each week, Tuesday and Friday, as in the past.

Class of '49 reminisces at its 30th reunion

Ah, 30 years ago!

That's when you could buy coffee for 49 cents a pound, ground beef for 38 cents a pound, sirloin steak for 63 cents a pound, applesauce for 16 cents a can and cottage cheese for 17 cents a can (1 pound).

Even better, you could get a free doughnut by purchasing a cup of coffee at the Sugar Bowl.

And - back then - a new tweed suit cost $30 at Bergeon's. A six room house sold for $4,000. A 110 acre farm went for $3,000.

The Charlevoix High School Class of '49 remembers the era well. And it is particularly vivid now - since the class assembled recently at Duffy's of Charlevoix to reminisce at their 30th reunion.

Several awards were handed out at the reunion. Recipients included: Don Ecklund, for traveling the farthest (Bloomfield, Colo.); Francis Potter Ward, for being married the longest (June 3, 1949); Betty Browe White, for being married the shortest time; Dick Jolliffe, for having the youngest child; Junior Potter, for having the most grandchildren; Sharon Butler Lyons, for being the "least changed female;" and Neil Suomela, for being the "least changed male."

4-H Achievement Day set for Monday, Sept. 3

Charlevoix County 4-H Clubs are sponsoring a 4-H Fall Achievement Day on Monday, Sept. 3 at Whiting Park.

Charlevoix County 4-H members will be exhibiting projects they have been working on thru the summer. Exhibits such as baking, outdoor meals, camping, vegetable gardening and many others will be displayed. Animal projects including poultry, goats and others will also be present. The park building will be open at 8 a.m. with judging beginning at 10 a.m. Projects must be in place at 9:30 a.m.

There will be games for 4-H members during the judging and a potluck lunch at noon.

Exhibits will be open for public viewing from noon to 3 p.m. Those who are interested in learning more about 4-H are invited to visit with the 4-H members, leaders and staff. There will be games and skits for public participation and viewing.

Youth who are interested in exhibiting a project should enroll for 4-H immediately at the Cooperative Extension Service Office in Boyne City. The 4-H program in Charlevoix County is a year round activity open to all County youth. Members need not live in rural areas. Parents and children who are interested in the 4-H program are especially invited. For more information about the program, contact Phyllis Sumner, 4-H Program Assistant at 582-6232.

State's best here

Charlevoix fast pitch fans will have an opportunity to see some outstanding women's teams in action this weekend when Charlevoix hosts several games of the State Class B Women's Fast-pitch finals being played in Petoskey.

Charlevoix will host the over-load on Friday evening and Saturday with games scheduled for 6:30, 8 and 9:30 p.m. Friday and 9 and 10:30 a.m., 12 noon and 1:30 p.m. Saturday.

The action will then shift to the Petoskey site of the tournament.

Cross country squad in White Cloud meet

The Charlevoix High School cross country team, Michigan-Huron Shores Conference and Class C Regional defending champions, will open their 1979 season Saturday, Sept. 1, when they participate in the White Cloud Invitational meet.

The Rayders will be among the top cross country teams in the state participating in the White Cloud event, according to Coach Pete Spieles.

The team will not open its regular season until Sept. 18 when they travel to Boyne City for a triangular meet with the Ramblers and Gaylord.

Coach Spieles has four returning lettermen from last season, John Fiedorek, a senior, Jeff Landon and Jay Swartwout, juniors, and Jim Landon, a sophomore.

Also returning are 10 runners, including five who saw limited action last year. They are Jim Duke, a sophomore, John Bradley, a senior, Mark Patrie, Todd Russell and Andrew Schaefer, juniors. Others are Bill Fels, John Lochunan and Scott Meadows, seniors, and Shelly Johnstone and Patrice Staley, juniors.

Spieles said the runners have been active through the summer, running regularly and participating in several area events, including the Little Traverse Trot at Petoskey, the 10 k. run at the Cherry Festival at Traverse City, 7½ k. race at the Alpenfest at Gaylord, 10 k. event at the Charlevoix Venetian Festival run and the 10 k. race at Clare on Aug. 18.

The team will attend a summer camp conducted by Coach Spieles at Wilderness State Park the week of Sept. 26-31 and participate in the Labor Day 8-mile race at Mackinac Island on Sept. 2 before opening its league schedule.

Coaches, refs needed

Although there has been some response to the plea for flag football coaches and officials, there is a need for additional volunteers Dwight Boss, city recreation director, said.

Anyone wishing to assist with the program is asked to contact Boss at the Recreation Department office, 547-4272 or at his home, 547-9098.

A meeting of coaches and officials has been called for 7 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 6, at the City Hall prior to the draft scheduled for the following Saturday at the Carpenter Avenue field.

Gratitude expressed

With the conclusion of the small fry division of the Charlevoix Recreation program, Dwight "Ike" Boss, city recreation director, has expressed his appreciation to the volunteer coaches and officials who made the programs possible.

"Without the generosity and dedication of these people who have given of their time and themselves, the youngsters of Charlevoix could not have enjoyed the sports program in which they have participated in recent weeks. I want them to know that their efforts in behalf of the kids are truly appreciated," Boss said.

The T-Ball coaches were Paul Parrish, Howard Zoet, Bill Sherman, Jack Gebott, Carl Miller, Larry Campbell and Nick DeYoung.

Peanut League coaches were Ed Buday, Patt Kerr, Dave Buday and Leslie Cunningham. Ponytail League, Curt Ayes, John Buday, Cindy Carson, Ann Willis and Coreen DeYonge.

Officials who contributed their time were Teresa Noirot, Mel Kerridge, John Greene and Jeff Greene.

CHARLEVOIX CITY COUNCIL MINUTES

AUGUST 20, 1979
8:00 P.M.

The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date and time with Mayor Supernaw presiding.

Councilmen present: Roloff, Wood, Muma, Whitley, Porter and Timms. Absent: None.

The Minutes of the August 6, 1979 regular meeting were approved as presented in writing and as recorded in the Council Minutes Book.

A Public Hearing was held regarding the request by Eugene Steele of Charlevoix Properties to rezone the property at 906 Bridge from PO to R-2 for the purpose of making two apartment units in the present building. Mrs. Irma Schied, a property owner within 300 feet of the proposed rezoning, asked why she had received a letter advising her of the proposed rezoning when she had not received notification of her own property being rezoned last year. Mayor Supernaw explained that the rezoning of the Schied property was included in the new Zoning Ordinance that had, in fact, encompassed the entire City, and that notification of the Ordinance had been published and Public Hearings held prior to the adoption of the Ordinance. Mrs. Schied also asked if the proposed rezoning of this property would be "spot zoning". The Mayor stated that this would be correct. Mr. Steele stated that the property had been on the market for some time and had not sold as a Professional Office.

Moved by Councilman Porter and supported by Councilman Roloff to rezone the property at 906 Bridge Street from PO to R-2 with a maximum of two families to reside on the premises.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Councilmen Roloff, Wood, Muma, Whitley, Porter and Timms. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Moved by Councilman Wood and supported by Councilman Timms to accept and file the City Planning Commission Minutes dated August 13, 1979.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Councilmen Roloff, Wood, Muma, Whitley, Porter and Timms. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Ronald Moore, representing the Board of Directors of the Chip Counseling Center, asked Council's permission to plant a tree in the park adjacent to the Chamber of Commerce Building in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Woodbury Ransom, founders of the Counseling Center and, to place a small plaque in the ground at the base of the tree indicating its purpose. Mr. Moore also stated that the tree would replace an evergreen that had blown down in a storm.

Moved by Councilman Timms and supported by Councilman Wood that the Chip Counseling Center be allowed to plant an evergreen tree with accompanying plaque in the park adjacent to the Chamber of Commerce Building in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Woodbury Ransom.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Councilmen Roloff, Wood, Muma, Whitley, Porter and Timms. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Mayor Supernaw read the following Proclamation of appreciation and gratitude as presented to Mr. and Mrs. Ransom at a reception held in their honor on August 19, 1979.

PROCLAMATION

To all citizens and distinguished guests of Charlevoix the Beautiful, let it be known that:

Whereas, the CHIP Counseling Center has become an important part of our community and...

Whereas, the Center has been very successful in helping many of our citizens overcome serious personal and domestic problems, and...

Whereas, the Center has reached out to serve to counseling needs of our community's business and industry, and...

Whereas, the Center has given willing assistance to our schools, courts and law enforcement agencies, and...

Whereas, the Center's services have been provided on an ability to pay basis that enables individuals who otherwise could not afford counseling to have the service available, and...

Whereas, the Center has been operating primarily on funds generously provided by Woodbury and Christiana Ransom, and...

Whereas, Woodbury and Christiana Ransom have been instrumental in guiding the CHIP Counseling Center's development and growth.

Now, therefore, I, Sam Supernaw, Mayor of the City of Charlevoix, do hereby proclaim the appreciation and gratitude of its citizens for Woodbury and Christiana Ransom's generosity and Christian concern for this community.

Moved by Councilman Timms and supported by Councilman Porter that the Coast Guard be authorized to make certain improvements to the Sundew pier as listed in their request dated May 9, 1979 and that said improvements shall be at no cost to the City.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Councilmen Roloff, Wood, Muma, Whitley, Porter and Timms. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Moved by Councilman Porter and supported by Councilman Wood that the City cast a unanimous ballot for the following six persons to serve as Trustees for the Michigan Municipal Worker's Compensation Self Insurer's Fund: (1) David Aronson of Trenton, (2) William Barrons of Mt. Pleasant, (3) William Ringler of Mt. Clemens, (4) Mrs. Carol B. Arvoy of Swartz Creek, (5) Kenneth Courtney of Troy, and (6) Daniel E. Schoinak, Jr. of Fraser.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Councilmen Roloff, Wood, Muma, Whitley, Porter and Timms. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Moved by Councilman Porter and supported by Councilman Muma that the Mayor and the City Clerk be authorized to sign a Certificate of Compliance with Section 31 of Article 9 of the State Constitution of 1963 certifying that the City tax rates are within the provisions of the Headlee Amendment.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Councilmen Roloff, Wood, Muma, Whitley, Porter and Timms. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Council generally agreed to advertise for bids for a ¾ ton pick-up truck for the Water Department rather than using the Meter Reader's truck as previously suggested, as it is only a ½ ton pick-up and would not be suitable for heavy duty use as required by the Water Department.

Council generally agreed to have a professional study done regarding the implementation of a demand rate for heavy electrical users at a cost of $500.00 to $1,000.00.

Moved by Councilman Roloff and supported by Councilman Timms to put a proposal on the ballot for the November, 1979 election to change the City Clerk's position from an elected to an appointed office.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Councilmen Roloff, Wood, Muma, Porter and Timms. Nays: Councilman Whitley. Absent: None.

The Finance Committee having examined bills totaling $296,181.54 find them correct and recommend the bills be allowed.

Moved by Councilman Porter and supported by Councilman Timms that the bills be allowed and orders drawn for their amount.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Councilmen Roloff, Wood, Muma, Whitley, Porter and Timms. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Council adjourned.

4-H Horse Expo planned

The second Northern Michigan Regional 4-H Horse Expo is planned for Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 8-9, at the Otsego County Fairgrounds in Gaylord.

The two-day event will offer something for every 4-H'er who has an interest in horses. On Saturday, the program begins with opening ceremonies at 10 a.m. then swings right into a variety of 4-H Horse Show Classes. At 4 p.m. 4-H'ers can enter into a 4-H Horse Judging Contest to try their skills at placing both halter and performance horses. Between 6 and 10 p.m. there is a full lineup of demonstrations, clinics and a unique hypology contest. The day is concluded with a record hop.

On Sunday, the program begins with Sunday morning services on horseback followed by more horse show classes. At 3 p.m. special awards will be presented.

Any 4-H'er who lives in the coverage area is eligible to attend. They must be properly enrolled in their county 4-H program. Each county 4-H Office has the official entry blanks and the details on the show bill and stall reservations. The entry deadline is Sept. 1.

For further details and information, please contact Phyllis Sumner at 582-6232.

Realtors wary of wetland bill

Bill Carey, president of the Antrim-Charlevoix Board of Realtors accused proponents of state wetlands legislation of trying to take control of millions of acres of private property.

"The state owns over four million acres in Michigan, the feds own another three million. Federal, state, and local agencies already exert substantial control over the use of most private property as well, under numerous land use control laws and regulations," Carey said.

"Now," he continued, "they want the absolute authority to tell landowners exactly what they can or cannot do with millions of acres of private property."

Proposed wetlands legislation would forbid virtually any use or improvement of perhaps millions of acres of privately owned lands in Michigan, without the expressed permission of Michigan's Department of Natural Resources.

Carey indicated that the realtors supported the conservation of critical wetland areas but insisted that no effort to identify these areas had been made.

"Instead," Carey stated, "very broad legislation is proposed to take contrl of millions of acres with no idea as to where these lands are located or what their environmental and/or economic importance might be."

"This amounts to an unconstitutional land grab by the state," he added. "When you tell property owners they may no longer use their land, you might as well have taken it. Under both our federal and state constitutions, the right to own and use private property is guaranteed. Only when the government can demonstrate a valid public need may they condemn and take it, but, even then, the constitution says they have to pay for it."

Current wetlands proposals would not compensate affected property owners.

Carey explained that several methods of compensating property owners were available to the state including: tax abatement, purchase of development rights, or outright purchase of the land.

Carey concluded, "If the state can demonstrate a public interest in a particular piece of land, then they may control its use or acquire it for the public benefit. But, to require private citizens to sacrifice their property for the public is not right. If the public will reap a substantial benefit from taking a citizen's land, or taking away their right to use it, then the public should pay the cost. Under proposed bills, affected property owners wouldn't get a dime – though they couldn't do much with their land and would still pay property taxes on it."

Historical Society to discuss Harsha property

The Charlevoix Historical Society will hold its monthly meeting at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 4 in the community room of the First State Bank of Charlevoix. Among matters to be reported will be the progress of planning for utilization of the Harsha property on State Street.

For the program Leonard (Pete) Burns will discuss some significant dates in Charlevoix history. Coming from a Charlevoix area pioneer family, Pete's lineage spans over a century of local history. He first became interested in organizing this subject when he was assigned the task of teaching seventh-grade Michigan History in Charlevoix over 25 years ago.

Members and friends of the society are invited to submit their own dates which may be included in the Charlevoix area chronology.

Lexalite molds award winner

Pressure gauges used in industrial applications and by petroleum, chemical and food processing industries are often subjected to severe vibration and corrosive substances. To protect internal movements and maintain accuracy within 1 percent, gauge housings must be made of extremely strong materials.

The H.D. Trerice Company, Detroit, has won a design award for their gauge housings made of fiberglass reinforced Profil polypropylene. The award, which recognizes an exceptional use of a specialty thermoplastic molding compound was presented recently during the National Plastics Exposition in Chicago.

The Profil compound used is impact modified polypropylene with 30 percent fiberglass. It is supplied by Fiberfil Division, Dart Industries Inc. Each gauge housing consists of a case, threaded ring and back plate. These parts are molded by Lexalite Corporation, Charlevoix, and T.D. Shea Manufacturing Company, Pontiac.

An assembled gauge has a lens cover, held in place by the ring, over the case. The blowout back plate is designed to protect the lens and gauge movements from pressure build-up inside.

Because of severe environmental conditions such as in off shore oil wells, material for a gauge housing must provide high impact strength and have low water absorption. Chemical resistance is necessary because gauges are often filled with silicone or glycerin, and the material must not discolor from this exposure. Other properties required include light weight and low mold shrinkage.

Impact modified Profil with 30 percent fiberglass meets all requirements. It has Izod impact strength of 1.5 ft. lbs./inch. Water absorption in 24 hours is .03 percent.

Weddings

Warner-Martinchek

Arrangements of Fuji mums graced the altar at the United Methodist Church for the wedding of Lorraine Kaye Warner and Douglas Lee Martinchek, early Saturday evening.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Louis Warner of Charlevoix, Mrs. Richard Maylew, also of Charlevoix, and Victor Martinchek of Petoskey.

The Rev. Austin Regier officiated at the double ring service in the presence of 200 guests. Mrs. Gordon Willis, at the organ, played a program of traditional music and the wedding march and accompanied Theresa Russell who sang "The Wedding Song".

The bride, escorted to the altar by her father, chose a gown of white silk organza over taffeta for her wedding. Fashioned with an empire waist, the gown featured an inlaid lace brocade bodice accepted with seedpearls. A Queen Anne neckline, long bishop sleeves also trimmed with seedpearls and a cathedral train. Her whte mantilla was trimmed with identical lace brocade. Her bridal bouquet was of yellow sweetheart roses, white Fuji mums, baby's breath, greens and satin streamers.

Jackie Dennis of Muskegon served as her maid of honor and Margaret Warner of East Lansng and Terri Warner, sisters of the bride, and Jill Martinchek of East Lansing, sister of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids. They wore identical full length gowns of light blue qiana styled with lace inserts at the neckline with ruffles of chiffon forming the sleeves. They carried long stemmed yellow roses.

Elizabeth Gabbard of New Era, cousin of the bride, as flower girl, wore a blue and white gown. Troy Bonar was ringbearer.

William Kellogg of Coldwater assisted the bridegroom as best man. Frank Martinchek, brother of the bridegroom, Kevin Willis and Steve Otto, all of Petoskey, were groomsmen. Gary Hunter of Oden and Ronald Houseworth of East Lansing seated the guests.

A reception hosted by the bride's parents followed at the Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club. Emma Lee Ellison served the wedding cake; Mrs. Gary Miller and Colleen Bascom of Atwood, cousin of the bride, served the punch and Karen Mayhew was in charge of the guest bok.

After a wedding trip to the Upper Peninsula, the couple will return to make their home at 813½ State St.

The bride is employed by the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District and the bridegroom by Eric Powell Construction.

A rehearsal dinner was held at the home of the bridegroom's father on Friday evening.

Dhaseleer-Scharenbroch

Elaine Marie Dhaseleer and John Joseph Scharenbroch exchanged their wedding vows Saturday at a Nuptial mass at St. Mary's Church Saturday afternoon.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dhaseleer and Mr. and Mrs. Norbert W. Scharenbroch.

The Rev. R. Dale Magoon officiated at the double ring services in the presence of 200 guests. Baskets of pastel gladiob formed a setting for the mass. Mrs. David Kimble interpreted the marriage vows and Mrs. Dane Whitley the words of the music for the bride who is deaf. Mrs. Jeanne Brewster, at the organ, played a program of traditional music and the wedding march and accompanied Mrs. Maurice Cudd who sang "If", "The Lord's Prayer", "You Are My World" and "Blessed Mother".

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a gown of organza and Chantilly lace for her wedding. Fashioned with an organza yoke edged with Chantilly lace, the gown featured a high lace collar, long sheer sleeves accented with lace at the wrists. The hembne and chapel length train of the A-line skirt were also edged in lace. She wore a mantilla style veil and carried a bouquet of red roses, stephanotis, baby's breath and trailing ivy.

Mrs. Carl Romanik of Harbor Springs, as her sister's matron of honor, and Mrs. David Babcock of Mt. Vernon, Ohio, Mrs. Daniel Moore of Boyne City, Beth Dhaseleer of Mt. Pleasant and Carol Dhaseleer, as their sister's bridesmaids, wore identical gowns of white dotted swiss with white trim and white picture hats. They carried bouquets of red sweetheart roses and white mums.

Susan Romanik of Harbor Springs, niece of the bride as flower girl, wore a gown of navy dotted Swiss. Henry Dhaseleer, nephew of the bride, was ringbearer.

Nathan L. Klooster assisted the bridegroom as best man. Leslie Dhaseleer and David Dhaseleer, brothers of the bridegroom, Daniel Key of Grand Rapids and Norbert G. Scharenbroch, brother of the bridegroom, were groomsmen. Charles C. Kitely and Mark Hollow seated the guests.

Mrs. Dhaseleer chose a floor length light blue knit gown styled with a V-neckline and long sleeves for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Scharenbroch, mother of the bridegroom, wore a Caribbean blue gown.

A reception hosted by the bride's parents, followed at the American Legion post home. Diane Scharenbroch and Mrs. David Goodeman, sisters of the bridegroom, cut the wedding cake; Mrs. John Dhaseleer, sister-in-law of the bride, poured the punch and Carl Dhaseleer, brother of the bride, was in charge of the guest book.

After a wedding trip to Ohio, the couple will be at home in Charlevoix.

The bride is employed at the Charlevoix County State Bank and the bridegroom is affiliated with Scharenbroch Enterprises. He attended North Central Michigan College.

A rehearsal dinner of Friday evening was hosted by the bridegroom's parents.

Suomela-Willis

Sandra Kay Suomela and Jerry Lynn Willis – both of Rochester – were married recently before 210 guests at Addison Oaks in Lake Orion.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Suomela of Charlevoix and Rochester. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Willis of Rochester.

The Rev. Bruce Kjellberg from Faith Lutheran Church performed the double ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a white full length gown (princess style) with a trailing veil. She carried a bouquet of white roses.

Carol Ann Bascikin of Rochester was maid of honor. Sue Zink, Cathy Davis, Sue Harper and Janet Finney were bridesmaids. They wore peach gowns with white organdy and carried nosegays of white daisies.

Marne Harris was flower girl. She wore a peach dotted Swiss dress and carried a basket of white daisies.

Jamie Willis, brother of the groom, was best man. Richard Roth, Terry Copacia, Fred Daniels and Edward Szelbilski were groomsmen. Scott Suomela, brother of the bride, Mike Wiggin and Ronald Farmer were ushers. Michael Fields, the groom's nephew, was ringbearer.

Organist Dee Anderson played traditional wedding music. Also providing music were guitarist Jeff Kjellberg and soloist Greg Kjellberg.

A reception was held at Addison Oaks following the ceremony. The couple then embarked on a Toronto, Canada wedding trip. The couple will make their home at 17963 2 3 Mile Road, Mt. Clemens.

The groom is a graduate of Oakland University and teaches and coaches football at Utica Community Schools. The bride is a junior at Oakland University.

A rehearsal dinner was given by the groom's parents.

The mothers of the bride and groom both wore long, mint green gowns.

Geer-Stolt

Arrangements of yellow roses and blue forget-me-nots graced the altar of Christ Episcopal Church Saturday evening (Aug. 18) for the wedding of Julie Marie Geer of Charlevoix and Donald Wesley Stolt of Boyne City.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Ronald G. Geer of Charlevoix and Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Stolt of Boyne City.

The Rev. Roger Ames officiated at the double ring service. Mrs. Carl Browne, at the organ, played a program of traditional music.

Escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her parents, the bride chose a gown of dacron polyester organza and lace. The empire ruffled Chantilly lace bodice was fashioned with a scooped neckline. The A-line skirt extended into a chapel length train with a lace and flounced hemline. Her floor length mantilla was edged with lace. She carried a colonial bouquet of yellow roses and blue forget-me-nots.

Barbara Swanson served as her maid of honor and Carol Stolt of Boyne City, sister of the groom, Sally Geer, sister of the bride, and Nora Lewis were bridesmaids. They wore identical floor length multi-colored floral print sundresses and carried bed chamber candlesticks with blue candles and peach and yellow mums at the base.

Marcie Beaudoin, as flower girl, wore a pink dress fashioned like the bride's and carried a wicker basket of pink roses and blue forget-me-nots. J.B. Withers, as ringbearer, carried the rings on a toy panda.

Gary Koteskey of Boyne City assisted his cousin as best man. Groomsmen were Arnold Koteskey of Boyne City, cousin of the groom, David Cook of Boyne City and Jay Stone of Grand Rapids. Michael Doctor of Petoskey, cousin of the bride, and Dale Stolt of Boyne City, brother of the groom, seated the guests.

A reception for 200 guests, hosted by the bride's parents, followed at the American Legion post home.

After a wedding trip through northern Michigan, the couple will make their home in Ann Arbor where the groom will return to his graduate studies at the University of Michigan and where the bride will be employed at the V.A. Hospital.

Wedding guests were present from California, Florida, Connecticutt, Ohio and several Michigan cities.

A rehearsal dinner on Friday evening was hosted by the groom's parents at their home.

Painters rescue injured driver

Charles (Topper) Carey and Steve Michaels have received Citizen Awards from Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater.

The two men were honored for pulling an injured driver out of a burning car.

According to Lasater, Carey and Michaels were painting a house on June 30 when "a vehicle smashed into a garage area, pinning the unconscious driver in the car. When Carey and Michaels approached the car to render assistance, a fire broke out. Both recipients disregarded their own safety and attempted to open the side doors and extract the driver, being unsuccessful in this attempt due to the side doors being pinned shut, both men crawled through the rear window and pulled the driver to safety and saved him from further serious injury."

Lasater said the rescue was brought to his attention by Charlevoix Township fireman Don Smith.

Carey, 34, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carey. Michaels, 22, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Michaels.

Obituaries

ROBERT SUTTON

Military funeral services for a former resident, Robert Sutton, 85, of White Cloud were held Saturday, Aug. 18 at the Crandell Funeral Home at White Cloud. Interment was in the White Cloud cemetery.

Mr. Sutton died Aug. 15 at White Cloud where he had lived since retiring.

Born at Chestonia in Antrim County on July 4, 1915, Mr. Sutton had come to Charlevoix with his family as a child. During World War II he served overseas with the U.S. Army. He later lived in Hazel Park and Walled Lake while he was employed at the Ford Motor Co. He moved to White Cloud following his retirement. He was a member of the V.F.W. Post No. 4249 at Newaygo.

He is survived by his wife, Marguerite; several sons and daughters; three brothers, R.M. Sutton of Charlevoix, Harry of Traverse City and Bertram of Walled Lake and three sisters, Mrs. Leona Saganek of Grosse Pointe, Mrs. Flossie Hill and Mrs. Jessie Ilward, both of East Jordan.

VIOLA CHRISTENSEN

Funeral services for Mrs. Nelson C. (Viola) Christensen, 77, who died Aug. 21 at her Eveline Township home were held Friday at the Ironton Congregational Church. The Rev. Harold Kruse officiated. Interment was in Brookside cemetery.

Born in Chicago Aug. 19, 1902, the former Viola Brown was married to Mr. Christensen in Chicago in 1930. They lived in Chicago and Carey, Ill., until he retired from the Illionis Bell Co. in 1965 and they came to Ironton to make their home. She was a member of the Ironton Congregational Church and its Women's Fellowship.

Besides her husband, she is survived by a son, Roy James of Morton Grove, Ill.; four grandchildren; two great-grandchildren and a brother, Louis Brown of Kalamazoo.

The family suggests that anyone wishing to honor her memory contribute in her name tu the Ironton Congregational Church.

The Winchester Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

FRED HOLLOWAY

Funeral services for Fred M. Holloway, 73, who died Aug. 21 at his Banks Township home following a long illness were held at the Hastings Funeral Home Friday. The Rev. Donald Reigel officiated. Interment was in Southern Cemetery at Central Lake.

Born at Wingo, Ky., Jan. 9, 1906, Mr. Holloway came to Michigan as a young man. On Nov. 13, 1943 he was married to the former Henrietta Campbell Dixon at Pontiac. They lived there and in several other southern Michigan cities while he was employed by the General Motors Company. In 1961 they moved to Mancelona where he sold real estate for 12 years before coming to their present home in 1973.

Surviving are his wife; three daughters, Mrs. Joseph (Marion) Cartwright of San Dimas, Ca., Mrs. James (Linda) McCracken of Bradford, Ohio, and Mrs. David (Carol) DuCap of Englewood, Fla.; a son, Jack Holloway of Ferndale; a stepson, David Dixon of Mt. Dora, Fla.; 15 grandchildren; three great grandchildren and a brother, Robert Holloway of Twenty-nine Palms, Ca.

CHARLES FOX

Funeral services for Charles Smith Fox, 71, who died unexpectedly at the Belvedere Club Saturday, will be held at the Ladue Chapel Presbyterian Church in st. Lous, Mo., Wednesday. Entombment will be in the Oak Grove Mausoleum.

Services were held Sunday at Christ Episcopal Church here with the Rev Roger Ames officiating.

Mr. Fox, a lifelong resident of St. Louis, Mo., and the Belvedere Club here, was born at East St. Louis, Ill., Nov. 2, 1907. He was a 1930 graduate uf Princeton University. He was vice president and director of A.G. Edwards & Sons, Stockbrokers in St. Louis and vice president of the Belvedere Club here. He was a member of the Presbyterian Church in St. Louis.

Surviving are his wife, the former Helen D'Arcy; three sons, Charles D'Arcy, William Cheever and John Reid Fox, all of St. Louis, and one grandchild.

MARGARET CLOW

Funeral services for Mrs. Delbert (Margaret) Clow, 88, who died Wednesday at her home in Ellsworth, were held Saturday at the Hastings Funeral Home. The Rev. Edward Powell of the Ellsworth Wesleyan Church officiated. Interment was in the Ellsworth cemetery.

The former Margaret Skow was born Oct. 2, 1890 in Banks Township in a log cabin that stood in the heart of the present community of Ellsworth. She attended the Ellsworth school through 11th grade and was graduated from Bellaire High School. She attended the Oskaloosa Academy in Iuwa and college at Mt. Pleasant in 1910, Central College in 1912, and Ann Arbor in 1913-14. She returned to Ellsworth and taught in the local schools for many years. She also taught piano lessons in her home.

On April 27, 1915 she married Mr. Clow. They always lived in Ellsworth except from 1923-45 when they resided in Detroit. Mr. Clow preceded her in death in 1973.

She is survived by two sons, William of Ellsworth and Delbert Jr. of Dearborn Heights; four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Another receives perhaps the most surface praise and the least real appreciation of anyone in our lives. She is all too often taken for granted; her wishes ignored, her advice scoined, her feelings forgotten; until the day it is too late. Her life is a mixture of joy, sorrow, love, comfort, anxiety, pride in her children and agonizing worry about their well-being. We are urged all thinugh the Bible to honor our parents and to think of our mother as a symbol of wisdom and kindness; and it takes mora than just a gift for a special occasion to do this. Come to Church and learn how to honor and appreciate your mother and be loyal to her memory all the year 'round.

STATEMENT OF NONDISCRIMINATION
August 22, 1979

Northern Michigan Electric Cooperative, Inc., P.O. Box 138, Boyne City, Michigan, 49712, has filed with the Federal Government a Compliance Assurance in which it assures the Rural Electrification Administration that it will comply fully with all requirements of Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and the Rules, Regulations of the Department of Agriculture issued thereunder, to the end that no person in the United States shall, on the ground of race, color or national origin, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be otherwise subjected to discrimination in the conduct of its program and the operation of its facilities. Under this Assurance, this organization is committed not to discriminate against any person on the ground of race, color or national origin in its policies and practices relating to applications for service or any other policies and practices relating to treatment of beneficiaries and participants including rates, conditions and extension of service, use of any of its facilities, attendance at and participation in, any meetings of beneficiaries and participants or the exercise of any rights of such beneficiaries and participants in the conduct of the operations of this organization.

Any person who believes himself, or any specific class of individuals, to be subjected to this organization to discrimination prohibited by Title VI of the Act and the Rules and Regulations issued thereunder may, by himself or a representative, file with the Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250, or this organization, or all, a written complaint. Such complaint must be filed not later than 180 days after the alleged discrimination, or by such later date to which the Secretary of Agriculture or the Rural Electrification Administration extends the time for filing. Identity of complaintants will be kept confidential except to the extent necessary to carry out the purposes of the Rules and Regulations.

Petitions sent to NRC

A petition signed by 25 people, who live within a 50 mile radius of the Big Rock Point nuclear plant, has been sent the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

More petitions are being circulated and will be sent to the NRC in an effort to obtain a pre-hearing on Consumer Power Company's request to increase the storage area capacity at the plant for spent fuel rods.

The petition states that there is no safe method to storing radioactive waste and that by issuing a license it would be a dangerous and destructive act that would infringe on all area residents.

A mock accident will be staged at Big Rock today (Wednesday) to test state emergency plans for dealing with the nuclear disasters.

The purpose of the mock accident will be to test the effectiveness of communication networks, evacuation plans, temporary shelters and decontamination equipment.

Tourney resumes after rainout

Play in the Charlevoix Township Invitational Softball tournament will continue at Shanahan Field at 6 p.m. Tuesday, weather permitting, with Murdick's Fudge and Koontz Construction meeting in the loser's bracket and Townhouse and C.R.E. meeting in the semi-finals in the winner's bracket at 7:15 p.m. according to Don Smith, tournament manager.

The following night the finals in the loser's bracket and the tournament finals will be played at 6:00 and 7:15 p.m. If a thirteenth game is needed, it will be played at 7 p.m. Aug. 30.

The tournament opened with eight games being played during the day. Townhouse defeated Murdick's Fudge in the opener by a score of 13-6 with Ron Weislik pitching for the winners and allowing 12 hits and Jack Niswander allowing 16.

In the second game C.R.E. defeated Wojan's Aluminum 14-0 with Steve Kidder scoring two and Dean Mikulski one home run for the winners. Jim Ciuk gave up only four hits while Glenn Cunningham allowed 15.

Impac Tool scored 12 runs on 12 hits to defeat Flight Deck who had six runs on 18 hits. Dave Charbeneau was the winning pitcher; Harold Thomure the loser. Bill Snell had a home for the losers.

C.R.E., making its second appearance in the tournament, downed Koontz Construction, the seventh team in the tournament, by a score of 13-4 with Ciuk allowing nine hits. Earl Coffey allowed nine for Koontz. Dave Storm scored two and Gordon Block one home r for C R E.

Murdick's edged Wojan's 11-10 as the two teams met in the first game in the loser's bracket. Cunninghain allowed 10 and Hank Archey 12 runs. Cunningham and Chuck Center each scored homers for Murdick's.

Townhouse advanced in the winner's bracket with 17 runs on 19 hits behind the pitching of Weisbik to defeat Impac Tc l who had eight runs on 16 hits. Charbeneau was the losing pitcher. Mike Crain had a homer for the victors and John Hutchinson one for the losers.

In the last two games in the loser's bracket, Koontz defeated Flight Deck 5-1. Coffey allowed eight hits for Koontz and Don Willis eight for Flight Deck. Don Norman had a homer for the victors.

In a hard fought battle Murdick's scored 13 runs on 14 hits to defeat Impac Tool who had 10 runs on 17 hits.

Anniversaries

Mr. and Mrs. Wojan

It was a cloudy, rainy, Saturday afternoon, (Aug. 5th) but at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix the sun was shining bright. And there was a twinkle in the eyes of John and Helen Wojan, who celebrated mass on their 50th wedding anniversary.

Surrounded by friends and family, as they were a half century before, Helen and John renewed their vows before Rev. R. Dale Magoon.

Ronald Wojan, Jr. played the guitar and sang three pieces he composed for his grandparents.

Following the ceremony was a traditional Polish reception held at the American Legion Hall in Charlevoix.

Food was prepared and served by chef, Jerry Pease and friends Bob Holtzman and Tom Meggison.

The mature set danced circles around the younger generation to the polka music of Jack and Virgil's band from Gaylord.

The four tiered anniversary cake was a special creation by Ron Fairbanks.

More than 150 friends and relatives from Charlevoix out of town and out of state attended.

Unforgettable, was the presence of all John and Helen's children, grandchildren, and great grandchildren. They are: Noreen and Paul Moore and daughter Jessica from Lark's Lake, Joyce and Jack Erber and sons Paul and Eric and daughter and son-in-law Karla and Jerry Pease and children Kathy and Chris of Charlevoix. Elaine and John Shumiway and son Michael and daughter Helen from Houston, Texas. Ronald and Yvonne Wojan and sons Ronald, Jr., John, David, Tim and Tim's wife Kathy of Fairfield, Calif.

John and Helen have been residents of Charlevoix since 1950. They were married in Cleveland, Ohio in 1929. Their golden anniversary was celebrated this summer and everyone is resting up for the 75th in the year 2004.

The Northern Michigan Health Systems Agency will hold public hearings in September on a draft Health Systems Plan for Alcona, Alpena, Antrim, Benzie, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Crawford, Emmet, Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Leelanau, Manistee, Missaukee, Montmorency, Oscoda, Otsego, Presque Isle and Wexford counties.

The plan indentifies several goals, target objectives and recommended actions for health care development in the area. A limited number of copies of the draft will be available after Sept. 13 at the agency's office at 325 Lake Street, Petoskey.

Residents are encouraged to attend one of the public hearings. The closest hearing for Charlevoix area residents is Sept. 17 at the Michigan Consolidated Gas building in Petoskey. The hearing is 7-9 p.m.

GEMWISE
JEWELRY FASHIONS FACTS FICTION

CULLINAN DIAMOND

The largest gem quality diamond ever found was discovered in the Premier Mine of South Africa in 1905. Measuring 2x2½x4 inches, it weighed 3106 carats! It was presented to King Edward VII on November 9, 1907, after being studied for months it was cleaved into 9 major stones, 96 smaller, and 9½ carats of unpolished pieces. Today the nine major stones are in the British Crown Jewels on the personal possession of the British Royal Family. The nine major stones and their weight follow: Cullinan I (Great Star of Africa) 530.2 ct. II -317.4 ct; III -94.4 ct; IV - 63.6 ct; V -18.8 ct; VI - 11.5 ct; VII -8.8 ct; VIII - 6.8 ct; IX -4.39.

Charlevoix area artists have been selected to exhibit their work at the 1979 Lafayette Park Art Fair in Detroit Sept. 8-9.

RUSS AND SUSAN BOLT, ceramics artists and printmakers; and LINDA BEERS AYDLOTT, jewelrymaker, will join more than 80 other artists in the fair.

The juried fair starts at 10 a.m. and concludes at 6 p.m. An art auction will be held at 3 p.m. Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday. Artists' work are offered for bid at this time and many fairgoers have found this a very economical way to add to their collections, organizers say.

ED MC NAMARA has been elected president of United Way of Charlevoix. Also elected to office were: PAT DONNELLY, vice president; JIM HAYDEN, secretary; and HELEN EMMONS, treasurer.

Safety BOB ALGER of Charlevoix will be one of four senior captains on this year's Ferris State football team.

Alger is entering his third year as a starter and this will also be his third year as a captain. He has set several Ferris records. He also owns a national record for returning an interception against Dayton 100 yards for a touchdown. Alger is just two interceptions shy of the Ferris career record now owned by former All-American Willie Bouyer.

"I can't say enough good things about Bob Alger," said Ferris assistant coach Bob Borkowski. "He's competitive, a super leader, and has heart."

Alger has 145 career solo tackles - tops among the active Bulldogs.

Four Charlevoix High School students attended a cross country running camp at Wolverine recently. Attending were: JIM DUKE, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Duke; JIM AND JEFF LANDON, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Landon; and JAY SWARTOUT, son of Mr. and Mrs. D.W. Swartout. All four boys are members of the school's cross country team.

The cost of driving for Michigan motorists has increased $404 in the last year, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

"It now costs state motorists 19.4 cents per mile to operate their cars, or 16 percent more than the 16.7 cents a mile in 1978," stated Auto Club Touring Manager JOSEPH RATKE.

Ratke cited higher gas prices as the major reason for the increase. Also contributing to the higher operating costs, he said, are increased prices for new, American-made cars, car insurance and finance charges.

MARK E. EMMONS, WILLIAM M. KANE, FRANK J. MUMA AND CANDACE P. OLSON received degrees recently from Ferris State College.

Emmons received a bachelor of science in criminal justice, Kane received a bachelor of science in pharmacy, Muma received a bachelor of science in advertising and Miss Olson received a bachelor of science in criminal justice. Miss Olson graduated with high distinction (3.5 to 3.74).

From East Jordan, BRIAN L. MC KINNON received a bachelor of science in business administration, BRUCE L. MC KINNON received a bachelor of science in accounting, and EILEEN MOSHER received a bachelor of science in accounting. Miss Mosher graduated with high distinction.

Recent guests at the home of MR. AND MRS. ROBERT HAMILTON were their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. James Gengle and daughter, Jennifer, of Trenton, and Vesta Ifill of Barbados, West Indies.

CHRISTOPHER 'KIP' CINNAMON, a 1978 Charlevoix High School graduate, has been named to the Dean's List at Williams College, Williamston, Mass.

He is the son of the late Sandra Cinnamon of Charlevoix and is the grandson of L. Perry Manning, who recently moved to Sacramento, Ca.

Navy Torpedoman's Mate Seaman Apprentice, BRUCE D. AVERY, son of Valois and Elaine Avery of Charlevoix, has reported for duty aboard the submarine USS Puffer, homeported at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii.

A 1978 graduate of Charlevoix High School, he joined the Navy in 1978.

KENNETH S. BOSS, SANDRA TERESA HODGE AND GREGORY J. WOJAN of Charlevoix have been named to the Dean's List at Ferris State College.

Students must achieve at least a 3.25 grade point average on a 4.0 scale at carry a full academic load to qualify.

EILEEN KAY MOSHER, FRANK T. WINTER AND WILLIAM J. WINTER of East Jordan also qualified.

A reluctant messiah

Your only obligation in any lifetime is to be true to yourself. Being true to anyone else or anything else is not only impossible, but the mark of a fake messiah.

Messiah's Handbook
Reminders for the Advanced Soul.

Imagine for a moment that you are a transient antique biplane enthusiast. For a living, at least temporarily following your free spirit, you skip around small mid-western towns looking for nearby pastures and cornfields where you can set up operations and sell rides for $3 a head. Each night you roll out your sleeping bag under the small expanse of wing and larger expanse of the heavens. You are at peace, you are alone and you are doing what is meaningful to you.

Suddenly, without any premonition, you are magnetized into joining a fellow pilot, himself alone on a solitary cornfield. Remarkably enough he shares not only your love of flying but is on your exact wave length emotionally, intellectually and spiritually. He has a strange aura about him, he seems so sure of himself. He teaches you, in the course of your friendship, how to become aware of your own possibilities of being a son of God, a Master.

He is a reluctant messiah you discover; a messiah because he has chosen to give up clinging to the bottom of the stream, having surrendered to the current wherein one attains freedom at the cost of security; reluctant because he has become frustrated trying to explain his motivations to the adoring masses. He has "quit" because he has found that in general, people want to be true to him, depend on him instead of on themselves. Donald Shimoda, reluctant messiah. Christ figure of the '70's. We too, have a lot to learn from him.

The world is your exercise book, the pages on which you do your sums. It is not reality, although you can express reality there if you wish. You are also free to write nonsense, or lies, or to tear the pages.

What we learn from Donald Shimoda, through the perceptions of Richard Bach (of Jonathon Livingston Seagull fame), is that life is a series of illusions, like a movie. In this movie we are free to be the writer, the director and the star. We theoretically can be anyone and any way we wish. We can do anything at all to make this life-film what we want it to be.

Illusions is probably my favorite kind of book, having been weaned on The Prophet (Kahil Gibran) and Little Prince (Antoine de Sainte-Exupery). It is the kind of book that can be enjoyed strictly on a story level or that can be picked up at random and learned from. Like the difference between hearing and listening, seeing and understanding, life is full of subt lies. Illusions is a haunting experience with an author who urges us to become enlightened, to look at life in new ways, to become masters of ourselves.

Anne Kelly is a columnist for the Charlevoix Courier.

Is Potter preparing for '80 marathon?

Joe Potter likes a challenge.

He also likes to jog.

So, perhaps, it was only natural that Potter test his endurance by jogging around Lake Charlevoix, which he did Tuesday.

The 48 year-old teacher from Lansing completed the 40 mile plus run in 10 hours.

"It was a real interesting experience," Potter said afterwards. "It was a grind, especially the last 20 miles when my leg muscles started to tighten."

Jogging "as close to the shoreline as possible," Potter left Charlevoix and jogged to Ironton, where he paused for a refreshment, and then departed for East Jordan.

"I was tempted to bypass the South Arm," Potter said. "The ferry was ready to cross."

But the ferry crossed without Potter. Instead, he took off to East Jordan.

Potter made it to East Jordan without much difficulty, but the trip from East Jordan to Boyne City proved troublesome.

"It was pretty hilly," he said. "And not only did I get cramps in my legs, but I was dehydrated and hot, too."

The cramps didn't go away, but Potter cooled himself off by taking a swim, and once he reached Boyne City he was treated to dinner by a woman who took interest in his mission.

"That was one of the joys of the trip, meeting so many different people," Potter said later.

"I met several joggers along the way. It's amazing how many people are running now. One guy I jogged with had to be about 70 years-old."

The stiffness in the "joints" lasted for a couple days, but by Friday Potter was back jogging.

Actually, Potter is accustomed to long distance running. He partiepated in the Boston Marathon in 1969 and 1976 - finishing the grueling 26 mile run both times.

"I started running in 1967," he said. "I trained 422 days in a row - without missing a day - for that first marathon.

But the second marathon might have been the toughest.

"It was 97 degrees that day. It was a record temperature for the marathon. The heat really took a toll on us. I had tears in my eyes when I finished."

Potter is a physical edueation teacher at Otto Junior High. He has taught in the Lansing School System for 27 years. In three more years he plans to retire in Charlevoix. The Potters just recently purchased a home at Pine Point.

"My wife and I just love it here," Potter said. "We've been looking up here for two or three years now.

"This was our No. I choice (Charlevoix)."

Potter coaches golf and tennis at Otto. Previously, he coached football (12 years) and swimming (20 years).

Will restraining order stop gill netting in Grand Traverse Bay?

The Grand Traverse Area Sport Fishing Association - through attorney Ted Swift - has obtained a temporary restraining order banning all gill net fishing in Grand Traverse Bay.

The order covers all waters south of a line from Grand Traverse light to Norwood.

The class action suit was filed "because of the rapid depletion of the lake trout in Grand Traverse Bay due to extremely intensive gill netting."

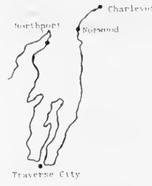
Judge Charles M. Forster of the Grand Traverse County Circuit Court issued the restraining order Monday (Aug.27) afternoon. However, DNR officials have reported that some Indian gill netters are continuing to fish in the bay since the court order.

Swift has asked local authorities to photocopy the order and serve it to as many gill netters as possible on the beach. Swift also asked that names be taken of all gill netters served with the order. A DNR official told the Traverse City Record-Eagle last week that only two notices of the order had been served.

But there is some question as to how much weight Forster's order has.

Attorney General Frank Kelley has advised DNR officials not to take any action against the gill netters - despite Forster's order. Kelley said the state cannot take action against gill netters because of a federal ruling prohibiting the state from regulating Indian fishing.

A show cause hearing is scheduled Friday at 9 a.m. to determine if the order should become a temporary injunction.



The association said the suit was filed "as an emergency action as reports from top DNR fishing experts indicated that what remains of the bay fishery would be totally destroyed in a matter of days or weeks if the gill netting were to continue."

The association criticized the governor and the attorney general for not "moving to stop this rape of the bay by gill netters."

The association's complaint contained affidavits from DNR Fisheries Chief John Scott and Great Lakes Fisheries Supervisor Myrl Keller.

Scott said the gill netters would destroy the lake trout population in the bay within six weeks. Keller added that more than 25 percent of all spawning stock in the bay has already been destroyed by gill netters.

The DNR, meanwhile, is proposing two solutions to the problem:

• Gov. Milliken ask the interior secretary to regulate the fishing, under an existing federal law that allows him to act in treaty waters in the interest of conservation.

• The state and the tribes negotiate a settlement, whereby the tribes accept regulation of their catch in return for "guaranteed slice" of the commercial fishery and financial aid in converting to trap nets. Trap nets are considered twice as efficient as gill nets, and they would permit sport fish to be kept alive and thrown back into the waters.

DNR Director Dr. Howard Tanner was quoted in the Detroit Free Press as favoring this plan.

"It might cost as much as $5 million to outfit Indian crews with boats and nets, but we're talking about spending that amount to basically save a sport fishery state economic experts tell us is worth $350 million. It seems a small price."

Quota for blood drive 125 pints

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will visit Charlevoix Wednesday, Sept. 12. The unit will be at the American Legion post home at 106 E. Garfield Avenue from 2 p.m. until 8 p.m.

The quota for this visit has been set at 125 pints.

Since Charlevoix missed its quota the last time around, officials are hoping that this drive will surpass 125 pints. And because of the Labor Day holiday, when there is a great demand for blood, it is anticipated there will be a real need to replenish the supply.

Former donors are being contacted by telephone. Appointments can be made by calling 547-9314.

Mrs. Vernon Mathews, Jr., will organize the volunteers and Mrs. Francis Left will recruit nurses.

The Kappa Sigma and Xi Epsilon Gamma chapters of the Beta Sigma Phi sorority will organize and staff the canteen. Men from the U.S.C.G.C. Sundew will be asked to unload and reload the Bloodmobile.

Others assisting in the organization of the blood drive are: Mrs. Clifford Biddick, Sr., Mrs. David Fowler, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Izor, Mrs. Robert Tollas and Mrs. Alan Towsley.

Anyone 17 to 65 years of age is eligible to give blood. Seventeen year-olds must have written permission. Permission slips will be available at the high school. Each donation requires a new permission form.

Doctors, nurses gather here for seminar on heart disorders

Eighty doctors and nurses from around Michigan gathered last Saturday Aug. 25, in Charlevoix, for a one-day seminar on the diagnosis and treatment of heart disorders.

The conference, sponsored by the Michigan Heart Association, and supported by the Charlevoix Area Hospital, was held at the First State Bank of Charlevoix.

Physicians prominent for their work in the field of cardiac disorders presented papers and led workshops on subjects concerning the latest treatments and medicines available for the care of patients suffering coronary artery disease.

Dr. James Gels, chief of staff of Charlevoix Area Hospital moderated the session.

Among the physicians who spoke were Dr. Sol Pickard, cardiologist chief of Non-Invasive Laboratory at Henry Ford Hospital and a member of the Board of Governors of the American College of Cardiology; Dr. Park Willis, director of the Division of Cardiology at Michigan State University; Dr Seymour Gordon, director of the Division of Cardiovascular Disease at William Beaumont Hospital; Dr. Felix Rogers, a cardiologist from Trenton, Michigan; and Reed Humphrey, coordinator of Exercise Therapy Programs of the Cardiac Rehabilitation Center at Wm. Beaumont Hospital.

Physicians who attended the conference received 5 credits toward meeting their continuing medical education requirements.

In a three year period a doctor in Michigan must obtain 150 such credits to maintain his license.

In addition to assisting with the program, Charlevoix Area Hospital provided the tuition for its Coronary Care Unit Nurses to attend the conference.

Housing site gets tentative OK

The Charlevoix Housing Commission has received tentative approval from HUD officials on the proposed site for senior citizen and handicap housing. The site is located south of Garfield Avenue between State and Grant streets. The housing project will be constructed with funds from a HUD grant.

The commission met recently to begin the initial stage of planning for the structure. It is hoped that groundbreaking can be held in the spring.

David Tulos, representing Daverman Associates, architects for the project, and George Ross of Mack-Ross Associates, consultants, were present at the meeting.

A local firm, Charlevoix Abstract & Engineering Co., was selected to do the surveying. Five certified surveyors bid on the project.

The commission meets at its new office in City Hall at 4 p.m. on the first and third Wednesdays of the month. Anyone with questions regarding the project may contact the commission at that tune.

Olson advises 'no contest' plea

Jim Olson, attorney for the Big Rock 14, has advised his clients to enter a "no contest" plea on charges of trespassing at the Big Rock Point nuclear plant.

Olson said he will also advise his clients to appeal the case to an appelate court on the basis that the trespassing is justified because the "danger of the nuclear plant is of greater harm."

The 14 anti-nuclear protestors were arrested Dec. 2 for trespassing at the Consumers Power plant. Olson argued the "competing harms" defense before District Court Judge David Fershee. But Fershee ruled that District Court was not the proper place to debate the issue of nuclear power, limiting the case to the trespass charge.

Olson said he would like to have the case go before a local jury.

In another development, state police said the mock disasters at Michigan's three operating nuclear plants last week was a "success."

However, after the mock disaster at Big Rock, Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater told the Detroit News he was concerned about the lack of communication equipment available for receiving and spreading information about radiation danger.

"The one area we're deficient in is radio equipment and telephones. I'm attempting to acquire that equipment, as well as cots, food and water supplies in case we have to house people who are evacuated."

The purpose of the mock accident was to test the effectiveness of communication networks, evacuation plans, temporary shelters and decontamination equipment.

Is Potter preparing for '80 marathon?

Joe Potter likes a challenge.

He also likes to jog.

So, perhaps, it was only natural that Potter test his endurance by jogging around Lake Charlevoix, which be did Tuesday.

The 48 year-old teacher from Lansing completed the 40 mile plus run in 10 hours.

"It was a real interesting experience," Potter said afterwards. "It was a grind, especially the last 20 miles when my leg muscles started to tighten."

Jogging "as close to the shoreline as possible," Potter left Charlevoix and jogged to Ironton, where he paused for a refreshment, and then departed for East Jordan.

"I was tempted to bypass the South Arm," Potter said. "The ferry was ready to cross."

But the ferry crossed without Potter. Instead, he took off to East Jordan.

Potter made it to East Jordan without much difficulty, but the trip from East Jordan to Boyne City proved troublesome.

"It was pretty hilly," he said. "And not only did I get cramps in my legs, but I was dehydrated and hot, too."

The cramps didn't go away, but Potter cooled himself off by taking a swim, and once he reached Boyne City he was treated to dinner by a woman who took interest in his mission.

"That was one of the joys of the trip, meeting so many different people," Potter said later.

"I met several joggers along the way. It's amazing how many people are running now. One guy I jogged with had to be about 70 years-old."

The stiffness in the "joints" lasted for a couple days, but by Friday Potter was back jogging.

Actually, Potter is accustomed to long distance running. He particpated in the Boston Marathon in 1969 and 1976 - finishing the grueling 26 mile run both times.

"I started running in 1967," he said. "I trained 422 days in a row - without missing a day - for that first marathon.

But the second marathon might have been the toughest.

"It was 97 degrees that day. It was a record temperature for the marathon. The heat really took a toll on us. I had tears in my eyes when I finished."

Potter is a physical education teacher at Otto Junior High. He has taught in the Lansing School System for 27 years. In three more years he plans to retire in Charlevoix. The Potters just recentiy purchased a home at Pine Point.

"My wife and I just love it here," Potter said. "We've been looking up here for two or three years now.

"This was our No. I choice (Charlevoix)."

Potter coaches golf and tennis at Otto. Previously, he coached football (12 years) and swimming (20 years).

Consumers supports study

A Consumers Power official said the company "fully supports" the conclusions of a recently released Michigan Department of Public Health study which determined that no environmental or public health hazard has been indicated from routine operations of nuclear power plants in Michigan.

The findings of the Public Health study, released last month, were based upon the department's independent ongoing radiation monitoring programs in the vicinity of each nuclear power plant in Michigan.

Roger Sinderman, the utility's corporate health physicist, said, "Consumers Power conducts similar environmental and health monitoring programs at its Palisades plant near South Haven and Big Rock Point plant near Charlevoix and is presently setting up a similar program for the Midland plant."

The monitoring programs conducted by the utility measure radiation contained in

- air samples from around its nuclear plants,
- nearby lake water, ground water and municipal water systems,
- aquatic biota;
- crops, livestock and dairy products;
- and, naturally-occurring sources of background radiation.

"All of our tests, conducted over a number of years, have concluded that no public health or environmental hazard exists from our plants," Sinderman said. "In fact, the comparison of current radiation levels with background levels before Palisades and Big Rock went into operation shows very little change."

At the Palisades plant, air is sampled at 12 different locations: one on-site, eight within 10 miles of the plant, and, three between 15 and 50 miles from the facility. In addition, water is sampled from intake and discharge channels on Lake Michigan, from ground wells around the facility and from the South Haven municipal water system.

At Big Rock Point, air sampling stations are located at seven different locations: one on-site; three within 10 miles of the plant; and three between 15 and 50 miles from the facility. Water is also sampled at the plant's intake and discharge channels on Lake Michigan, from ground wells around the facility and from the City of Charlevoix municipal water system.

Radiation levels in fish and underwater plant life in the areas around the two plants are also measured.

In addition, farmers in the areas around both plants are contacted for samples of dairy products, crops and livestock.

"This sampling is conducted on a weekly, monthly, quarterly and yearly basis by an independent contractor who analyzes the samples and the results are then reported to the US Nuclear Regulatory Commission," Sinderman concluded.

Commission on Aging benefits elderly

Editor's note: Recently, reporter Peg Ohle brought you up to date on the history of the Charlevoix County Planning Commission. This week she looks in depth at the history behind the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging.

Peg Ohle

The Charlevoix County Commission on Aging is just five years old, but it has grown to an adult-size organization offering services of many types to senior citizens of the area.

The County Commission on Aging was established in response to a state law based on the federal Older Americans Act. Members are appointed by the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners, to which they report their actions.

The first meeting of the commission was held on June 11, 1974. Officers elected were Ruth Behrens, Boyne City, chairperson; Vern Whiteford, East Jordan, vice-chairperson; Margarete Sorenson, Boyne City, secretary; and Mary Geiken, Charlevoix, treasurer.

Other members present at that meeting were Thora Kotowich, East Jordan; Florence Wojan, Charlevoix; Erma Grabowski, Boyne Falls; Yvonne Metzger, Boyne Falls; and Mildred Bathke, East Jordan. Also, Harry Tompkins and Bob Davis representing the board of commissioners and Ron Crummel of the Northwest Area Agency on Aging.

As part of their business discussion, commission members decided to ask the board of commissioners for a per diem fee of $10 and 12 cents a mile for attending meetings, and a petty cash fund of $100.

Then, at the next meeting, on July 11, the Commission on Aging agreed to ask the state for $1,000 to $1,500 for preliminary funding for planning. Later they learned that the county board of commissioners had voted them $1,000 for the balance of the year.

In August, Ron Crummel advised the group that Charlevoix County had been okayed for funding the nutritional meals program. It was estimated there would be enough money to furnish 50 meals a week at a cost of $1.25 a meal. The Commission on Aging decided to formally apply for the funds.

Thus began the history of service rendered by the Commission on Aging to Charlevoix County senior citizens.

As a fun-type endeavor that first summer, the commission decided to sponsor a senior citizens picnic September 15 at Whiting Park, with local service clubs and business organizations helping to defray expenses. The theme of the picnic was "Free, Fun, Food, and Fellowship". Apparently it was a great success.

In September, it was announced that the amount of money available for the nutritional meals program in Charlevoix, Antrim, and Emmett counties was $12,000. By December, the figure had risen to $9,000 for Charlevoix County alone, and plans were made to serve the meals in three locations throughout the county.

About this time, it was announced that Arthur Saworski, who had been serving as a member of the Commission on Aging, had resigned to become Director on Aging for Charlevoix County, a position he still holds.

The nutritional meals program continued to grow. On January 7, 1975, Saworski reported that 463 nutritional meals had been served since the program started. Contributions by those partaking of the meals averaged 39.5 cents a meal.

Also in January, it was announced that contracts for the senior citizens transportation program were ready to be signed, and that the Commission on Aging would participate in a blood pressure screening program in cooperation with the Health Department.

A month later, CETA funds became available with which to hire two bus drivers and a maintenance man. The commission voted to lease two buses. One started operating March 4 and the other a few weeks later.

The number of nutritional meals continued to rise, 542 being served in February.

The March meeting brought the first mention of plans for a Senior Citizens Center in East Jordan, and Gerald Chase of the Health Department reported that 250 persons had been checked at the blood pressure clinics and 30 referred to their physicians.

The bus drivers reported to the commission that the buses should be equipped with handles near the doors and padding above the doors to prevent riders from knocking their heads. Apparently this was done. It was also noted that the buses should be equipped with radios for dispatch purposes.

In July, 1975, the grant for the Senior Citizens Center was approved and a budget of $11,104 set up. Plans were also begun for the second senior citizens picnic.

By December, 1975, Dorothy Pelton had been hired as director of the Senior Citizens Center.

The year 1976 brought with it an increase in bus rates to 30 cents a round trip within the cities, 60 cents a round trip city to city, and $1.25 a round trip from Charlevoix County cities to Petoskey.

From July through December, 1975, 4,300 nutritional meals were served. In March, 1976, the Commission on Aging voted to spend up to $150 for equipment with which to deliver meals to those unable to get to the meal sites.

The Senior Citizens Center was in full swing by April, 1976, with Mrs. Pelton reporting 428 "drop-ins" during March and 400 phone calls relating to transportation and meals.

The influenza scare was noted in May with the announcement that the Health Department would have Swine and Victoria flu vaccines available for high risk groups such as senior citizens.

That summer, plans were again made for a Senior Citizens picnic, but this one to be a potluck, with the Commission on Aging furnishing chicken, coffee, and a cold beverage. Setting up a Senior Citizens Center in Boyne City was also discussed.

Flu shots were given to 181 senior citizens on November 17.

Early in 1977, it was decided that the Commission on Aging would meet quarterly, in March, June, September, and December, but the executive committee would continue meeting monthly. The Commission leased a new bus on March.

June of 1977 was a big month with the institution of a Health Screening program in cooperation with the Health Department and a Chore Services Program for senior citizens who need help with odd jobs.

The Commission on Aging decided to hold bi-monthly meetings, and there was talk of establishing an office in the County Building. A report on the first Health Screening program showed that 22 senior citizens were processed and two of them referred to their physicians.

August of 1977 brought the announcement that the annual picnic would not be held.

By the end of 1977, the Senior Citizens Center was a busy place which attracted the attention of people other than senior citizens. The former Dahlquist store (now Snizbee's) donated a large stock of artificial flowers for use in the center's craft work.

The first meeting of the commission in 1978 was held in its new offices in the county building annex. At that time, the commission accepted the bid of the Blanchard Construction Company in the amount of $55,994 to remodel the Senior Citizens Center building.

At the June meeting, August 9 was set for the date of the Senior Citizens Center open house. A cook was hired and meals announced for five days a week at the center.

The first announcement that funding for the bus transportation program would end September 30, 1979 was made last fall. The Commission on Aging asked the board of commissioners to consider applying for a Dial-a-Ride system.

The first issue of the Commission on Aging's newsletter, "The Beacon", was published in October, 1978, and received much favorable comment.

At the December, 1978 meeting, there was discussion about the petition requesting that the two cents a gallon gasoline tax increase be nullified. It was pointed out that much of the money for their transportation program comes from gasoline taxes.

The Boyne City Senior Citizens Center came into focus in February, 1979, with the announcement that it would be ready for occupancy within a few weeks. Nancy Oakes was hired to direct the new center.

Today, both the East Jordan and Boyne City Senior Citizens Centers are busy five days a week with various kinds of classes, speakers on many subjects, entertainment activities, and sports events.

The commission's nutrional meals program continues in four locations throughout the county: Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday in Charlevoix; Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday in Boyne City; Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday in East Jordan, and Monday in Boyne Falls.

Although present funding for the transportation program will end September 30, other sources will furnish enough money to carry on for the next few months, when it is expected a state-funded Dial-a-Ride system will be available.

The health screening programs, chore services, and other lesser programs are still available to those in need of them. Information about all programs may be obtained by calling the Commission on Aging office at 547-6282.

Present officers of the commission are the Reverend Raymond Giffin, Charlevoix, chairperson; Thora Kotowich, East Jordan, vice-chairperson; and Florence Stocker, East Jordan, secretary. Other members are Vern Whiteford, East

I used to be nice

I used to be a nice person.

Ask anyone. I was giving, loving and sharing.

Then the children came along and I realized a woman who was giving, loving, and sharing could end up with a drawer full of dirty pantyhose, a broken stereo and a wet toothbrush every morning.

Also, a camera with sand in it, a blouse that died from acute perspiration, a library book with a bent back, a sleeping bag with a broken zipper, a tennis racket with a cracked frame, and a transistor that "just went dead when it hit the pavement."

For awhile, I had a closet that enjoyed more traffic than a discount house on Mother's Day. One day, I wandered in to see three kids picking and choosing. "May I help you?" I asked stiffly.

"No, I'm just browsing," said my son. "Where's the luggage?"

"We've moved it to the annex," I snapped. "Will you get out of here?"

"Mom!" said my daughter, "you've got to learn to share."

"Share! You saw what happened to my car when I shared."

"What did I do to your car?" asked my son.

"I'll tell you what you did to it. You left the radio up so loud that when I got in and turned on the motor, the noise struck me sterile. I still have swelling in my teeth. Not only that, the car smells like a gym before showers."

"You told me to bring my gym clothes home."

"I didn't tell you to keep the car windows rolled up when you did."

"Mom," asked my daughter, "can I borrow this sweater? You can borrow any of mine you like."

"Then why don't you wear your own?" I asked.

"They're all dirty."

"Why would I borrow a dirty sweater?"

"You never go anyplace to wear a clean one."

"Hold it," I said to my son. "What did you do with the binoculars you borrowed for the game last week?"

"They're in my room."

"Why don't you put them back where you got them?"

"Why?" he shrugged. "Why would you want to hang on to a pair of broken binoculars?"

"They weren't broken when you borrowed them."

"You buy cheap, Mom, and you pay for it in the long run."

As I slumped down in the closet, I heard my daughter say, "Mom's so selfish. It's hard to believe she wasn't an only child!"

Informational meeting was a failure

Editor:

Recently, I attended a town meeting held at the Charlevoix City Hall and conducted by council woman Roloff. The meeting was held to discuss the pro's and con's of Consumers Power Co. request to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission in installing added storage capability in the existing fuel storage pool at the Big Rock Point Plant.

I attended the meeting to derive information on the request by Consumers Power Co. to the NRC, both pro and con. Unfortunately, the majority of the meeting time was used as a sounding board for the protest groups, very few who were from Charlevoix City or the surrounding townships. The city residents were not called on to voice their opinions or views. As a result the meeting was entirely negative in its approach. As an informational meeting on the proposed change at the Big Rock Point Plant it was essentially a failure.

The Consumers Power Co. representatives should be congratulated for maintaining their composure during a completely antagonistic meeting. The meeting was poorly conducted and counter productive in achieving its intended goal of producing information on the proposed change at BRPP.

One of the local news media reporters wrote a lengthy article on the meeting. He attended at the most the last forty-five minutes of the meeting. His objective reporting was limited to this time only. His reporting would have been more credible had he attended the entire meeting. One point he did make which is worthy of consideration, however, the utility should have an information center restablished so that the public can be informed of the activities at the local nuclear facility.

If the Charlevoix City Council is called upon to offer their opinion, as representatives of the City of Charlevoix residents, concerning license changes at the Big Rock Point Plant, they should be obligated to canvass the City residents for their opinions. In this way, they can truly represent each of the tax payers of the community. Presently, the City council can only make judgements based on comments from individuals primarily from outside of our community. I personally feel, the residents of the City of Charlevoix are independent and self reliant enough to make their own decisions without the outside influence of individuals who have an "axe to grind".

Why no coverage?

Editor:

After reading in the Courier that there was a public hearing concerning the Big Rock Point nuclear facility's application to the NRC to increase their on-site waste storage, I waited for the next edition of the Courier to find out what had happened.

There was a letter to the editor, but no factual news report about what went on at that meeting! Shouldn't a responsible newspaper follow-up and report to its readers what happened at that meeting?

Sincerely,
A concerned homeowner

The end of summer

Thank goodness for Labor Day.

If it weren't for that marvelous, end-of-the-season holiday we might slip right from one season to the next without realizing it.

As it is, Labor Day stands like a six-story Japanese gate between the pleasant courtyards of summer and the grim, workaday world where cars won't start at 20-below and snowbanks stand high enough to hide the house across the street.

When I was a little tad, Labor Day always meant a family picnic with my grandmother's cousins — Patty, Annie and Essie — at Puce, Ont., on the shores of Lake St. Clair.

It was a day all of the kids in the family looked forward to, because it meant one last swim before my mother packed away our woolen bathing suits in Mason jars and put them in the fruit cellar — right along with the canned cherries and jars of stewed peaches. It was her theory that the Mason jars kept the suits free of moths and she was probably right. She usually was.

The Labor Day picnic also meant a taste of Cousin Essie's Tomato Soup Cake — a marvelous delicacy that didn't taste one bit like tomato soup.

It also meant pilfering tomatoes from Cousin Patty's vegetable garden. They always tasted better warmed by the sun on their pungent vines than they did chilled in the refrigerator.

It also meant sneaking back to the railroad tracks that ran along an embankment at the foot of the garden and pressing our ears on the rails to listen for trains. You could hear them coming from as far away as Belle River or Tecumseh — if you were lucky. When the train arrived, we'd run down the embankment and wave to the engineer from the garden.

He always waved back and I've wondered since how many kids he waved to in the course of a day. His arm must have been tired.

It also meant traipsing through the woods and swales with Cousin Annie in search of exotic leaves which we could add to our leaf collections when school started. The first days of school always were devoted to leaf collections and it gave you a nice feeling to have a head start with "foreign" leaves from Canada.

The trip home to Detroit was sort of sad because it meant that summer was over and it would be a full 364 days before we had another sample of Cousin Essie's Tomato Soup Cake.

Our neighbor, Bert Lehman of Lewis Street, is still scratching his head over a refund check from Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. which he received in the mail last week. The check was mailed in Detroit and, traveled all the way to Lemon Grove, Calif. — where Bert spent some time last winter — and back home to Charlevoix.

The check was accompanied by a very important announcement which read as follows:

"Your gas refund check, resulting from a refund ordered by Honorable Thomas L. Brown, Ingham County Circuit Judge, is enclosed.

"The gas refund check represents your share of a refund in respect to surcharges on gas service billed to you beginning with any usage on or after November 1, 1978, and ending with any bill with ending usage on or before February 14, 1979, plus interest at 10.6 per annum compounded semi-annually, together with sales and excise tax where applicable."

All well and good. What puzzles Bert is the size of his refund: 1 cent.

Investors who buy dividends get what they pay for

Harold Smith

People buy common stocks for all kinds of different reasons, some frivolous and fanciful, others down-to-earth and dead serious. But dominant on the minds of most investors is the prospect of a juicy dividend, that periodic common stock stipend that often surpasses rates of return available from other investment categories.

Since dividends are such high priority items, investors should make sure they know as much about them as possible.

There are some special calendar dates that investors should know inside-out – unless they want to be unpleasantly surprised, that is. So, let's quickly review all the pertinent dividend dates and see what they mean to the investor.

First comes the declaration date. That's when the corporate board of directors meet to evaluate corporate progress and prospects, and if everything is going well, declares the next dividend. The board then formally notifies the Stock Exchange what the cut-off date for the dividend is. This is called the "stock-of-record" date. The Stock Exchange sets the "exchange", or "ex", date. It precedes the stock-of-record date by five business days. Anyone who wants to get that next dividend must own the stock a business day before the "ex" date or then buy it without the dividend.

Lots of companies pay "special" or "extra" cash dividends, in addition to their regular payout. They prefer such a policy to increasing the regular rate because their business may be seasonal or cyclical and subject to sharp fluctuation. By such a process they can hold the regular rate steady, a practice that makes income investors happy. Special and extra dividends tend to occur most often around the end of the year.

Investors should also note that many companies pay stock dividends, instead of cash. This has advantages and disadvantages. First off, it enables the company to conserve its cash for growth, expansion, whatever. To the shareholder the stock dividend is not taxable until it is sold and then at the long or short-term capital gains rates.

Stock dividends are usually in the one to ten percent variety, occasionally higher. If the stock dividend is the 100 percent variety (also called a two-for-one split) its price usually goes down one-half on "ex" date since there are twice as many shares around representing the same corporate pie. Not pure gravy, as some investors tend to believe.

Successful investors, especially the income-oriented variety, harvest the dividend stream best by looking for high rates of return, payout rates that are either steady or increasing, and earnings that cover the dividends by a generous margin.

They also pay close attention to the dates that surround dividend declaration and payment to make sure they get exactly what they pay for.

Should airline pilots be required to retire at 60?

Nick Thimmesch

WASHINGTON – If skies are dark, lightning bolts shoot and thunder crashes, I look into the cockpit of the passenger plane I'm boarding, hoping that the captain has creases around his eyes and gray at the sides. I want to see experience, not some wide-eyed, hopeful youth.

Once, after a wild, even hairy, ride through storms over Florida, I alighted safe and sound in Miami, relieved and grateful to whoever piloted us through that atmospheric terror. A little later, I saw the captain come down the stairs. My, oh my, he looked like Santa Claus with his shock of all-white hair and ample belly. A closer look revealed a man in his late 50's, who had a jolly laugh to go with his appearance.

I admit there might be certain romantic notions about wizened old pilots at work here, but I think most passengers appreciate the assurance of a pilot who has made thousands of takeoffs and landings and who probably began his career in World War II or the Korean War.

Well, hundreds of those pilots approach, are at or have recently passed the mandatory retirement age of 60. Many of them now argue that there should be no age limit for pilots, that medical examination should be the sole criterion for their fitness to fly. Keeping with the times, they have formed a "pilot's rights" committee and have lobbied Congress for an end to the Federal Aviation Administration rule that requires all pilots for commercial airlines to retire at 60.

These senior pilots – some of whom are already retired – claim that the FAA rule on age 60 retirement, written in 1969, is outdated by current medical knowledge. They maintain that a pilot, healthy and aware, can do a first-rate job at 60, 65 or even 70.

It is obvious that when many of them make upwards of $100,000 a year for flying overseas routes, and between $60,000 and $75,000 for domestic runs, they want to keep earning that kind of money as long as they feel able.

They succeeded in persuading the aviation subcommittee of the Public Works Committee to agree, just before the congressional recess, to a compromise age, 61½. This bit of foolishness was enacted in the haste and the humidity of Washington, and will be tended to by the full committee when it returns after Labor Day. Sixty-one and a half?

Now the Air Transport Assn. and the FAA object to any change in the mandatory retirement age rule. This industry association and the FAA stat that there are significant differences of opinion in the medical field as to whether the effects of aging can be reliably detected by medical examinations.

The airlines, who obviously would like to have fewer $100,000 pilots on the payroll, take the view that until more conclusive evidence is available, they must stick to the 60 rule as a safety obligation to their customers, the passengers.

When the FAA adopted the 60 rule in 1969, it was after a study had been done on the aging processes and the ability of medical science to predict the consequences of aging. The FAA recongized that: (1) the probability of incapacitation increases with age, and (2) medical science could not predict the likelihood of incapacitation with enough accuracy to allow pilots to fly past age 60.

The FAA then raised the issue of whether medical science can develop tests which would safely allow pilots to fly commercially after age 60 – the same issue being raised now, 20 years later.

It could be that hundreds of the 37,000 airline pilots working now, who are 55, 50 or even younger, wouldn't rate as high in exacting medical tests as some of the oldsters. Should these younger pilots be required to retire?

Apparently some of the 55-year-olds now flying have some apprehension about a straight medical fitness rule, rather than the age 60 rule, because "pilot's rights" group hasn't enlisted many of them to their proud, gray colors.

No question that a person over 60 is more susceptible to a heart attack than a younger person. It's not good for passengers or a pilot for him to have a heart attack on take off, landing or anywhere up there.

There is also the more subtle deterioration of the older body which can affect a pilot's judgement, reasoning and ability to solve sudden problems, say, in an emergency. Again, some pilots at 50 might score less on this kind of test than a man 10 or even 15 years older.

What is needed is a new, thorough study of the aging pilot population, with respect to the true extent of aging and how it affects ability to pilot in all situations, including emergencies.

There have been times, after a foul weather situation, that I have applauded the pilot when the plane sets down in a safe landing. Other passengers have also spontaneously applauded. Usually when that captain comes out of the cockpit, he has gray hair, crinkled skin around the eyes and the look of assurance.

Meet Charlevoix

Mike Filkins is the new Director of Bands in the Charlevoix Middle and High Schools, replacing Gary Stutzman who resigned last year. This week the Courier talks with Filkins about his musical background, education, and teaching plans.

By Peg Ohle

COURIER: Where was your home?

FILKINS: Falls Church, Virginia. I graduated from the University of Michigan this year.

COURIER: How did you get from Virginia to the University of Michigan?

FILKINS: I've heard about it all my life. I'm a third generation graduate.

COURIER: Did you play in the Marching Band at Michigan?

FILKINS: Yes, and in the Symphony Band, Chamber Winds Ensemble, Contemporary Directions Ensemble, Hockey Band, and Jazz Band.

COURIER: What instruments do you play?

FILKINS: Clarinet, sax, and flute. Clarinet is my favorite.

COURIER: When did you start taking music lessons?

FILKINS: I started with piano when I was nine, then went to the clarinet. When I started taking private lessons about 8, I really began practicing. I played in bands all through school.

COURIER: Do you come from a musical family?

FILKINS: No, everyone in my family is in engineering or a science-related field.

COURIER: What are your duties as Band Director?

FILKINS: In the middle school I'll direct the seventh and eighth grade bands and assist with teaching beginners in the sixth grade. In high school I'll direct the Marching Band, Symphony Band, and Concert Band. I'll spend about half of my time in each school.

COURIER: Will you also do the choreography for the Marching Band?

FILKINS: Yes. Although there are standard formations, you have to put something of your own into it to be distinctive.

COURIER: Did you take some education courses in college as well as music courses?

FILKINS: Yes, several of them, such as those in teaching techniques.

COURIER: Did you ever want to be a performing musician rather than a teacher of music?

FILKINS: No, ever since I was a freshman in High School I've wanted to be a teacher, and I've stuck to that goal. But I did play professionally when I was in high school.

COURIER: Do you plan any changes in the band programs?

FILKINS: Only to the extent that I'm used to doing some things differently. I don't plan to change a lot because the programs have worked well in the past.

COURIER: What are the advantages to a student belonging to a band?

FILKINS: Belonging to a group that performs creates a sense of cooperation, and there is also the benefit of studying music.

COURIER: Did you interview for other band director jobs?

FILKINS: Yes. The other jobs were good jobs but mostly in big cities. I knew about the Charlevoix program and decided it was the best I'd seen. The attitude of parents and students is so supportive.

COURIER: When will the high school band first perform this year?

FILKINS: At the first home game, on September 14 against Benzie Central. We'll play at all the home games but none of the away games.

COURIER: How long does it take to get ready for the first performance?

FILKINS: We'll have 10 rehearsals. The first one was last night (Tuesday). We lost 35 seniors last year but we have a good group of kids coming up.

COURIER: How many are there in the band?

FILKINS: One hundred and four, more girls than boys.

COURIER: Who is the new drum major?

FILKINS: Dave Staubin. He's a sophomore.

COURIER: What are your hobbies?

FILKINS: Camping and photography. Charlevoix is a good place for both.

Sixteen Charlevoix area youngsters received Hero Sandwich Awards in the summer reading program at the Charlevoix Public Library. The program was designed to encourage children to read. Here, Garry and Matt Miller look over their award. Also receiving awards were: Cynthia Boydston, Mika Chew, Kim Buckner, Patricia Yates, Ember Spencer, Wendy Voisin, Sheryl Miller, J.D. Boydston, Jordan Spencer, Karan Arnold, Erin McGarry, Ann Marie Boyers, Jill Austin and Lisa Dixon.

Pier fishing cited

Pier fishing at Charlevoix off the shore of Lake Michigan is featured in the September issue of Michigan Living–AAA Motor News.

The article, entitled "Pick a Pier for Fall Fishing", states that pier fishing outshines charterboat fishing success under the right circumstances.

The article also states that September is the prime month for pier fishing, with October a close second, as trout and salmon come close to shore.

Do Business Where Business Is Being Done

Stringent state solid waste rules criticized by local officials

It has been said that within a few generations Americans could bury themselves in the solid waste they create.

Several years ago it was estimated that residents of Charlevoix County generated over 21,000 tons of trash a year and it was predicted that that figure would rise to over 32,000 tons by 1990.

How to dispose of this mountain of debris has been the subject of many hours of discussion, planning, and plain worry by township, city, and county officials. It isn't just a matter of digging a hole and dumping the solid waste into it, or buying an incinerator in which to burn it. It's a matter of complying with stringent state rules governing solid waste disposal which often are prohibitive in cost to implement.

Now there is a new law and new administrative rules to implement it which do nothing to make the job of setting up legal solid waste disposal systems any easier.

An overflow crowd attended a public hearing on rules of enforcement for the new law (Pubbc Act 641 of 1978) last week in Gaylord. Legislators representing northern Michigan and local officials from many townships, cities, counties, and planning departments spoke their minds. Their comments seemed to boil down to several concerns that were repeated often.

The rules should allow for flexibility (northern Michigan rural areas differ from metropolitan areas), local governments need financial help in setting up disposal systems, apparently no scientific research went into determining needs of rural areas, the 13-member citizens committee required to administer the rules in each unit of government is not necessary (the local planning commissions could do the job), the rules are expressed in language too difficult for the average local official to comprehend, and finally, implementation of the rules should be delayed at least three years, if not rewritten.

Charlevoix County Planner John Hess questioned that we need such stringent rules. He also deplored the high costs of developing a local solid waste disposal site, pointing out that if the cost of taking a load of trash to a disposal site reaches $4 or $5, residents will take to using woods and road right-of-ways for dumping.

"What about the Headlee amendment?" Hess asked. If the state requires us to build a solid waste disposal system to their specifications, shouldn't they pay the cost of it?"

And what about old landfills? Hess wondered if any thought had been given to inspecting them to determine future use.

Foremost concern of local officials faced with the necessity of building disposal sites in sandy soils is the requirement that such sites be "lined" with clay to prevent seepage into ground waters.

A health officer from Missaukee County pointed out that the burial site in Kalkaska County where 10,000 PBB-tainted animals were buried was not lined with clay. "If that sandy site was good enough for poisoned animal disposal, why wouldn't a similar site be good enough for household waste?" he asked.

The Gaylord meeting was the second hearing relating to Public Act 641 held in the state. The first one, held in Lansing for officials from all over southern Michigan, was attended by fewer people than attended the Gaylord meeting, indicating the interest of northern Michigan officials in the problem of solid waste disposal. Another meeting was held in Escanaba later in the week.

Both the Department of Natural Resources and the Resource Recovery Commission must pass on the Solid Waste Management rules two more times before they go to the legislature. The earliest possible date for them to become effective is early 1980.

Those who have thoughts about Public Act 641 and rules for enforcing it should contact their representative and senator in Lansing. Representatives Ralph Ostling and Steve Andrews and Senator Mitch Irwin, all of whom represent Charlevoix County, attended the Gaylord meeting.

GOLD: GIFT FROM THE SUN
Ancient man believed it was a gift from the sun. People have worshipped it since - they first laid eyes on it. They have killed for it and nearly been killed trying to find it. I'm speaking of gold -- the gleaming, rich yellow metal that has been so important in the social, political and cultural evolution of mankind.
Gold first caught man's eye because of its attractive gleam. It was used to decorate weapons and to honor tribal chiefs and the bravest warriors. It took the form of medallions of honor and royal crowns.
Gold was once used extensively for coins, then it shifted into the background as a back up system for paper currency and less valuable metal coins. But gold no longer backs our currency. Today ours as well as most other world currencies are backed by credit.
Gold is known for its superior conductivity and reflectivity. As such, it was fought its way into new technologies. The guidance systems that send men into space use gold. The astronaut's lifeline is coated with gold to reflect heat, and his visor is shaded with gold to protect his eyes.
When you wear gold jewelry, you are wearing a substance - that has intrigued men for centuries, that has played important roles in many historical currents.
Gold is beautiful, spellbinding, awe inspiring, and we will undoubtedly continue to cherish it long into the future.

Funds available for housing

The Farmers Home Administration has begun a program through which it will guarantee rural housing loans made by commercial banks, savings and loan associations, and other private lenders, Duane Reid, FmHA county supervisor for Emmet, Cheboygan, and Charlevoix counties, announced.

FmHA, the rural credit agency of the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA), will guarantee up to 90 percent of the principal and interest of these loans.

Guaranteed housing loans will be available for above moderate income borrowers who cannot get housing mortgage credit without a guarantee.

At present, the USDA agency will offer loan guarantees only under its single family housing loan program. FmHA will continue to make single family housing, housing site development, and other purposes.

Single family housing loans are made in open country, towns of up to 10,000 population, and certain designated towns of between 10,000 and 20,000 population. This includes all towns in this three county area. They finance modest but adequate housing and related facilities, Reid explained. Loans may be used to buy, build, impruve, repair, or rehabilitate houses and related houses and related facilities, and to provide adequate water and waste disposal system.

Guaranteed loans will be made only to applicants with above moderate income, defined by FmHA as adjusted gross income of $15,000 to $20,000 per year for residents of Michigan. Low and moderate income applicants may be eligible for rural housing loans made by FmHA.

Loans to be guaranteed are limited to 97 percent of the market value of homes and sites for the first $25,000 and 95 percent of the loan in excess of $25,000. The borrower must have equity from his own resources, in the form of cash or land for the down payment, noted Reid. The maximum repayment period is 33 years.

Reid also reports that FmHA regulations provide lenders who obtain guarantees for rural housing loans options for selling, assigning, or selling participations in the guaranteed part of these loans.

FmHA regulations require that the lender making a guaranteed rural housing loan be a local lender – located in or doing business in the area where the house is located.

To apply for a FmHA-guaranteed rural housing loans, contact your local lender.

Transportation plan discussed

The Charlevoix School Board at its last meeting discussed a proposed transportation policy which has been in use for some time and which follows state guidelines. Under the proposed policy students in grades kindergarten through eighth grade may be required to walk up to one-half mile to a bus stop. Students in grades nine through 12 may be required to walk up to one mile to a bus stop. Exceptions may be made in cases involving safety and the health of students. It was pointed out that these guidelines have been in use for some time and may become board policy. Action is expected to be taken at the Sept. 17 meeting.

Tuition charges, as established by a formula handed down by the state, were set at $1,863.13 for elementary grades and $1,917.81 for secondary students. Tuition students must also be charged if they ride the regular school bus.

The fall tax collection was approved as follows with the rates being reduced in compliance with the Headlee Amendment. 8.64 mills allocated for operation, 13.72 voted for operation, .47 mills for public library operation, .6 mills for 1959 debt retirement, 1.3 mills for 1968 debt retirement and .5 mills for 1979 debt retirement for a total of 27.23 mills. Taxpayers will find these amounts on their general tax bills mailed in December. Taxpayers in the city of Charlevoix who pay 50 per cent of their taxes with the city's summer tax will pay only half the amount.

A long hard look was taken at the cost of hot lunch tickets for the 1979-80 school year. The prices will be as follows: K-5, 65¢; Middle School, 75¢; High School, 85¢; and adults, $1. Students purchasing weekly tickets will pay five cents less per meal then they would for single meals. In announcing the new hot lunch ticket prices, Vincent Olach, business manager, said that even at these prices, the cafeterias will be operated at a deficit for the coming year. He said the fact that the Charlevoix schools do not qualify for certain commodities and have few persons who qualify for free lunch tickets plus the fact that the cost of milk is dictated to the schools are some the reasons why the cafeterias operate at a deficit.

In other action, the board was told that school gymnasiums are used by the Recreation Department 22 weeks for a total of 154 nights at the two schools, the K-5 and middle schools. It was suggested that with the increased cost of utilities and other expenses, a charge of $5.00 a night be charged. This would add up to approximately $700 for the season.

Max Nowak, president of the board, suggested that a schedule for practice sessions for all grades be established before the basketball season opens.

The board accepted with regret the resignation of Mrs. Sally Drost, first grade teacher, who is moving to Florida where her husband will be employed.

Mrs. Ardeth Wieland presented a brief report on the work accomplished at the Beaver Island Lighthouse property owned by the school district during the summer. An open house at the lighthouse property Sunday attracted a large crowd who were surprised at the work done to reclaim the structure which dates back to the 1850's.

The board also approved the payment of $6,518 Construction Fund bills which the business manager said saved the school district from $40-50,000.

What is Glen's Save-Share?

Glen's Save Share is a program which was started in June of 1972 by C. Glen Catt Founder of Glen's Markets and Family Centers, and has been administered from the beginning by R. Keith Catt, Vice President of Glen's Markets.

Glen's Save-Share was set up to enable community organizations and groups a means from which they could earn money for projects that would help improve the communities in which we live.

Any registered group can simply save Glen's Markets and Family Centers green register tapes, add them up and turn them in to their local Glen's Market to have shared with them 1% of the qualified total. The qualified total being the total minus any beer, wine, or cigarette purchases and sales tax.

Where does the money come from;. ?? The dollars are taken out of Glen's Advertising budget. As Save-Share grows, Glen's Markets slowly cuts back on their advertising.

Gridders open season Friday

The Charlevoix Red Rayders will open the 1979 football season at Kalkaska Friday night.

Kickoff is at 8 p.m.

Last year Charlevoix won a hard fought 21-6 contest. And Coach Don Carey is predicting another close struggle between the two schools Friday.

"We think they'll be tougher than a year ago," Carey said.

But will the Rayders be tougher?

"We don't look as strong on paper this year," Carey said. "I would say we're down some this year, but we'll just have to wait and see."

Carey has 33 players on the roster, including five sophomores.

Tentatively, on offense the starting lineup will be Tom Mielke at center, Joe Schnackenberg and Jerry Sladek at guards, Jack Cross and Kurt Williams at tackles, Gerard Doan and Paul Hoffman at ends, Scott Kerridge at quarterback, and Bob Russell, Scott Morgan and Nick Anderson at the running backs. All are seniors with the exception of Schnackenberg and Hoffman, who are juniors.

On defense, Carey plans to start Cross at middle guard, Mielke and Ken Otmanowski at tackles, Williams and Doan at ends, Sladek, Rod Anderson and Mike Loper at linebackers and Morgan, Kerridge and Mark Beaudoin in the secondary. Loper and Beaudoin are sophomores.

Also competing for starting positions are (seniors) Francis Pischner, Rod Stevens, Jim Stuwe, Kirk Heckendorn, (juniors) Jeff Drury, David Krueger, Dennis Morgridge, Ben Shores, Ken Wojan, Mike Zedniceк, Rick Rajewski, Scott Golovich, Gregg Swanson, Joe Sladek, Jim Knight, (sophomores) Scott Kelly, Dave Buday and Jim Buchanan.

After Kalkaska, Charlevoix will tangle with Benzie Central before opening Michigan-Huron Shores play against arch-rival Petoskey. The Rayders then have the unenviable task of playing Gaylord and Cheboygan back-to-back. Gaylord is picked by many as the top team in the league this year while Cheboygan is the defending champion from a year ago.

All games - with the exception of the Kalkaska contest - will start at 7:30 p.m.

The Rayders were 6-3 last year.

Four vets to lead cagers

Basketball Coach Toni Felter will have four letter winners returning as Charlevoix attempts to defend its co-championship of the Michigan-Huron Shores conference this fall.

All four of the letter winners are ticketed for starting assignments - Melinda Klooster, Melanie Kerridge, Teresa Noirot and Marie Buday. The fifth spot in the lineup is "up for grabs."

"We have a scrimmage Friday against Ellsworth," Mrs. Felter said, "and that might tell us who will fill that fifth spot."

Klooster, Kerridge and Noirot all started as sophomores a year ago when the Rayders posted a 19-4 record that included a district championship. In fact, Klooster won the conference scoring title - averaging close to 20 points per outing. She also received All-State recognition.

Kerridge is coming off a knee injury, but Mrs. Felter said the knee has not bothered her slick shooting guard in practice. Kerridge is the quarterback on the team and she will have the responsibility of directing the offense.

Also battling for a spot in the lineup are (seniors) Nancy Ciuk, Vickie Ithine, (juniors) Amy Kroll, Lisa Sandahl, Shari Jones, April Meadows and (sophomore) Lisa Pischner.

Mrs. Felter has been extremely pleased with the play of Pischner.

"She has looked good. You can tell she worked hard on her game this summer. It's paying off."

The veteran coach has also been pleased with the team's hustle in practice.

"If determination and guts are worth anything, then we'll be good. The kids have worked hard. I'm real pleased with their hustle."

Despite that assessment, Mrs. Felter is reluctant to make any predictions. Last year she was hoping for a .500 season. Needless to say, she was pleasantly surprised when her squad roared out of the starting blocks and never slowed down enroute to a 19-4 season.

"I think we're in better shape now than we were a year ago," she said. "This can be a good team as long as we play team ball."

The Rayders will open the season at Central Lake Thursday, Sept. 13. The junior varsity contest will start at 6:30 p.m.

Cash Register Exchange defeated Murdick's Fudge 13-7 to capture the title in the Charlevoix Township Invitational Tournament which concluded last night. Participants were teams from the Charlevoix Recreation and Township Leagues with a traveling trophy donated by Medusa Cement Company going to the winner. CRE players include, front, left to right, Steve Dunkelberg, Joe Battle, Dave Novotny, David Lee Vaughn, Coach, Dan McKenzie, Carlos D'Angelo. Back row: Jim Ciuk, Steve Kidder, Bill Hoagland, Dave Storm, Larry Edwards, Dean Mikulski, Gary Novotny. Absent were Gordon Block, Mike Streeter and Randy Brown. (Photo by Sonny Lang)

C.R.E. wraps up perfect season

Cash Register Exchange won the combined Charlevoix Township-City Recreation League seven team double elimination slow-pitch tournament Thursday and in the process completed an unbeaten season.

In the first contest Murdick's Fudge edged Town House 8-7 with Jack Niswander the winning hurler and that put them against CRE in the finals.

CRE walked off with a 13-7 win to finish the tourney unbeaten as Jim Ciuk was the winning pitcher.

For the year CRE went 18-0 in the Charlevoix Recreation League, posted a 5-0 mark in the City Tournament and went 4-0 in the just completed tourney for a season record of 27-0.

Thursday's final closed out the season for both leagues.

Harriers place 11th in invitational

The Charlevoix Rayder cross country team finished in 11th place among 18 schools in the White Cloud Invitational meet held Saturday, Coach Pete Spieles reported.

Clare won the meet with St. Louis finishing second and Whitehall third. Best time in the meet was run by Phil Bedford of Clare who had a time of 15:26.

The Rayders next meet will be at Boyne City with the Ramblers and Gaylord on Sept. 18.

Jeff Landon finished 22nd in Saturday's meet; Jim Landon, 59th; Mark Drenth, 65th; Scott Davis, 66th and Jay Swartwout, 86th.

CETA program employs 101 youths in Charlevoix County

Shelly Johnstone is employed at the Charlevoix County Humane Society. Often times, she can be found in the back room, letting the animals out for exercise and cleaning cages.

Shelly is just one of 101 youths from the county who found work this summer through the CETA Youth Program.

"For most, this is their first job," said Michelle Miller, counselor for Charlevoix, Emmet and Antrim counties. "So, essentially, our goals are to provide a work experience for the youths and to have them develop good job skills and habits.

"We're trying to turn kids on to work. We want kids to get used to going to work and picking up a paycheck."

In addition, the youths (14-21 years of age) also get vocational exposure. Most are placed in jobs where the youth has expressed an interest.

The program offers employment in public and private non-profit organizations. Jobs range from library aides, secretaries, custodians, and recreational aides to work in the hospitals, chamber of commerces, city street and water departments and social services department.

The youths receive $2.90 per hour, unless they have supervisory jobs. Then, they get more. They work between 24-40 hours per weed.

The CETA Youth Program is aimed at the economically disadvantaged with youths accepted according to family guidelines based on family size and annual income. The program is federally funded through a grant from the Department of Labor and is sponsored by the Traverse Bay Area Intermediate School District.

"It's our purpose to put more income into the low income households," Ms. Miller said.

Youths also participate in educational programs with one-to-one instruction to help them with academic and communication skills. The student's needs are assessed and they are given help with basic skills.

There is also an employment skills workshop where youths are familiarized with job applications and job interviews.

Several of the youths who are participating in the summer program also plan to apply for the fall program which starts Oct. 1. Applications are available at the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate Service Center in Charlevoix, from school counselors and from the Department of Social Services.

The program offers in-school programs for full-time students to work part-time and out-of-school programs for drop-outs or high school graduates.

For further information call Ms. Miller at 547-9941.

MARGE KRCHAK

Marge Krchak has been married for 13 years to George Krchak who works at Gas Heat Insulation Co. Marge is originally from Petoskey but moved to the Charlevoix area when she was married.

Marge is presently the Office Manager at Erber Auto Co. She has been with Erber's for almost 8 years and has worked in a variety of capacities. She's a bookkeeper, accountant and works with Helen Foster on the billing. Marge also is in charge of filling out the many Ford Reports that come through her office.

Marge says, "I really enjoy my work beeause there's something different everyday."

Before joining the Erber staff, Marge worked at McCune-Dickinson of Petoskey. She says she started as a clerk/receptionist and moved up to the Real Estate and bookkeeping department by the time she left.

Marge likes to cross-country ski in the winter. She spends a great deal of time working on her many hobby crafts such as needlepoint, quilting and knitting.

Marge Krchak is a dependable efficient part of the Erber Auto Co. staff and we're proud she's with us.

Weddings

Hackett-Hackett

Greta Von Rosenthal recently attended a wedding in Charlevoix.

The thing that is unusual about this is that Greta is a dog, a Doberman owned by the bride, Dnrothy Hackett of Walloon Lake and Terre Haute, Ind.

Another thing unusual about the wedding is that the bride did not change her name by marrying. That's because she married her late husband's brother.

Dorothy Hackett and Glenn Hackett of Morton, Ill. were united in marriage August 23 in the Charlevoix County Building by Magistrate Marilyn Blaunan, with Greta looking on.

Mrs. Hackett's good friend, Winnifred Ray of Walloon Lake and Terre Haute, and Charlevoix County Undersheriff Byron Stockwell were witnesses.

"We sort of wanted it to look like a shotgun wedding," the white-haired bride said, explaining the presence of Greta and the sheriff.

Following the ceremony, the newlyweds, Miss Ray, and Greta returned to their home on Walloon Lake, where the "humans" enjoyed a steak dinner and Greta joined her 14 canine brothers and sisters in a feast of prime dog food.

The entire family has now returned to Terre Haute, where they will spend some time before going to Kissimmee, Fla. to spend the winter.

Novotny-Peters

Frieda Novotny, 79, and Francis Peters, 81, were united in marriage Friday, Aug. 24 by the Rev. Ray Giffin at the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix.

Dan Peters, brother of the groom, was the best man. Carol Novotny, daughter-in-law of the bride, was maid of honor.

Approximately 100 guests attended the ceremony and reception that followed in the Fellowship Hall of the church.

Out of town guests included: Mr. and Mrs. Russell Peters, Mancelona; Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Switzer, Muskegon; Mr. and Mrs. Jay Switzer, Muskegon; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Kissel, Westland; Jerry Novotny, Bellville; Mr. and Mrs. John Edwards, Warren; and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Doone, Grand Rapids.

CHARLEVOIX CHURCH DIRECTORY

The opening of the school year is close at hand; and aside from a slight reluctance on their part, presumably your children are all ready for it. Their clothes are in order, shoes repaired, eyes examined, etc. However, have you examined their conduct lately? No matter how well they normally behave, remember that they have been living in an atmosphere of unrestricted freedom all summer, and to be suddenly thrust into the regimented confines of a classroom may be a difficult adjustment for them to make. Now is the time to remind them about manners, discipline and respect for authority, from which there can be no freedom in a civilized world. The Sunday school at the Church of your choice can be of great help in bringing these lessons home.

Obituaries

VIRGINIA NIPSON

Memorial services for Mrs. Virginia Tipton Nipson, 56, who died Monday at Little Traverse Hospital where she had been a patient for six weeks, will be held at Christ Episcopal Church at 1 p.m. Wednesday. The Rev. Roger Ames will officiate. Interment will be in the Norwood Cemetery.

The former Virginia Tipton was born in Dayton, Ohio, Aug. 22, 1923. She was a 1941 graduate of Fairview High School and attended Dennison University in Granville, Ohio, before graduating from the Central Academy of Fine Art in Cincinnati. She operated a Commercial Art Studio in Dayton and later in Nashville, Tenn. On Aug. 6, 1947, she was married to George N. Nipson. They continued to live in Dayton. She was past president of Alpha Omega Pi sorority chapter and Artists and Sculptors of Dayton and was active in Girl Scouts.

In 1969 Mr. and Mrs. Nipson moved to Charlevoix where they established the Charlevoix Chemical Company. She continued to be associated with the business. In Charlevoix she was a member of Christ Episcopal Church, Charlevoix Area Historical Society, Charlevoix Yacht Club, Charlevoix Women's Club and Friends of the Library.

Surviving are her husband; a daughter, Mrs. Thomas A. (Holly) Seeling of Central lake and two grandchildren.

There will be a family visitation only.

The family requests that anyone wishing to honor Mrs. Nipson's memory contribute in her name to the American Cancer Society.

The Winchester Funeral home will be in charge of arrangements.

DONALD STOKES

Funeral services for Donald A. Stokes, 66, who died Sunday at the Charlevoix Area Hospital where he had been a patient for one day, will be held at the East Jordan United Methodist Church at 11 a.m. Wednesday. The Rev. Daniel Miner and Pastor Thomas Schutt of Elk Rapids Calvary Lutheran Church will officiate. Interment will be in Lakeside Cemetery in South Arm Township.

The body is at the Hastings Funeral Home where friends may call.

Born in Boyne City Dec. 14, 1912, Mr. Stokes was married to the former Marguerite Rogers in Indiana June 22, 1935. They lived in Flint and Jackson before returning to make their home in South Arm Township in 1945. He was a member of the East Jordan United Methodist Church and served as a member of the church board of trustees. He had also served as a member of the South Arm Township Board and as township supervisor for eight years.

Surviving are his wife; a daughter, Mrs. William (Carolyn) Ashley of East Jordan; a son, Roger of Park Forest, Ill.; seven grandchildren and a brother, William of St. Charles.

The family suggests that anyone wishing to honor Mr. Stokes memory contribute in his name to the East Jordan Methodist Church Organ Fund.

HOWARD GRAHAM

Funeral services for Howard F. Graham of Elmhurst, Ill., who died Wednesday at Memorial Hospital in DuPage County, were held Friday at the Pedersen-Ryberg Funeral Home in Elmhurst. The Rev. William Bingaman officiated. Interment was in Mount Emblem cemetery at Elmhurst.

Surviving are his wife, the former Betty Booth; two sons, John and Anthony; one grandson, Timothy; and a brother, Allan.

Mr. Graham had several friends in the Charlevoix area.

MRS. ETHEL POTTER has returned from Flint where she had spent two weeks to be near her son, Harold (Bud) Potter, who has been hospitalized at St. Joseph's Hospital since Aug. 4. His address is Room 3102, 302 Kensington Avenue, Flint 48503.

Early morning risers on Sept. 8 will have a chance to view a total eclipse of the moon, says University of Michigan astronomy professor RICHARD TESKE.

"In the brightening dawn, the moon will move totally into the earth's shadow at 6:31 a.m. (EDT) and will become invisible. Shortly afterwards, the moon will set in the west and the sun will rise," Teske notes.

Total eclipses occur whenever the moon crosses the otherwise invisible shadow of the earth, when the sunlight which illuminates the moon is cut off, he says. Sometimes the moon may take as long as six hours to cross the earth's shadow.

Tuning in on an off-night

Some nights are off-nights, nights you just want to sit in front of the television with a big bowl of chocolate chip ice cream and be entertained. This is difficult, especially in the summer when anything that sounds like a plausible selection is probably a re-run.

The uther night was one of those nights. My interest level in staining chairs, reading a novel, doing Yoga meditations or playing Scrabble cubes with the kids was low. It was television or bed and it was just a little early for bed. It doesn't look good for a mother to turn in before her children. The evening went something like this:

KIDS: What's on TV?

MOM: Little House looks good. "Ingalls children create monster to help elderly woman regain her home."

KIDS: We saw that.

MOM: I didn't. Let's watch it again, okay?

KIDS: What about Uncle Ed?

MOM: He doesn't hear well anyway. He probably didn't catch it all the first time around.

KIDS: Okay if we go out and roller skate until 8:30?

MOM: See you at 8:30.

I finished off one bowl of ice cream, and while Uncle Ed nodded off, and Laura Ingalls led a Loch Ness monster crusade against the shopkeeper's snobby wife, I collected roller skates, administered a few baths, tucked one in and was ready to settle down with another bowl of Sealtest by 9.

MOM: What's that on TV?

KIDS: They're disco dancing.

MOM: Let's flip it around. (There was a choice of killing a cop, a ballgame or a M.A.S.H. re-run. We all opted for disco dancing - 1979 Disco Music Awards. Host: Wolfman Jack. Who in the world is Wolfman Jack, I wondered. I can see where he gets his name, but who is he?)

KIDS: Shhhhh. Wolfman Jack speaks.

MOM: Where is John Travolta? He's cuter.

The last hour of the 1979 Disco Music Awards proceded with about the same gala splash of absurd over-extravagance as all the other award shows and beauty pageants combined. We had just been treated to the neighberhood's kids roller derby show, so even the disco roller skating numbers looked novelty.

KIDS: Why are all the award winners black, mom?

MOM: Now you know how black people feel watching political conventions on television.

As 10 drew near, Anita Ward rendered one of the most profoundly lyrical songs of 1979 "Ring My Bell," Rod Stewart's grateful representative collected his top male disco singer award for "If You Think I'm Sexy," and Sammy Davis, Jr., close to tears, humbly accepted his trophy for the brand new category "Disco Life Style Award," promising to try to live up to the lionor by continuing to lead his present life style.

KIDS: Whut did you think about that show?

MOM: I thought about as much about it as Uncle Ed.

KIDS: Uncle Ed's sound asleep.

MOM: I think we tuned in on an off-night and didn't turn on. Good night, you guys.

City to use punch card ballots

When residents in the City of Charlevoix vote in the November election they will be in for a surprise.

The Charlevoix City Council has decided to switch from the old lever voting machines to punch card ballots.

At a meeting Tuesday night, council agreed to purchase 14 punch card units, one demonstration model and three transfer cases for transporting the units. The cost - $4,419.50.

The punch card system is expected to make voting easier and less time consuming.

Here's how the system will work:

An election official will give the voter a punch card ballot. The voter will enter a small, portable booth, place the ballot in the booth's card holder and begin with the first page of the booklet that overlays the card. The voter will find the candidate he-she wants and punch out a square next to the candidate's name with a punching device. When the voter has completed the ballot, he-she will take the card and drop it in a locked container. When the polls close, election workers will take the cards to the county clerk's office where they will be tabulated.

Law requires the city to have a punch card unit for every 200 voters.

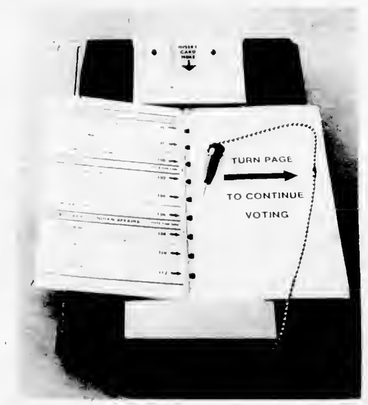
City officials are hoping the new system will reduce the number of absentee voters. Officials believe that several voters found the lever machines too complicated.

Most governmental units in the county will be switching to the puneh card system. County officials have agreed to purchase the master computer counter and precinct counters.

A demonstration unit will be on display at the main desk at City Hall for anyone who wants to become mnre familiar with the system. If the punch eard units do not arrive before the November election - which is a good bet - then city officials plan to borrow units from a neighboring community.

City officials have discussed the possible sale of the lever machines, but no action has been taken as of yet.

One item that will be on the ballot will be a proposal to amend the City Charter to allow for the appointment of the city clerk. At present, the city clerk is elected.



Also at Tuesday's meeting, council approved ski rates at Mt. McSauba for the coming season.

Season rates will be $70 for a family, $50 for a couple, $40 for an adult, $30 for students 10 and over, and $20 for children.

Daily rates will be $4 a day and $3 a night for adults, $2.50 a day and $2 a night for students, and $2 a day and $1.75 a night for children.

In other action, council:

Appointed Robert Muma as delegate and James Brinker as alternate to the annual meeting of the municipal employee retirement system Oct. 4.

Agreed to purchase a ¾ ton 1979 Dodge pick-up truck from Village Car Care for $5,230. The truck will be used by the water department.

Authorized the mayor and city clerk to enter into a consent judgment providing for a reducton of the 1978 tax assessment of the Sand Castle condominium by 15 percent.

Approved a 15 foot sideyard setback variance for the Lake House condominium on Pine River Lane to allow for construction of six garages.

City attorney Michael Gibbuns has submitted his verbal resignation effective Sept. 30.

Gibbons said he would be relocating in a warmer climate for medical reasons.

Committee formed to support rezoning

Dale E. Boss, chairman of the Charlevoix Township Vote of Confidence Citizens Committee, today announced the kick-off of a voter campaign supporting the rezoning of 230 acres owned by the Crescent Stone Company (Medusa).

On Nov. 13, voters in Charlevoix Township will be asked to decide if the 230 acres should be rezoned from agricultural and scenic reserve to industrial.

The land, which is adjacent to Fisherman's Island State Park, would be used for mining limestone for the cement plant, Medusa officials say.

The township board approved the rezoning earlier this summer. However, several residents in the township petitioned the board requesting a referendum. The residents object to the blasting, dust, noise and other nuisances they assert the quarry operations will cause.

Boss said the rezoning is "routine" and "in the best interest of all township residents."

"The special Nov. 13 Charlevoix Township election, called to reconsider the unanimous approval of our county planning commission and township zoning board, provides a rare opportunity to say thanks and give a vote of confidence to these appointed public servants who donate countless hours of work to our community with little or no pay," Boss said. "Equally important, is the opportunity to give Medusa Cement a vote of confidence.

"Without Medusa's tax contribution, township property owner taxes would be nearly double. Medusa provides 49.5 percent of all township tax support. Medusa's 1979 local tax contribution will be $624,822 which is an increase over 1978 of $298,506. Most of this increase reflects Medusa'a confidence in our community. They are investing over $50 million in plant conversion."

Boss emphasized that "our school system and property owners would gravely miss Medusa's annual contribution of $318,887 or more."

He added that "a small group of township residents agitated by a few outsiders are harassing Medusa."

"Tomorrow it could be another company," he said. "Their opposition to this routine rezoning request is a pure and simple example of their harassing tactics which serve no constructive purpose whatsoever.

"The time has come for township citizens who wish to work cooperatively with industry and business to stand up and be counted."

Clem Wagner, manager and treasurer of the committee, said the 230 acres is important to Medusa's current mining needs.

"As soon as a detailed mining plan is approved by the state authorities, Medusa will apply to the Charlevoix Township Board for a use permit prior to quarrying the property.

"The land was bought for mining and everyone in the township knew it. It has no other commercial value. Medusa was given approval because the county planning commission and township zoning board were correctly doing their job. Then along comes this nonsense. It's really unfortunate."

Lake development suit to be watched closely

By Peg Ohle

The recent suit filed in Circuit Court by the Walloon Lake Association against a Bay Township land developer is being watched with interest by lake property owners, land developers, and persons interested in land use planning.

At issue is the question of whether a small piece of lake front property can be leased to subdivision lot owners whose property is not on the lake. The lake front property to be so used has a shoreline of 150 feet on Walloon Lake, to which the developer proposes to lease "use" rights to purchasers of 47 back lots.

Defendants in the case are the Hildee Company, developers of the 47-lot Walloon View Brae Property Club on Zenith Heights Rd., and the principals John DeLuca, Orielda DeLuca, and Hildegarde Schultz.

Count I of the complaint for declaratory judgment and injunctive relief has to do with "infringement upon riparian property rights and trespass", in which the plaintiff states that "The practice of permitting the owners of the 47 non-riparian 'backlots' to 'funnel' on to Walloon Lake through a narrow, single lot constitutes a trespass upon the riparian owners' property rights to the use of the lake, and unless enjoined by the court will cause irreparable damage to the riparian property owners on the lake."

It is the question of riparian rights, especially as they relate to funnel development that arouses the attention of the interested public.

Charlevoix County Planner John Hess believes that if the case goes to court, it will set a precedent. "What they're reully shooting at is the riparian rights issue," he said, explaining that riparian rights are "the rights associnted with ownership of land extending into a lake or stream, especially the bottom of the lake or stream."

Riparian rights are described by Hess as extending to the "thread" of the lake or stream, an imaginery line much like a townslup boundardy, which is there but cannot be seen.

"The complaint here is the use of the lake," Hess continued. "If you own a lot on the lake, you are a riparian owner. Can you sublet those rights?"

Funnel development, as its name indicates, is the practice of permitting a given number of property owners to use a narrow strip of land on a body of water. However, Hess points out that funnel development has never really been defined.

"It (the suit) will get down to what is or is not funnel development. Some is not bad, but there has never been a definition as to what is excessive, what degrades the lake."

In a broad sense, the Chicago and Belvedere Clubs in Charlevoix could actually be called funnel developments because home owners in back of the lake have the right to use the clubs' lake property, Hess says.

As might be expected, the effects of funnel development are felt more in small lakes than larger ones because of the "flush rate" of the lake, the rate at which lake water is replaced with fresh water.

Count II of the complaint deals with violations of the Bay Township zoning ordinance, specifically removing trees within 35 feet of the lake's high water mark, and depositing fill dirt and sand up to the water's edge.

Count III of the complaint was brought under the Thomas J. Anderson, Gordon Rockwell Environmental Protection Act, and cites Walloon Lake as a "precious natural resource of the State of Michigan to be protected and preserved for the benefit of the people of the state for generations in the future," with the conclusion that "Those natural resources can be impaired or destroyed by over use."

Twenty-three CETA jobs to end

Twenty-three persons who have been working for public agencies in Charlevoix County under the Comprehensive Education and Training Act (CETA) have been notified that their CETA employment will be terminnted on Sept. 28.

Helen Phillips, assistant director of the Public Program Administration, has advised these employees that they have exhausted the 78 weeks time limitation allowed for Public Service Employment. CETA regulations limit such employment to 78 weeks in a five-year period.

Mrs. Phillips points out, however, that many of these persons will be rehired and paid by the agencies for which they have been working. The main purpose of the CETA program is to help men and women acquire skills that will enable them to secure employment on their own, Mrs. Phillips says, and the fact that so many are being hired by those for whom they have been working indicates that the program has been successful.

First autumn color cruise planned for Sept. 29

The first 1979 Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce fall color cruise will be held Saturday, Sept. 29.

The cruise - aboard the Beaver Islander - will frollow the Lake Charlevoix shoreline. Subsequent cruises are planned for Oct. 6, 7, 13 and 20. All cruises will start at 1 p.m. Passengers are asked to meet at the Beaver Island Boat Dock (next to the bridge in downtown Charlevoix).

Tickets for the cruise are $6. Beverages and refreshments will be available on board for an additional charge. Tickets will be sold in advance on a non-refundable basis. The motorship has protected cover and will sail rain or shine. Tickets purchased for a specific date will be honored only for that cruise and may not be applied to other cruise dates. The Chamber of Commerce will hold "paid in full" reservations and will send out tickets upon request when a money order or check in the full amount for the ticke' desired is received.

The color cruises have been quite successful in years past. Several of the cruises have been sold out in advance with people waiting at the dock for any possible open spaces. The Chamber of Commerce is "strongly urging people who want to enjoy the color cruises to order their tickets well in advance to avoid disappointment."

For further information contact the Chamber of Commerce at 547-2101.

Sept. 21 deadline for scholarship test

Juniors and seniors who are thinking of going on to college after graduation listen up!

Charlie Bentley, Charlevoix High School counselor, reports that seniors who want to take the test portion of the ACT Assessment on the first 1979-80 national test date - Oct. 20 - must have their registration materials completed and mailed before the Sept. 21 deadline.

The full 1979-80 schedule of test dates and deadlines is as follows:

Test Date	Registration Period
Oct. 20	Aug. 6 - Sept. 21
Dec. 8	Oct. 8 - Nov. 9
Feb. 16	Nov. 26 - Jan. 18
April 12	Feb. 4 - March 14
June 14	March 24 - May 16

At area test centers on those dates it will take students about three hours to complete the four exams (English, math, social studies, natural sciences) that make up the ACT Assessment's test section. The program's other section is a two part questionnaire, which is completed at home by students as part of the registration process.

For the fifth consecutive year, the basic student fee for using the program is $7.50.

Information reports resulting from the test and questionnaire sections are sent to the students and their high school counselors, as well as to those colleges and other institutions specifically designated by the students.

Charlevoix High School students who are uncertain if they need to use the ACT Assessment or are concerned about location of the nearest test center, are urged to contact the high school counseling staff. Students can also obtain ACT Assessment registration packets, as well as other college and career planning materials, from the counseling office.

It is recommended that students use the ACT Assessment during the later part of their junior year or early in their senior year so that resulting information will be available in time to be of maximum assistance to students and their counselors in education and career planning.

Band Boosters to meet Monday

An important meeting of the Charlevoix Band Boosters has been scheduled for 7:30 p.m., Monday, Sept. 17 at the high school cafeteria Michael Filkins, band director has announced.

The first important item on the agenda for this meeting will be the election of a new slate of officers to head the organization which is presently without officers.

The second issue which is equally as important is this year's plans for fund-raising projects if the Boosters are going to carry through their plans to purchase new uniforms for the band.

In making the announcement, Filkins said he hoped the Band Boosters will continue to give the band program the support it had rendered in the past.

Investments need management

"Money should always seek it's most efficient employer!" I have always biked that admonition a lot better than, "You pays your money and you takes your choice!"

But both make o very telling point. They remind the individual that investment funds have to be managed. The investor just can't let them sit there and expect them to take care of themselves.

Inasmuch as Charlevoix's summer rush is over, it's a pretty good time for investors to compile for themselves an investment status report. Needless to say, such investment evaluations should be on ongoing process at all times, but in today's inflated economy the need is even greater. So here are a few suggestions to help make sure all of your investment dollars are working their hardest.

First off, all prudent investors have a cash reserve; an amount of money set aside to handle emergencies. This amount varies with each investor but the sum is often considerable. Today's market requires that these funds be put to work as hard as possible. I would suggest consideration of a money fund where annual returns of ten percent (and more) can be harvested with ease. There is no liquidity sacrifice in such a move as the funds are usually available on a 48 hour basis. Some even have check-writing privileges. Most money funds are "no-load" funds, meaning no sales charges are levied. So the cash reserve can still be a cash reserve and still earn the investor a lot more bucks.

Next, review all fixed income investments and make sure they're delivering maximum returns. Ten percent rates of return (and more) on short term investments are so plentiful today that to earn less amounts to neglectful sabotage of ones assets. They're easy to buy, highly marketable (liquid), and quality incomparable.

Finally, on this auspicious September 1979 date, a heartfelt plea for thrift and savings. Dollars spent on goods and services that we might somehow do without are never going to have a chance to deliver the investment goods. Family budgets should include saving as one of the first priorities. No exceptions, please. The saving process, once started, can get to be one of the most profitable habits a person ever develops. Without it he will be condemned to live forever without the resources he deserves.

So, if you're among the many millions of Americans who manage their own investment affairs, now is a prudent time to rededicate yourself to the management process, and to the habits and practices that have built wealth since time immemorial. And remember, everyone's dollars should work as hard for them as they have worked to acquire them.

State should try harder to protect resource

Editor:

Because of one man a number of our Native Americans can now gill net in our Great Lakes. Thanks to our judicial system our trout fishing in Lake Michigan and Lake Hurun now face almost sure depletion, not to mention other species of fish sought by sport fishermen throughout Lake Michigan and Huron.

Gill nets trap and kill fish. And it has been proven that the Indian gill netters are taking 25,000 to 30,000 pounds of fish per week. Nobody knows how many steelhead, salmon and other varieties of fish are being taken.

Our state government has stated that in order to put some kind of restraining order or injunction on gill netting at the state level it would take almost five years (great). Do you know what will happen if at the present rate of approximately 100,000 pounds of fish a month are taken out of Lake Michigan around Cbarlevoix, Petoskey and Traverse City? There will be no fish for the sport fishermen to catch.

That is approximatley 600,000 pounds of fish a year. How many fish are going to be left?

Already our sport fishermen are feling the effect. What will happen next year or the year after?

The state Department of Natural Resources stated that trout and salmon catches have been poor along the Lake Michigan shoreline. Why?

Gill netting is a very sore subject in and around Charlevoix. My cungratulations go to the Grand Traverse Area Sport Fishing Association who at least tried to do something about it. I hope the order sticks.

I am totally against gill netting. It is a massacre of our state fishery. The fish that the Indians are taking are being sent all over the country. They are not keeping them for themselves, who knows what happens to them along the way.

I feel the state should at least try a little bit harder to stop or put some rigid restrictions on this waste of our natural resources. We are the one's that buy fishing licenses. I feel we should have at least a sporting chance to catch a fish.

Thank You,
Brock Dagner, Vice President

Clearing the record - city did have tennis courts

To the Editor:

I read the article in the Detroit Free Press Sept. 6 designating Mrs. Edith Gilbert "Queen of Charlevoix" with great interest, as I'm sure many others did. Congratulations, Mrs. Gilbert! I had not known any one was being so named but I'm sure you must be honored by such distinction.

However, one statement in the column should be corrected regarding Charlevoix having no tennis courts until Mrs. G. formed a committee to construct two. Having lived here since the early 1900's, I know Charlevoix had tennis courts between Clinton and Masun Streets well before 1918 and they were used by the public as well as the schools. Also there were tennis courts on the Belvedere Club grounds. Being a native, I do not like the suggestion that those of us who lived here long before our new queen arrived were quite so unaware of this special activity.

Just want to keep the record straight.

Taxes have increased 50 percent in two years

Honorable Mayor Supernaw:

I deem it important to write to you and to the City Councilmen about my taxes in Charlevoix. They have increased 50 percent in the last two years, which is much more than the cost of living index.

In 1977, my winter taxes were $501.77 and my summer taxes were $586.61, for a total of $1,088.38.

In 1978, my winter taxes were $764.94 and my summer taxes were $625.48, for a total of $1,390.42.

In 1979, my winter taxes were $688.82 and my summer taxes were $967.65, for a total of $1,656.47.

Thus, in two years, the taxes have increased from $1,088.38 to $1,656.47, a 50 percent increase. That seems unreasonable.

I am wondering whether the city desires to tax summer residents enough to force them to sell their homes!

I haven't added any new buildings on my property – it is just the same as it was when built in 1929.

Please give this some consideration.

Respectfully yours, Marge Rassieur (Mrs. T. E.), 506 Mercer Blvd.

Info on vandalism wanted

Editor:

I have been coming to Beaver Island for nearly 30 years, starting as a camper and for the past 15 years as a cottage owner. I was immediately impressed and influenced on my first visit as to the beauty and serenity of the island and its people. I understood and liked the difference between the island and its people, and the mainland. I have worked hard to improve my cottage to a point where it is my hope to make the island my home in the near future. I have helped and been helped by the island people and have been a friend and developed many friends on the island. I've had differences of opinion with some and some with me, however, I am sure they have all been resolved over the years. I assume that is our right as Americans.

Recently I have been a victim of, in my opinion and I am sure yours, a most vicious and cowardly act of vandalism that can be carried out. I had borrowed a bulldozer from an island friend to do some work at my cottage. While setting in my own driveway, machine grindings were dumped into the oil which subsequently ruined a nearly new engine at a cost of about $2,000.00.

I am not sure why I became the next victim on the island. Was it because I have an opinion, was it because I have friends, or was it because I help friends and islanders. I do not know, I wish I did. Regardless, the island can not afford such type of individuals. The island has enjoyed a rich and superb reputation. I have collected many news articles with several just recently, expounding the island and its peoples virtues. What kind of reputation is it gaining with the insurance companies and law enforcement agencies let alone word of mouth from such reprehensible acts of vandalism? For a rural area, the island enjoys one of the lowest insurance rates because of low crime rates. Insurance companies are not blind to continual claims of vandalism. All of us will suffer.

So I ask and implore all of you, if you have any information as to the party or parties responsible, that you give it to the local Sheriff. I also ask that if in any way you can help out during the time it takes to repair this bulldozer that you contact me. This has not changed my opinion of the island, but it sure does change my opinion of the person or persons responsible for this ct.

What was the 'Ironton Clarion'?

Editor's note: The following letter was sent to the Courier. We are printing it in hopes someone might have an answer.

Editor:

I am seeking information regarding a building brick which my daughter found recently on the beach at Pere Marquette Park on the beach of Lake Michigan, Muskegon. It is a cream colored brick imprinted with the inscription "Ironton Clarion."

Research did not disclose a newspaper by that name although I did find an Ironton, Michigan - a village of only 270 people. Could you provide me with any information about the significance of such a brick. Your cooperation will be greatly appreciated.

Take care of inflation, Mr. President

How much longer must the nation wait for Jimmy Carter to do something about inflation?

Apparently the president doesn't realize — even with Teddy Kennedy snapping at his heels — that the key to his re-nomination at the Democratic National Convention next summer lies not with Cuba, or the Middle East, or the SALT II treaty but with the American consumer who is rapidly going broke.

The word from Washington last Friday was that wholesale prices had shot up another 1.2 percent in August — which translates into a 14.4 percent annual inflation rate.

The same day, the Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York announced that it was raising its prime interest rate — that's the rate charged its best customers — to 12 3/4 percent. If that's the rate the best customers are paying, you can imagine how much it is costing Joe Doakes for operating capital to run his penny-ante tool shop.

Or how much mortgage interest Joe Gas Jockey must pay to buy a little love nest for his new bride.

I, for one, find it difficult to wrestle with such rapid price increases. Last week when I read that the Detroit Federation of Teachers was nearing an agreement with the Detroit Board of Education on a new contract providing a 25 percent increase in wages over the next three years, I was aghast.

Can you imagine paying 25 percent above today's prices for everything you buy in 36 short months? I can't. Then I took out a pencil and started to do a few calculations. If inflation continues at its August rate for the next three years, prices will have risen an astounding 43.2 percent. The teachers' 25-percent pay increase would put them a whopping 18.2 percent behind.

Over the weekend, the teachers understandably rejected the 25 percent offer and Detroit schools are now on strike.

What happens next is anybody's guess, but the strike could be a long one.

All of which gets us back to Jimmy Carter. The time is long overdue for the chief executive to get off his duff and take steps to put a firm lid on wages, prices and profits until the economy cools off.

Of course, the persons hardest-hit by the current upsurge in prices are retired folks living on fixed incomes. Many of them have planned their retirements on the belief that prices would remain fairly constant for the remainder of their lifetimes. Now they are boxed-in by a skyrocketing inflation rate that already has taken most of the fun out of living.

Some hardy, independent spirits who have never accepted a dime's worth of charity in their lives are going to have to seek public assistance or go hungry in the months ahead.

A few retirees from Northern Michigan have found a partial solution to the problem by pulling up stakes and moving south where at least they are spared unwieldly heating expenses and outrageous property taxes.

But for many, such a move is not in the cards because of family ties and failing health.

When we elected Jimmy Carter three years ago, he seemed like a sensitive, compassionate kind of guy who would by sympathetic to the plight of the common man. If he had any weak spots at all it was in the area of world politics.

Now, unfortunately, we find ourselves saddled with a president who is doing a fairly decent job on the world scene but who seems incapable of helping his fellow Americans battle their deadliest enemy — inflation.

Finding a solution to the Indian fishing problem

Bob Davis

Three possible avenues for settling the Indian fishing problem in Michigan were discussed at a recent meeting with several representatives from Governor Milliken's staff. The group met in Washington with staff members from my office and the offices of a number of other members of the Michigan delegation.

Basicaby, what came out of the meeting was a list of three steps the state could pursue: Congressional action, court action and negotiation. During discussion of the negotiation procedure, a possible management resource plan was discussed in some detail. Some facets of the plan which were stressed were the provision of monetary assistance by the state to help the Indians steer away from the use of gill nets and move them toward impoundment gear, which is legal in Michigan; moving the Indians out of the more popular sports fishing bays; licensing Indian commercial fishermen through the state; and possible sharing of the responsibility for determining allocation of the fish.

Another issue brought up by the state was the question of enforcement. As the result of Judge Noel Fox's recent decision on the Indian fishing question, the state has no enforcement authority.

As far as I am concerned, enforcement is one of the most important facets of this problem. We cannot rely on the courts in this matter because the courts have demonstrated that they are leaning heavily in favor of the Indian. Even if the Indians were to agree with state enforcement, it is doubtful whether any state attempt to take action based on such an agreement would hold up in court.

I have many serious reservations about negotiations. I feel that there are simply too many problems which could not be solved, and that any decisions that were reached would not be binding unless some kind of legislation were also passed.

I feel that it is imperative that we take Congressional action to solve this problem. The issue has heated up to the point where we cannot afford to wait much longer. I am continuing to urge the House Committees on Interior and Merchant Marine and Fisheries to address my bills and take some positive action. I am also planning to attend a rally in Lansing on Thursday, September 20. The Michigan United Conservation Club is sponsoring the noon gathering on the Capitol steps and I hope I will be able to get there to address the group.

Whatever kind of agreement is reached, I think it is most important that the state retain the right to set and enforce conservation laws for ALL individuals making use of our state's natural resources.

DEBATE OVER HOSPITAL COST CONTAINMENT CONTINUES

Nine out of every ten Americans now have some form of health insurance. Because of this, many people are actually shielded from the true cost of health care.

The debate over whether or not hospital costs should be controlled is likely to heat up during the fall session, and I predict that some form of cost containment legislation will be passed.

Although we are lucky in Northern Michigan that our hospitals are really working to keep costs down, that is not the story in much of the country. Perhaps one reason for the tremendous increases is that the medical industry has little competition. Since most hospitals auto.natically receive reimbursements from insurance companies for services provided, they really have no incentive to be thrifty.

A competitive health carc coverage model has been suggested by some of my colleagues. Some of the features of this model would be emphasis on preventive health care, catastrophic coverage, and less regulation for pre-paid health plans. It would also address the issue of federal tax breaks now given to employers for contributions to private health insurance plans.

I will be taking a close look at this proposal as we begin the fall session.

Meet Charlevoix

Gene Bridge, who grew up in Charlevoix, now spends his time in out-of-the-way places of the world towing and supporting rigs for offshore drilling of oil wells. He spent the summer in Charlevoix and the Courier talked with him as he prepared to return to his assignment in the Middle East.

COURIER: How did you get into this work?

BRIDGE: I quit high school in 1945 and got a job working as a deck hand on an iron ore carrier sailing the Great Lakes. Then I was drafted into the Army, where I served for over 22 years. I retired in 1968 as a Chief Army Boatswain's Mate. My whole Army career was in boats. After that I joined the Merchant Marine and I'm still there. I have a Master's license and am skipper of a 200-foot long tug.

COURIER: Then you work for private industry?

BRIDGE: Yes, I'm licensed by the Coast Guard but work for a private company. I'm going back to Egypt where we're drilling to get oil out of the Red Sea. My tug is there with a relief captain. If you could see the equipment and the work that goes into this kind of drilling, you'd understand part of the reason gas costs so much.

COURIER: What other places have you hauled oil rigs to?

BRIDGE: To Singapore and the Suez Canal, among others. My longest trip was from Houston to Saudi Arabia by way of Rotterdam. It took 88 days and we were hauling a 533 million derrick on a barge.

COURIER: Do you know where your next assignment will be?

BRIDGE: Probably to the southern end of Chili.

COURIER: In what foreign countries have you spent the most time?

BRIDGE: When I was in the Army, I spent five or six years in Germany, three in Italy, and over a year in both Korea and Vietnam.

COURIER: Do you speak any foreign languages?

BRIDGE: I dabble in German and Italian.

COURIER: What nationality are the men in your tug boat crew?

BRIDGE: Most of them are Philippinos but we also have some Egyptians.

COURIER: Have you ever been caught up in any of the political turmoil in the Middle East?

BRIDGE: Only once, when we were challenged by some Israeli gunboats. They thought we were in their waters but after further observation they apologized and let us go.

COURIER: When will you be back in Charlevoix?

BRIDGE: I'll be home for Christmas and anticipate spending next summer with my wife aboard our sailboat, "Gypsy Gin".

COURIER: Does your wife stay at home all the time when you're overseas?

BRIDGE: Yes, we live in the house on Dixon Avenue where I was brought up. She works for Cash Register Exchange.

COURIER: Is your wife a Charlevoix girl?

BRIDGE: No, I met Ginny in Germany. She was a cryptographer for the State Department. We've been married 26 years and she's been a fortress in my life.

COURIER: You were chairman of the Venetian Night boat parade this year, weren't you?

BRIDGE: Yes, and I was glad to help when they asked me. It turned out to be a good parade and I'm hoping the Yacht Club will sponsor it in coming years.

COURIER: You haven't been able to spend much time in Charlevoix in recent years, have you?

BRIDGE: No, I've been gone for most of the last 35 years. However, I have a sincere love for the town and want to help it as much as I can without going into politics.

COURIER: Do you have any relatives other than Ginny in town?

BRIDGE: I was adopted by Robert and Marian Bridge. My mother is in Grandvue but my father has passed away.

COURIER: Do you and Ginny have any children?

BRIDGE: We have two daughters. Gail is a helicopter instructor in the Navy and Debby is a senior at the University of Texas. She's majoring in the humanities and is interested in the welfare of the Chicanos. She wants to be a para legal investigator.

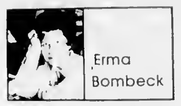
COURIER: What are your hobbies?

BRIDGE: My chief interests are fire trucks, boats, and airplanes, in that order.

COURIER: When are you going to retire and settle down?

BRIDGE: When I have a heart attack. I'm going to sail as long as the good Lord will let me.

If you want to get attention



Erma Bombeck

If you wont to get someone's attention, just say, "Marilyn ate everything she wanted and lost eight pounds in one week."

I've seen it happen. You could whisper it at a wedding and the bride would turn around and say, "Do you retain water?"

You could mention it in a bank where a robbery is in progress and the bandit would ask, "Did she have to give up booze?"

Trust me, those 12 little words could bring a war to a screeching halt.

I have never seen a nation so diet-conscious. I have also never seen Marilyn. She exists only in our minds. I visualize her stuffing pasta in her face, having dessert for breakfast, and setting the alarm to get up and eat throughout the night.

To date, I have a collection of 160 diets which the Mythical Marilyn was supposed to have lost 1,440 pounds on...without feeling the least bit hungry. All are bizarre and surrounded with mystery. Nu une has on explanation os to why these diets work, but if you follow them to the letter, you will lose pounds.

There's the Tropicana diet, where you are restricted to four fruits: peaches, cherries, avocados and grapes. You can eat as much of them as you want... but only the pits!

There's the Progressive Porty Weight Loss diet where Marilyn starts out with an appetizer at one house, the salad course at the next house and another home for the main course. Then you pray your transmission goes before you can get to the house with dessert.

For the woman who has to cook every night for her family, "Marilyn" lost weight on the eat-what-sticks-to-the-sides-of-the-pan-skillet diet. She lust on the Pasta IV diet. She lost on the Hallelujah Junk Food diet and the Cheesecake Everyday during the months when oysters are in season.

At the supermarket the other day I was talking to a friend when another woman who could have been her own partner in a bridge game interrupted our conversation and wanted to know on what aisle the bird seed was on. We told her and she thanked us and said, "Incidentolly, my name is Marilyn Mealy."

I don't care if she drops twenty pounds in a week, I won't do it!

CLF draws 75 at bingo event

A special, free bingo held at the Boyne City American Legion Hall Friday night drew about 75 people from the surrounding area.

The bingo was sponsored by the Brucie (Boyne City) chapter of the Children's Leukemia Foundation of Michigan (CLF) in an effort to interest people in becoming involved in the group. Participants were not charged for playing and all prizes were donated by merchants from Boyne City, Charlevoix and Petoskey.

The event was run by volunteers, all Boyne City residents. Barbara Syfert, a regular bingo worker for the Boyne City Eagles and Lyle Green, Eagles secretary, alternated as caller and floor worker. Fred Gondzar, commander of the city's American Legion post, also helped out as a floor worker.

Other area volunteers included Grace Pratt, Judy Kenyon and daughter Pam plus a number of people from the Boyne Senior Center. Nancy Oakes, chapter president, coordinated the bingo. Her daughter, Brenda and husband, Ken, also helped out.

Midway through the bingo, a short film was shown about the Foundation preceded by a talk with Sylvia Brown, CLF Executive Director who was up from Southfield to attend the function.

By the end of the evening, about 60 prizes had been awarded to bingo winners.

CLF is a United Way agency which serves serious blood disease patients in Michigan, both adults and children. All services are free. The Boyne group was started in 1971 by the Oakes shortly after they lost their son, Brucie to leukemia. For further information, call 582-9772.

SAPPHIRES AMERICAN STYLE

Did you know that the largest proven sapphire deposit in the world is located in our own state of Montana? The mine in Yogo Gulch extends for five miles and is becoming a major producer.

The Yogo Gulch deposit was first discovered by accident in the 1890's. A group of miners happened upon it in their search for gold, at first mistaking the gems crystals for broken bits of glass.

The mine was successfully worked for 30 years and then shut down. It was not until 1977 that serious mining was resumed. About 70,000 tons of rock have been processed since then.

The Yogo deposit is the only one which is still in its place for formation. All other sapphire deposits are alluvial, that is, the gem material broke loose from its host rock through weathering, was washed away into rivers and streams, and was buried beneath sand and debris.

The American Gem Society recently presented to the Smithsonian Institution a collection of jewelry set with American gemstones. The collection was designed by Aldo Cipullo, a famous New York designer and manufactured by top American Gem Society jewelry manufacturers plus a few friends of AGS. Of the 31 pieces in the collection, seven of them contain Montana sapphires.

The AGS American Gemstone Jewelry Collection will be touring the country for two years. Hopefully, it will hit our city so you can see these fine pieces. In the meantime, be sure to come into our store and see the lovely collection of sapphire jewelry we keep in stock.

Rayders 50
Blue Blazers 6

KALKASKA — It was strictly no contest here Friday night as the Charlevoix Red Rayders opened the 1979 football season with an impressive 50-6 triumph over the outmanned Blue Blazers of Kalkaska.

After the first quarter of play, Charlevoix had everything going its way, and there was little Kalkaska could do to stem the tide.

The Blue Blazers grabbed an early 6-0 lead. Then the onslaught began.

The Rayders scored three times in the second quarter. First, Nick Anderson scampered in from the four yard line. Then, Bob Russell went 14 yards. And, with just five seconds remaining before half, sophomore quarterback Scott Kelly passed 38 yards to Mike Zednicek. Scott Morgan kicked two extra points and after the third touchdown he took a bad snap and passed to Gerard Doan for two points. The rout was on as the Rayders went into the locker room with 22-6 lead.

In the third quarter, Kelly went to the air again passing 26 yards to Scott Morgan to make the score 28-6.

With reserves getting a chance to play in the fourth quarter, sophomore running back Jim Buchanan showed the coaching staff that he has a nose for the goalline. Buchanan tallied twice on runs of 17 and three yards. The Rayders also scored on a 34 yard pass from Scott Kerridge to Dave Buday. Morgan kicked two extra points in the quarter and ran for two points.

The Rayders picked up 469 yards in total offense – 290 on the ground and 179 in the air. Russell and Anderson led the ground attack with 75 and 70 yards, respectively. Kelly connected on five of nine passes.

On defense, Jerry Sladek paced the Rayders with four tackles and seven assists.

Charlevoix will host Benzie Central Friday night. The Huskies lost their season opener to Scottville. Overall, teams from the Michigan-Huron Shores split eight non-league contests Friday night.

JV's win opener, 12-0 over Kalkaska

The Rayder junior varsity football team opened its season Thursday with a 12-0 whitewash of Kalkaska.

Charlevoix scored in the second quarter on a one yard plunge by Jeff Morgridge. The touchdown was set up by a 40 yard pass from Mark Morgan to Tim Louiselle.

That same combination of Morgridge to Louiselle accounted for the Rayders second touchdown. This time the play covered 45 yards. Charlevoix missed both point after touchdown attempts.

Coach Hal Evans praised the defensive play of Morgridge, Tim Krueger, Jeff Greene and Bill Ranger after the shutout victory. Freshman dominated action in the fourth quarter and Evans was pleased with the work of Craig Klooster, Todd Oostermyer, Shannon Reynolds and Aaron Dishong.

Boyne Valley Railroad plans two color trips to Petoskey

Two round trips between Boyne City and Petoskey will highlight this year's fall color season for the Boyne Valley Railroad. Operating as a tourist line, the railroad makes regular runs between Boyne City and Boyne Falls throughout the summer and fall. The longer Petoskey trips are being added to the schedule to provide passengers with a greater opportunity to view the changing fall scenery.

The round trips are planned for Saturday, Sept. 29 and Saturday, Oct. 13 during the peak of northern Michigan's autumn color display. Special attractions along the 23-mile route to Petoskey include a natural tunnel of hardwood trees, Boyne Mountain and the hilly scenery through forests of the Boyne River Valley and along the Bear River.

The train will leave Boyne City at 10 a.m. and arrive in Petoskey just before noon. A two-hour layover is planned to allow time for lunch and browsing through Petoskey's many shops before the return trip at 2 p.m. Passengers may ride either one-way or round trip.

The train is pulled by a 1943 45-ton diesel electric engine and features 1913 Pullman-built coaches of special interest to railroad buffs. An open car and a 1906 caboose are used on the shorter regular runs.

Known as the White Pine Line, the railroad takes its name from its early history as a lumbering railroad. Founded in 1893 by the W.H. White Lumber Company, the railroad began with the still existing 7.2 miles of track between Boyne City and Boyne Falls. In 1906 the railroad expanded across the top of Michigan to Alpena and became the Boyne City, Gaylord and Alpena RR, covering a distance of 92 miles. In 1936 it reverted to the original 7.2 miles, but continued as both a freight and passenger line. The tracks between Boyne Falls and Alpena were abandoned, and the name was changed to the Boyne City Railroad.

In 1976 the railroad was auctioned off by its owner, but a group of Boyne City businessmen bought it and renamed it the Boyne Valley Railroad. It is now in it fourth season of operation as a tourist line. Regular runs between Boyne City and Boyne Falls will continue through the color season on weekends only beginning Sept. 22.

Burns recollects lumbering era at historical society meeting

Robert C. Burns related some of his boyhood reminiscences of lumbering in the Charlevoix area and especially in the vicinity of Oyster Bay at the September meeting of the Charlevoix Historical Society.

Burns' father was engaged in sawmill activites when and last of the white pine stands were being cut and cedar was split into shingles. All of the lumber products were shipped by water, in this case, Lake Charlevoix.

Another facet of Oyster Bay history, as related by Burns, has to do with the junking of ships. Many lake vessels, including sail boats, were towed to Oyster Bay in the early days for disposal since it was near Round Lake Harbor and yet out of the busy traffic lanes.

According to Burns, Oyster Bay was so named by the Indians because of the large number of clams that occur along its shores and which furnished the Indians with an important item of food.

As a child, Burns often attended the Methodist Church at Greensky Hill with his mother. It was served by two ministers, a native Indian and a visiting clergyman who preached in English. Expenses of the latter were paid by passing the collection plate. If receipts were not adequate, the plate was simply passed again.

The Charlevoix Historical Society meets on the first Tuesday of each month at 8 p.m. in the Community Room of the First State Bank of Charlevoix.

Evans appointed area rep for American Legion

Gerald E. Evans of Ellsworth is the new lower 11th District committeeman for Michigan's American Legion. Being one of 19 such officers within the state organization, Evans will help coordinate plans and activities of Legion Posts within his locale. Evans is a member of Post 228.

Michigan's American Legion at 75,000 strong, is a part of the overall organization which began more than 60 years ago as a result of a caucus of World War I veterans in Paris, France. It is now recognized as the largest and foremost organization dedicated to the preservation of veterans rights and benefits in the United States. The American Legion, for example, drafted the original World War II G.I. Bill of Rights and has been responsible for the successive updating of those rights for each conflict in which the United States has become involved. Nationally and internationally, The American Legion's total membership nears three-million.

Floyd Genia

Floyd Genia is a full-blooded Ottawa Indian and a native of Charlevoix. He still resides in the area with his wife, Katherine. He has 4 children, 3 of whom are married.

Floyd says he spends most of his time playing "Grandpa" to his 10 grandchildren and the great granddaughter. He loves to garden and spend his weekends "just relaxing".

Floyd is one of the best body work experts you'll find around Charlevoix. He got started in the auto repair business as an auto mechanic when he was in his teens. After some years of hard learning experience, he became Body Shop Manager for Brown Motors of Petoskey and Charlevoix. By the time Brown closed, Floyd had been with them for 17 years.

Floyd's been with Erber Auto for 15 years now and he really knows his stuff. He'll be happy to give you an estimate on body work for your car. And with Floyd smoothing out those dents and rust spots, you know the job will be done right.

Stop by Erber Auto today! You'll be glad you did.

Fox vacates gill net ban

U.S. District Court Judge Noel Fox has vacated a lower court order barring gill net fishing in Grand Traverse Bay.

Fox issued a temporary restraining order Thursday blocking further action by Grand Traverse County Circuit Judge Charles M. Forster. Nearly two weeks ago, Forster issued a temporary restraining order barring gill netting in the bay at the request of the Grand Traverse Area Sport Fishing Association.

Fox said the "problem can only be handled in this court and not in Grand Traverse County."

He added that the "federal court is in a sense a custodian of the rights of Indians and in that position must protect Indian rights."

Sport fishermen claim that Indian gill netting is destroying the Great Lakes fishery. Fox has ruled that Indians can fish the Great Lakes free of state regulation.

The possibility now exists that the Bay Mills and Sault Ste. Marie Chippewas and the U.S. Interior Department might draft new fishing regulations for the Great Lakes. Tribal leaders are expected to submit new conservation rules dealing with protection of the fishery resource to the Interior Department for consideration.

Meanwhile, sport fishermen from throughout Michigan will stage a massive rally in Lansing Sept. 20 to dramatize the crisis.

Dance department added

The addition of a dance department has been announced by James Mitchell, director of the Charlevoix School of Gymnastics with Ann Sullivan as the dance instructor.

Miss Sullivan will be teaching classes in Ballet and Modern for all ages and levels, from pre-school through adult with a special class for Senior citizens.

Registration for these classes will be held in the Charlevoix School of Gymnastics at 203 E. Upright in Charlevoix, Sept. 12-15, Wed.-Fri. 3-5 p.m. and Sat. morning, 9-12. Additional information may be obtained by calling 547-5181.

Miss Sullivan is known in the area as a choreographer and dancer with the Bay View Theatre Arts Department.

During the past summer her choreography for the musical Carousel attracted favorable attention.

She was also on the Bay View faculty as dance instructor.

After majoring in dance at Interlochen Arts Academy, Miss Sullivan continued her studies at Sarah Lawrence College in New York where in addition to studying with a nationally known dance faculty.

She participated in workshops in the Martha Twyla Tharp, and Merce Cunningham techniques.

As a dancer she participated in Jacksonville Festival of the arts, toured with the Alma College Choir in Rumania and with the Interlochen Arts Academy Dancers and danced with the faculty and students at Sarah Lawrence College.

VFW to host School of Instruction

The Charlevoix V.F.W Auxibary will hust the District 13 School of Instruction at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 20, at the post home here.

District officers will be present to conduct the instructions. Named to a committee in charge of the event was Mrs. Jack Warner, chairperson, Mrs. Clareuce Goldstick, Mrs. Dorothy Golding, Mrs. Gerald Burke and Mrs. Thomas Hodgkinson.

A District Service School will be held at Cheboygan Oct. 24 for all members of the V.F.W. post and auxiliary. Veterans having problems or questions as to veteran's benefits, payments or other difficulties are urged to attend the meeting to obtain aid.

The Auxiliary has been supporting the remodeling of the post home. Mrs. Kenneth Staley of the Auxiliary Building Committee was authorized to purchase new screen windows and doors and storm doors for the building.

Members were advised by the president, Mrs. Goldstick, that dues are not payable and may be mailed to Mrs. Goldstick or to Mrs. Donald Whote, RR 2, Loen Rd.

Plans were also made for the Oct. 4 meeting to be held at the post hume and hosted by Mrs. Russell Dohn and Shelly Warner.

All members are asked to bring small gifts for male patients who are veterans at the Traverse City Hospital to the Oct. 4 and Oct. 18 meetings. Mrs. Melvin Plum has offered to transport the gifts to Traverse City.

In other business transacted the group approved donations to be sent to the VA Hospital at Battle Creek for indigent patients Christmas party; Mrs. Keith Wagner reported on the success of Flea Markets held each Friday during the summer at the post home. The practice will be continued next summer; Those present voted to send $136 to the Department for the Cancer quota. Cancer insurance is included in the insurance paid by each member; The president acknowledged the success of the bingo concessions and thanked all those who assisted.

The Auxiliary is continuing to collect Coca Cola product caps for the Auxiliary cancer campaign and Hills Brothers coffee can covers bearing the code mark. These can be turned in to Auxiliary members or at meetings.

Mrs. Dorothy Gelding was accepted as a new member She has transferred her membership from Auxiliary No. 2406 Charlotte.

Mrs. Burke and Mrs. Eugene Gibelyou were hostesses at the recent meeting.

Plans discussed

Three prospective pledges joined members of the Kappa Sigma chapter of Beta Sigma Phi at the sorority's Opening Day luncheon, held recently at Leutheuser's restaurant.

President Mary Lou Smith welcomed the group and discussed plans for the coming year.

The first regular meeting of the sorority was held later at the home of Jackie Smiegiel.

Environmental health fee schedule adopted

District Health Department No. 3, which encompasses the counties of Charlevoix, Antrim, Emmet, and Otsego, has adopted a new Environmental Health Fee schedule which will become effective October 1.

According to the Health Department, the new fees were adopted in accordance with the principle that in the case of environmental health licenses and permits, both the general public and the individual permit holder benefit from the services relating to the permit, and that both should share in the cost of the permit.

The Health Department further reports that in all cases the new fee approximates 50 percent of the estimated cost of the respective environmental health service.

The new schedule is as follows:

On-site sewage (residential), $40; on-site sewage (commercial), $40 first 2,000 gallons plus $25 each additional 1,000 gallons.

Well permit, $10.

Subdivisions, $300 plus $5 per lot over 25.

Annual food license, $65.

Temporary food license, $15.

Property evaluations, single family residential, one parcel-one home site, $45; one parcel-multiple home sites, $45 plus $15 per additional site.

Commercial and multiple dwelling developments, $50 per site.

Pre-preliminary plat evaluations, $100.

FHA and VA evaluations, $45; water only, $10.

Council Adjourned

Deanne Balch, City Clerk — Samuel C. Supernaw, Mayor

SEPTEMBER 4, 1979

BOARD OF APPEALS

The Board of Appeals convened with Councilmen Wood, Muma, Whitley, Porter, Timms and Roloff present. Absent: None.

The Board discussed a request for a variance to reduce the required side yard setback on the north side of Lake House Condominium on Pine River Lane from 40 feet to 25 feet as requested by John Hisey, developer of the project, to allow construction of six garages. Mayor Supernaw read two letters from property owners living within 300 feet of the development, objecting to the variance being granted. Cem Olach, a member of the City Planning Commission was present and stated the Planning Commission had recommended approval of the variance due to the extreme weather conditions in the City and the fact that, under the present Zoning Ordinance, the Planning Commission felt carports would be allowed without a variance and that the garages would be less objectionable.

Moved by Councilman Whitley and supported by Councilman Timms that the required side yard setback on the north side of the Lake House Condominium project on Pine River Lane be reduced from 40 feet to 25 feet.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmen Muma, Whitley, Porter and Timms. Nays: Councilmen Wood and Roloff. Absent: None.

The Board of Appeals adjourned.

Deanne Balch, City Clerk — Samuel C. Supernaw, Mayor

Anniversaries

Mr. and Mrs. Potter

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Potter celebrated their 62nd wedding anniversary Friday, Sept. 7.

The Potter children hosted a dinner at the Barnard Methodist Church Sunday, Sept. 2 for the couple. Approximately 100 guests attended.

Vets should have information packet

Veterans of all ages should have an "information packet for survivors" filed with their important papers the Veterans Administration suggests.

In the event of accident, severe illness or death this information could speed assistance to the veteran or his or her survivors.

Information which a veteran should have compiled on one card include: Full name...as used in service; service serial number; Social Security number; VA Claim number, if any; branch of service in which he or she served and dates of service. A veteran's discharge should be kept together with a copy of his or her will, insurance policies, marriage certificates and other important documents.

There are many benefits available to veterans which may be provided quickly if proper information is available. In the case of accident or illness relatives would need such information should the veteran require hospitalization.

In case of death, benefits include a burial and plot allowance of $450; a flag for the service and a headstone for the grave.

Veterans with other than dishonorable discharges are eligible for all death benefits. Keeping such information and documents in one place are also helpful in filing for Social Security benefits.

When the VA is informed of a veteran's death, if there is government insurance in force the VA notifies the beneficiary automatically. All other benefits must be applied for.

Information about a veteran's service makes it easier for those who must apply for benefits. Both young and old will provide this assistance by storing pertinent service information in one place.

Any Veterans Administration office, veteran's service organization (American Legion, V.F.W. or other service-connected organizations) or county service officer will provide information and help on death benefits.

In Charlevoix County the County Veteran's Counselor is Ronal Geer whose office is in the city building and is open Tuesday and Friday.

Weddings

Vendrely-DeYoung

A double-ring ceremony Sept. 1 in Leo, Ind. united Renee Vendrely and Randy DeYoung, both of Charlevoix.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Vendrely of Leo, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold DeYoung of Charlevoix.

The Reverend Ray Erb of the North Leo Mennonite Church performed the early evening ceremony which included traditional organ music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown fashioned of white organza over white taffeta with white silk Venise lace. The floor-length A-line skirt was bordered with lace and the top featured Queen Ann Bishop sleeves. The Watteau chapel-length train and finger-tip veil were also lace-trimmed.

Jodi Block assisted the bride as maid of honor, while Jan Reichenbach, Terri Novotny, and Vicki Mester served as bridesmaids. Colyn DeYoung was flower girl.

The adult attendants wure gowns of baby blue taffeta with a flowered overlay of the same color. The flower girl wore a white eyelet dress with a baby blue sash.

Joe Jones served as best man, and Clay Jones, Bob DeYoung, and Patrick Vendrely were groomsmen.

Douglas Vendrely and Nick DeYoung helped to seat the guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold DeYoung hosted the rehearsal dinner in Fort Wayne at noon on the wedding day, and a week later a reception at the Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club.

The newlyweds will live at 1006 Bridge St., Charlevoix. Randy DeYoung operates an auto repair shop in Charlevoix.

Obituaries

LEONARD LICK

BOYNE FALLS — Funeral services for Leonard L. Lick, 68, of Boyne Falls, father of Mrs. Edwin Mann, were held Tuesday at Christ Lutheran church in Boyne City with the Rev. Douglas Janetzke officiating. Internment was in Boyne Valley cemetery.

Mr. Lick died Sept. 1 at Beverly Manor Convalescent Home.

Born in Cook County, Ill., July 3, 1911, Mr. Lick moved to Boyne Falls in 1916 and was graduated from the Boyne Falls high school in 1929. On June 10, 1933, he was married to the former Sadie Howard at Boyne City. They owned and operated a farm in Wilson Township. Mr. Lick was also employed for 10 years as a machinist at Beaver Prescision in Royal Oak and later at Morweld Steel in Ellsworth.

Besides his wife, he is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Edwin (Judy) Mann of Charlevoix; three sons, Leonard J. of Traverse City, Robert of Tulsa, Okla., and Douglas station at Minot, N.D., with the U.S. Air Force; 13 grandchildren; three great-grandchildren; a brother, William of Boyne City and two sisters, Mrs. Henry Braunz of Boyne City and Mrs. Floyd DeNise of Boyne Falls.

The Stackus Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

EDITH ALMASHY

Funeral services for a former resident, Mrs. Alex Almashy, 66, the former Edith E. (Betty) Loskot, were held Saturday at the Winchester Funeral Home. The Rev. Raymond Giffin of the First Congregational Church officiated. Interment was in Brookside Cemetery.

Mrs. Almashy was dead on arrival at Little Traverse Hospital in Petoskey Thursday after suffering an apparent heart attack at her home in Conway.

Mrs. Almashy was born in Charlevoix April 24, 1913, and went to Detroit as a young woman. She was married there on Feb. 16, 1935, to Mr. Almashy. They made their home there until moving to Conway in 1973.

Besides her husband, she is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Michael (Kathy) Griffin, of Conway; two grandchildren; one sister, Beverly Loskot of Conway and a brother, John Loskot, of Baker, Calif.

PHILIP BURKE

ST. JAMES, Beaver Island — Funeral for Philip L. (Don) Burke, 63, who died Friday at the Charlevoix Area Hospital several hours after he had been admitted, were held Tuesday at Holy Cross Church. The Rev. Gabriel Fox, O.F.M., officiated. Interment will be in Holy Cross Cemetery.

The Rosary was recited at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix Sunday evening and at Holy Cross Church Monday evening.

Mr. Burke was born on Beaver Island March 26, 1916, and as adult became a Great Lakes sailor for U.S. Steel. At the time of his death he was wheelsman on the carrier, B.F. Affleck, whose homeport was Duluth. He was home on leave from his employment at the time he was stricken and flown to the mainland for treatment. He was a member of Holy Cross Church and Local No. 5000, U.S. Steel Workers.

He is survived by his wife, the former Florence E. Rolland whom he married at Ludington on Jan. 25, 1958; one brother, Patrick of Ludington, and nieces and nephews.

Return to simplicity

Although literarily speaking, we live in a relatively diverse time, sensationalism reigns.

The media enjoys itself, I think, with tongue in cheek, as it employs shock technique against shock technique, until, even as readers, we have gotten to the point of demanding to be entertained in the extreme. If there is one merit-quality peculiar to contemporary American literature it is that it has served to wake up our senses. In the realm of science fiction, the supernatural, the sexual, the mysterious & the absurd, the titillation is there for the choosing.

It is in the return to simplicity, however, that many of us seek refuge when turned loose in our favorite book store. And perhaps that's what drew me to a golden oldie (1955) by Anne Morrow Lindbergh. Gift From The Sea.

Actually it all started with a gift book, Beautiful Swimmers, 1977 Pulitzer Prize winner by William W. Warner. Marvelling in the paradox of the intricate simplicity of marine nature is not exactly what we current readers have been primed for. But I found myself engrossed in the lives and loves of the Chesapeake Bay blue crab before long and wondered if it wasn't just because I am a descedent of a Deal Island waterman.

I suspect that the real reason why Beautiful Swimmers is a Pulitzer Prize winner and that books like The Medusa and the Snail are currently on the New York Times Best Seller list has more to do with having a common denominator of success. Beyond biological research and a fine literary style, they attempt a return to the simplicity which still exists despite all man's contrivances to the contrary.

Gift from the Sea is a philosophical little book in which Anne Lindburgh concludes that: "One should lie empty, open, choiceless as a beach – waiting for a gift from the sea."

And so, we become for a moment a recluse with the author, retreating to the solilitary beach house with few material comforts and a renewed appreciation for the natural world. There was the beach-like receptiveness to be learned from the sea, and lessons tacitly taught by simple perfect shells. We observed the solitude of the moonshell: "You will remind me that I must try to be alone ... to keep my core, my center, my island quality ... that woman must be still as the axis of a wheel in the midst of her activities."

There were other shells and other lessons that summer for Anne Lindburgh which she used to sort out her hectic life and in achieving her "own individual balance of life work and human relationships," then passed along to us.

Among those echoes from the sea which spoke of patience, faith, openness, simplicity, solitude and intermittency, I, as a reader, found a break in the entertainment syndrome, and in turn, the gift of time for reflection.

Anne Kelly is a columnist for the Charlevoix Courier.

Cooking classes offered

Beginning Chinese cooking classes, sponsored by the Family Living Education Program of Emmet County Cooperative Extension Service and featuring Val Sterzik a graduate of Pei Mei's Chinese Cooking School will be held in September.

Six classes will be held on consecutive Tuesdays and Thursdays at the 4-H Center in Petoskey beginning on Tuesday, Sept. 18. A Tuesday a.m. or p.m. class, or a Thursday a.m. or p.m. class may be selected. Class limits are 15 students. The $25 fee will cover cost of food supplies and instructional materials. The $25 fee must accompany the registration.

Registration forms are available at the Cooperative Extension Service, County Building, Petoskey.

For further information, or if you have any questions, please call Julie Micheal, Extension Home Economist, at 347-2596.

Names In The News

Airman First Class KEITH A. HEENES, son of Marilyn Ayers of Ellsworth, has arrived for duty at Zweibrucken, West Germany.

Airman Heenes, a communications maintenance specialist, was previously assigned at Wurtsmith Air Force Base in Michigan. He is now serving with a unit of the United States Air Force in Europe.

The airman is a 1976 graduate of Ellsworth Community High School.

His father, Harold Heencs, resides in East Jordan.

KENNETH WHITLEY has been named to the Charlevoix House Board of Directors. Whitley is co-owner of Whitley Floor Covering.

Also on the board are: JOE MORRIS, president; KATE SMITH, vice president; and HELEN EMMONS, secretary-treasurer.

Navy Seaman JEFFREY O. MONROE, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Monroe, East Jordan, has completed recruit training at the Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill.

During the eight-week training cycle, he studied general milltary subjects designed to prepare him for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 basic occupational fields.

Included in his studies were seamanship, close-order drill, Naval history and first aid. Personnel who complete this course of instruction are eligible for three hours of college credit in physical education and hygiene.

A 1979 graduate of Central Lake Public High School. He joined the Navy in June 1979.

CHARLES RICH of the DNR reports that bass fishing on Lake Charlevoix is poor at this time. But, he added, salmon fishing is starting to pick-up off Charlevoix, averaging two to six fish per boat in 83 feet of water. Best success, he said, has been on the 'J' plug type lures. A few fishermen are having light success on the pier at Charlevoix in the early morning and late evening. There is no salmon activity yet in Petoskey.

Rich says applications for antcrless deer permits must be in to Lansing by Sept. 30. He added that permits for the special northern Lower Peninsula bear season are being issued on a first come, first serve basis by Lansing Wildlife Division. Instructions for applying are available at district DNR offices.

Rich said that there has been a dramatic increase in the number of persons looking for firewood on state land. Rich reminds firewood hunters that a free permit - available at local DNR offices - is required to gather wood from state land.

Council agrees to buy into Consumers coal plant

The Charlevoix City Council Monday night agreed to purchase two megawatts of power from Consumers Power Company's coal fired Campbell No. 3 plant.

The Campbell plant, located near Port Sheldon, is expected to be in operation by September, 1980.

Council has also indicated a desire to purchase three megawatts of Detroit Edison's coal fired plant at Belle River and three megawatts of its Fermi nuclear plant near Monroe. However, a decision to purchase power from those two plants will come at a later date.

Charlevoix is one of 18 cities belonging to the Michigan Pubbe Power Agency (MPPA). Officials from the cities are currently trying to decide how they can most economically provide power to their residents in the future.

Because of an anti-trust suit against Consumers, Charlevoix can now purchase a portion of all Consumers plants brought on line until the year 2000. Through the MPPA, the city is negotiating with Detroit Edison for that same consideration.

As part of the settlement with Consumers, if the city purchased more capacity than it needed, it could sell back the excess. At present, Detroit Edison is not offering a sell back provision.

Daverman Associates, who conducted a power needs assessment for the city, recommended Charlevoix purchase two megawatts in each of the Detroit Edison plants and two megawatts in both the Consumers Campbell plant and Midland nuclear plant. Council, however, shied away from the Midland plant because of construction problems. Instead, council plans to purchase an additional megawatt in Belle River and Fermi.

Daverman's report to council indicated the city's load requirement by 1990 would be 10 megawatts. But the report recommended the city purchase eight megawatts at this time just in case the projected load growth does not match the forecast.

Presently, the city purchases power on a wholesale basis from Consumers.

In other action, council:

- Discussed Douglas Bathey's request for a multiple housing development off Belvedere Avenue on Round Lake.

Bathey originally requested to build a 13 unit development. At the time he presented his plans for the property, the land was zoned marine industrial. Since, however, it has been rezoned to marine commereial.

Robert Steadman, representing Bathey, asked council to let the development continue since council originally approved the plans prior to the rezoning (land was rezoned when city zoning ordinance went into effect).

Tom Duke argued that a rezoning would be needed to allow for multiple housing on the site. Previously, the planning commission denied rezoning the property to R-4, which would have allowed multiple housing. Duke asked council not to give the developer the go ahead until a pubbc hearing on the request could be held.

Ivan Whitley made a motion to approve the development (as prosposed two years ago) subject to final site plan approval. The motion, however, died because of lack of support. Council finally agreed to discuss the issue again at its workshop meeting Monday night.

- Appointed Frank Hoffman as city attorney. Hoffman is presently the assistant proseeuting attorney for Charlevoix County.
- Increased mileage pay for city travel from 15 cents to 20 cents per mile.
- Renewed a one year contract with the Coast Guard to allow for dockage of the Sundew. The contract expires Sept. 30, 1980
- Approved a site plan for Charlevoix Graphics on U.S.-31 South.
- Recommended that a request for a zoning change at 1002 Bridge Street be brought to the planning commission. The owners are asking for a C-1 (commereial) designation. It is now zoned PO (professional office).

Larry Wallace dies in accident

Lawrence C. Wallace, 50, died late Wednesday at the Charlevoix Area Hospital as the result of multiple injuries received in a one-car accident on M-66 southeast of here at 9 p.m. Sept. 12.

According to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Deputies, Wallace was traveling south when his car went out of control on a curve on M-66 and Ranney Road, skidded across the highway and struck a utibty pole.

He was taken via ambulance to the Charlevoix Area Hospital where he died a short time later.

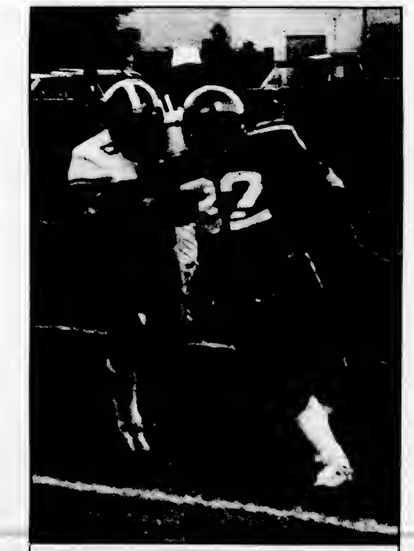
Funeral services for Mr. Wallace were held at the Winchester Funeral Home at 2 p.m. Saturday. The Rev. Raymond Giffin of the First Congregational Church will officiate. Interment was in Morehouse cemetery in Echo Township, Antrim County.

Born in Chicago July 18, 1929, Mr. Wallace later lived in Kansas and again in Chicago before coming to Charlevoix in 1960. In 1962 he was married to the former Jeannine Loop. They always resided here. He was a veteran of service in the U.S. Marine Corps from 1947 to 1950. At the time of his death he was associated with Charlevoix Properties Realty Firm.

He was a member of First Congregational Church and a charter member of the Charlevoix Lions Club and a former charter member of the Charlevoix Flying Club and the Charlevoix Yacht Club.

Besides his wife, he is survived by two daughters, Maurine A. of Petoskey and Rebecca Jane, at home; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Wallace of East Jordan and a sister, Mrs. Donald (Betty Jane) Melland of McPherson, Kans.

The family suggests memorials to the Arthritis Foundation to those persons who might wish to honor his memory.



Bob Russell rushed for 260 yards Friday night as Charlevoix blanked Benzie Central 28-0. Russell's performance helped the Rayders garner a No. 6 ranking in UPI's Class C Poll this week.

Protestors plead no contest

Ten members of the "Big Rock 14" pled no contest Tuesday to charges of trespassing at Big Rock Point on Dec. 2.

The 14 were arrested when they refused to leave the site during an anti-nuclear power rally.

The 10 who appeared before District Court Judge David Fershee received a $100 fine or 10 days in jail sentence.

Senteneed Tuesday were Theresa Hubbard, Jay Hoover, Charles Will, Harry Moldenhauer, George Kframis, Thomas Vanhamman, Katherine Tracy, Steve Grose, Timothy Ransom and Patrick Barnett. One of the 14 - Michael Pryde - appeared in court in August. He received the same sentence. John Navin, Pamela Peterson and William Prenzler are expected to enter no contest pleas in court later this month.

James Olson, attorney for the "Big Rock 14", said the case will be appealed. Olson contends the group's action (trespassing) is justified because trespassing is of lesser harm than nuclear power. Fershee denied this defense in District Court, refusing to focus the trial on nuclear safety.

"The big question mark - the thing we're really struggbng with - is where does this question get answered?" Olson asked.

Severa, the 10 who were sentenced Tuesday made statements in court.

"Nuclear power is dangerous," said Hoover. "I don't think I did anything wrong."

Ransom said "Big Rock is the most dangerous plant in the country." He said the group could not get "a fair trial" unless the nuclear safety question could be addressed.

"It's not us that's on trial," Barnett said. "It's nuclear power.

"Those who say the issue is too complex are wrong...very wrong...they are making a grievous mistake."

The plant was shut down in February for refueling and repairs.

"If they try to fire it up again they'll have to move some bodies first," said one group member.

Time to return library books

The Charlevoix Public Library is having a "free time" to return all past due library books.

From now until Oct. 13 you may return any overdue book without paying a fine. Library officials ask that you "check your bookshelves and look under the furniture."

Library officials will be "very happy" to have any lost book returned to the fold.

Suit filed over concert dispute

The summer rock concerts at the Castle Farms Music Theatre might be over, but the theatre's legal battles continue.

The latest squabble concerns an alleged breach of contract over a Styx concert that was scheduled for Sunday, Sept. 2.

According to a suit filed in Charlevoix Circuit Court by Castle Farms Music Theatre and Pyramid Productions, an agreement was reached "on or about June 18" for the Styx concert. The group was to receive $25,000 or 85 percent of the gross box office receipts after expenses, whichever was greater.

However "on or about Aug. 31," the suit claims, Derek Sutton, a representative for Orpheus, Inc., advised Brad Parsons of Pyramid Productions by telephone that Styx would not appear. Orpheus, Inc., Sutton and Tommy Shaw et al are named as defendants in the suit.

Castle Farms and Pyramid Productions are asking for $3,500,000 in damages plus costs and attorney fees.

Meanwhile, a suit filed last year by the Statler Brothers against Castle Farms is scheduled to go to trial June 24, 1980. Originally, it was to go to trial last month.

In that suit the Statler Brothers claim they were guaranteed $15,000 or 60 percent of the gross ticket sales, whichever greater, for an Aug. 19, 1978 concert. The suit contends that payment was to be made "upon demand on the day of the show."

According to testimony by Art Reibel of Castle Farms, the concert was cancelled Aug. 17 because a sufficient number of tickets were not sold to warrant the concert. Reibel said he agreed to compensation only in the event the concert was, in fact, "accomplished."

The Statler Brothers claim that due to the late notice of cancellation they were unable to make alternative plans for that date. And, in fact, "went to Castle Farms at 6 p.m. on Aug. 19 prepared to play." After arriving at Castle Farms, the Statler Brothers "demanded" to be paid. Reibel refused.

According to Patty Muma, who worked at Castle Farms at the time, the Statler Brothers did show up at Castle Farms on Aug. 19, but she added, they were not ready to perform. She claims they had no instruments or supporting cast with them and that the opening act was not even in the state. She said she had notified an agent for the Statler Brothers of the lagging ticket sales in early August.

Reibel claims that he "had the sole and exclusive right to cancel the concert in the event that sufficient ticket sales did not warrant the concert."

He added the "parties agreed that in no event was a talent fee guaranteed."

The Statler Brothers are asking for $15,000 plus six percent interest, costs and attorney fees. They are being represented by Richard Scholl.

Bids opened on school addition

Bids for the $700,000 addition to the Charlevoix High School were opened Monday by the Charlevoix Board of Education.

The base bid submitted by the Petric Construction Co. of East Jordan - $555,900 - was the lowest of four received. However, the bid will not be officially awarded until the architects, Manson Jackson & Kane of Lansing, have analyzed the bid. Nevertbless, it is anticipated that the bid will be awarded to the firm which is presently building the addition to the Grandvue Medical Care Facibty.

Haggard Plumbing and Heating of Charlevoix are sub-contractors of the mechanical phase of the project and Bellows Electric of Charlevoix for the electrical work.

In addition to the base bid the board and the building committee had several options or alternates. After the opening of the bids and hearing from William Kane of Manson Jackson and Kane, the building committee advised accepting the bids for the installation of corridor lockers ($3,400); providing for future air conditioning ($18,500) which would result in having the entire system insulated and to provide for future air conditioning on the exterior area of the addition ($25,100).

This would make it possible to add air conditioning in the center section and/or the exterior section at some future date should it be needed. Kane explained that it would be much less expensive to do this now than add it later.

Retired florist dies

Funeral Services for Frank J. Novotny, 75, retired florist, will be held at the Winchester Funeral Home at 3 p.m. Wednesday. Graveside services will be conducted at Brookside Cemetery by Charlevoix Lodge No. 282, F & A.M.

Mr. Novotny died unexpectedly Sunday while on a fishing expedition near Elliott Lake, Ont.

Born in Charlevoix Feb. 12, 1904, Mr. Novotny was always associated with the florist business. He was with Edwards' Florists for many years. In 1953 he established Frank's Flowers which he operated until he retired in 1968. He was a World War II veteran having served in the U.S. Air Force.

He was a member of the First Congregational Church; a member and past master of Charlevoix Lodge No. 282, F. & A.M., a life member of the Charlevoix Area Historical Society, past president of the Little Traverse Florists Association, former District Representative of the F.T.D. Association and was an ardent hunter and fisherman.

In 1926 he was married to the former Florence Holland who preceded him in death in 1949. In 1952 he was married to the former Mrs. Jeanette Abfalter.

Besides his wife, he is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Sharon Harwood of Saginaw; a step-son, Jack Abfalter of Elk Rapids; six grandchildren; four great-grandchildren and one sister, Mrs. Clifford Yahr of Bay Shore.

Friends may call at the Winchester Funeral Home after 7 p.m. Tuesday.

Mini-Sessions Monday

On Monday, Sept. 24, the staff of Charlevoix High School will be hosting "Mini-Sessions" for parents from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. The purpose of the program is to introduce parents to both the daily schedule of their children and to the teachers of these students at Charlevoix High School.

The time schedule is as follows:

Coffee in Cafeteria	6:45 p.m. to 6:55 p.m.

Mini Sessions
1st Hour	7 p.m. to 7:15 p.m.
2nd Hour	7:20 p.m. to 7:35 p.m.
3rd Hour	7:40 p.m. to 7:55 p.m.
4th Hour	7 p.m. to 8:15 p.m.
5th Hour	8:20 p.m. to 8:35 p.m.
6th Hour	8:40 p.m. to 8:55 p.m.
Individual Conferences	9 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.

The "individual conference time" will give parents the opportunity to see a teacher of their choice.

Outbreak of flu, lice and scabies in East Jordan

The East Jordan Family Health Center in cooperation with District Health Department No. 3 and the State Health Department is trying to isolate a virus that has caused a recent outbreak of the flu.

The symptons of this type of flu are varied, including: low-grade fever, severe headache, diarrhea, abdominal cramps, vomiting, as well as muscle aches and general fatigue. The course of this illness is anywhere from three to five days.

Residents in the area are advised to see their physicians if they are suffering from any of the above symptons or have family members who are.

If your physician finds that you do indeed have the symptons of this type of influenza, patients may be sent to the East Jordan Family Health Center where they will have blood drawn and a throat culture done at the time of their illness and then a repeat a blood sample drawn two weeks after their illness. These samples will then be sent to the State Health Department and several tests will be done in an attempt to identify this type of virus.

The health center is also trying to notify residents in the East Jordan area that several cases of lice and scabics have been reported.

Both of these conditions are very contagious, officials say, and can cause children to miss school and various activities because of spreading the lice and scabies to other children.

The symptons of lice are a very itchy scalp, at which time if the parents look at the scalp and the hair shafts they will notice little white particles on the hair shafts and possibly small bugs crawling through the scalp. These white particles on the hair shafts can be differentiated from simple dandruff in that they cannot be removed by just pulling or wiping the whiteness off the hair.

The symptons of scabics are again body itching, however, this is often greatly intensified at night. The lesions of scabies look like small red dots, usually on the trunk and extremities. It is seldom seen on the face.

If anyone is suspicious of their children or family members having lice or scabies they should call the office before bringing or family members to a doctor's office, as this will prevent further spreading.

Hufford elected to bank board

Walter J. Hufford has been elected to the Charlevoix County State Bank Board of Directors.

Hufford was unanimously elected at the board's Sept. 10 meeting.

Hufford was born in Petoskey and moved to Charlevoix with his wife, Anna, and four children in 1966.

He attended Grand Rapids Jr. College and North Central Michigan College and is a U.S. Army veteran.

Hufford is vice president-treasurer of Hufford Industries, Inc. and vice president of Charlevoix Products. He is also affiliated with the following organizations:

President of the Northwestern Michigan Industrial Association.
Past president and director of the Charlevoix Lions Club.
Past master of Charlevoix Lodge No. 282 F & AM.
Dewitt Clinton Consistory of Scottish Rite Bodies.
Saladin Shrine A.A.O.N.M.S. of Grand Rapids.
Charlevoix Chapter No. 72 Order of Eastern Star - past patron.
Charlevoix Flying Club - past president.

Women's Club to have open house

All Charlevoix area women are invited by the Charlevoix Women's Club to attend a membership coffee and open house on Thursday, Sept. 20, from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Joseph G. Morris, Jr., 513 Belvedere Club.

The coffee is an annual event to welcome new members to the club. A community-oriented organization, the Women's Club contributes to several local organizations from funds derived from its $5 membership fee and proceeds from its annul Book Sale.

Last year, donations totaling $750 went to the Charlevoix Area Hospital for its library, the Women's Resource Center, and the Charlevoix Park Stage project.

The welcoming hostesses at the open house will be Mrs. Joseph G. Morris, Jr., past president, and the new executive board consisting of Mrs. Robert J. Murray, president; Mrs. Donald Farrell, first vice-president; Mrs. Gerald Muma, second vice-president; Mrs. Bruce Hartlett, third vice-president; Mrs. Florence Wojan, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Clifford Biddick, recording secretary; Mrs. Mary M. Bruce, treasurer; and Mrs. Erwin R. Reibel, past president.

Bloodmobile draws 96 donors here

The Red Cross Bloodmobile received blood from 96 donors during its recent visit here, Mrs. David Fowler reported.

A total of 102 persons responded to the request for donors. Six were deferred for various reasons.

The quota for the Bloodmubile had been set at 125 pints.

"While Charlevoix did not meet its quota, we appreciate the response and hope it will be better when the Bloodmobile returns to the community in January," Mrs. Fowler said.

Among the donors were several "veterans" including Paul LaFrenicre and Herbert Dishong who made their 41st donations; Mrs. Gladys Coen, her 38th; Melvin Thayer, his 35th; James Jinsky, his 26th; Mrs. Monie Dziedzic, her 23rd; and Steve Boner, his 20th.

Mrs. Fowler expressed the committee's appreciation not only to the donors but to the many people who assisted during the time the Bloodmobile was here.

Influence public TV at forum Sunday

Maybe you can't influence the Nielson ratings, but you can influence public television.

Viewers of Central Michigan University's public television stations, WCMU-TV and WCML-TV, will have that opportunity through a series of regional forums being held throughout the state this fall.

Two meetings are scheduled for this area - in Petoskey on Sept. 22 and Charlevoix on Sept. 23. The Petoskey meeting will be held at 10 a.m. at the Holiday Inn. The Charlevoix meeting will begin at 3 p.m. at the Weathervane Inn. Both meetings are open to the public.

The open forums are part of a project to assess the desira for humanistic programming in central and northern lower Michigan. The project is made possible through a $19,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

The humanities are fields of study which examine history, culture and human values.

CMU public television plans to use the community input from the open forums to plan future humanities programming.

Other open forums will be scheduled in September and October in Alma, Cheboygan, Gaylord, Grayling, Harrison, Midland, Mt. Pleasant, Rogers City, St. Ignace and Traverse City.

Attention students!

Attention seniors (and their parents, too)!

This year Charlevoix High School is requesting that all seniors turn two wallet size pictures into the high school office by Dec. 1.

One picture will be for the yearbook and one for the senior issue of the Charlevoix Courier.

If pictures have not been turned in by Dec. 1, they will not appear in the 1980 edition of the Ryder yearbook, school officials say.

School pictures for students of Charlevoix Public Schools and St. Mary's School will be taken on the following dates:

Wednesday - Sept. 19 Charlevoix High School
Wednesday - Sept. 19 St. Mary's School
Thursday - Sept. 20 - Charlevoix Elementary (K-5—
Monday - Sept. 24 - Charlevoix Middle School.

This year parents and students will be offered a choice of three package plans. Students will be bringing home information sheets listing the content of the three packages and their prices. A pay envelope is provided for payment which must be made at the time that the pictures are taken.

People are tired of taxation, taxation and taxation

The Honorable Ralph Oelling
Michigan House of Representatives
Box 30014
Lansing, Michigan 48909

Sir:

Thank you for bringing to our attention yet another irresponsible action being contemplated by the House Taxation Committee...a ten cent tax on checks, money orders, etc., purportedly to help pay for the home heating assistance program.

1. Your constituents are tired of taxation, taxation, and more taxation.

2. This tax would be regressive – the lower and middle income family writes close to as many checks as a high income family, each has similar bills; rent or house payment, utilities, perhaps Sears, etc. The size of the check written by the high income family will probably be much larger, but the tax would be the same ten cents each, thus being a large percentage to a lower income family. Note also that on a $100/week paycheck the tax is .1% on a $400/week paycheck it is only .025%...paid by the wage earner!

3. While the tax has the advantage of being hidden, it has the disadvantage of requiring new reporting and collection...I doubt if the heating assistance program can possibly hope to distribute a net of more than five or six cents per check after costs of administering both programs.

4. The costs to individuals will greatly exceed the ten cents proposed because of the added costs of reporting.

5. Business would have to be exempted, if the Governor and the Legislature are to keep their promise that the Single, note: Single, Business Tax would replace the multitude of nuisance taxes imposed on business; yet business probably receives the majority of checks written.

6. It is proposed it be paid by the recipient, which means the State would take away yet another ten cents from each weeks pay...already the State takes more from most of our production employees than does the Federal Government (not including the Social Insecurity Tax). Does the House Taxation Committee suggest paying employees once a year to save them $5.10/year?

Please convey my disgust to the Committee. I am sure that in your travels among your constituents you have found that most agree: Let's cut government and then cut taxes. We overwhelmingly voted that way last year, and it is regretful that the Legislature has tried to find ways around that mandate instead of listening to the voice of the people.

I am also forced to ask how on earth did the Legislature pass the Home Heating Assistance Program if it did not already have the funds available?

Sincerely,
LEXALITE INTERNATIONAL CORPORATION
J.T. Barnes
President

The time to speak up is now

EDITOR:

In response to Mr. Ralph Doan Sr. letter concerning the meeting held at the Charlevoix City Hall with Consumers Power Co. and a concerned citizens group:

I also attended this meeting and found it most informative. Although I am no longer a city resident, I am a tax paying property owner in Charlevoix County and reside nearby in Antrim County.

It was obvious to me, that the area citizens who are truly concerned and interested in the question of Big Rock Point expanding their supply of spent fuel rods, attended the meeting and voiced their opinions. If there are any individuals, city residents or otherwise, who are in favor of Consumers request, I ask, where were they, the night of the meeting?

You refer to "outsiders" and stated in your letter that "the residents of the City of Charlevoix are independent and self reliant enough to make their own decisions." But, I ask you Mr. Doan, and all concerned citizens of the City of Charlevoix, are you prepared to take on the full responsibility in the event of an accident? May I enlighten you to the fact that nuclear radiation is "unaware" of city boundries. The Big Rock Point power plant affects not only Charlevoix residents, but thousands of others. I quote an article published by the Southwest Research and Information Center, titled, THE 10 MOST DANGEROUS U.S. NUCLEAR PLANTS; "According to Nuclear Regulatory (NRC) estimates, a major atomic incident-a core melt down-could release enough radioactivity to contaminate 100,000 square miles, killing 50,000 people, and injuring 100,000 or more." I ask you why the city residents alone, should make this critical decisiun, when thousands of people in neighboring cummunities are affected by the outcome? I also point out that the Big Rock Point plant was rated the most dangerous U.S. nuclear power plant, according to this publication.

I applaud Dr. Drnke and Mr. Olson, and the other concerned citizens in the area, who took the time to attend this meeting and voice their strong stand against nuclear power. I would hope to see many more area citizens at the next meeting, voicing their pro or con opinions on this all important issue, before we no longer have a choice. The time to speak up is now!!!

All men created equal - or are they?

A great man once said that all men are created equal; I guess that goes for all Americans, right? Except now for a certain amount of people in the State of Michigan that no longer holds true.

A federal order now divides that and has given a group of Native Americans unlimited fishing rights. According to our Constitution all Americans have certain rights and must live by certain rules and regulations. Now though the federal courts have changed that.

Our great state has set certain rules and regulations that the people who live in our state must abide by. Rules such as in order to hunt and fish within our state you must purchase a licence to do so. Also you must purchase extra stamps to trout fish if you wish to fish for that species of fish. These laws we all respect and obey as being citizens of the United States and people who have chosen the state of Michigan as their home.

Now we have a group of people who can fish as they please for whatever they want to fish for. These people do not have to buy the licences that our state law requires and also do not have to follow a given date or period of time that they can fish. Our sportsfishermen have to. This has been called unlimited fishing rights and this decision has been handed down by the federal courts to two groups of Native Americans that live within the State of Michigan.

Is it right for one form of government to tell another form of government to stay out of something when it directly affects the one form of government and the people who live within that governing body? I have great respect for our federal and state government but do not feel that one form of government should tell another government what it can and cannot do. The federal government should try to work with the state and not against it.

The Native Americans are citizens of this country but are they not also citizens of the State of Michigan? I feel they should abide by our laws the same as we have to. If the courts were to set certain limitations on the gill netting and make the gill netters purchase special licenses for this privilege; like our commercial fishermen have to in the State of Michigan; it would make a lot of people feel better. The Native Americans asked the courts, Do we have the right to unlimited fishing as stated in our treaties? The courts answer was yes you do and nothing else was said.

Why not make them fish like the people did 100 years ago? I am sure that back then they did not have boats with electric and mechanical motors or fishfinders and all this new equipment that is being used now.

Sportsmen in the State of Michigan have a right to hunt and fish but have to pay for it and so should everybody else. I feel we should write to the representatives and senators in Washington and at the state level and ask for them to try harder to get something done about this waste of our fishery before it is to late. After all, ALL MEN ARE CREATED EQUAL.

Thank-you
Brock D. Dagner
Vice President
Northern Michigan Sportsman Assoc.

Costs mar pope's visit to United States

Bob Clock

It's a shame that the pope's upcoming visit to the United States already has been marred by complaints about the ungodly amounts of money some cities have earmarked for his reception.

New York City, which not too long ago was on the financial ropes, plans to spend in the neighborhood of $2 million. Boston and Philadelphia plan to spend about $1.5 million each — most of which will come from public coffers.

The American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) has protested the expenditures in the last two cities, citing separation of church and state as grounds.

In Des Moines, Iowa, the ACLU is protesting a decision to close schools and declare a holiday when the pope comes to town, on the same principle.

Most communities hope that some of the money to welcome the pope will come from church-sponsored fund-raising activities. Des Maines plans to sell commemorative medals and other souvenirs. In Chicago, record albums of the pope's masses will be sold.

The Archdiocese of Washington, D.C., is asking Catholic families to kick in $5 each for costs incurred by the pope's visit.

Most of the money, apparently, will be spent to construct massive speakers' platforms from which the pope will address the faithful. Presumably the platforms will be dismantled after the pope leaves.

The entire situation is leaving a bad taste in the mouths of Catholic-Americans who had eagerly anticipated the pope's visit. Even non-Catholics are chagrined that monetary considerations should mar a visit by the Holy Father to the United States.

Unfortunately, the ACLU does have a point. It scarcely seems proper to expend such vast quantities of public monies to accomodate a visitor whose duties are primarily religious, although many community leaders are attempting to justify the expenditures on grounds that the pope — as head of the Vatican — also is a secular leader.

I imagine that the millions being laid out for his visit also are a sore point with the pope himself, who, more than anyone else, realizes what the same amount of money could do to ease the hunger and suffering of the world's masses.

And although he is new at the job, I fully expect him to establish spending guidelines for other nations he will visit in the years ahead. There is not a great deal he can do to curtail the cost of security precaulions, but he could slipulate that he will appear only in existing structures or in natural amphitheaters that do not require a great deal of preparallon.

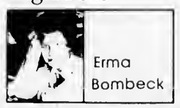
The elaborate and costly trappings that American cities are preparing to receive the pope are scarcely befitting the shepherd of Rome.

Questions involving separation of church and state are a continuing problem for Americans who represent literally hundred of different religious persuasions from every corner of the globe.

Equal treatment for all is impossible; and unequal treatment for some is anathema to the American spirit.

Hopefully a solution to the dilemma will be forthcoming from the religious community itself.

Year of disappearing socks



Erma Bombeck

I know you're all looking to me for leadership in the year of disappearing socks, but I can't handle it.

Last week, my husband confronted me with eight mismated socks that had gone into the washer as happy couples and emerged as swinging singles and said, "Tell me again how the Bermuda Triangle in the utility room works again."

They don't believe us, you know. Back when I started doing family wash, I tried to keep from talking about it too much. I'd say, "The other sock probably fell behind the washer," or, "Maybe you forgot and only wore one." I wanted to believe that.

When they continued to disappear, I found myself suggesting ways to compensate for the loss by wearing one foot in a cast or painting one foot with an acrylic paint that washed off in the shower.

In time, I was forced to level with the family and tell them there were forces in a washer and dryer that were beyond human control. I equated it with the same force that makes a cake fall when you are having company. Or when you want your kids to play a song on the piano that they've driven you up the wall with and they look at you and say, "I don't remember it."

The family didn't buy it.

When other women shared their frustration with me, I started the first New York Sock Exchange where we would all bundle up our mismated socks from all over the country and try to resolve the differences. In seven years, we were not able to match up a single pair of socks.

This country is wonderful at finding answers to phenomena. We have theories on where flying saucers come from. Theories on why the fish aren't biting. Theories on human behavior and why there are wars.

We need an explanation on why socks disappear somewhere between "fill" and "spin dry." Where do they go? Why? What is trying to tell us?

We know the effects. Husbands irritable, annoyed and demanding. Woman looking at herself in the mirror, wondering if her bulb is indeed dimming. Children going out into the world with feet that don't match.

We are going to settle this problem once and for all. Anyone with a theory on disappearing socks is asked to send it to this column in care of this newspaper. A board chosen by me will decide on the most reasonable theory that we will all stick by.

Your Mental Health Association thanks you, and so do I.

The fuss over Cuba

Nick Thimmesch

WASHINGTON — The rumpus over the "discovery" of Soviet combat troops in Cuba reveals more about the failings of human nature than the world Comunnist plot. This is an overblown story which will just have to spend itself.

President Carter is caught in a bind here. He must keep the Senate on a steady course for ratification of SALT II, while reassuring senators that the U.S. intelligence apparatus is functioning well enough to spot dozing troops in Cuba and missiles in the Soviet Union as well.

So 2,000 to 3,000 Soviet troops are in Cuba and might have been there for a decade or longer. So what else do you expect on this surrogate island? The Soviets regard Cuba as a prize. They pay for it dearly by purchasing sugar at inflated prices from the Cubans and selling them oil at below world market prices.

In return, the Soviets derive these advantages, among others: seeing Cuban troops do Soviet work in Africa; listening to Castro regularly flail Uncle Sam for the Third World's enjoyment; having access to a nice, warm island, where Communist officials (from satellite countries, too) can come for holiday, and where Soviet military personnel can show Cubans how to make mischief militarily. All this is 90 miles from the United States on an island that was once considered for statehood after being administered by an American governor.

The United States botched the Cuban situation 20 years ago, and the chances are that we must live with our mistake for a long time to come. The Beard is not yet an old man.

In the old days, and that means from the first Nixon term back, the U.S. intelligence community monitored Cuba like a distrusting wife checking on her husband. But somewhere along the line the scrutiny slipped a little, causing the present debate here.

As Sen. Sam Nunn of the Armed Services Committee sees it, no satisfactory explanation has been given yet as to why our intelligence agencies didn't spot the Soviet troops, until recently. He feels there aren't enough intelligence analysts at work, and wonders why CIA Director Stansfield Turner refused to take funds to hire 500 new intelligence analysts next year, as authorized by Congress. The 500 will work for the Defense Intelligence Agency instead.

So if our intelligence slipped a little on Cuba, don't worry, anxious candidates will make certain everybody knows about it. When Henry Kissinger was secretary of state, he cut Congress off from receiving many intelligence estimates because some congressional eager beavers promptly leaked what Henry sent, making his administration look bad. The good guy Cartermen decided to resume sending such classified material, and lo, what happens, leaks from Democrats which reflect on the Democratic Administration.

For some American politicians, Cuba is like the local whorehouse which the mayor must rediscover every election season, raid and close down, all in order to reap the attendant publicity as the reliable force for morality. Some politicians like to run against Cuba the way old Irish-American pols used to run against the King of England. But what do the pols do about it?

So all last week and for a while to come, we'll be hearing about the Soviet threat in Cuba, as though those Slavic souls wearing the Red Star freshly arrived on the isle of palms. What do the thumpers propose that Uncle Sam do to get the Soviets out of Cuba – offer them a nicer time in Miami, put them up in luxurious motels featuring waterbeds?

No, it's more important, as Sam Nunn points out, to find out what the role of the Soviet troops is. If they are there living as Communist symbols to inspire the Cubans to carry out more Soviet missions in Africa or even on the Arabian peninsula, then maybe we had better get tough with the Soviets in some special way.

Sam Nunn laments the decline of the quality of American intelligence and the lessening of human intelligence activities by U.S. agents around the world. He would probably not criticize a fellow senator by name, but he has this to say about colleagues who leak classified information for political gain:

"I hope that the Senators who were so energetic in getting this information out give the President some flexibility in dealing with the Soviets and Cubans, both by increasing the defense budget and by restoring our intelligence capability."

Meet Charlevoix

Nancy Ritsema is serving her first term as clerk of Norwood Township. This week the Courier talks with her about how she decided to enter politics, about her job responsibilities, and about some of the problems facing Norwood Township

COURIER: How did you decide to run for township clerk in 1978?

RITSEMA: When Bertha Parsons decided not to run, a friend asked me if I had thought about getting involved in politics. It sounded like something I could do at home and something that would be a challenge. My friend and I decided that women have time for such jobs but most men don't. Then we started thinking about a woman for supervisor and Evelyn Farrell started thinking about it, too. Nancy Lord was asked by the retiring trustee if she wouldn't like to get involved and run for trustee. She decided she would. Ruth Ann Campbell, who has a bookkeeping background, has been treasurer for several years. If you look around, there are a lot of women who have good backgrounds in business, teaching, or something else and who have a real interest in politics. They're not necessarily better than men, but they have more time for the jobs.

COURIER: So you have four women on the Norwood Township board?

RITSEMA: Yes, and Doris Pearl is the zoning administrator. Bob Bogart is serving his second term on the board as trustee. It's good to have him because we need the balance. Men usually have more experience in business and they get the feedback from the men in the community.

COURIER: With no previous experience in public service, how did you learn your job?

RITSEMA: By going to county, regional, and state meetings of township officials, by reading the Michigan Township Association magazine, and by attending seminars and workshops. The Township Association, through Michigan State University, offers courses for all township officials. Also, sometimes when I need a quick answer to a question, I'll call another township clerk. They've been very helpful to me.

COURIER: Do you Norwood Township women officials get together to talk business outside of regular meetings?

RITSEMA: We may chat one at a time over the phone or over a cup of coffee, but it would be illegal for three of us to gather and talk business. That would constitute an illegal meeting.

COURIER: What are your responsibilities as township clerk?

RITSEMA: According to the book, I'm responsible for records of the township; I take minutes of meetings; I'm in charge of elections and voter registration; I keep a book of ordinances; and I give notice of all meetings and public hearings. In addition, I'm secretary of the Zoning Board of Appeals. The clerk is really the contact person for the township board.

COURIER: Do many residents attend your regular township meetings?

RITSEMA: This summer we had 25 or 30 people at our monthly meetings, mostly because of the problems of fishing and beach rights. We appreciate the input from them. They bring up things we haven't looked at or present another angle. We can't possibly know everything.

COURIER: What are some of your other problems?

RITSEMA: Roads. There are four roads that are heavily used and people want something done to them – Warner, Clipperview, Lake Shore, and Richardson. The county used to match funds with the townships for road repairs but now the townships have to pay the full amount. It's hard on us because we're a low valuation township. We operate on a budget of about $26,000. Right now we're in the process of getting information on how to vote special millage for roads. About 26 percent of the land in Norwood Township is owned by the DNR for Fisherman's Island State Park. We're one of three top agricultural townships in the county, along with Eveline and Marion. Forty percent of our land is considered prime agricultural land, and we want to preserve it. We also have some unique farm lands, such as that suitable for growing cherries. Recently we received a grant from Coastal Zone Management for a site analysis of our township park property, about 20 acres. This will help in environmental protection of the shoreline, and with parking and vandalism. We hope to come up with a low key development plan for the park since we want it to serve as a township facility. Another thing we're doing is re-writing our zoning ordinance. Up to now we've had only R-1 and agricultural zones, but we'll need more zones for proper land use control.

COURIER: The Norwood Township hall is quite old, isn't it?

RITSEMA: Yes. It was built in 1884. I found from reading some old records that the chairs in the hall are the original bentwood back chairs purchased for $8 a dozen in a lot of six dozen. There's a lot of history in Norwood, too, going back to the logging and shipping days.

COURIER: Did you grow up in Norwood?

RITSEMA: No, I grew up in Belding. I came to Norwood later with my father and mother. My husband, Ron, grew up in the Ellsworth area.

COURIER: Where did you go to school?

RITSEMA: Hope College, then I taught school in Grand Rapids and Ellsworth.

COURIER: How many children do you have?

RITSEMA: We have four. Mary is 12, Carol is 10, Kathy is eight, and Dwight is five.

COURIER: What organizations do you belong to?

RITSEMA: We're members of the Atwood Christian Reformed Church.

COURIER: What do you do in your spare time?

RITSEMA: I work as a volunteer at the county jail. We had been in correspondence with a man in prison in Marquette and became interested in what was going on at the Charlevoix County Jail. We talked to Sheriff Lasater about his rehabilitation program, and because we were interested, he asked if I would do volunteer work. I'm just getting started, observing the work of CHIP and the ministers. It's an excellent program. All the sheriff has to do is house and feed the inmates and keep them from escaping, but he is doing many other things voluntarily, even setting up a program for inmates to get their high school diplomas.

COURIER: You sound as if you enjoy doing many different things?

RITSEMA: I do, and I try to encourage people to get involved. If they are interested in politics, they should get involved at the township level because that is where they can be most effective. I find my job very interesting and thoroughly enjoy it.

Don Berlage, Mike Gibbons and Sally Berlage

Title company acquired

Charlevoix attorneys Don Berlage and Mike Gibbons have announced the acquisition of the Gull Title Company of Naples, Fla. The title company has a staff of 14 employees and does business in Collier County, which includes Naples and Marco Island.

The Naples area, a favorite of many northern Michigan resorters, is similar to northern Michigan in that it is a popular resort area with a strict controlled growth policy, Berlage explained.

Gibbons, who is the city attorney in Charlevoix, will be moving to Naples in the near future to assume the general managership of the firm. Prior to his law practice in Charlevoix, he was an administrative law judge with the Michigan Department of Commerce.

Berlage will remain in Charlevoix and continue his law practice together with his duties as president of Northern Michigan Abstract & Title Company.

It has also been anounced that E. Dan Stevens will be opening a general private practice law office here. He will be in the office currently occupied by Gibbons at 115 Antrim Street.

Stevens currently uperates a law firm in Atlanta (Montmorency County) and with associates will operate the two offices.

Stevens is a former member of the Michigan House of Representatives and for four years represented the eastern part of Charlevoix County in the 106th district.

Stevens is a native of Atlanta (Mi) and has lived in northern Michigan all his life. He has bachelor of science and master of arts degrees from the University of Michigan and a juris doctorate degree from Cooley Law School in Lansing.

Stevens will assume full practice on Oct. 1 and will be available on an appointment basis prior to that date.

Bob Russell rushed for 260 yards

JV's lose...

East Jordan scored with a minute remaining to edge Charlevoix 14-12 in junior varsity football action.

On the game's first offensive play, Charlevoix hit paydirt when Mark Morgan hit Jeff Greene with a 45 yard TD pass.

East Jordan tallied in the second stanza on a 70 yard pass play from Kevin Russell to Tom Peters and Dave Karlskin ran the conversion.

After a scoreless third period Charlevoix went on a long march in the final stanza and with four minutes left Jeff Morgridge went in from the three for a 12-8 advantage. Morgridge did most of the ball carrying on the drive.

East Jordan then took over and with the clock winding down Bob Parsons broke loose for a 36 yard TD run to finish the scoring.

For East Jordan, Parsons collected 104 yards rushing and Bob Slate had 10 tackles. For Charlevoix offensive standouts were Morgridge, Greene and Bill Ranger while, according to the coaching staff, the defense still needs plenty of work.

Thursday Charlevoix will host Petoskey.

...and so do the frosh

Charlevoix's freshmen gridders played their first game and came up on the short end against Central Lake's Junior varsity, 30-12.

All of Central Lake's scoring came through the air with the first touchdown coming on a 55 yard pass on the second play from scrimmage.

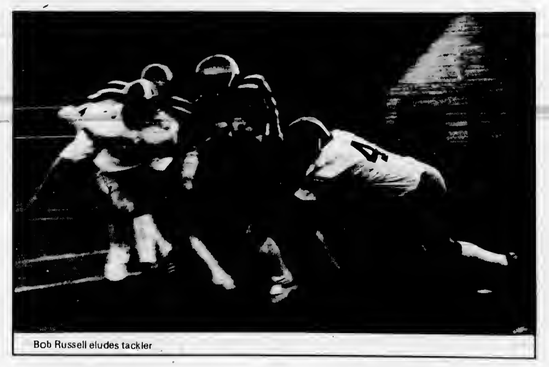
Charlevoix's scoring saw Jeff Trimper hit Craig Klooster with a 35 yard pass and Jon Supernaw run six yards. The second TD was set up by a Trimper to Fred Mielke pass of 35 yards.

Standout players for Charlevoix included Klooster, Mielke, Trimper, Supernaw and Shannon Reynolds.

Wednesday, Charlevoix visits Rogers City.

Rayder defense was stingy

Scott Kelly runs the option



Bob Russell eludes tackler

Rayders open M-HSC play at Petoskey

After crushing two non-conference opponents to start the '79 season, Charlevoix will open the Michigan-Huron Shores portion of its football schedule Friday at Petoskey.

Petoskey, a perennial conference power, is struggling this season. The Northmen have lost to Ludington, 8-7, and Cadillac, 36-0. Despite the sluggish start, Petoskey is expected to challenge for a first division finish in the conference. The Northmen are paced by quarterback Clark Hewitt and lineman Brad Fineout.

Petoskey can expect to see a lot of Charlevoix's Bob Russell. The senior running back ran wild in Friday's 28-0 blitz of Benzie Central. Russell carried the ball 33 times and gained 260 yards. He also scored three touchdowns on runs of one, four and three yards.

His one yard burst up the middle in the first quarter put Charlevoix off and running Friday. The touchdown was set up by a Scott Kerridge interception. Scott Morgan converted after the score to give the Rayders a 7-0 lead.

In the second quarter, Russell went four yards for a score and Morgan converted to make it 14-0. The Rayders struck again in the quarter when quarterback Scott Kelly teamed with Morgan on a 39 yard touchdown pass. Morgan's klck made it 21-0 at half.

After a scoreless third quarter, Charlevoix scored its last touchdown when Russell found a hole and scampered in from the three yard line. Morgan's kick made the final 28-0.

Charlevoix finished with 317 total yards - 278 yards on the ground and 39 yards through the air. The Rayder defense held Benzie Central's leading ballcarrier Scott Nugent to 60 yards in 16 carries. The Rayders were led by Rod Anderson and Jerry Sladek who had 11 and nine tackles, respectively. Sladek, Kerridge and Ken Otmanowski intercepted passes for Charlevoix.

The Huskies deepest threat of the night came at the start of the second half when they drove to the Charlevoix two yard line before fumbling.

Benzie Central, now 0-2 on the year, finished with 123 yards on the ground.

MICHIGAN BELL CONSUMER TIPS

"Two-Party Budget Service may help you save money on your phone bill."

Michigan Bell

Two-Party Budget Service is especially designed for people with fixed incomes, such as retirees. For a low monthly charge* you would share a two-party line and have an allowance of 44 local calls a month. Extra local calls you make are only 5.1¢ each. This is about the lowest-cost phone service in the country. If you think Two-Party Budget Service might be what you need, just call your Michigan Bell Business Office and talk to a service representative about it.

*Plus rural zone charges where applicable

Glen's
Glen's Shares Over $450,000.00 With Local Organizations & Groups!

What is Glen's Save-Share?

Glen's Save Share is a program which was started in June of 1972 by C. Glen Catt, Founder of Glen's Markets and Family Centers, and has been administered from the beginning by Rick Catt, Vice President of Glen's Markets.

Glen's Save Share was set-up to enable community organizations and groups a means from which they could earn money for projects that would help improve the communities in which we live.

Any registered group can simply save Glen's Markets and Family Centers green register tapes, add them up and turn them in to their local Glen's Market to have shared with them 1% of the qualified total. The qualified total being the total minus any beer, wine, or cigarette purchases and sales tax.

Where does the money come from -- ?? The dollars are taken out of Glen's Advertising budget. As Save Share grows, Glen's Markets slowly cuts back on their advertising.

For further details for your group or organization please contact the Store Manager or Assistant Store Manager at your local Glen's Market and Family Center.

Rayders win 48-33

Charlevoix overcame a case of "pre-game jitters" in the first half Thursday to beat Elk Rapids, 48-33, in the opening game of the 1979 girls basketball season.

Juniors Melinda Klooster and Teresa Noirot scored 20 and 10 points, respectively, to lead the Rayders.

The Rayders outscored Elk Rapids 24-13 in the second half to claim the victory, after leading by a slim four points, 24-20, at halftime.

"We got our act together in the second half," Coach Toni Felter said afterwards. "We came out in a press and I think that rattled them a bit.

"In that first half I think we had a case of pre-game jitters. But we settled down in the second half and played well."

Sophomore Lisa Pischner tallied eight points and junior guard Mel Kerridge added six and Marie Buday had four points to supplement Klooster and Noirot.

Lynn Wonacutt scored 11 points and Jean Glowicki added 10 for Elk Rapids.

The Rayders played without the services of Amy Kroll who was ill. It is expected Kroll will be back in uniform for Tuesday's game at Central Lake.

Central Lake (2-0) won its own invitational last week. The Trojans are paced by high-scoring Mary Hopp.

"We'll find out what we're made of Tuesday night," Coach Felter said.

In the junior varsity contest Thursday, Charlevoix won a 22-20 squeaker.

CHARLEVOIX – Klooster 10 0-2 20, Pischner 4 0-0 8, Buday 2 0-04, Noirot 5 0-2 10, Kerridge 3 0-0 6. Totals 24 0-2 48. Total Fouls 6. Fouled Out-None.

Lyle Miles

Lyle Miles is an automobile salesman for Erber Auto. He has been with Erber now for 14 years and he really knows his business.

Lyle is a member of the Society of Professional Sales Counselor for Ford Motor Co. He received this exclusive membership for his past sales volume.

Lyle is very particular about helping his customers choose new cars.

Says Lyle, "I try to put people into the right car for them by asking them questions about their living style, car use and others. It gives me satisfaction to put a person in a car they really like – Then we're both happy."

Lyle's wife "Tat" (Kathleen) was past secretary for Dr. Saltonstall for many years and also the mother of 4 children. Lyle and Tat have several grandchildren and one great grandchild.

In his free time Lyle squeezes in motorboating and golfing. He was also the past president of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

7:15 p.m. Patriots vs Dolphins
8:30 p.m. Rams vs Cowboys
Games are played at the Carpenter Avenue field.

Two shots

Perry Smith, golf instructor at the Belvedere Golf Club, did the "impossible" Sunday.

Smith took just two shots to make the 459 yard 9th hole at Belvedere. He used a No. 3 wood for his second shot.

One shot at an insulator can drop a city in its tracks.

I know, because I'm a Consumers Power lineman, and it's my job to search for the cause of a power failure. People who shoot out insulators forget that a single shot can bring down a house, a factory, a hospital or even an entire city. That's why Consumers Power offers substantial rewards for information resulting in either the arrest and arraignment, or the apprehension of persons responsible for damage to our property. So, if you have information concerning such an incident, please contact a local police agency or call Consumers Power.

Charlevoix Abstract celebrates 35 years

The Charlevoix Abstract and Engineering Company held an open house last week to celebrate its 35th year in business.

The president of the company, Mary Feindt, bought the then Charlevoix Engineering Company in 1944 from R. F. Sloan, by whom she had been employed for six years, having come here three days after graduating from college.

Mrs. Feindt is the only woman Registered Surveyor in Michigan and says she got into the profession because she didn't want to teach school.

Looking back on her 41 years in Charlevoix, Mrs. Feindt told the Courier, "I've enjoyed every minute of it. It's been an interesting and challenging career."

Among the professional honors bestowed on Mrs. Feindt are a directorship in the Society of Michigan Land Surveyors and appointment to the Michigan Registration Board for Land Surveyors.

The Charlevoix Abstract and Engineering Company is a family affair. Associated with Mrs. Feindt are her husband, J. Lawrence Feindt; her son, Lawrence R. Feindt; her stepson, C. Fred Feindt; and her daughter-in-law, Fay Feindt.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

A Public Hearing will be held by Northwest Michigan Human Services Agency, Inc., for the purpose of obtaining public comment on problems, needs and recommendations about present problems and their effectiveness in meeting the needs of low income persons, and also to hear any criticism or insight on un-met needs and new directions which should be incorporated in Agency goals and policies.

The Public Hearing will be held on October 3, 1979 at the 4-H Building, Emmet County Fairgrounds, U.S. 31 (Charlevoix Avenue), Petoskey, Michigan. Hearing times will be 2:00 PM to 5:00 PM and 6:00 PM to 8:00 PM.

Wildlife Film Series starts Thursday

The Wildlife Film Series is coming to Petoskey for its third season. Four entertaining and educational films narrated by the filmmakers will be shown at 7:30 p.m. at the Petoskey High School Auditorium on Sept. 20, Nov. 19, March 16 and April 21.

The series is sponsored by the Petoskey Audubon Society.

The first film on Thursday Sept. 20 is "Song of the Northern Prairie" by Allan King. At the core of the once vast northern prairie region is the state of North Dakota, the principal locale of this film. The beauty and excitement of the prairie ecosystem is revealed as American bison browse on the native grasses.

In November, Canadian cinematographer John Wilson will present his award-winning "Galapagos." Seen from the air the Galapagos archipelago appears a world apart. These islands, isolated by converging ocean currents, are the home of the 'dragons' of the Galapagos, the land Iguanas. On Hood Island Wilson filmed giant Tortoises munching lush vegetation.

The third film by noted nature photographer Tom Sterling is his new "Quebec Whales and Labrador Tales." Filmed in the Tadoussac Harbor where the St. Lawrence River is over 1,000 feet deep, this movie focuses on what is perhaps the world's greatest concentration of whale species. A roiling turbulence of upwellings and tides here produce plankton blooms that attract nine kinds of whales, especially the giant baleens and 'singing' humpbacks.

Underwater shots of whales 'face to face' highlight the film. Aerial views from a helicopter give the best showing as these giants breach, blow and then cut down through the water.

The last film is "Okeefenokee, Land of the Trembling Earth" by Dennis Holt. Here in southern Georgia is one of the largest and most primitive swamps in the United States where alligators and other wildlife live among dark moss-draped cypress trees.

Season tickets for the series of four films are now being sold. The price is $6 for adults, $4 for students and $15 for families, according to Don Hartman, president of Audubon.

Tickets can be purchased from Dorothy Mills at 347-3434, the Petoskey Chamber of Commerce or at the door.

GEMWISE
JEWELRY FASHIONS FACTS FICTION

A FLIRTATIOUS FALL

The look for fall is reminiscent of the '40's. There's an extra bit of flirtetiousness in the '79 interpretation of these styles which bares the way for more fine jewelry.

The calf-length skirts are slit, sometimes once, sometimes twice, to bear a little knee or a little thigh. And jewelry plays it up. A gold anklet, perhaps one eccented with a diamond, draws the eye to that well turned ankle.

Most blouses have a plunging v-neck, a perfect canvas for a splash of gold or silver and gemstones. Pearls in all shapes and sizes are very much in vogue. Bejewelled collars and lariat styles also fill the bare area beautifully.

The flowing, sleek line of the narrow lapels can be accentuated with a bar or stick pin.

Brooches are back, mostly for securing scarves and ties.

Since hair is being worn in twists and rolls and fancy braids, hair ornaments eccented with gemstones are new this fall.

If you have a particular outfit you'd like to accessorize, wear it into our store. Our trained personnel will show you many possibilities for making the best of it.

A special occasion coming up? A wedding perhaps? We've got jewelry to make the bride and her entourage stand out for miles.

We also have cuff links and tuxedo studs for the lucky groom and his moral supporters.

For your every jewelry need, come to Rausch Jewelry. We stand on a reputation of knowledge, ethics and good taste, qualities that set us apart as an American Gem Society member firm.

REUSCH JEWELERS
Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Gaylord, Petoskey

The 4th annual block party on Green Street had a surprise twist this year.

It turned into a 50th wedding anniversary celebration for Elmer 'Red' Reed and his wife, Viola, the former Viola Stafford.

A mock wedding was held with Dan Genelt acting as the preacher, Lloyd Arnold as best man and Lynn Groves as matron of honor. As the wedding ceremony proceeded, Elmer and Viola were asked to renew their vows.

Those enjoying the food and festivities were: Mrs. Ruth Withers; Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Arnold, son, Gilbert, and daughter, Mrs. Eilene Smith, and her daughter, Dara; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Arnold; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Farkas; Mrs. Mae Smith; Mr. and Mrs. Buster Russell; Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Murray, and daughters, Kim and Kris; Mr. and Mrs. Dan Genelt; Mrs. Alice Heise; Mr. and Mrs. Scott Groves, and son, Christian; Mrs. Doris Richardson; and Mrs. and Mrs. Elmer Reed.

Winter Green Street residents unable to attend were Mr. and Mrs. Bob Holecheck.

Lions Club contributes $5,797 to worthy causes

The Charlevoix Lions Club made nearly $6,000 in contributions during its last fiscal year, which ended June 30.

The two major contributions went towards the purchase of a snowmaker for Mt. McSauba and for a backstop at the Charlevoix Senior League field.

Most of the money generated by the Lions Club comes from chicken barbeques. The Lions have had three successful barbeques this year - during the centennial, Venetian weekend and the fly-in.

The Lions plan to work with Rig Brothers-Big Sisters this winter on the sale of Christmas trees.

Following is a breakdown of the Lions contributions for the last fiscal year:

Leader Dog	$500
Eye Bank	$100
Home for the Blind	$100
Charlevoix Area Hospital	$500
Probate Court (Camp Daggett)	$115
Children's Dental Program	$552.40
Probate Court (Christmas)	$150
Charlevoix Senior League (backstop)	$1,000
Lion's Hearing	$100
Camp McSauba (archery)	$150
Department of Social Services (toys)	$200
Christmas Movie	$185
Probate Court (glasses)	$84
Mt. McSauba (snowmaker)	$1,483
American Legion Post 226 (Boys-Girls State)	$120
Probate Court	$58
Charlevoix Public Schools (band trip)	$100
Christy Lehman - Coleman Award	$150
Jeff Drenth - Colenan Award	$150
TOTAL	$5,797.40

Day of Commitment at Community Reformed

The Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix will host a Day of Commitment Service Tuesday, Sept. 18 at 7:30 p.m. The service is an annual fall event at the church. Cindy Manson is in charge of the meeting.

Centering around the theme "If We Have the Faith, God Gives the Power" several women from the congregation will share their personal walks of faith. Jesse Cunningham, Karen Brun and Frieda Coeling will share in the service. Marge McVey will provide a ministry of music.

Mickey Grooters, wife of the pastor of the church, will be the featured speaker. Her subject will be the "Giftedness of all of life." Mrs. Grooters did much speaking and retreat leading in Arizona, and this summer led a nine week Bible class at the Reformed Church. She is also heading up the Charlevoix Area Christian Women's group.

The community is invited.

'Magazine of Midwest Riviera' makes debut

A new "slick" magazine made its debut in the area last week. "Hill and Harbors", called the "Magazine of the Midwest Riviera – Charlevoix, Harbor Springs, Petoskey", is available at local newstands.

This first issue of "Hills and Harbors" contains articles about local people who do interesting things, about the natural beauty of the area, about some problems faced by the community, about the cultural opportunities provided to residents, about up-to-date fashions and those who merchandise them, and even about some aspects of everyday living – cooking and caring for house plants.

Charlevoix author and editor Edith Gilbert is managing editor of "Hills and Harbors". Other staff members are Robert Topolsky, publisher; Gregory Cutshaw, art director and editor; Fred Renker, associate editor; Lawrence Wojeik, photography editor; and Rande Allen, production manager. Publication offices are located at 1345 US-31 North, Petoskey.

In a "Letter to Readers", Mrs. Gilbert states that future issues will bring a "healthy mix of articles written by experts", including a business report from a leading stock broker and realtor in the area, a dining review of local restaurants, and a preview of notable coming events.

Charlevoix Township Regular Board Meeting

Resume of the minutes of September 10, 1979. Supervisor Stroud called the meeting to order with Glass, Smith, Elzinga and 13 visitors present. Minutes of the August 13, 1979 meeting were read and approved. Treasurers report was read and approved. Enter Rose Bergmann.

Heard a complaint from Mr. William Brady against Township Assessor. Decided to have wording of ballot for special election prepared immediately. Approved three zoning permits. Approved bills for the month. Demonstrated the punch card voting system to those in attendance.

Meeting adjourned.

Respectfully submitted;
Jo Ann Elzinga, Clerk

Davis says board has ignored input

WASHINGTON, D.C. – Northern Michigan Congressman Bob Davis has charged the Civil Aeronautics Board with ignoring input received from local citizens regarding the implementation of airline deregulation.

Davis, in testimony submitted to the House Public Works and Transportation's Subcommittee on Aviation, noted that the CAB is not bound by the input it receives from the local level relating to the determination of "essential service" under the Airline Deregulation Act of 1978.

"The CAB, while providing ample opportunity for public comment through numerous meetings with interested parties at the state and local levels, has not given any indication through subsequent action that those comments made any lasting impression," Davis charged.

"In fact, there seems to have been a good deal of alarm generated by the Board's independent attitude. Based on actions and statements of the Board, it does not appear that they are heading in the opposite philosophical direction of the position of local officials," he said.

The focal point of the issue, according to Oavis, revolves around what the presumed intent of Congress was when provisions guaranteeing continued air service were included in the deregulation act. The Congressman accused the CAB of moving toward a definition of service reflecting an attitude of fulfilling the narrowest possible interpretation of the act's requirements.

Wedding

Madden-Donaldson

Diana Lynn Madden and Edward Lyle Donaldson - both of Tucson, Arizona - were married Thursday, Sept. 6 before 90 guests at the Christ Episcopal Church in Charlevoix.

The Rev. Roger Ames performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Carlton and Marilyn Madden of Onaway. The groom is the son of Richard and Katherine Donaldson of Charlevoix.

The altar was flanked by candelabra and bouquets of the same flowers. Terri Morgan, at the organ, played a program of popular music, Lohengrin's "Bridal Chorus" and "The Wedding Song." A guitar-accompanied trio of cousins of the bride, Sandy Morgan of Boyne City and Marlene and Cindy Morgan of Boyne Falls, sang "The Wedding Song" and "For Bobby."

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father. For her wedding, she wore a gown of white sofisticate satin and Chantilly lace made by the bridegroom's mother. Fashioned with a Chantilly lace bodice and neckline outlined with the same lace, the gown featured long sleeves with lace insets from the cuff to the elbow. The skirt and train were trimmed with lace medallions and the train had insets of matching lace. Her picture hat was styled with a back veil edged with Chantilly lace. Her bridal bouquet was of white daisies, carnations and bridal wreath.

Cindy Theut of Armada assisted the bride as maid of honor and Helen Knoblock of Utica, and sisters of the bride, Sue Madden of Onaway, Cindy Madden of Atica and Mrs. Daniel Madden, of Detroit, sister-in-law of the bride, as bridesmaids, wore gowns of light blue, mint green and champagne draped in soft folds of Qiana. They wore floral corsts in their hair and carried cascade bouquets of daisies, carnations and baby's breath.

Candice Donaldson of Alpena, niece of the bridegroom, as flower girl, wore a gown of white eyelet and a white straw hat trimmed with yellow and white lace ribbon. Brad Donaldson of Alpena, nephew of the bridegroom, was ringbearer.

James Berlage of Lansing and Charlevoix served as best man. Rick Donaldson of Alpena, James Donaldson and Robert Donaldson, of Tucson, brothers of the bridegroom, and Julu Grosser of Traverse City, were groomsmen. John Offerdahl of Hyde Park, N.Y., brother-in-law of the bridegroom and Dan Madden of Detroit, brother of the bride, seated the guests.

Mrs. Madden wore a gown of lavender and purple floral print celanese arnel wwith accessories for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Donaldson, mother of the bridegroom, wore a beige silk and wool worsted gown trimmed with matching lace and matching beige accessories.

A reception hosted by the bridegroom's parents followed at their home. Assisting were Mr. and Mrs. Offerdahl, brother-in-law and sister of the bridegroom and his cousins, Renea, Linda, Michelle and Brenda Breidenstein of Boyne City and Anne Marie Puffpaff of Charlevoix.

After a week's wedding trip to Orlando, Tampa and Hutchinson Island, Fort Pierce, Fla., the couple will be at home at Apt. 202 866 So. Langley, Tucson after Sept. 20.

The bride is employed at the Bobby McGee Conglomeration and the bridegroom is associated with Sid's Appliance Center, both in Tucson.

Wedding guests were present from New York, Florida, Ohio, Arizona, North Dakota and several Michigan cities.

On Wednesday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Donaldson hosted a rehearsal dinner at the Weathervane Inn.

Earlier, on Sept. 2, Mr. and Mrs. Madden of Onaway, parents of the bride, hosted a reception at their home for 125 guests. Following a barbecue and corn roast, the guests enjoyed music and dancing.

In being married on Sept. 6, the couple followed a tradition started in 1929 when the bridegroom's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Donaldson were married. His father was born Sept. 6, 1930; his parents were married on that date in 1952; his brother, Rick, selected the same date for his wedding in 1973 and his only sister, Sue, was married Sept. 6, 1975.

Anniversaries

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Kipke

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Kipke celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary with their immediate family in Pinconning recently.

Ray and the former Mabel Turpin were married in Lansing, Sept. 2, 1929.

They have three daughters, Nancy Bambach of Farmington Hills, Amy Gibson of Pinconning, and Bennie von Hellens of Phoenix, Ariz. They have 11 grandchildren and four great grandchildren.

Rec meetings scheduled

Organizational meetings for the Independent Basketball and Volleyball Leagues sponsored by the Charlevoix Recreational Department have been called for Wednesday, Sept. 26, by Dwight Boss, recreation director.

The basketball organizational meeting is set for 7 p.m. on Sept. 26 in the community room of the city hall. Managers, sponsors and players are urged to attend to make plans for the season which will begin next month.

Volleyball enthusiasts for men's, women's and mixed leagues will meet at 8 p.m. the same night, Sept. 26, at the same site, the community room of the city hall. Again, all interested persons are urged to attend so leagues can be organized and schedules compiled for the season which will begin in late October.

Ferris State College's football hopes took a setback last week when it was learned that senior safety BDB ALGER would be lost for the season.

The 6-1, 196 pound defensive co-captain suffered ligament damage in his knee while attempting a tackle in the first half of the Ferris-St. Joseph's game. Alger had originally injured the knee earlier this year forcing him to miss most of the Bulldog spring football drills. But, he had made nearly a full recovery when the latest injury occurred.

Alger's leg will be in a cast for an estimated six weeks.

Ironically, Alger was nearing several Ferris pass interception records coming into the new season. The Charlevoix native was just two interceptions and 59 interception return yards shy of Ferris career records in both categories.

The Bulldog co-captain already holds several FSC records including a national mark set when he returned a pass intereception 100 yards for a touchdown in last season's game with Dayton.

ARLINE RUILLMAN of East Jordan is listed as one of 2,313 degree candidates for summer term at Michigan State University.

Arline is seeking a master of arts degree in reading instruction.

Surprise us, Silverstein

Popular music is full of surprises – who sings only their own songs, who collaborates with whom, who respects whose work enough to perform it, which songs are strictly fad, which will endure. Even which songs or how many songs will be milked off an album for hit singles make the music business interesting and speculative. Sometimes the associations behind the album covers and record jackets are the most surprising of all.

When I bought the latest Dr. Hook album, "Pleasure and Pain," it was because it was a) on sale and b) I like the two songs within which have already made their successful appearance popularity-wise. The surprise came when I discovered that four of the songs on that L.P. were written either alone or in collaboration with Shel Silverstein who just happens to be one of my favorite poets and children's authors.

I haven't chanced upon the association between that group and Shel Silverstein as yet. Maybe they heard him perform his songs in an L.A. showcase club once long ago. Or maybe Dennis Locorriere, lead vocalist and contributing songwriter for Dr. Hook, is crazy about "The Giving Tree" or "Where the Sidewalk Ends." It's kind of fun conjecturing about it until you know for sure.

But what will really be interesting, is to see if Shel Silverstein can really make it as a popular music lyricist. He couldn't have a better chance right now or be associated with a more promising album. "When You're In Love With A Beautiful Woman," following upon "Spending the Night Together," has just about run its course. And when it has, which Dr. Hook selection will break into the circuit next?

Shel Silverstein has four chances out of the remaining eight on "Pleasure and Pain." They are: "Sweetest of All," "I Don't Want To Be Alone," "Knowing She's There," and "I Gave Her Comfort." Like predestination, the next Dr. Hook hit has no doubt already been determined by those in command of these things. My choice of the remainders is "I Don't Want To Be Alone Tonight." I hope that Shel Silverstein is surprised by his success as a lyricist and will get the opportunity to show us his real talent in song, which his literary fans have enjoyed in terms of depth, ingenuity and finesse as a poet for sometime.

Need a speaker? Try resource guide

By Sara Gay Dammann

Need a speaker for your next meeting? Want to know something about almost anything?

Charlevoix's Community Resource Guide, just republished and updated, can put you in touch with knowledgeable people on subjects ranging from architecture to birds, China, doll furniture, forestry, Hawaii, maple syrup, physical fitness and solar energy, to zoos, and a lot inbetween. It's all there, alphabetically.

Compiled originally in 1968 by Mary Ann Chew, Mary Haggard and Marie Osterberg, and published by the Charlevoix Public Schools, the guide was intended as a resource for anyone in the community, including teachers, clubs and organizations and individuals.

The guide was rewritten over the past two years by volunteers from the Elementary School Parent Advisory Council, after teachers reported that the original listings were out of date.

Marilyn Friedly, Advisory Council President said the soft bound booklets contain many blank spots and pages so it can be continually revised to stay current. Mrs. Friedly said the Parent Advisory Council will make this a continuing project.

Thirty copies of the guide are distributed throughout Charlevoix, including the schools, the library, the Chamber of Commerce office, the Courier office and the hospital.

Mrs. Friedly said that people who do use the guide are encouraged to enter comments about the guides usefulness on the blank pages, and to add any other resources within the community, to help ease next year's revisions.

Some of the resources and their subjects include Mr. and Mrs. Ted Browe – Kangaroos and sheep skins; Roxy Loding – "Anyone Can be Picasso" or Hot Air Ballooning; Mrs. Frances Durance – the farming history of Charlevoix; Mary Haggard – antique doll furniture; Linda Dostmeyer – dehydration of foods; Jay Oliver – field trips to Greensky Hill Indian Mission; Hinako Regier – presentation of Japan, including clothing, artifacts and slide; and many more interesting people from around the community.

The Parent Advisory Council will be holding its first meeting of the year Oct. 11 at 7:30 p.m. at the school.

Mrs. Friedly announced that Principal Ralph Raymer will discuss the results of the Metropolitan Achievement Tests which were given throughout the school last spring.

Raymer reported that the school is proud of the improvements reflected by the tests scores. He said that both reading and math scores have shown steady improvement over the last several years.

"The tests show that students in the upper grades are five to seven months ahead of their grade level. And we have about 25 students in 5th grade who are reading on a 10th grade level or better," the principal said.

"But we are still looking for alternative ways of reaching some children – those with the lower scores," he continued.

"We are proud of the test results and we are also proud that they help us discover the children we might otherwise miss.

Ms. Friedly urged all interested parents to attend the Oct. 11 meeting.

End of summer

Summer officially came to an end Sunday. Last week's weather was more like autumn, however. According to the Charlevoix Sewage Treatment Plant, the temperature dropped to 30 degrees early Saturday morning. Here, ushering (actually, raking) in the new season is Ricky Sall.

A possible swap?

City would get lakefront property for beach, Belvedere would get seasonal road closing

The Charlevoix City Council and the Belvedere Club Board of Trustees are discussing a deal that would enlarge the city's Ferry Avenue Beach.

The Belvedere Club is proposing to purchase 300 feet of shoreline along Lake Charlevoix adjacent to the beach from Robert Schleman. If successful, the club would then offer the property to the city in return for the permanent, seasonal (June 15 - Sept. 15) closing of Belvedere Avenue from the stone pillars at the northwest entrance to the stone pillars at the southern entrance.

Council is awaiting word from City Attorney Frank Hoffman on the legality of closing Belvedere Avenue. If the closing is permissible, council plans to put the issue up to an advisory vote before the city electorate on Nov. 6. An advisory vote would simply give council an indication of how city residents feel about the proposed swap.

"I think the property (Schleman property) would enhance the community as a whole," Mayor Sam Supernaw said. "It would not cost the taxpayers anything out of their pockets."

Supernaw said Ferry Avenue Beach is "crowded" and could use the extra space. He admitted, however, it would be an "inconvenience" to have Belvedere Avenue closed during the summer.

Five of six council members favored the advisory vote concept as a means for gathering citizen input.

Councilman Bob Timms said an advisory vote would be "interesting" but, he added, "I can't see closing a city street... because it would be forever and forever."

Councilwoman Shirley Roloff suggested the city purchase the property "if it wants it that bad."

"The taxpayers wouldn't stand still for that," replied Councilman Ivan Whitley.

Supernaw said Schleman offered the parcel to the city over a year ago and the pricetag was $180,000.

The only member of council not interested in an advisory vote was Dr. Jeff Porter.

"It's a complicated situation," Porter said. "I don't think in one month's time voters can get enough information on it to make a sensible decision."

Supernaw said if the swap transpired a turnabout area by the Grey Gables would be necessary. Grey Gables owner, Dave Phillips, told council that a "deadend" near his restaurant would hurt business.

And, according to Oscar Ward, it would also takeaway a scenic stretch of roadway.

"That's a scenic route that everybody enjoys," he said. "I think the city has more important things to discuss. Besides, you might be starting a precedent by closing this street."

In a letter from the Belvedere Club Board of Trustees, it is indicated that Schleman "might make the property available to the Belvedere Club" provided the property would be offered to the city in return for "satisfactory relief from the traffic problem" on Belvedere Avenue.

The letter states that the Belvedere Club "believes it can obtain the property" and that its attorneys are prepared to start working out legal agreements with the city attorney if council finds their proposal acceptable.

Emergency plans reviewed

Since the accident at the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant this year, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) has decided to review and upgrade emergency plans at all nuclear plants in the U.S.

Last week an NRC emergency planning review team visited Big Rock Point to evaluate that plant's emergency plan.

"We learned a lesson at Three Mile Island," said Bill Axelson, an NRC radiation specialist.

Axelson said neglect in developing adequate emergency plans for nuclear power plant accidents led to the confusion at Three Mile Island.

One problem, said Frank Pagano of the emergency planning team, was that too many "officials" got involved with the accident at Three Mile Island. As a result, a lot of contradictions about the nature of the accident were released to the press, he said. Establishing press facilities in addition to developing guidelines for the number of officials allowed on the scene are two priorities of the NRC.

In another effort to strengthen emergency plans, states with nuclear power plants will be required to conduct one test exercise (of a nuclear accident) each year. In addition, off-site monitoring of radiation will be improved and on-site and off-site emergency planning centers established.

During its visit here, the NRC review team met with representatives of Consumers Power Company, operator of the plant, and with state and local

City attorney to make recommendation in dispute over Round Lake housing development

It did not take long for the Charlevoix City Council to put newly appointed City Attorney Frank Hoffman to work.

Council has asked Hoffman for his legal opinion on a multiple housing project proposed for the south side of Round Lake.

The developer, Douglas Bathey, is proposing to construct condominium units on the property. In 1977, Bathey submitted a site plan to officials showing the proposed development. At the time, the property was zoned marine industrial, which allowed for multiple housing. However, in 1978, council adopted a new zoning ordinance and rezoned the property to marine commercial, limiting the property to single family homes and marine type uses.

Bathey - through attorney Robert Steadman - contends that he should be allowed to continue the development proposed two years ago.

Tom Duke, on the other hand, argues that the property must be rezoned to R-4 before the development can be utilized for multiple housing.

Both sides have contacted attorneys and received written opinions on the case.

William McTaggart of Conkle, Varnum & McTaggart said in his opinion that "the proposed use for condominiums was well known to the community, the planning commission (who developed the new zoning ordinance) and the city council" prior to the adoption of the ordinance in 1978.

McTaggart said when Bathey presented the site plan to the city in 1977 the zoning board of appeals modified it and "improvements were made to the property to carry out the ultimate plan of development - including the installation of a $50,000 sewage pumping station designed to service 20 or more condominium units."

To date, McTaggart said, some $700,000 has been expended in the purchase and development of this property. He added that the new zoning ordinance is invalid in regards to the Bathey property.

"In order to validly restrict the use of property through a zoning ordinance, the property must have some economic value if used as zoned," McTaggart said. "In this case, at the time the restrictive zoning was applied in 1978 some $700,000 had already been expended in preparation for use as condominiums and boat dockage. Suddenly, the proposed condominium use was denied. The owner is left with a $700,000 investment and told he must somehow recoup his investment from the charges to be made from summer dockage of 18 boats. That is an economic impossibility. Any zoning which restricts the use of land to an uneconomic use is invalid regardless of the meritorious reasons for the restrictions."

McTaggart added that Bathey - or his representative - asked for a copy of the proposed ordinance and when it was delivered it "disclosed that the proposed zoning would allow completion of the proposed condominium project then in progress." The attorney said the marine commercial district was not in the ordinance originally but was "apparently added at a later time."

"In my opinion, failure to keep the property owner of this parcel fully informed of a later change from the original proposal delivered to him renders the zoning change invalid and a nullity as to this property," McTaggart said.

Even if the ordinance is valid, the attorney said, "the property is clearly a pre-existing non-conforming use entitling the owner to complete the project unencumbered by any restrictions" of the new ordinance.

"This was not done without approval or knowledge on the part of the city," McTaggart said, "but with its full approval and knowledge. I frankly cannot imagine a more classic case of a pre-existing, non-conforming use entitled to completion even assuming the ordinance is valid as to this parcel - which I also do not believe to be the case."

In an opinion rendered by Paul Bibeau of Brennan, Bibeau & Poehlman, it states that in 1977 the zoning board of appeals did not grant approval of the entire site plan, but granted a sideyard setback variance for the "existing marina and a proposed four car garage."

Bibeau emphasized that the new zoning does not allow for multiple family residential units in marine commercial and that "a review of the site and surrounding facts suggest that the existing buildings and uses on the premises are non-conforming uses...the zoning ordinance expressly prohibits the expansion of non-conforming uses."

Bibeau said Bathey "recognized this apparent dilemma" and requested a rezoning to R-4 before the Charlevoix Planning Commission, where it was denied.

The Farmington attorney said Bathey has "acquired no vested rights on the unbuilt portion of the premises...that city council, has no authority to allow the buildings to be continued as shown on the site plan...and further development of this property must be in conformance with the existing zoning and building ordinances."

Bibeau added that the marine commercial district "provides for numerous uses which this property owner can avail himself of...it would appear that if this property cannot be property used and developed under the marine commercial district, that the appropriate facts be presented to the planning commission and subsequently to the city council so that the appropriate rezoning legislation can be considered."

In summary, Bibeau said "if multiple family units are to be built on the remaining portion of this property that the property would have to be rezoned to the R-4 district."

Walk through Oct. 1

Plans for a "walk through" at the Charlevoix Middle School on Monday, Oct. 1, have been announced by Vincent Chew, Middle School principal.

The 'walk through' will be held between 7 and 9 p.m. During this time, parents will follow the same schedule as the students, spending 10 minutes in each classroom to meet the teacher and hear about each course their child is taking. There will be a break at 8 p.m. for refreshments.

In announcing the 'walk through' Chew emphasized that this is not to be confused with Parent-Teacher Conferences which will be held later.

'Help Maggie Drive' started here

Northwestern REACT has teamed up with Grand Traverse REACT to raise funds for one of the latter's members who has a brain tumor that can be treated only with a laser beam.

The "Help Maggie Drive" started when it was learned that Maggie Plachetka, a member of the Grand Traverse Club, who had a similiar brain tumor removed three years ago, had a second forming in an area where surgery is impossible and only treatment by use of a laser beam can be performed.

According to a spokesman, her life expectancy is a matter of a few months. The laser beam treatment promises no miracles, the spokesman said, but her chances will be much better..

An Australian doctor who performs the treatment is presently at the Kansas Mibtary Hospital, but will be returning home Oct. 31.

According to Greg Seese, president of Northwestern REACT, it will be necessary to raise a minimum of $1,000 so Ms. Plachetka can recieve treatment.

The two REACT teams have joined forces to initiate a drive to raise the $1,000 by Oct. 12, when Ms. Plachetka must leave Traverse City for Kansas City to undergo the treatment.

"We are asking only what you feel you can give," Seese said. "If 1,000 people will give $1 each we can add months and possibly years to this woman's life."

Contributions can be sent to REACT, care of Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department, Charlevoix, Mi., 49720.

Her dream is to help Charlevoixans get to know themselves and each other better

Joan Heise Jadwin has returned to Charlevoix with a dream and a plan. Born here, graduated from Charlevoix High, Mrs. Jadwin left when she was 18, to further her education, get married and embark on a career.

Now, retired, she has returned with her husband Don to their house on Lake Michigan shores. Her dream is that she can use her training and experience to help Charlevoixans, old timers and newcomers, get to know themselves and each other better, through a series of small group workshops.

In big terms she hopes to help people grow as individuals and as friends. She'd like to help other people find friends through these "personal growth" workshops.

Her plan is simple. And she has put it into motion.

Under the sponsorship of the CHIP Counseling Center, Joan will conduct a six week workshop, entitled "Getting to Know You, Getting to Know Me." Meeting every Wednesday afternoon from 1 to 3 p.m., starting at the CHIP Center, on Park Avenue across from the hospital, Oct. 10, 14 people will be led by Joan to discover the answers to such questions as "How Do I feel about myself?" "Do others share similar thoughts, have similar joys, fears and hopes?"

"The emphasis will be positive," the enthusiastic woman explains. "We will be supporting each other. We will talk about such specific things as how to deal with stress, how to become better acquainted with yourself, how to share, how to take risks.

"The goals, which may seem impossible are not really, if you have a good self-image," she smiles brushing her gray hair back from her forehead.

In the years since leaving Charlevoix, Mrs. Jadwin became well qualified to lead such a workshop.

She holds a BA in history and is just four hours short of her MA. She taught adult high school in Flint, where she and Don raised her two sons, Steven, 26, and Charles, 24.

In 1972 she left teaching to join Flint's Voluntary Action Center. Working with the Flint center she taught criminals with drug addiction problems at the Rubicon Odyssey House, taught black history to returned black Vietnam veterans, was named "Volunteer Teacher for the State of Michigan" in 1973, worked with the visually impaired, and was a counselor at Flint's Everywoman's Center.

It was at the Flint woman's center that she further developed her skills in counseling and group leadership, which she hopes to put to good use in Charlevoix, working closely with the CHIP Center.

The CHIP sponsored workshops are open to people of any age, any interests, any background.

She is especially hopeful that, although enrollment is limited to 14, a true cross section of Charlevoix will take advantage of the workshops. The fee for the six sessions is only $10, to cover the minimum costs for materials and registration. Mrs. Jadwin is volunteering her time.

To register call the CHIP Center at 547-6551.

Grandvue Week proclaimed

The Auxiliary of the Grandvue Medical Care Facilty has proclaimed the week of Oct. 15 Grandvue Week in an effort to interest residents of the county in joining the organization which devotes its efforts to aiding the facility.

As a fund-raising project that week, members are asked to entertain games parties in their homes with the proceeds to go to the auxiliary whose next project is purchasing equipment for the addition to Grandvue.

Interested persons may contact any member of the secretary, Mrs. Robert Sell, regarding memberships.

The president-elect, Mrs. Lucille Bolwick of Boyne City and the vice president, Mrs. Pauline Arnott of East Jordan were named to represent the auxiliary at the fall meeting of the North Central District, Michigan Association of Hospital Auxiliaries to be held at Kalkaska Tuesday. All members are welcome to attend.

The treasurer's report revealed $456.40 in the membership fund and $3,359.56 in the cheeking account. The treasurer, Mrs. Phyllis Malpass of East Jordan, suggested that some of this be placed in a fund the would produce some interest.

Grandvue administrator Ronald Konkle suggested the auxiliary start a fund to purchase a bus for the facility. The membership, however, vetoed the idea because they felt it was too ambitious and voted instead to purchase the furnishings as was originally planned.

Vaughn Orvis, former science teacher in the East Jordan schools, presented an interesting program on the minor islands in the Beaver group in northern Lake Michigan as well as those to the south of this area.

The next meeting of the Auxiliary is scheduled for Thursday, Aug. 11 at the facility. All residents of the county are invited to join this very worthwhile organization.

Saladin Shrine Band coming here Oct. 6

The annual fall concert by the Saladin Shrine Band of Grand Rapids will be presented at the Charlevoix High School gymnasium at 8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 6.

The concert will be presented under the sponsorship of the Northwest Shrine Club. Proceeds from the event are used to support the three burn centers and 22 hospitals throughout the continent supported by the Shriners.

A performance by the band and its colorful drill teams have become a tradition since the organization of the Northwest Shrine Club.

In announcing the concert, Ray Wood has expressed the club's appreciation for the support given by the local business community. Tickets may be purchased from local Shriners.

Firm selected to do regionwide jail study

Moyer Associates, a Chicago based planning consultant firm, will conduct a study aimed at solving the jail problems in the 10 county northwest Michigan region.

The study will take six months and cost approximatley $50,000. It will be federally funded under a grant the Northwest Michigan Regional Planning and Development Commission has received from the Michigan Office of Criminal Justice.

Recent rule changes covering county jails resulted in the Michigan Department of Corrections citing most of the jails in the state as being in non-compliance, and the counties are now searching for the most efficient method of bringing their facilities up to the new standards. With one possibilty being the sharing of a facility by several counties, the 10 counties decided to explore that possibility while at the same time consider an independent single county solution.

Four firms submitted proposals to conduct the study and they were reviewed before the Jail Study Steering Committee recommended Moyer Associates. Ira Davis of Charlevoix is a member of the commitee.

The 10 counties in the study are Antrim, Benzie, Charlevoix, Emmet, Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Leelanau, Manistee, Missaukee and Wexford.

Coronary care program at Burns Clinic

"The Nurse's Role in a Coronary Care Unit," an intensive two-week course on the theory, practice and background of the care of a patient in a coronary care unit, will be presented Oct. 22 - Nov. 2.

The course, presented by the Michigan Heart Association in cooperation with Burns Clinic, Northern Michigan Hospitals, Inc. and the Emmet County Heart Unit, will be held at the Gamble Building, Northern Michigan Hospitals, Inc., in Petoskey.

Among the topics to be covered in the course are: philosophy of coronnry care, anatomy and physiology, drugs, nursing assessment of cardiac patients, basic electrocardiography and defibrillation practice.

Course fee of $225 includes all books and printed materials. Faculty for the course are cardiologist and nurse clinicians from Burns Clinic and Northern Michigan Hospitals, Inc.

Early registration is urged, as class size is limited to 30. For more information, contact Eleanor D. Peterson, R.N., Michigan Heart Association, P.O. Box LV-160, Southfield, Michigan 48076, phone (313) 557-9600.

Indian fishing agreement reached

In Michigan, as well as across the nation, one of the more sensitive fish and game regulation issues has been the rights of Indian tribal members to certain portions of the total fishery resources of a particular region. This debate in Michigan has centered around the lengthy battle between the Chippewa Indian tribes in and near Sault Ste. Marie and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

Indian tribes have claimed unlimited fishing rights on the Great Lakes due them from treaties negotiated between their ancestors and officials of the United States government. The DNR, meanwhile, has claimed the right to regulate the take of all fishermen, including the Indians.

Earlier this year, Federal District Judge Noel Fox of Grand Rapids concluded a lengthy trial by siding with the contention of the Indians. The decision angered leaders of the sports fishing organization, such as the Michigan United Conservation Clubs (MUCC) and the Michigan Steelheaders. The DNR, naturally, wasn't pleased at all and as summer Indian fishing got underway the agency claimed the Indians were "fishing out" all the fish stocks. The situation was explosive and there was a very real threat of violence between the Indian fishermen and the sports fishermen.

Attempting to avoid violence, Governor Milliken called the parties into negotiations. Actually, the Governor started the negotiations last year even while the trial before Judge Fox was underway.

In the negotiations the Indians, the DNR, the U.S. Department of the Interior, which is obliged by federal law to protect Indian rights, and the Governor came to a mutual agreement.

The "memorandum of understanding," which was issued last week, is an attempt to jointly manage the Great Lakes fishery until federal courts make a final ruling on Indian rights under the treaties. Judge Fox's decision is currently under appeal in higher federal courts. All parties appreciated the need to prevent violence while the appeal was under consideration as well as the need to preserve the fishing resource.

The agreement recognizes both the claims of the Indians and the Michigan DNR. At the same time, however, it sets forth some joint regulating mechanisms for controlling the take of fish on the Great Lakes.

The tribes involved will jointly develop a set of regulations to control the netting of fish. The tribes are required to develop the regulations by consulting with the Interior Department who may disapprove of the regulations if they do not adequately protect fish stocks.

The DNR is required to control the fishing of non-Indians (sport fishing) in the same waters the Indians are laying their nets.

All three groups have pledged to cooperate in reporting the size of all catches so that a regulations on fishing will work.

Another area of agreement calls for all three parties to jointly work on a conservation and stocking program to make sure the stocks of whitefish and lake trout are not depleted.

Finally, all sides recognize that they are not surrendering any legal claims that may be settled in the appellate courts, but that the agreement is drawn to protect the fishery while the case is under appeal.

Unless it is extended, the agreement will expire on January 1, 1981.

Ralph Ostling represents the 103rd district in the Michigan House of Representatives.

Our Opinion

Enforce 55 mile per hour speed limit

The State of Michigan has finally decided its time to crackdown on drivers who disregard the 55 mile per hour speed limit.

The Michigan State Police has announced that it is tightening enforcement of the speed limit on the state's highways. Troopers will now issue tickets to drivers who exceed 60 miles per hour and verbal warnings to those caught traveling between 55 and 60. No longer, according to the state police, will drivers be able to cruise over 60 and not fear getting caught.

The crackdown is being instituted to assure compliance with federal guidelines. States where more than 70 percent of the drivers are allowed to violate the 55 mile per hour limit without penalty can be denied federal funds for highway projects. The federal government is making it clear that the 55 mile per hour limit is here to stay. And this performance measure gives the state no alternative but to comply or lose funds. It is a mandate that we support wholeheartedly.

The 55 mile per hour speed limit became federal law in 1974, primarily in response to a fuel shortage. The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) reports that the lower speed limit has saved approximately 9 million gallons of fuel a day. The NHTSA also reports that highway accidents and fatalities have been reduced considerably since '74. According to the NHTSA, highway fatalities averaged 54,000 between 1972-74. From 1974-78 the death toll averaged 45,000, lowest in more than a decode despite an increase in travel.

In actuality, most drivers comply with the slower speed limits. The NHTSA says that 75 percent of all drivers travel under 60 miles per hour on roads with a 55 limit. That same survey shows that 93 percent drive under 65 miles per hour.

The crackdown might mean that state law enforcement agents will have to spend more time patrolling the highways, but we feel once it is established that violators will be ticketed for speeding that drivers will slow down and obey the law.

Need for nuclear power is a myth

Editor:

The claim that we need nuclear power to solve our energy problems is a myth. Data from the Department of Energy and the nuclear industry which attempts to prove that we need nuclear power omits an important calculation – and that is that when all the energy is added up that goes into the whole nuclear fuel cycle, from mining and milling to waste disposal, there is no net energy to be gained from nuclear plants – and in fact, with long-lived, high level waste disposal, we may face a large energy loss.

This information can be found in the National Plan for Energy Research (ERDA-1976). In spite of the fact that the report insists we need nuclear plants, tucked away in the appendix is a chart that shows how little contribution nuclear power actually makes to the nation's energy budget. Almost as much energy is consumed just by nuclear fuel enrichment and the construction of new nuclear plants alone as is being produced by plants in operation. Therefore, when this calculation of energy input compared to energy output is made, based on data from this government report, it shows that nuclear power yielded a net addition to the nation's energy budget in 1974 of only one-quarter of one percent. Nuclear power's net energy contribution will not even reach one percent by 1980, and by 1985 will still yield only a net addition of two and one-half percent. With only o minimal conservation effort, this contribution would be overcome.

Moreover, these calculations do not take into account how much energy the ultimate decommissioning of the plants and storage of high-level wastes will require if we are serious about encapsulating them and storing them safely. The methods by which we will do this have not been decided. That may well show a net energy loss from nuclear power.

One of the best ways to relieve the energy crisis is to stop pouring energy into the whole nuclear fuel cycle that eats up so much of our resources and available energy and gives us so little net energy if any, – so many dreadful permanent hazards and problems in return.

Red Cross thanks donors, volunteers

Editor:

The gratitude of the Charlevoix community goes to all the blood donors and volunteers who contributed to the success of the American Red Cross Bloodmobile's visit to Charlevoix on Sept. 12. Although the goal of 125 pints was not met, 96 pints were donated to this cooperative blood program, which is available to all members of the Charlevoix community.

The American Legion allowed the use of their facilities, and the members of Beta Sigma Phi sorority served refreshments provided by local merchants. Many volunteers contributed their time also to this effort. Each contribution is acknowledged and appreciated.

The Bloodmobile will return in January and more donors and volunteers are needed to have a successful drive. Please think about participating next time.

Sincerely,
The American Red Cross

September...when the school doors open

Erma Bombeck

September... the season when schools open their doors... school janitors become sex symbols... and little children wander around the halls muttering, "My Mom can drive."

Throughout the years, I thought I had heard just about every horror story of volunteer mothers you could think of. But I hadn't heard the one about the busload of Head Start children which my friend in California volunteered to help transport.

That memorable Monday, 75 three-year-olds boarded a bus to be transported to the Jewish temple a couple of miles away. A pastor was in charge of the driving and my friend sat in the front seat and was in charge of "tranqulity."

The children were dropped off and picked up again without a hitch. Now all that was left was to drop children off in the arms of their waiting mothers at 15 street corners in Venice, California. It would have worked out perfectly had someone remembered to tell the mothers.

They took the children back to the temple to "check their records" for addresses, only to find the doors locked. They threw themselves on the mercy of the children. It seemed all 75 of them lived in a white house with a fence around it and two trees in the front yard.

They put plan B into operation, which was to stop at every street corner while the reverend led them in prayer. Occasionally, at these stops they dragged strangers in off the street to see if they recognized anyone on the bus. (By this time the children were into their third afternoon nap.)

After four hours, the children were all safely at home. Not to be daunted on the next trip, our school volunteer decided to remedy this situation by hanging a colored bird around the neck of each child. The pink birds would get off at the pink corner, the green birds on the green corner, etc. Her only problem was that she ran out of colors and one group had blackbirds around their necks. When a mother heard her call out to a group of black children, "All blackbirds off the bus," she called her a bigot and demanded her resignation.

The life of a school volunteer is not an easy road. It takes stamina, time and personal sacrifice. In your infinite mercy, take a school volunteer to lunch this week.

Not in the school cafeteria, for crying out loud!

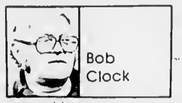
Legal ramifications of nuclear power dangerous



Bob Clock

I received a phone call a few weeks ago from a young nuclear expert from California who recently moved to Ann Arbor. He is employed by a nuclear consortium which is attempting to sell a gun-shy public on the advantages of nuclear energy in the wake of the Three Mile Island accident.

He had read a piece I had written on a recent presentation by Consumers Power Co. in Charlevoix on plans to enlarge its spent fuel storage area at the Big Rock Point plant. He came to the conclusion that the press is badly in need of more information about nuclear energy.

And he is probably right. Thirty four years after the United States dropped atomic bombs on Japan, nuclear energy remains as much as a mystery as ever for the vast majority of Americans.

My caller proposed that he come to Northern Michigan to meet with the local press association to discuss nuclear energy. The proposal was an excellent one – aside from the fact that there is no press association in Northern Michigan.

However, we could have remedied that problem with a few telephone calls to area newspapers.

"If we can get this thing set up, I hope you'll also be able to bring us up to date on the legal ramifications of nuclear energy," I said. "That seems to be the overriding concern right now in Northern Michigan, more so even than the safety of nuclear plants."

There was a long silence on the other end of the line. "What do you mean – legal ramifications?" my new friend asked.

I explained that the governing bodies Charlevoix, Petoskey and Harbor Springs were in the process of deciding whether to buy shares of nuclear plants now under construction by Detroit Edison and Consumers Power. Top O' Michigan Rural Electric also has committed itself to purchase into a nuclear facility.

"As a resident, property owner and rate payer in Charlevoix, where does my liability start and where does it end in the event of a Three Mile Island-type accident at one of the plants owned partially by the city? Or if I were a member of the Top O' Michigan co-op, would I be held liable in the event of accidents?"

There was another long pause on the other end of the line. "I really don't know what to tell you," my caller responded. "There's that federal act – what's it called? – that sets liability limits per accident."

"I think you're talking about the Price-Anderson Act," I said. "But so far as I know, it's never been tested. Let's say we had a full-blown meltdown at Fermi II. Contamination downwind for 50 to 100 miles. For the next 25 years, everyone living within a 50-mile radius who comes down with the tiniest skin cancer – not to mention more deadly varieties – is going to sue Detroit Edison for damages. And as long as we have liberal judges and juries, most of the victims or their survivors are going to collect. Who pays the freight?"

"I don't think that question has been answered," my caller said.

"I'm not a lawyer," I said. "But it would seem that the owners of the facility are responsible – and from here on in it looks as though that is going to include not only the utilities themselves but also municipal corporations. To tell you the truth, this question has me more worried than the question of nuclear safety. As part owners of a nuclear facility, a TMI-type accident could break us."

"That's something I hadn't thought about," my caller said.

"But it's certainly something the nuclear industry had better consider," I suggested. "Nuclear power may be both safe and economical, but the legal ramifications could be disasterous."

My caller said he would call back os soon as he could come up with some answers. But he hasn't called.

Corporate affairs stock prices are easy to follow

Harold Smith

Buyers of common stocks often voice the complaint that they find it difficult to monitor the progress of a company, and to understand some, if not all, of the price movements of its stock.

Obviously not all common stock price changes can be easily accounted for. There are at least 25 million investors in the marketplace and some of their buy and sell decisions may have little or nothing to do with the fortunes of a company.

There are also a lot of non-market factors that can effect price movements such as war, peace, international tensions, elections, energy problems, etc. Nevertheless, there's a lot of other directly pertinent events that cause stock prices to go up and down so let's see if we can identify some of the more sensible yardsticks that investors can use to intelligently observe corporate activity and potential stock price direction.

Corporate progress can be easily monitored by carefully reasing and studying financial statements. Most corporations publish statements of financial progress every three months. If you own the stock, you will receive the financial statement directly. Corporations do a little grander job of financial reporting in their annual report. In such reports they also carefully discuss corporate progress over the preceeding year. The investor should also read the president's annual message. Sometimes such messages reveal the innermost objectives and priorities of corporations. This can be an important clue to the future of the company and its stock price. Write the company for earlier rcports and read those messages, too. See if the companies management sets goals and, more importantly, if it achieves them.

Next, let's see if we can find out if the corporate officers put their money where their mouth is. Do they own stock in the company they run? Are they persistany buyers of same? Or do they just take a good game and leave the investing and risk taking to you? We're happy to report that such information is readily available. Corporate officers and other insiders, must report their changes in stockholdings of their company. "Outsiders" (you and me) can find this information out by reading the financial press or subscribing to a couple of publications that compile such data. One such publication is the "Official Summary of Security Transactions and Holdings" and is published by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Is such insider information an infallible yardstick of future corporate progress and stock price trends? Certainly not. But it is just as certainly another helpful indicator. When used in conjunction with other data, financial and otherwise, it can help make the corporate future less of a mystery and more of a probability. In the investing business that just might be all the help you'll need.

Meet Charlevoix

Sister Agnes Mary Wojtkowiak is the new principal of St. Mary's School. This week the Courier talks with her about St. Mary's, what she hopes to accomplish there, and her past schooling and teaching experience.

COURIER: What was your last assignment before coming to St. Mary's?

SISTER AGNES MARY: I was at St. Francis School in Traverse City for 10 years. I taught and assisted the principal there. Before that I was at Immaculate Heart in Grand Rapids. St. Mary's in Lowell, and St. Mary's in Saginaw. That's a lot ol St. Mary's, isn't it?

COURIER: Where did you go to school?

SISTER AGNES MARY: I graduated from Aquinas College and have done graduate work in education at Central Michigan and Michigan State.

COURIER: Have you always taught in elementary schools?

SISTER AGNES MARY Yes, and of course besides being principal here, I teach second grade.

COURIER: When did you decide you wanted to be a nun?

SISTER AGNES MARY: When I was a senior at St. Mary's High School in Gaylord. I was impressed with the dedication of the teachers and they always seemed so happy.

COURIER: You're not wearing a habit. Did you ever wear one?

SISTER AGNES MARY: I used to wear a habit but they're not required now.

COURIER: What would you like most to accomplish at St. Mary's?

SISTER AGNES MARY: I would like to develop the children's potential to the fullest and teach them respect lor other people. In a small school like ours, children can get individual help and we can draw out their talents. Also, as a Christian school, I hope to draw them closer to the Lord.

COURIER: How do you teach your religion classes?

SISTER AGNES MARY: Each teacher teaches a hall hour religion class each day, and each Friday morning we have liturgy lor all the students. The older children read and the younger ones carry gifts. Jean Brewster is our music teacher and she directs the children in hymns and songs with body movements.

COURIER: Who are your other teachers this year?

SISTER AGNES MARY: Jean Dubey teaches first grade, I teach second grade, John Gagnon teaches third grade, Karen Kirschner teaches fourth grade; and Harry Renko teaches fifth and sixth grades. In addition, Linda Moore teaches remedial reading and remedial math.

COURIER: Don't soma of your students go to the Charlevoix Middla School for special activities?

SISTER AGNES MARY: Yes, our sixth graders go for band and gym.

COURIER: How is your enrollment this year?

SISTER AGNES MARY: We started out with two more than last year, but the Gibbons family left and we're down to the same figure as last year, 71. First grade is our largest class. We have 18 students there.

COURIER: Do you have a parents' organization?

SISTER AGNES MARY: We have the Parish Club, which is very active. We don't have a hot lunch program so every other Thursday the Parish Club furnishes a hot dog lunch to the kids. They also work in the library and on the playground and help with enything that has to be done for the school. Sue Erber is president ol the Parish Club.

COURIER: Who is on your Board of Education?

SISTER AGNES MARY: Eugene Dziedzic is president, Mrs. Patrick Donnelly is vice-president, and Mrs. Bernie OeVries is secretary. Fritz Allard is the other member.

COURIER: Since you went to high school in Gaylord, you probably grew up there.

SISTER AGNES MARY: Yes, and my mother and six of my eight brothers and sisters still live there. The other two live in Detroit.

COURIER: Where in Charlevoix do you live?

SISTER AGNES MARY: In the convent, with Sister Ellen Mary and Sister Phyllis. Sister Ellen Mary teaches religious education in the church and Sister Phyllis is secretary for the school part time and secretary for the parish part time.

COURIER: What are your hobbies?

SISTER AGNES MARY: Singing – I'm going to join the church choir – sewing, canning, and preserving. I also like to watch football and basketball.

Northern Michigan Mareh of Dimes (Charlevoix, Cheboygan, & Emmet counties) recently purchased a sound alide projector for District Health Department No. 3. Garry Featherly, treasurer for the March of Dimes, presented the projector to Dr. James T. Harrison (left), Regional Medical Direetor for District Health Departments No. 3 and 4.

The projector will be used by tha Health Department to help with various group eduealional programs. Many of the programs will be intended to inform children or parents about various health related topics.

Dr. Harrison said "We appreciate the donation by the Mareh of Dimes, and I'm sure wa'll put tha projeetor to good use."

Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226 and Auxiliary to host district meeting

The Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226 and its Auxiliary will host the next District 13 meeting at the post home here Dec. 9 it was announced at a recent meeting of the Auxiliary held here.

Mrs. Harry Pearsall, Mrs. Louis McKenzie and Mrs. William Farkas attended the recent district meeting held at Bellaire. Department President Donno Bailey attended the meeting. The Charlevoix Auxiliary was presented with a white ribbon for having reached its quota for 1978-79.

At the business session, the group voted to contribute $100 to the Department's nurse's scholarship program; to sponsor a girl for Wolverine Girls' State next June and to host a dinner at the post home for the members of the Saladin Shrine band who will be presenting a concert here Oct. 6.

1979-80 dues are now payable members were advised.

Mrs. George Shearer, a member who now lives in southern Michigan, attended the meeting while spending two weeks here.

Those present at the meeting signed 14 cards to be sent to Ruthe Browe, Ruth Withers and Michael Pearsall who have been ill and for shut-ins and other members who are away.

Mrs. Nancy Wood and Mrs. Jan Medfort will serve as hostesses at the Oct. 11 meeting of the Auxiliary.

Sherry Jensen is this year's Golden Girl for the Charlevoix Red Rayder Marching Band. The band made its debut under director Michael Filkins Sept. 14 when the Rayder football team entertained Benzie Central.

Erosion to be discussed

The Department of Natural Resources, Shoreland Section, has scheduled two meetings in the area to explain the recent rule changes dealing with the High Risk Erosion Section of the Shoreland Protection and Management Act (P. A. 245 of 1970).

Two meetings are scheduled for Tuesday, Sept. 25, ot 5 p.m. and 7:30 p.m., at Whiting Park, and two other meetings will be held Wednesday, Sept. 26, at 5 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. at Northwest Michigan College Continuing Education Center in Traverse City.

The meetings are designed to review and explain the new rules as promulgated on how they will affect property owners in designated high risk erosion areas.

Meeting on welfare act

Persons interested in administration of the Social Welfare Act will have an opportunity to be heard at a meeting scheduled for Oct. 2 at 9 a.m. in the Medical Care Facility in Traverse City.

The hearing is one of several to be held throughout the state in response to Governor William G. Milliken's State of the State' message in which he requested a task force to review the Social Welfare Act, and to conduct public hearings.

Areas of study and discussion include administration of welfare programs, income maintenance programs, children and youth programs, adult and family community services, employment opportunities, and federal-state issues.

Preliminary recommendations of the committee will be due Dec. 1, 1979. Following the second set of hearings in April, the committee will issue a final report July 1, 1980.

Voc-ed programs

The Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District Parent Advisory Committee (PAC) has arranged for Richard Warren Work-Study Co-ordinator of Lansing Schools to give a presentation on community based vocational programs for special education students. It will outline how any community can afford alternative vocational programs with out entailing large expenditures.

There will be a short film and slides showing three different models for offering vocational training to special education students and showing utilization of existing training sites. The program is Saturday, Sept. 29 at 7:30 p.m. in the library of the Petoskey High School.

Coffee and cookies will be available during the question and answer period following the presentation. All are welcome and encouraged to attend as this program is of vital interest to all persons in the area. Parents of special education students are urged to make an extra effort to attend.

Two unbeatens to collide Friday night

Unheralded at the start of the season, the Charlevoix Rayders have suddenly turned into the Cinderella team of the Michigan-Huron Shores.

The Rayders won their third straight gridiron contest Friday, 14-7, against arch-rival Petoskey. Charlevoix is 1-0 in conference play, which ties them for the lead with Gaylord, Cheboygan and Grayling.

A lot of attention will be focused on Kipke Field Friday when the Rayders host Gaylord. The Blue Devils are 3-0 and are considered to be one of the top teams in state Class B circles. Gaylord owns victories over Sault Ste. Marie (a Class A school), Onaway and St. Ignace.

The Blue Devils combine speed and power. Doug Mead and Scott Hansen will do most of the running and when Gaylord puts the ball in the air 6-6 Joe Andrews offers a big target.

Charlevoix will counter with a strong rushing attack of its own. Bob Russell has amassed 485 yards on the ground - including 150 in the win over Petoskey. Russell's runningmate, Nick Anderson, is equally dangerous. Anderson scored what proved to be the winning touchdown Friday when he galloped 55 yards in the third quarter to give the Rayders their 14-7 advantage.

The first half of Friday's contest was a standoff.

Petoskey got on the scoreboard first when Clark Hewitt passed seven yards to Chris Fought. Phil Simard booted the extra point. In the second quarter, Charlevoix evened the score when sophomore Scott Kelly passed 12 yards to Scott Morgan. Morgan converted.

The second half, however, belonged to the Rayders.

Early in the third quarter, Charlevoix bolted ahead as Anderson found some running room on the left side and scampered 55 yards for a touchdown. Morgan split the uprights to make it 14-7.

Meanwhile, the Rayder defense led by Rod Anderson and Jerry Sladek kept the Northmen offense bottled up. Petoskey could only muster 140 yards on offense. Anderson was credited with 10 tackles and Sladek nine.

The Rayder offense did a good job of protecting the lead by gobbling up yards on the ground and time on the clock. In fact, the game ended with the Rayders at the Northmen one yard line.

The loss dropped Petoskey to 0-3 on the season, a far cry from what Petoskey fans have been accustomed to in past years.

Charlevoix finished with 291 yards in total offense. Kelly completed five of seven passes for 63 yards.

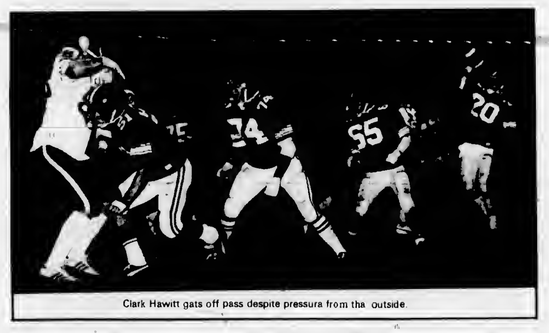
JV's shutout, 16-0

The Rayder junior varsity football squad took it on the chin Thursday, succumbing to Petoskey, 16-0.

Petoskey scored twice in the second half to claim its first victory of the season. The Northmen touchdowns came on runs of 12 and 55 yards by Dean Schuch and Jim Jones. Todd Muche passed to Mark Gregory for two point conversions after each of the touchdowns.

The Rayders dropped to 1-2 on the season. Coach Hal Evans credited Charlie Morris and Bill Ranger for their strong play in the defeat.

Charlevoix will travel to Gaylord Thursday.



Clark Hawitt gats off pass despite pressura from tha outside.

TD passes key win

Jeff Trimper threw two touchdown passes plus a two point conversion to Fred Mielke Wednesday to lead Charlevoix's freshman football team past Rogers City, 14-12.

The first Trimper to Mielke touchdown pass came in the second quarter. The play covered 15 yards and it tied the score at 6-6.

In the third quarter - with 4:11 on the clock - Trimper and Mielke teamed up on a 17 yard touchdown pass to give the Rayders a 14-6 lead.

Both of Rogers City's scores came on long runs - one of 50 yards in the first quarter and another of 40 yards late in the third quarter.

The defenses took over in the final quarter, halting potential scoring drives.

The victory evened the Rayders record at 1-1.

Coach Charlie Bentley cited Trimper, Mielke, Shannon Reynolds, Jon Supernaw, Craig Klooster and Steve Keller for their outstanding play.

Central Lake gives Rayders scare, 50-49

The Charlevoix Rayders withstood a 38 point performance by Central Lake's Mary Hopp Tuesday night to beat the Trojans 50-49.

The win was the second for the Rayders in as many starts. It was Central Lake's first loss in three games.

Charlevoix got off to a fast start, building up a 10 point lead in the first half. But Central Lake battled back and cut the deficit to four, 28-24, at half.

Hopp scored all 14 of the Trojan points in the second quarter while Charlevoix's Melinda Klooster was on the bench with three personal fouls.

With Klooster nursing a sprained ankle early in the third quarter, the Trojan's took control and shot ahead, 41-39.

The lead seesawed back and forth in the fourth quarter. It appeared Charlevoix had the game won, 50-47, when Hopp scored a basket and was fouled with just one second remaining.

As a psychological ploy, Charlevoix Coach Toni Felter called two timeouts in succession.

"She was hot," Coach Felter explained. "I wanted to give her (Hopp's) a lot of time to think about the shot."

The strategy paid off as Hopp missed and Teresa Noirot grabbed the rebound preserving the win.

Hopp was the only Trojan player to score in double figures. And her performance drew praise from the Charlevoix coach.

"She was awesome," Coach Felter said. "We couldn't stop her.

"She really kept us hopping."

Despite sitting out most of the second and third quarters, Klooster scored 21 points to pace the Rayder attack. Senior Marie Buday added nine points and received praise from her coach afterwards for her "hustle and scrap."

The Rayders will be back in action Sept. 27 at Ellsworth.

In Tuesday's junior varsity contest, Charlevoix won its second straight squeaker, 27-25.

Harriers place second

The Charlevoix Red Rayder cross country team placed second in the Ludington Invitational over the weekend.

The Rayders finished with 69 points. Mason County Central won top honors with 56 points.

Charlevoix had five runners in the top 25 - including three in the top 10. Jay Swartwout had the best time at 16:25, which placed him fourth, Jeff Landon was ninth with a time of 16:48, Jim Duke was 10th at 17:11, Jim Landon was 20th at 17:28, and Scott Davis was 23rd at 17:31.

In a meet last Tuesday, Charlevoix claimed the top three spots to easily outdistance Michigan-Huron Shores rivals Boyne City and Gaylord.

The Rayders beat Boyne City, 23-40, and Gaylord, 19-38. Gaylord then beat Boyne City, 27-41.

In the meet, Charlevoix's Jay Swartont finished first with a time of 16:35, Jeff Landon was second at 16:40 and Tom Klooster came in third with a time of 17:08.

The Rayders also placed three other runners in the top 10 - Jim Duke was fifth at 17:18, Jim Landon was sixth at 17:26 and Scott Davis was ninth at 17:57.

Charlevoix also won the junior varsity meet with 33 points. Gaylord was second with 38 points and Boyne City third with 69 points. Jon Spieles of Charlevoix took first with a time of 18:34.

offticials with emergency planning responsibilities. The NRC team toured the plant and met with utility personnel on Tuesday, they met with government officials on Wednesday and then held a public meeting on Thursday at City Hall.

The review team is one of six in an NRC Emergency Planning Task Force which will visit every operating reactor site in the country by mid-1980. The team that was here consisted of Axelson and two consultants Jerry Martin and Alden Oyer. Present for Thursday's meeting was James Miller, acting director for site and safeguards and Pagano, director of the Emergency Planning Task Force.

NRC officials did say that Big Rock Point will get a resident inspector "soon."

The plant is currently shut down for repairs.

The Charlevoix Historical Society will hold its monthly meeting Tuesday, Oct. 2 at 8 p.m. in the community room of the First State Bank in Charlevoix.

A program on oral history will be presented by Robert Morgridge. A teacher in Boyne City and a director of the Charlevoix Historical Society, Morgridge has for several years been engaged in recording on tape recollections of "old-timers" as a method of preserving historical data that might otherwise be lost. Some of his oral material is accompanied by slides reproduced from old photographs or existing artifacts.

Members of the society will also discuss observation of the centennial of the early historical society, which was organized in Charlevoix on Nov. 24, 1879.

Commission rejects State of Superior

A majority of the members of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners would prefer that the county remain in the State of Michigan and not join the proposed "Independent State of Superior".

At its last meeting, the county board defeated a resolution asking that the Michigan legislature pass a bill authorizing a special election to determine if the majority of the electorate wished to secede from Michigan and become part of the new state, and to grant consent if they did.

The resolution met defeat by only one vote, 7 to 6. Commissioners voting in favor of it were Ralph Harmon, Larry Matthew, Oscar Ward, John Haggard, Tom Breakey, and Casimir Toton.

Those voting against the resolution were Delbert Ingalls, Clyde Cunningham, Ira Davis, Keith Annear, Marvin Loding, Don Meggison, and Lee Moerland. Commissioners Chad McDonald and Oral Sutliff were absent.

Creation of the "Independent State of Superior" is the brainchild of Karl Waldner of Boyne City. He envisions the 36 northern-most counties of Michigan, including those in the Upper Peninsula, breaking away from those in the southern part of the state to form the "Independent State of Superior", with all its attendant benefits, which he describes as follows:

"The new emerging state's democratic-financial makeup will eliminate the need of property, single business, state sales and income, and inheritance taxes. A municipal area income tax, based on ability to pay, will be substituted along with reduced basic use fees which will cover true expenses."

Waldner has spent months researching the procedure for secession and is certain he is approaching the matter in the proper way. He has also spent much time contacting boards of commissioners in the 36 northern-most counties, requesting that they pass resolutions asking the state to authorize the special election.

At last report, only one county had passed such a resolution. Now, Waldner's home county is added to the list of those who apparently feel that Michigan is an all-right state.

Meeting on land use planning Oct. 5 in Gaylord

Citizens and local officials will have a chance to discuss their problems in planning for future land use at a public hearing scheduled for Friday, Oct. 5, at 1 p.m. at the Court House in Gaylord.

Conducted by the Local Planning Subcommittee of the House Standing Committee on Towns and Counties, the meeting is designed to bring forth ideas on how the legislature can make it easier for local officials to do their job in the area of land use planning, according to Representative Alice Tomboulian (D-Pontiac), chairwoman of the subcommittee.

"These will be informal hearings, conducted under a 'town meeting' format," Ms. Tomboulian said.

As a starting point for discussion, four concepts for legislative action will be presented:

–The establishment of a process to insure that the land planning and community development problems faced by local governments will be conveyed to the state and serve as a basis for legislative programs.

–The creation of a local government advisory council to advise state agencies on local concerns and to seek resolution of state-local disputes affecting community development, including a role for regional planning agencies.

–The establishment of policies and processes for state agencies to insure local involvement in agency decision-making.

–The provision of effective technical services from state agencies and regional planning agencies when requested by local governments to solve land planning and community development problems.

Attend conference

Students at St. Mary's School in Charlevoix had a two-day vacation this week while the teaching staff attended the Educational Conference of the Michigan Association of Non-Public Schools in Detroit.

The meeting, held on Monday and Tuesday, featured lectures and informal talks by over 100 educators from across the country.

Theme of the conference was "Christian Education: Basic and Beyond".

CHARLEVOIX CITY COUNCIL MINUTES

SEPTEMBER 17, 1979
8:00 P.M.

The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date and time with Mayor Supernaw presiding.

Present: Councilmen Muma, Whitley, Porter, Timms, Roloff and Wood. Absent: None.

The Minutes of the September 4, 1979 regular meeting were approved as presented in writing and as recorded in the Council Minutes Book.

Mrs. Irma Schied, owner of the property at 1002 Bridge Street, stated that she had had that parcel of property rezoned from R-2 to C-1 in 1963 and that it had subsequently been changed to PO (Professional Office) without her knowledge. Mayor Supernaw explained that the re-zoning was due to the adoption of a new Zoning Ordinance and that the property in question was being used for professional offices at the time of the new zoning and was, therefore, zoned to reflect its use at that time. Council generally agreed that Mrs. Schied must go through the proper channels and pay the fee for a re-zoning if she wished to return the property to the C-1 zone.

Moved by Councilman Wood and supported by Councilman Porter that the City renew the contract with the U.S. Coast Guard to provide dock space for the Sundew for a period of one year, from Oct. 1, 1979 to Sept. 30, 1980, for a fee of $1.00.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmen Muma, Whitley, Porter, Timms, Roloff and Wood. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Moved by Councilman Timms and supported by Councilman Whitley to approve the Site Plan as presented by James Boocher for a commercial building on U.S. 31, South, as recommended by the City Planning Commission.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmen Muma, Whitley, Porter, Timms, Roloff and Wood. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Moved by Councilman Wood and supported by Councilman Timms to accept and file the City Planning Commission Minutes dated Sept. 10, 1979.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Councilmen Muma, Whitley, Porter, Timms, Roloff and Wood. Nays: None. Absent: None.

The following Resolution was offered and moved for its adoption by Councilman Porter and supported by Councilman Muma.

RESOLUTION 79-9-3

WHEREAS, the City of Charlevoix is a member municipality of the Michigan Public Power Agency ("MPPA") a joint agency organized and existent pursuant to Act No. 448 of the Michigan Public Acts of 1976; and

WHEREAS, MPPA has resolved to enter into a settlement agreement (the "Settlement Agreement") with Consumes Power Company of Jackson, Michigan with respect to the pending Midland Plant Antitrust Review Proceding (NRC Docket Nos. 329A and 330A); and

WHEREAS, the Settlement Agreement, among other things, entitles MPPA to (i) purchase an undivided ownership interest in, and be entitled to a portion of the electric power and energy derived from, Campbell Unit No. 3 (the "Campbell Project"), a fossil fuel-fired steam electric generating unit located in Ottawa County, Michigan (ii) purchase back-up capacity and energy for periods during which Campbell Unit No. 3 is totally or partially out of service and (iii) purchase an undivided interest in certain 345kV and higher voltage transmission lines currently owned by Consumers Power; and

WHEREAS, this and other member municipalities of MPPA desire to enter into a contract with MPPA to provide for the purchase and sale of power and energy derived from the Campbell Project; and

WHEREAS, MPPA intends to finance its purchase of the above described interest by the issuance of revenue bonds and, in order to issue such revenue bonds, it is necessary for MPPA to have substantially similar binding contracts with this municipality and each other municipality electing to participate in the purchase of power and energy derived from the Campbell Project; and

WHEREAS, MPPA will pledge the payments required to be made in accordance with such contracts as security for the payment of such revenue bonds; and

WHEREAS, the City Clerk has on file a copy of the proposed Power Sales Contract (bearing a draft date of "9/7/79"), to be entered into by MPPA and each municipality participating in the Campbell Project, which Power Sales Contract provides for the purchase and sale of power and energy derived from the Campbell Project, the purchase of back-up power and energy and the purchase of rights to utilize certain designated transmission lines; and

WHEREAS, the City Clerk also has on file a copy of the proposed Project Support Contract (bearing a draft date of "9/7/79"), to be entered into by MPPA and each municipality participating in the Campbell Project, which Project Support Contract provides for the payment by each municipality to MPPA for certain fixed costs relating to the purchase and ownership of MPPA's undivided interest in the Campbell Project during those periods in which power and energy is not made available to such municipalities under the Power Sales Contract.

NOW, THEREFORE, IT IS HEREBY RESOLVED BY THE CITY COUNCIL OF CHARLEVOIX AS FOLLOWS:

1. The form of Power Sales Contract and Project Support Contract (the "Contracts") presented to this City on this date are hereby approved and the Mayor and Clerk of this City are hereby authorized and directed to execute such contracts on behalf of this City in substantially the form as presented on this date with such insertions, deletions and modifications as such officers deem necessary, provided, however, that the following insertions shall be included:

A. The Contracts shall provide that the City of Charlevoix shall purchase a power entitlement share in the Campbell Project equivalent to two (2) megawatts of power and energy and provide for the resale of a portion of such power and energy as planned access to MPPA; and

B. The Contracts shall provide that the City of Charlevoix shall purchase back-up capacity equivalent to two (2) megawatts of power and energy; and

C. The Contracts shall provide that the City of Charlevoix shall purchase a transmission entitlement share equivalent to two (2) megawatts.

2. The Mayor and Clerk of the city of Charlevoix are further authorized and directed to execute such other documents and deliver or cause to be delivered such other certificates, opinions and documents necessary to enable this City to enter into the Contracts.

3. The City of Charlevoix hereby agrees to make such payments as are required under each of the Contracts.

Resolution was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmen Muma, Whitley, Porter, Timms, Roloff and Wood. Nays: None Absent: None.

Moved by Councilman Timms and supported by Councilman Wood to increase the mileage from 15 to .20 per mile for employees using their own vehicles for City business.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Councilmen Muma, Whitley, Porter, Timms, Roloff and Wood. Nays: None Absent: None.

Robert Steadman, attorney for the Bathey Condominium project on Round Lake, appeared before Council to request that Mr. Bathey be given written consent to proceed with his residential development of the property. Mr. Steadman contends that the City had agreed to the concept of the entire project prior to the adoption of the new Zoning Ordinance which changed the zoning of Mr. Bathey's property from Marine Industrial, which allowed the multiple housing, to Mariner Commercial, which does not permit multiple use. A letter submitted by Michael Gibbons, ex-City Attorney, recommended that the City enter into a consent agreement wherein the project as initially proposed could be completed due to Mr. Bathey's substantial reliance on the City's prior approval. Don Gerlage, Acting City Attorney, concurred with Mr. Gibbons recommendation. Tom Duke, a member of the City Planning Commission, stated the project could not be completed unless the property is re-zoned to R-4 and that he would pay for and submit to Council a legal opinion confirming his statement.

Moved by Councilman Whitley that Mr. Bathey be allowed to continue his condominium project on Round Lake.

Councilman Whitley withdrew his motion following Councilman Wood's request for further discussion of the matter.

The following Resolution was offered and moved for its adoption by Councilman Whitley.

RESOLUTION 79-9-4

BE IT RESOLVED that the Charlevoix City Council hereby approves the continuation of the Bathey multiple residential project on the basis of Council's prior preliminary Site Plan approval, subject to final Site Plan approval.

Resolution died due to lack of support.

It was generally agreed to place the Bathey matter on the agenda for the next Committee of the Whole meeting for further study and evaluation.

The City Manager was authorized to pursue a grant for a sewer extension to the City's Industrial Park.

Moved by Councilman Porter and supported by Councilman Roloff to appoint Frank Hoffman as City Attorney.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmen Muma, Whitley, Porter, Timms, Roloff and Wood. Nays: None. Absent: None.

The Finance Committee having examined bills totalling $374,836.00 find them correct and recommend the bills be allowed.

Moved by Councilman Timms and supported by Councilman Muma that the bills be allowed and orders drawn for their amount.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Councilmen Muma, Whitley, Porter, Timms, Roloff and Wood. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Council adjourned.

Sunbird

The 1979 Sunbird shown above will be awarded Oct. 19 by the Charlevoix Band Boosters as the first prize in a contest sponsored by the group Dr. Merle Plagge, newly-elected president of the Boosters, has announced. A number of lesser prizes will also be awarded.

Proceeds from the contest will be used to purchase uniforms for the Charlevoix High School Band. Present uniforms have been in use for 12 years though those purchased to supplement the inventory as the band grew in size are newer.

Anyone wishing more information about the contest may contact any member of the Band Boosters.

School of Instrusction attracts 35 from area

The Auxiliary of Charlevoix V.F.W. Post No. 1153 hosted the District 13 School of Instruction at the post home recently with 35 members present from Petoskey-Harbor Springs, Boyne City, Torch Lake and Charlevoix.

Mrs. Ruth Smith, senior vice president for the State of Michigan and Mrs. Phyllis Goosen, state chaplain, conducted the school of instruction with members from various auxiliaries assisting in the floor work. The instructions and training included flag formations, general meeting information, duties of officers, parlimentary procedures and community work for auxiliaries.

All auxiliaries were urged to fill their quotas to Department and National Headquarters. It was also emphasized that more funds are needed for cancer research, in addition to the large sums contributed each year by the V.F.W. for cancer and research. Grants are also available for members eligible for cancer aid.

Buffet refreshments served at tables decorated in an autumn motif by a committee composed of Mrs. Jack warner, chairman, Mrs. Dorothy Gelding, Mrs. Gerald Burke, Mrs. Thomas Hodgkinson, Mrs. Albert Russell and Mrs. Goldstick.

Plans were announced for a potluck supper for V.F.W. and Auxiliary members and their families at 6 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 29. Members are asked to bring their own table service and a dish to pass.

All Post members are asked to attend a painting bee at the post home Saturday, Sept. 29, working as many or as few hours as they can. A light lunch will be provided. Members are asked to contact Commander Lyle King, 547-2254 if they can attend.

The next meeting of the Auxiliary will be held at the post home Thursday, Oct. 4 with Mrs. Russell Dohm and Shelly Warner as hostesses. Members are reminded to bring Christmas gifts for veterans at the Traverse City State Hospital.

GEMWISE
JEWELRY FASHIONS FACTS FICTION

John Reusch

Diamond is a gem of exceptional beauty and life resulting from its interaction with light. Some terms and definitions relating to optical characteristics of diamond, each contributing to diamonds overall beauty, follow:

Reflection - the bouncing of light off the facets (surfaces)

Refraction - the bending of light into the stone (where it is then reflected from internal surfaces and leaves the stone through the top).

Brilliancy - the intensity of the reflection (both internal and external) of white light.

Dispersion - fire the breaking up of white light into its component colors - fire being the flash of these different colors.

Scintillation - the flashing of light from polished facets when either the stone, the observer or the light source is moving.

Let the diamond experts at Reusch Jewelry show you these characteristics and help you in selection of your diamond jewelry.

CHARLEVOIX CHURCH DIRECTORY

The institution of marriage has been with us since the dawn of civilization, and the family unit the stabilizing force that has held our society together. Yet loud voices now proclaim marriage to be a dying custom, based on the rising incidence of divorce. However, it is no accident that the wedding ceremony had its origin in religious writings; and the teachings of faith could save many an ailing marriage if the partners would only heed them, and treat each other with at least half the courtesy and kindness they usually reserve for other people. They might even reacquire the love that united them in the first place. Many marriages begin in Church; perhaps many more of them could be saved there.

Wedding

Titus-Kerner

Diane D. Titus and Charles F. Kerner, Jr. were married Saturday morning, Aug. 18, at the Church of God in Petoskey.

Parents of the newlyweds are Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Titus and Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Kerner, Sr., both of Charlevoix.

The Reverend Ronald Knapp performed the double-ring ceremony in front of the altar decorated with peach carnations, chrysanthemums, and baby's breath as 125 guests looked on.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ivory nylon peasant-style gown trimmed in nylon lace and featuring full-length nylon net sleeves with lace trim. Her headpiece was a laurel wreath fashioned of ivory silk roses and baby's breath and she carried a bouquet of white sweetheart roses, white button chrysanthemums, and baby's breath, with an ivory streamer.

Debbie Bureh of Kalamazoo served the bride as maid of honor, and Nancy Ralston of St. Joseph and Lori Kerner of Charlevoix, sister of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids. They wore gowns of peach nylon with matching capelets. Their bouquets were of peach sweetheart roses, white button chrysanthemums, and baby's breath, with peach streamers. Their headpieces were combs with flowers matching their bouquets.

Shirley Kerner, the bridegroom's cousin, was flower girl. She wore a flowered gown with a peach background styled like those of the adult attendants and carried a basket of flowers matching those in the bride's bouquet.

James Kerner served his cousin as best man, and another cousin, John Kerner, and the bride's brother, Tim, of Kalamazoo, were groomsmen.

Music for the ceremony was furnished by Richard Titus, the bride's brother, who played on the guitar and sang "The Wedding Song" and "Follow Me". Mrs. Michael Cummings played the traditional wedding march.

A luncheon, hosted by the bride's parents, was served in the church hall following the ceremony. Leann Southwood, aunt of the bridegroom, made and served the wedding cake. The rehearsal dinner, hosted by the bridegroom's parents, was also held in the church hall.

Following a trip to Mackinac Island, the newlyweds are at home at Bay Shore Villa. The bridegroom is employed by Petoskey Plastics, and the bride by K-Mart. (Photo by Aartvark Studio).

Anniversaries

Mr. and Mrs. Denny

Obituaries

ROBERT RICHARDS

Funeral services for Robert S. Richards, 83, who died Sept. 17 at the Charlevoix Area Hospital, were held Thursday at the Winchester Funeral home. The Rev. Raymond Giffin of the First Congregational church officiated. Interment was in Brookside cemetery where Charlevoix Lodge No. 282, F. & A.M. was in charge of the committal service.

Born in Zanesville, Ohio, April 25, 1896, Mr. Richards was a graduate of Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, and taught at Zanesville before coming to Charlevoix in 1945. He taught science at Charlevoix High School from then until he retired in 1962. He was a veteran of World War I. On May 30, 1925, he was married to the former Helen Grissom at Harrison, Ohio.

He was a member of the First Congregational Church; the World War I Veterans; the S.A.E. fraternity; a life member of Amity Lodge No. 5, F.& A.M., and the Royal Arch Masons; a member of the Chapter No. 485, Order of the Eastern Star, in Zanesville; a member of the White Shrine, the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club and the National Retired Teachers Association.

Besides his wife, he is survived by a son, Robert E. Richards, of Denver, Colo.; a daughter, Mrs. Ruth Apple of Kalamazoo; three grandchildren and a sister, Mrs. Florence Hill of Punta Gorda, Fla.

The family suggests that those wishing to honor Mr. Richards contribute in his name to the First Congregational Church Memorial Fund.

WILLIAM KANE

Funeral services for William A. Kane, 52, who died unexpectedly at his Hayes Township home Monday, were held Thursday at St. Mary's church. The Rev. R. Dale Magoon officiated. Interment was in St. Mary's cemetery. The Rosary was recited at the Winchester Funeral Home Wednesday evening.

Born in Charlevoix Oct. 30, 1926, Mr. Kane was a veteran of World War II having served with the U.S. Navy. Except for time spent in the service, he had always resided here. He was a member of St. Mary's Church, Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226, American Legion, and the Charlevoix V.F.W. Post No. 1153.

He is survived by one son, Michael W. of Charlevoix; two daughters, Mrs. Rodney (Susan) Johnson of Cleveland, Ohio, and Penny Kane of Charlevoix and his father, Otto S. Kane of Charlevoix.

BARBARA KYSSELA

Funeral services for Barbara A. Kyssela, 80, who died Saturday at Grandvue Medical Care Facility where she had been a patient for several years, were held at the Winchester Funeral Home Tuesday morning. The Rev. R. Dale Magoon of St. Mary's church officiated. Interment was in Brookside Cemetery.

Born in Czechoslovakia Dec. 25, 1898, Miss Kyssela came to the U.S. with her parents as a child. She had always lived in Charlevoix. She was employed with the housekeeping staff at the Charlevoix Area Hospital and later as a nurse's aide at the Grandvue Medical Care Facility until she retired. She was a member of St. Mary's Church.

Her only survivors are a niece, Mrs. Mary Wahgarski of Redford Township and a nephew, Edwin J. Mills of Dearborn Heights.

Former Charlevoix grad RON BINDI is having a trying season at Coleman High School. Bindi's varsity football team is winless in three starts. Friday night Harrison upended Coleman 12-0. So far this season Coleman has only scored three points. There is hope for the future, though, because Bindi's squad is comprised mostly of underclassmen. Ron is in his first year at the football helm.

Michigan Bell customers in Boyne City will be able to dial their own long distance person-to-person, collect, credit card and bill-to-third-number calls beginning Monday, Oct. 1 at 8 a.m.

E.W. (MIKE) REID, Michigan Bell local manager, said the company is gradually phasing out its Petoskey long distance operator service operations as part of a continuing program to give customers greater cost and efficiency benefits from new telecommunications technology.

He explained that the new dialing services are made possible by an electronic system with pushbutton consoles for operators which has replaced the older, cord-type operator switchboards.

Beginning Monday (Oct. 1), long distance calls from Boyne City will be routed to the company's electronic long distance center in Saginaw, Reid said.

When making one of the new time-saving calls, customers dial "0" (Operator), immediately followed by the area code and then the telephone number in the distant city, Reid said.

An operator at the company's electronic long distance center in Saginaw will come on the line long enough to get acceptance of a collect call, obtain credit card or bill-to-third numbers, or to get the right person on the line for a person-to-person call.

There will be several customer benefits from this consolidation, Reid explained.

Operator-handled calls will go through much faster, operator response to customer calls will be quicker in most cases because of the bigger "team size" at the company's electronic long distance center in Saginaw, and billing errors will be almost non-existent since billing information will be handled by computers.

Alley cat

Ethel Laffey, the main character of Ella Kazan's latest novel, Acts of Love ought to have met Mittens. Mittens is the main character of the feline population in our family. You see, Ethel and Mittens have a lot in common; they're both alley kittens who manage to keep their dignity sanctimoniously intact. Both are pretty classy chicks. If you were to catch a glimpse of Mittens, curled up domestically before the hearth, black coat glistening, meticulous white paws, you would never suspect the truth. This cat is a night prowler with a total lack of discrimination. And Ethel, for all her finesse, charm and physical beauty, seems to march to the beat of the same drum.

What insecurities trigger Ethel's indescretions? The over-indulgence of a wealthy adoptive father? The lack of communication with her out-of-touch adoptive mother? The lack of discipline and supervision applied by her Greek-god husband, Teddy? There is only one stability in Ethel's life and it is supplied oddly enough by her father-in-law. Pillar of strength and orthodoxy, old country solidarity and tradition, a strange mingling of olive oil and ancestor worship, Costa becomes for Ethel what no one else has ever been – a purpose, an idol, a reason-to-be. It is Costa, ironically enough, who is to decide Ethel's destiny in one final "act of love" for her own well-being.

I've taken it upon myself to warn Mittens, "Watch out for Blood and Guts," the boyfriend with the chewed off ear. "He isn't good enough for you." I've cautioned her again and again to come home at a decent hour. And when she got in trouble, I stood by her during pregnancy and delivery like a dutiful parent. It seems not to have mattered much. Mittens is what she is.

Lord knows Costa tried. Perhaps Ethel could have been kept in at night with a litter box. But I suspect that Ethel was what she was despite any of her periodical good intentions.

This rather racy account of young woman's desperate search for someone who will love her enough to cramp her flamboyant style, is also I suspect, a racy old man's (Elia Kazan's) fantasy. I have to be somewhat offended at his version of the legendary "over-sexed female."

Budget hearing scheduled for Oct. 15

The Charlevoix Board of Education set Monday, Oct. 15, as the date for a hearing on the proposed 1979-80 budget presented to the board for consideration at its regular meeting Monday night.

At the same meeting, the board ratified its contract with the Michigan Educational Support Personnel Association which includes all noncertified personnel. The contract is for two years.

The proposed budget as presented by Vincent Olach, business manager, shows a 7.3 percent increase over the 1978-79 audited expenditures. The proposed budget is $2,961,063 as compared to the audited expenditures of $2,759,393 during the 1978-79 school year.

While the budget shows a 7.3 percent increase there is a 10.1 percent increase in taxes to support the proposed budget because of the loss of funds from other sources, Olach explained. Approximately $63,000 has been lost in CETA funds; $15,000 from State Sources and $2,000 from other sources for a total of approximately $80,000 he explained further.

Monies to support the budget will include $2,791,949 from local sources including taxes as compared to $2,519,160 last year; state sources, $152,148 ($167,080); federal sources, $11,779 ($65,313) and incoming transfers, $5,187 ($7,840).

In touching briefly on the various areas of the budget which will be presented in detail at the Oct. 15 hearing, Olach said there were no allowances for maintenance and repair of the three buildings. "There is no money in the budget for roof repairs at all three schools, boiler repairs, floors, calibrating and controlling the heat under one unit of the K-5 school and many lesser repairs and maintenance items" Olach added.

In commenting on the need for funds for maintenance and repairs, Supt. Gordon W. VanWieren said "We are going to have problems with maintenance for the next few years. The public has to understand that schools are like homes, they need constant care. They own the schools therefore the maintenance of them is their responsibility. There is going to have to be specific millage earmarked for this. You can't construct a building and leave it alone. It needs care. It is important that everyone realizes this".

Supt. VanWieren also reported briefly on the M.A.S.B./M.A.S.A. conference he attended recently in Detroit. He said school finance and teachers strikes were the major concerns of those attending.

He also reported on the progress of the addition at the high school. He said the contractor, Petrie Construction of East Jordan had enclosed the work area with snow fence in preparation for moving in heavy equipment; that the covers over the breezeways and walkways would be removed as the workmen prepare for the installation of footings. He said he had been advised that structural steel may hold up the project. The contractor was hopeful of getting the structure enclosed before winter sets in.

The contract with the Michigan Educational Support Personnel Association, which has been in the negotiating stage for several weeks, was ratified. The contract is for two years and represents an overall increase of 8.5 percent this year. The increase during the 1980-81 school year will be based on the increase in the cost of living representing a minimum of 6.0 percent and a maximum of 8.0 percent.

Major changes in the contract was the addition of two additional steps. They are now one, two, three, five and 10 years. New employees will have six holidays. Other employees will continue to have the same number as in the past.

It was also reported that the school had obtained a 1978 executive van at a price of $6,277 which will be used to transport small teams up to 15 members. The purchase was made through Village Car Care.

That the first group of Middle School students (48) had visited the school district's Beaver Island Lighthouse property over the weekend and that arrangements have been made to take a group this weekend.

That the number of students eating hot lunch at school had averaged 175 per/day during September, up from last year, and that "an average of 219 students were eating at the K-5 school. Olaeh who made the report, said the 'brown bag' lunches served at the middle school had attracted more students to the program.

Though a breakdown of the "Count Day" enrollment figures taken Friday were not available, Supt. Gordon W. VanWieren said the enrollment in the three school was down 72 from last year.

That Parent-Teacher Conferences at the Charlevoix High School were scheduled for Oct. 16.

That Grandparents Day at the K-5 School was scheduled for Thursday, Oct. 11.

NRC accepts petition for intervention

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) has accepted a petition - signed by 24 residents living near the Big Rock Point nuclear plant - and will allow that group to intervene in hearings to determine if the capacity of that plant's spent fuel storage pool should be increased.

The petitioners contend that expansion of the spent fuel pool represents "a direct threat to our personal health, the health of our children and to our property."

Consumers Power - which owns Big Rock - has asked the NRC for permission to increase its spent fuel storage capacity from 193 fuel elements to 441 elements. Consumers officials say the increase is necessary if the plant is to be kept in operation.

Big Rock uses 84 fuel bundles at a time. They must be replaced every three years, and are done so on an annual rotating basis.

The petitioners said they are concerned "about the integrity of the south wall of the spent fuel storage pool (as disclosed in a recent technical report)...about the long term effects of high level radiation and severe thermal stressing on the crystalline structure of metals used in the facility and of the weldments thereto (spent fuel elements, under long term storage, have dangerously weakened cladding, resulting in leakage of radioactive solids into the open storage pool)...and over the increased release of radioactive gases from the storage pool to the off-gas system and thence into our atmosphere."

The petitioners argue that there is "no safe method by which highly radioactive waste can be stored" and to allow the increase in capacity at Big Rock would be a "dangerous and destructive act."

What the issue might boil down to is whether or not the spent fuel is considered "temporary" or "permanent" waste.

That issue is in the forefront of a similiar case involving Vermont Yankee. The outcome could set a precedent.

"There are laws against permanent storage (of nuclear waste) in Michigan," said Christa Marie, one of the petitioners. "And it (Big Rock storage pool) was not built with permanence in mind."

Up until 1973, Big Rock's fuel was shipped out to be reprocessed. But that practice has been suspended because of President Carter's moratorium on breeder reactors.

The NRC also has accepted the petition of John O'Neill. O'Neill said he is concerned about certain health, environmental and economic issues surrounding the proposed spent fuel pool expansion.

One of his concerns is the possibility of increased radiation emanating from fuel rods stored in close proximity to one another. Big Rock officials contend the fuel bundles can be stored safely by storing them closer together. They do not think overheating will be a problem.

O'Neill resides in Burdickville.

A third petition, on behalf of John Leithauser, was also accepted by the NRC. However, a petition from the Northwest Coalition was denied.

No date has been set for the hearing.

Meanwhile, members of the anti-nuclear group, NoMAD, have announced plans for a protest rally at Big Rock on Sunday, Oct. 14.

Although plans have not been finalized yet, a spokesman for the group said the rally would probably be at Elzinga Park, which is about ½ mile from the plant. A similiar rally was held in December. Fourteen demonstrators were eventually arrested for trespassing on Consumers Power property.

Big Rock has been shut down since February for refueling and repairs. It is expected to be back on line later this month.

Public hearing Oct. 15 on housing project

A public hearing will be held Oct. 15 to decide the fate of a multiple housing project proposed for the south side of Round Lake.

The developer, Douglas Bathey, has proposed two site plans for the construction of condominiums on the property - one for 13 units and another for 16 units.

Nearly two years ago, the Charlevoix City Council reviewed the 13 unit plan and gave the concept its stamp of approval. But just over a year ago the property was rezoned (by the city council) from marine industrial to marine commercial, limiting the property to single family homes and marine type uses.

Bathey - through attorney Robert Steadman - contends that he should be allowed to continue the development proposed two years ago.

City Attorney Frank Hoffman agrees that the developer be "allowed to develop the property as originally intended and proposed." However, he adds, council should not adopt a resolution authorizing further development of the property until the Board of Appeals rules on "non-conforming use" and makes "specific findings of fact."

Council indicated Monday night that it would be put on the Oct. 15 agenda and brought before the Board of Appeals (Council acts as the Board of Appeals).

In other action Monday night, council:

Sold a 1972 Chevrolet to Scott Blanchard for $351.17 and a 1977 Chevrolet to Al Bergmann for $900.10.

Agreed to pay 25 percent of the cost for replacing the sidewalk at the Christ Episcopal Church (corner of State and Clinton streets).

Received notice from the Farmers Home Administration that the city's preapplication for funds to construct a new water tower is on file, but at the present time there in no money available for the project.

Appointed the city manager as a delegate to the MPPA.

Approved a street lighting plan for Hampton Village. Council announced that five new street lights will be erected.

Charlevoix Kiwanis Club officers were installed by Don Quinn of Cheboygan, Lieutenant Governor for Division 20, at a dinner meeting held recently at the Grey Gables Inn. Pictured are the officers and directors of the Charlevoix Club which will observe its 44th anniversary in December: Front row (l to r) James Corbin, vice president; Clarence A. Odmark, president; Rev. Raymond Giffin, president-elect; John Hess, secretary. Back row: Jackson Beatty, Rev. Austin Regier, Milton Adams, George Sevestian, directors, Clarence F. Agency on Aging receives funds

Over a half million dollars in state and federal funds has been awarded to the Northwest Michigan Agency on Aging in Traverse City to provide a variety of services to senior citizens living in 10 Northwest Michigan counties. The funds, $630,457, were awarded last Friday by the Commission on Services to the Aging for Fiscal Year 1979-80, which begins Oct. 1.

The grant includes $61,315 in state funds for alternative care services such as personal care and home health aides and $44,282 for senior center staffing. Also included is $142,545 in federal funds for the community services employment program (designed to place persons 55 and older in part-time jobs). $9,000 in federal funds for training of regional agency staff, local boards and persons providing services to the elderly, and $271,547 in federal funds for community services such as transportation and tax counseling.

The federal monies are provided through the Older Americans Act of 1965, as amended. The grant is subject to compliance with new federal regulations. Services provided through state and federal funding are available to anyone age 60 and over.

The Northwest Michigan Agency on Aging is one of 13 Area Agencies in the state funded by the Commission on Services to the Aging. Area Agencies are regional coordinating and planning agencies for services to the elderly in their region's. They contract with local agencies and organizations to provide services, as well as advocates for the elderly in the local community.

Nutrition program funded

The State Commission on Services to the Aging has awarded $455,240 in federal and state funds to three agencies in Northwest Michigan to operate a nutrition program for the elderly for the 1979-80 fiscal year, beginning Oct. 1.

Those agencies receiving grant awards are the Antrim County Board of Commissioners serving Antrim, Emmet and Charlevoix counties, $129,491; the Kalkaska County Commission on Aging, serving Kalkaska County, $248,000; and the Northwest Michigan Human Services Agency serving Benzie, Grand Traverse, Leelanau, Manistee, Missaukee and Wexford counties, $248,010.

The funds will be used to maintain the Community Services Nutrition Program operated by the agencies in a 10 county area. The program currently serves 1,205 meals per weekday. Meals and services are available at 29 different locations for persons 60 and older. Spouses of persons age 60 and over may also participate in the program. Home delivered meals are available in limited numbers to senior citizens who are physically unable to go to a congregate meal site.

Ralph S. Hamilton (left) receives commendations for his years of service to the Kiwanis Club from Div. 20 Lt. Gov. Don Quinn of Cheboygan. Hamilton has resigned after serving 18 years as secretary of the Charlevoix Club, including the past 11 years. He is succeeded by John Hess. In addition, he is a past president of the Charlevoix Club (1957) past Lieutenant Governor of Division 20 (1960) and the last president of the Forney-Clemont Memorial Foundation. He had also served many years as a member of the latter foundation.

Republicans to meet

Antrim County Republicans are planning a Las Vegas Night at Hilton Shanty Creek at 8 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 6. Highlights of the evening will include dancing, hors d'oeuvres and prizes.

Tickets are now on sale for the event. Call Madaline Taylor at 588-2249 or Dorothy Pearl at 599-2215 for tickets or information. Tickets will also be available at the door.

Wood seminar Oct. 15

"Home Heating With Wood" will be the topic of discussion at a meeting at 7 p.m. Monday, Oct. 15 at Whiting Park. Discussion will revolve around the safe and economical way to use wood stoves and fire places.

Henry Huber, extension forester from Michigan State University, will lead the discussion and will answer questions concerning wood heat. Ed Rellman, county extension director, will show a movie entitled "Home Heat With Wood."

Local personnel will discuss building codes concerning installment of wood heating appliances, safety aspects and wood supply. The meeting is open to the public.

Commission wants hatchery pollution eliminated

By Peg Ohle

Members of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners, who are constantly confronted with directives to implement state and federal regulations, last week turned the tables on the federal government.

It all started when they learned there would be a public hearing this week to consider the re-issuance of a National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System permit to discharge treated fish hatchery effluent into the Jordan River from the Jordan River Fish Hatchery at Elmira. The hatchery is operated by the U. S. Department of Interior, Fish and Wildlife Service.

Several fisherinen among the commissioners stated that the effluent was doing much damage to the Jordan River and to Lake Charlevoix where the river empties into the lake.

Charlevoix County Sanitarian Larry Levengood, who serves on the Clean Water Act Board, told the commissioners that "on a day to day basis, the hatchery probably discharges little effluent, but when they clean their ponds and other facilities, the water is black."

This was enough to make the commissioners decide to do something about re-issuance of the permit – which they did in the form of a resolution.

The resolution states that the discharge from the hatchery has a potentially negative effect on the Jordan River and Lake Charlevoix; that the goal of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act is to eliminate pollution discharges to the waters of the nation, that the limitations specified in the permit application are not consistent with the goal of the Water Pollution Control Act, and that it does not appear to the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners that the issuance of the permit with these limitations would expedite improvement of the nation's waters, specifically the Jordan River and Lake Charlevoix.

In conclusion, the resolution states that the commission objects to the issuance of the permit with these specified limitations and recommends that the Water Resources Commission revise the discharge limitations specified on the permit to be more consistent with the goals of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act.

The net effect is that the federal government was asked to clean up its own act and work toward elimination of pollution in the Jordan River and Lake Charlevoix.

This is not the first time the Jordan River Fish Hatchery has come under fire. Just last month, Thomas Weaver, a staff member of the Northwest Michigan Regional Planning and Development Commission, told members of the Lake Charlevoix Property Owners Association that the hatchery accounts for about 60 percent of the nutrient pollution in the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix.

Larry Wuhble, hatchery manager, thought the 60 percent estimate was too high.

Weaver told association members that the hatchery operates with permits that must be renewed periodically, and that the property owners group could pressure the Michigan Water Resources Commission to lower the level of nutrients which could be discharged.

This is what the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners is doing by resolution. The resolution was read into the proceedings of the public hearing which was held in East Jordan last night, and copies were sent to state and federal agencies as well as to several legislators.

Workshop starts Oct. 10

CHIP Counseling Center's workshops entitled "Getting to Know You, Getting to Know Me," led by Charlevoixian Joan Heise Jadwin will begin Wednesday Oct. 10 at 1 p.m. at the CHIP Center.

The workshops which will run for six weeks, meeting every Wednesday from 1 to 3 p.m. have limited enrollment. To register call the CHIP Center at 547-6551, by Monday, Oct. 8.

Mrs. Jadwin, who graduated from high school in Charlevoix, has returned after a career of teaching as well as work in group leadership in Flint. She has come back to Charlevoix with her husband Don, who recently retired as field coordinator for the Big Brothers and Big Sisters in Flint.

One of Mrs. Jadwin's hopes for this workshop series, which she is leading as a volunteer for CHIP, is that people from all walks of life in Charlevoix, all ages, old timers and newcomers, will participate. In a relaxed and informal setting she will pursue the theme of getting to know oneself and others better.

While there will be such specifics as coping with stress discussed in these workshops, the main emphasis will be personal growth – developing self-confidence and openness.

Improvement of trap, skeet facilities to be discussed

The Charlevoix Rod & Gun Club will meet Thursday, Oct. 4 to discuss the improvement of the club's trap and skeet facilities.

Representatives from the Emmet County Sportsman's Club and the Elk Rapids Sportsman's Club have been invited.

Interested shooters are urged to attend.

Opinion

Our Opinion

Road closing not justified

Should the city close Belvedere Avenue during the summer in exchange for lakefront property along Lake Charlevoix?

That question will most likely be put to a straw vote at the Nov. 6 general election.

It's an interesting proposal, and one that undoubtedly raises a few eyebrows.

The property along Lake Charlevoix is presently owned by Robert Schleman. According to the proposal, the Belvedere Club would purchase the frontage (300 feet) and then offer it to the city in return for the permanent, seasonal (June 15 - Sept. 15) closing of Belvedere Avenue. The property is adjacent to the Ferry Avenue Beach. So the city would be gaining additional park land.

Mayor Sam Supernaw is in favor of the proposed swap. He believes the city needs to expand Ferry Avenue Beach and this would be a way to do it without reaching into the taxpayer's pocket. He admits there would be an inconvenience for three months with the closing of Belvedere Avenue, but it would be in the city's best interest to do it. He also believes residents would howl in protest if the city tried to purchase the property outright. The property was offered to the city a year ago at $180,000, Supernaw said.

We believe the mayor's intent is good. The frontage would be a nice addition to our park system. But at the present time we do not think the proposal is justified.

The city owns a lot of park land. We have three public beaches in addition to a golf course, ski hill and harbor. It is not like the city is in dire need of additional park land and beach area.

Furthermore, Belvedere Avenue is a popular roadway in the summer, which is why the Belvedere Club would like it closed. It is a scenic drive that is enjoyed by many.

We can appreciate the intent of the Belvedere Club Board of Trustees. What's wrong with trying to improve the quality of your property?

We think a straw vote would be a good indicator. It would tell us how Charlevoix residents view the proposal. And we have already learned - from a similiar case in Boyne City - how touchy road closings along Lake Charlevoix can be.

So you don't forget, the last day to register for the Nov. 6 election is Oct. 8.

Your Opinion

District would be smaller, not larger

Editor:

A great deal of confusion over the 1980 redistricting plan has been circulating through Northern Michigan lately.

According to estimates of the 1980 census, Michigan's population has dropped sufficiently to warrant the elimination of one of our current 19 Congressional seats. The state is expected to have a population of 9,189,000 by 1980, making the approximate size of a Congressional district 510,500 (9,189,000 divided by 18) people.

The 11th Congressional District is now the second largest Congressional district east of the Mississippi River (land area). Several people have voiced concerns that the district will now be made larger, making it even more difficult to cover than it is already.

According to population estimates released August 1, 1979 by the Public Information Office of the U.S. Department of Commerce, the 11th Congressional District now has a population of approximately 539,000. These figures show that the 11th District will, in fact, need to be cut in size by about 28,500 constituents. Most likely, the district will be cut at the southernmost end, either by eliminating one large county or parts of two or more smaller counties. How the final lines are drawn is not my decision to make.

I am pleased that the people of Northern Michigan are taking an early interest in the upcoming redistricting plan. Regardless of what happens though, I can assure you that the 11th District will be made smaller in area, and not larger.

Sincerely
Robert W. Davis
Member of Congress

Inflationary spiral

Editor:

The conventional government and banking reaction to inflation is to raise interest rates on the premise that high interest rates will reduce borrowing. When was the last time that high interest rates stopped the government from borrowing money?

There is an apparent correlation between inflation and high interest rates, but it is high interest rates that increase inflation, not the other way around.

The cost of borrowing money increases the cost of goods and services without contributing to their value. High interest rates increase the lenders share of goods and services.

If high interest rates help produce high inflation rates which provides the rationale for higher interest rates you have the formula for an inflationary spiral.

Athletic code broken

Editor:

We are concerned about the inability or refusal of the Charlevoix High School administrators to enforce their athletic code. In the past weeks, there have been blatant violations that have gone unattended. The code is very explicit in defining both violations and reprimands, but school officials have "passed the buck" when it comes to enforcement.

The schools can be very quick to accuse parents for the undisciplined behavior of students. How are they helping the situation when they make a mockery of their own judicial system in full view of the entire student body?

What respect can the students possibly have for the school, its administrators, its regulations, or for that matter, society's rules and regulations? Is this teaching good citizenship?

Put it in writing

Here we go again, but at least officials are on their toes

Here we go again!

Last summer it was Front Street in Boyne City. Today it is Belvedere Avenue in Charlevoix. Tomorrow? No one knows.

The question, of course, revolves around the closing of streets for one reason or another. In Boyne City a developer wanted to close Front Street to enhance the value of property on which he plans to build condominiums. In exchange, the developer would give the city four acres of lake frontage for a park.

The question wound up at the polls where the voters said "no" two to one.

In Charlevoix, the Belvedere Club would like to close Belvedere Avenue from June 15 to Sept. 15 from the stone pillars just east of Grey Gables to the entrance to club property on the Lake Charlevoix shore. In exchange, the club would buy 300 feet of Lake Charlevoix frontage adjacent to Ferry Beach from Robert Schleman and donate it to the city as a handsome addition to the beach.

Club members, of course, would like to reduce the traffic flow on Belvedere Avenue during the summer when most of them are in residence. The route, unfortunately, is a popular one for residents of the valley and the North Side who visit Ferry Beach, the Irish Boat Shop, the city launching ramp and the Charlevoix Co-op.

The stretch which would be closed covers about 7/10th of a mile and a view of the lake is blocked most of the distance by a tall greenbelt shielding club grounds from the C&O Railroad right-of-way. However, the scenery is pleasant at the eastern extremity, passing between stately old cottages with views of the north and east of Round Lake, Old Island, the Charlevoix Coast Guard Station and the picturesque railroad bridge. All in all, it is a very scenic drive.

The main difference between the Front Street proposal in Boyne City and the Belvedere Avenue proposal in Charlevoix lies with their respective city governing bodies. In Boyne City, the commission readily agreed to close Front Street and the road undoubtedly would have been closed if an alarmed citizenry hadn't forced the issue to a vote.

However, from first reports of the offer in last week's Courier, the Charlevoix Council is not so willing to play ball.

When it was suggested that perhaps the residents of Charlevoix would like to vote on the closing of Belvedere Avenue, Councilman Robert Timms conceded that such an advisory vote would be "interesting."

But he added: "I can't see closing a city street ... because it would be forever and forever."

Bravo! I know right now how Timms feels about the proposed closing.

Councilwoman Shirley Roloff also has taken a dim view of the proposal. She suggests that if the city wants to enlarge Ferry Beach it should make an offer to purchase the Schleman property without negotiating through the Belvedere Club.

Councilman Ivan Whitley, who keeps a tight fist on the city purse-strings, promptly vetoed the suggestion.

"The taxpayers wouldn't stand still for that," Whitley said, and he is probably right.

Although five of the six councilman favor an advisory ballot on the question (only Councilman Jeff Porter disagrees because of the limited time left before the election), it is highly unlikely at this point that the proposal will be accepted by the council — even if the voters say to go ahead.

The entire discussion apparently was wearisome to County Commission Oscar Ward who attended the committee-as-a-whole session at city hall last Monday night.

"That's a scenic route that everybody enjoys," Ward said. "I think the city has more important things to discuss. Besides, you might be starting a precedent by closing this street."

It gives you a nice feeling to know your elected officials are on their toes.

A close-up look at the presidential candidates

It isn't often in northern Michigan that a reporter can travel little more than 50 miles and be able to hear five candidates for the presidency of the United States tell about their qualifications for the job.

The recent Leadership Conference of the Michigan Republican Committee held at Mackinac Island provided that opportunity.

Making their appearances before approximately 1,500 state Republicans were Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, Rep. Philip M. Crane of Illinois, Rep. John Anderson of Illinois, Ambassador George Bush of Texas and Benjamin Fernandez of California.

To this reporter, there is something about seeing and hearing a person speak just a few yards away and later shaking his hand that no amount of television-watching can duplicate in satisfaction.

First, you can assess the speaker's physical stature — his height, his bearing, his waistline. You can observe his mannerisms — his composure, his eye contact, his concentration on what is being said to him. You can pick up the voice inflections and emphases that are often lost in the electronic maze of television.

NON-POLITICAL OBSERVATIONS

Howard Baker was surprising in that he is fairly short in stature. Those who remember his booming voice as he relentlessly questioned Watergate witnesses could only think it was coming from a much larger man.

Of special interest to Northern Michigan was the announcement by Congressman Robert W. Davis, who represents the 11th Michigan District (including Charlevoix) in Washington, that he was supporting Baker for the Republican nomination.

In making the announcement, Davis said, "He has the kind of leadership we are lacking in Washington. He is an astute and fair person, the person with the best possible chance of winning next November. He is a moderate conservative, the type of person who best reflects the views of the people of Michigan."

Baker's after-dinner speech reflected his position as Minority Leader of the Senate, not criticizing present presidential leadership, but making such statements as "I'm on a great crusade to make fundamental changes in the direction of the country...We must realize that the Republican party is an indispensible part of the two-party system...Politics is important — perhaps the most important secular activity a person can engage in."

Crane, who wears a "conservative" label and has served six terms in Congress, did not mind holding the present administration responsible for the country's financial problems and compared the deflated dollar with the German marks after World War I.

He turned out to be an eloquest speaker who answered questions of his leadership possibilities with a quotation from Abraham Lincoln, "With public sentiment behind you, anything is possible."

However, Crane did not make himself popular with most of the women in his audience when he said he would not support the Equal Rights Amendment because women's rights are adequately provided for in the fourteenth amendment. He also stated that he is co-sponsoring a bill to prohibit abortion.

Anderson has been in Congress for 20 years.

He speaks in a quiet, sincere manner reminiscent of Jimmy Carter. As a member of Congress, he believes that the country can't wait until January, 1981 to do something to mend the relationship between the President and Congress. He recommends that the President form three consultive committees - on foreign policy, energy, and fiscal affairs — that he talk to them daily, and that he begin to act on their recommendations immediately.

The man who introduced George Bush reeled off a list of qualifications that any other candidate might envy: Ambassador to the United Nations, head of the Central Intelligence Agency, special envoy to China for 14 months, and chairman of the Republican National Committee, to name a few.

Bush did not hesitate to mention that he believes his experience in negotiating with the Chinese would be helpful to him as president. This Texas related, also, that he is a business man. He has sold his oil business, he said, because he doesn't believe in conflict of interest, and he has fully disclosed his assets, as well.

As the father of five, Bush said, "I want freedom for my children, something they don't have in communist countries."

The would-be president who made the most spell-binding speech of all was Benjamin Fernandez. This Mexican-American who was born in a boxcar in Kansas City, Kans. compared himself to Abraham Lincoln in his humble beginnings and left no doubt that he believed he would follow Lincoln to the presidency.

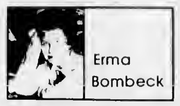
Fernandez said he had Michigan connections because he and members of his family had worked in the southern part of the state picking fruits and vegetables. Somehow Fernandez got to New York University, where he finished a four-year course in two years. From there, he went to General Electric, where he received five more years of training. Today, he is a millionaire management consultant.

"I've made a lot of money," Fernandez told his audience, "and now I want to be your president."

As might be expected, he said his efforts in domestic affairs would be in redirecting government programs so that the poor and under-educated will be given a chance to help themselves.

We nodded in agreement with something spoken by every candidate but came away with no favorite.

Good news for all you decorators...



Good news for all of you apartment dwellers who are short on space and long on imagination. I have before me a magazine article in which a decorator, faced with a dinner party, makes what she calls an "amusing transformation."

She converts her dressing room-bathroom into a dining room.

The tub is covered with an upholstered, cushioned board which serves as a buffet. She adds a folding table, extra chairs, puts the champagne into the sink to chill (thank goodness, she didn't go for the cooler with the lid) and stores her glasses on the vanity shelf.

She covers each of the walls in a different flowery fabric and for accent, sets baskets of fresh fruits about with tangerines peeled and ready to eat as "a nice surprise for hungry guests."

The peeled tangerines would be the least of the surprises. Can you imagine for a moment herding your guests to the bathroom for dinner?

I don't even want my guests to use the bathroom when we have dinner in the dining room. I cannot imagine that the idea will catch on like wildfire. Our bathroom is entirely out of the question.

1. The dressing room IS my bathroom.
2. My menus can never be adapted to harsh lighting.
3. The bathroom door has not been open, or for that matter a jar, in 15 years.
4. I couldn't eat a bite facing a full-length mirror.
5. I couldn't relax in a chair that was bolted to the floor.

To tell you the truth, I hate to see the bathroom exploited as a room for entertaining. To me, that sacred part of the house has been the last bastion of privacy for the American family.

The toddler who regards it as Disneyland with faucets; the teenager who barricades himself in there until puberty has passed; the father who seeks peace in his reading room.

But mostly, it is needed by the woman of the household as a haven from havoc...a port for post-natal depression...a refuge from reality...a retreat to regroup...a chapel in which to pray...a cloister in which to cry.

It's no place for peeled tangerines.

Meet Charlevoix

Hugh Juday of Boyne City is in charge of the Lions Clubs' Leader Dog Program in Northern Michigan. As such, he is responsible for selecting dogs that will qualify for the Leader Dog Training School. This week, Juday tells the Courier about the Leader Dog Program and his part in it.

COURIER: How do you find dogs that are suitable for the program?

JUDAY: People usually contact their local Lions Club or call me direct. There are 52 Lions Clubs in our District, all the way from Clare to the Straights, and we have a Leader Dog representative in most of them.

COURIER: What are the qualifications for a dog to be considered for the program?

JUDAY: There are many. The acceptable breeds are German Shepherds, Golden Retrievers, Labrador Retrievers, and crosses of these breeds. They must be at least 21 inches high at the shoulders and not over 25 inches. They must be friendly to all people, even strangers, and friendly to other dogs. They must be ready and willing to get right in the car and not slobber or drool or vomit when riding. They must not shy away from automobiles in traffic or from people who reach out to pat them on the head. And, of course, there are physical attributes such as good feet, good teeth, smooth coat, bright eyes, and good hips.

COURIER: How successful has your Lions Club been in getting the right dogs for the program?

JUDAY: The Boyne Valley Lions Club has had 58 dogs graduate from the Leader Dog School, and there are six there now. Our first dog graduated in 1972. We also have a puppy program where we work with 4-H Club members and others who raise the puppies we give them until they are a year old and ready for the Leader School. So far, the Boyne Valley Lions Club has put out 225 puppies on this program, which we started four years ago. We breed many of them ourselves - one of our bitches produced 20 puppies in her first three litters that graduated from Leader School.

COURIER: Tell us about the Leader School.

JUDAY: It's called the Leader School for the Blind and is located in Rochester. It was started in 1929 by the Detroit Lions Club and since then there have been about 5,000 graduating teams -- blind persons and dogs. Last year, 280 teams graduated, the most ever. It's the largest training school for guide dogs in the world.

COURIER: What percentage of the dogs that go there graduate?

JUDAY: Out of 100 dogs, 80 wash out almost immediately. Of the 20 left, two thirds will wash out during training, so only six dogs out of 100 graduate.

COURIER: Do they have enough dogs to meet the demand for them?

JUDAY: There's a waiting list of about 90 days. The School has a dormitory for 32 blind people. They come in for a four-week training session with the dogs to which they are specifically matched. Before that, the dogs are trained for four months. Usually there are about 200 dogs on hand in various stages of training.

COURIER: What does a Leader Dog cost a blind person?

JUDAY: The Leader School for the Blind is the only school that gives its dogs to the blind. All the other schools sell them. It is also the only school that will give dogs to diabetics and those with infantile paralysis.

COURIER: Then how is the School supported?

JUDAY: It is 77.7 percent supported by the Lions. The rest comes from United Funds and individual donations. During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1979, Lions Clubs' contributions to Leader Dogs for the Blind amounted to $1,85,756. This included almost every state in the Union and Denmark and Spain. Lions Clubs in Michigan contributed $465,818, by far the most of any state.

COURIER: How do the dogs you pick up in Northern Michigan get to the Leader School for the Blind in Rochester?

JUDAY: We take them there. Sometimes I keep them at home here for a while if they need obedience training or if they are under a year old. Right now I have 13 dogs. The Lions Club pays any veterinary bills I might have and part of the feed bills. My wife, Mary, also works with our dogs.

COURIER: What else do you and Mary do for the Leader Dog Program?

JUDAY: We put on programs for clubs and participate in parades and other events. We have two films about the school that we use.

COURIER: Then anyone interested in such a program should call you?

JUDAY: Yes. My phone number if 582-9115.

COURIER: Had you ever worked with animals before joining the Leader Dog Program?

JUDAY: Well, I used to race pigeons and hunt bear with hounds, had to give up hunting after my heart attack, though.

COURIER: Have you always lived in Boyne City?

JUDAY: No, I came up here from Grand Rapids with Courier in 1953. I'm originally from Troy, Ohio.

COURIER: Many is retiring from the Charlevoix County Department of Social Services, isn't she?

JUDAY: Yes, she's been there since 1958. They had a retirement party for her last week.

COURIER: Do you have children in the area.

JUDAY: Two sons, John and Gene. They live in Resort Township.

COURIER: Anything else you want to say?

JUDAY: Just that anybody with a dog who might qualify for the Leader Program, or anyone interested in raising a puppy, give me a call.

Martin Bieganowski

Bieganowski 'Realtor of Year'

Martin Bieganowski was selected 1979 "Realtor of the Year" at a recent meeting of the Antrim-Charlevoix Board of Realtors at Antrim Dells.

Each year one realtor is honored for his or her contribution to their profession and to their community.

Bieganowski opened his first office in Macomb County in 1964 and at one point had two offices and 30 people licensed to him. During this time he established a workable trade-in program. Late in 1971 he and his family moved to northern Michigan, opened a real estate office in Boyne City, and purchased an old farm. Bieganowski then began his sabatical and "played on the farm", as he tells it.

As time passed he became more involved in his realtor board functions and in community activities. In 1977 he began "tooling up" as he calls it, and since that time has attended 12 seminars and has made numerous contributions to the realtor board and the community. Bieganowski estimates that he has been involved in over 2,000 transactions during his 20 years in real estate and has sold commercial property, dairy farms, and acreage parcels as well as new and existing homes and a golf course.

Bieganowski and wife, Julie, have four children. He is a director of the Boyne City Chamber of Commerce, a former cubmaster, has spent five years with The Little League, and as a part of the Lions Club puppy program has contributed 49 Golden Retriever puppies, of which 20 now are graduate Leader Dogs.

Attend conference

The Michigan Association of Non-Public Schools Educational Conference was held at Cobo Hall in Detroit recently.

The faculty at St. Mary's School here were among the 6,500 administrators and teachers from Lutheran, Christian Reformed and Catholic schools who attended the conference whose theme was "Basics and Beyond."

Besides the three keynote speakers, there were many workshop meetings.

Attending from St. Mary's school were Sister Agnes Mary Wojtkowiak, school principal, Mrs. Jeanne Dubey, John Gagnon and Karen Kirschner.

Health Center closed

The East Jordan Family Health Center will not be pruviding medical services on Thursday, Oct. 4 or Friday, Oct. 5. However, the office will be open to assist anyone in obtaining access to medical care elsewhere if there is an emergency. The Health Center will return to regular hours on Monday, Oct. 8.

GEMWISE
JEWELRY FASHIONS FAR'STRUCTION
John Reusch
People once believed amber could cure or prevent some diseases. They also wore amber around their necks for good luck or to keep danger away. Today amber is still carved and polished and is still valued as a beautiful jewel.
The best amber for jewelry is translucent. Light seems to shine down into its depths. But cloudy amber is beautiful too, even though you can't see through it.
Amber comes in different colors. It can be light yellow or deep orange brown. Black and blue pieces of amber are rare. Some amber is fluorescent and shines under special light. When amber is rubbed, it makes static electricity - causing little pieces of dust or lint to cling to the amber. This is one way to tell if amber is real or fake. Another way is to see whether it floats in a strong salt solution. Real amber will sink to the bottom. Fake will float.

An Oldie But Goodie
So, you don't like the kitchen. But, the beautifully redone living room (with its fireplace), dining room and the two new bedrooms downstairs will turn you on! Upstairs, there's plenty of room(s) and plenty of work too. However, all new wooden windows with combination storms and screens and new aluminum siding are additional pluses. A big 36 x 36 garage workshop and a sound 24 x size barn come with this package. Best of all the price, to include five acres of land, has just been reduced to just $36,900.

Fall color tour

Sunny days, crisp evenings and the technicolor of forest lands tell us that autumn has arrived in northern Michigan.

The next two weeks promise to be the most colorful. Camera buffs will have a field day as fall color reaches its peak.

There are several ways to enjoy Mother Nature's change of season.

The Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce sponsors fall color cruises aboard the motor ship, Beaver Islander. The cruise meanders along the shoreline of Lake Charlevoix providing passengers with a breathtaking view of changing colors. Crusies are scheduled for Oct. 6, 7, 13 and 20. A limited number of tickets are available. The first color cruise (Sept. 29) was a complete sellout. For those who do have tickets, remember, the boat leaves the municipal dock at 1 p.m.

If you prefer to stay on land, a drive around Lake Charlevoix can be very picturesque.

The Boyne City-Charlevoix Road is the main artery on the lake's north side. This road will lead you past an old horse farm, a dairy farm, an old barn that has been converted into an antique shop, a maple syrup retailer, a campground and a state park.

It will also take you through historic Horton Bay - a favorite summer vacation spot of Ernest Hemmingway. Two of the more noteworthy shops in Horton Bay are the General Store (the building is over 100 years old) and the Red Fox Inn (local products store).

For a scenic view turn off the Boyne City-Charlevoix Road at Maple Grove Road. Drive approximately two miles to Grange Hall. From the top of the hill you can see both Lake Charlevoix and Lake Michigan.

On the south side of the lake, the Boyne Mountain resort will offer rolling hills and bright colors. It is especially pretty by Deer Lake (off Deer Lake Road).

There are several apple orchards in the area, particularly around the East Jordan and Ironton area. The cider mills should be busy at this time of year.

Another scenic view is at Deadman's Hill. To get to Deadman's Hill - which overlooks the Jordan Valley State Forest - drive to Boyne Falls and then take US-131 South approximately 10 miles (just past the M-32 intersection).

The shorelines of Lake Michigan - near Bells Bay State Park - and Walloon Lake also offer spectacular views, particularly at sunset.

If you would like to get out and experience the season first hand, there are several walking trails of interest. The Jordan Valley is a favorite spot for hikers. And East Jordan has just unveiled a new hiking path around Brown's Creek. The path starts at the Middle School tennis courts. And, of course, Young State Park on Lake Charlevoix has its own nature trails.

Ouch! Blue Devils spank Rayders, 36-7

The weatherman could not have been more cooperative Friday night, but the Gaylord Blue Devils sure could have been.

The Blue Devils thumped the previously unbeaten Charlevoix Rayders, 36-7, in a key Michigan-Huron Shores Conference football clash at Kipke Field.

Coupled with Cheboygan's 28-8 conquest of Grayling, the Blue Devils and Chiefs (Cheboygan) are now perched atop the conference standings.

Charlevoix travels to Cheboygan Friday night. The Chiefs have won 14 games in a row. Cheboygan was the first team to score on Grayling this year. Grayling had rolled up three straight wins to start the year, outscoring opponents 46-0.

Charlevoix, meanwhile, will be trying to put its game back together after being dismantled by Gaylord. The Blue Devils dominated the Rayders for most of Friday's contest.

On the game's second play, Blue Devil running back Doug Mead veered right and scampered 67 yards to paydirt. Eric Kehler converted and before the crowd had a chance to get settled on a warm evening, Gaylord was ahead 7-0.

On its next possession, Gaylord threatened again, but the Rayders intercepted a pass at the goal line to thwart the drive. In the second quarter, Gaylord's Scott Hansen scored on a two yard run. Ken Sides went in on a two point conversion to make it 15-0.

Charlevoix's moment of glory came shortly afterwards when Scott Kerridge intercepted a Blue Devil pass and returned it to the gaylord 15 yard line. Scott Morgan tallied from the five yard line and then kicked the extra point to narrow the gap to eight points, 15-7.

The second half was all Gaylord. Mead scored twice on runs of three and four yards and Hansen broke loose on a 80 jaunt. Kehler converted after each touchdown.

Mead finished the game with 156 yards on the ground. As a team, Gaylord had 254 yards rushing and 82 yards passing. Charlevoix had 135 yards rushing and 56 yards passing. Bob Russell paced the Rayder attack with 92 yards in 16 carries.

On defense, Jerry Sladek was credited with 17 tackles, Rod Anderson 13 and Jack Cross 11.

The Rayders will have to play without Morgan for possibly the remainder of the season. The senior wingback broke a bone in his foot.

JV's bow, 46-6

It was a long evening Thursday for the Charlevoix junior varsity football squad. The Rayders bowed to Gaylord, 46-6.

The only Rayder touchdown came in the third quarter when Jeff Morgridge scored from the one yard line. The TD was set-up on a 12 yard run by Mark Morgan.

The loss dropped Charlevoix's record to 1-3.

Coach Hal Evans credited Bill Ranger and Lee Sanford for their play in the loss.

The Rayders will host Cheboygan Thursday.

Frosh tie Gaylord

Charlevoix and Gaylord battled to an 8-8 tie in freshman football action Wednesday night.

The Rayders, now 1-1-1 on the season, scored in the second quarter on a 20 yard run by Jeff Trimper. Trimper then passed to Chris Putman for the two point conversion.

Gaylord tied the score in the fourth quarter on a six yard run. The Blue Devils also converted for two points after the TD on a run.

Charlevoix Coach Charlie Bentley said Wednesday's game was one of the best played in recent memory. He recognized Trimper, Bill Dohrn, Jon Supernaw, Tim Bergmann and Bob Wise and Putman.

The Rayders will be at Cheboygan Wednesday.

Hoopsters perfect after three games

Charlevoix won its third straight non-conference basketball game of the season Thursday, 46-25, over Ellsworth.

Coach Toni Felter's club will start Michigan-Huron Shores play Thursday at Petoskey. The Northmen are 1-2, but have several veterans back from a year ago and could give the Rayders a stiff test. Last year Charlevoix had to come from behind in the final quarter to win at Petoskey after blowing the Northmen out the gymnasium at Charlevoix earlier in the season.

The Rayders warmed up for the conference opener with a relatively easy win over the Lancers, who are coached by Dwight Boss.

Charlevoix held an 11-2 advantage after the first quarter and then increased the margin to 15, 25-10, at half. In the second quarter, Charlevoix outscored Ellsworth 14-8 as Melinda Klooster canned 12 points.

Klooster was the only Rayder to score in double figures as the junior center tallied 26 points. Marie Buday and Mel Kerridge each added eight points. Chris Howes was the high point scorer for Ellsworth with 10 points. With her 26 point performance, Klooster improved her season scoring average to 22 points per game.

Charlevoix's junior varsity also won its third game without a loss by defeating the Lancers, 22-21. The three wins have been by a total of five points.

Charlevoix	11	14	11	10 - 46

Charlevoix - Klooster 10 6-13 26, Noirot 2 0-0 4, Buday 4 0-0 8, Kerridge 4 0-0 8. Totals 20 6-13 46. Total Fouls: 11. Fouled Out: None.

Harriers third at T.C. Invitational

Charlevoix and Benzie Central tied for third place Saturday in the Traverse City Senior High School Invitational. Both schools finished with 94 points.

Eleven schools competed in the invitational with Alpena coming out on top and Midland placing second.

Jay Swartwout was Charlevoix's top finisher. He came in seventh with a time of 18:20. Jeff Landon was eighth at 18:23, Jun Landon was 16th at 18:43, Todd Russell was 30th at 19:18 and Scott Davis was 33rd at 19:20. Jim Duke did not participate in the meet.

The course was 3.1 miles and, according to Coach Pete Spieles, "very hilly."

On Tuesday, the Rayders placed second in a four team meet at Belvedere.

Charlevoix tallied 42 points. Rogers City won the meet with 25 points. Boyne City was third with 72 points and St. Ignace fourth with 95 points.

Jay Swartwout was Charlevoix's top finisher. He placed third with a time of 16:07. Jeff Landon was right behind Swartwout with a time of 16:20, which was good for fourth place. Jim Duke was ninth at 16:56, Jim Landon was 12th at 17:11 and Mark Drenth was 14th at 17:18.

Rogers City also won the junior varsity match with 18 points. Charlevoix was second with 49 points.

Still openings

There are still openings in the leagues for basketball and volleyball teams Dwight Boss, Charlevoix Recreation director, has announced following the initial meeting of team representatives.

The volleyball leagues are the men's, women's and mixed leagues. There will also be two basketball leagues if enough interest is shown.

Any persons or teams interested in joining the program are asked to call the Recreation Department office between 2 and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Wesley Simmerman

Wesley Simmerman has been with Erber Auto for 5 years. He prepares cars from the auto factories for sale and also cleans and polishes all used cars that come to Erber's. Wesley also delivers cars and has many other duties.

Although Wesley is a native of Northern Michigan, he lived in Detroit for 33 years before moving back here in 1973. In Detroit Wesley worked in several different capacities for Fredromogal-Bower Rotor Bearing Co. for 26 years.

Wesley and his wife Agnes Kovar live on two acres outside Charlevoix. They have a daughter, Susan, who is a senior at Charlevoix High School and an avid member of the C.H.S. Marching Band.

Wesley says he stays busy in the summer "cutting grass, two acres of it - and working in the garden." In the winter he's a snowmobiler and during the school year he attends all the Charlevoix football and basketball games.

Stop at Erber Auto today! You'll find all the staff members are friendly and capable.

Girl Scout registration slips now available

Registrations are being accepted from girls in the first through the sixth grade who are interested in joining the Girl Scouts, Mrs. Sanford Washburn has announced.

Registration slips have been sent into the homes through students in these grades. For those who might not have received such a slip, provisions have been made to call Mrs. Washburn at 547-4202 to register.

The girls will be assigned to Brownie or Junior troops depending on their age.

All girls planning to join the scouts are asked to register as soon as possible.

Mrs. Washburn said there is also a need for leaders and assistant leaders. Anyone interested in assisting with the program is asked to call her.

Officers elected

The Northern District rally of Women of the Church of God was held at Petoskey recently, Mrs. Mary Kerr of Charlevoix, president of the organization, has announced.

Other officers who were elected were Mrs. Marge LaBaie of Alpena, vice president; Mrs. Shirley Lusk of Charlevoix, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Leanne Southwood of Petoskey.

More than 50 members from throughout the district that extends from Cadillac north of the Straits of Mackinac were in attendance.

In addition to business sessions, a feature of the meeting was a slide presentation by Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Sheffer of Charlevoix which related their work as "spot missionaries" in Barbados. They told of the people and their needs.

Volunteers are building a church for the people. Mr. Sheffer, an electrician, has done the electrical work on the structure. The couple plans to return for a time this fall to assist with the project.

A potluck lunch was served at noon.

Save - Share

Glen's

Glen's Shares Over $450,000.00 With Local Organizations & Groups!

What is Glen's Save-Share?

Glen's Save-Share is a program which was started in June of 1972 by C. Glen Catt, Founder of Glen's Markets and Family Centers, and has been administered from the beginning by R. Keith Catt, Vice President of Glen's Markets.

Glen's Seve-Share was set-up to enable community organizations and groups a means from which they could earn money for projects that would help improve the communities in which we live.

Any registered group can simply save Glen's Markets and Family Centers green register tapes, add them up and turn them in to their local Glen's Market to have shared with them 1% of the qualified total. The qualified total being the total minus any beer, wine, or cigarette purchases and sales tax.

Where does the money come from...?? The dollars are taken out of Glen's Advertising budget. As Save-Share grows, Glen's Markets slowly cuts back on their advertising.

For further details for your group or organization, please contact the Store Manager or Assistant Store Manager at your local Glen's Market and Family Center.
